The legend is that Frank and Jesse James fought as guerillas in the Civil War, hoping to avenge the wrongs done them by the Union forces. At the end of the war the Jameses surrendered, but were very badly treated, and were at last outlawed. Rejected by their country, they took up the life of the train-robber and the bandit, and were distinguished by their insouciance and gallantry. After many years Jesse was betrayed by Bob Ford, who shot him, and "Jesse James went to rest, with his hand on his breast"; Ford is mentioned in the ballad as "the dirty little coward that killed Mr. Howard"; Howard was Jesse's last alias. As for Frank, he served a penitentiary term, and then took up the life of a farmer, and died in 1915 of diabetes.

* * *

But the Jesse James of legend and the Jesse James of reality were hardly recognizable as the same man. Frank James claimed in his autobiography that he was the son of a roughneck named Ed Reed and that his mother, to save herself from the shame of bearing an illegitimate child, inveigled a parson named Robert James into marrying her; presumably Jesse was Robert's son. Through the Reed connection the Jameses were related to Cole, Jim, Bob and John Younger, the notorious outlaws, to Bob, Grat and Emmett Dalton, also outlaws, to Jim Reed and Belle Starr, 'the Bandit Queen', and to Belle's daughter, Pearl Younger, who became a notorious harlot. The whole tribe was thoroughly unsavoury and of defective intelligence; people who knew Jesse describe him as a subnormal but cunning man. Frank, when he gave up banditry, was unable to make a living as a clerk in a shoe-store or as a doorman at a theatre, and dragged out a diseased and wretched life on his farm. It was there that he wrote The Only True History of The Life of Frank James, which one historian (Burton Rascoe) describes as "maudlin, illiterate, vague, confused and pathetic."

* * *

Now what of the glorious deeds of the Jameses, which were celebrated in 36 five-cent volumes published by the Westbrook Company of Cleveland, and written by William Ward? These books purported to tell of the fascinating crimes of the brothers and of Ed Miller, Bob Hite, Bill Ryan, Jim Liddel and Dan Bassman, who were trusties in their gang. Certainly the Jameses robbed trains and mail-coaches and banks, but they could not possibly have committed all the crimes attributed to them. When robbing a bank it was their habit to ride into a town, shooting in the air and uttering the rebel yell, whereupon all the inhabitants ran for cover and kept quiet until the robbery was over; if anyone stirred he was shot as dead as the by no means remarkable marksmanship of the desperadoes could make him. Jesse, whose courage was of a peculiar kind, once cut the throat of a bank clerk who did not appear to be sufficiently cowed. But as the bandits usually stole bonds (which were not negotiable) and gold (which attracted too much attention to be easily passed), they committed all their murders for a very few hundred dollars in actual, usable cash. The $10,000 reward which was offered for Jesse's capture—'dead or alive'—was doubtless a greater fortune than the bandit ever enjoyed himself at one time.

* * *

And what about the murder of Jesse James? Was he a martyr to treachery, as the popular legend goes? Certainly Bob Ford slept in the same bed as Jesse for three nights before he murdered him, and then shot Jesse in the back when he had stepped up on a chair to adjust a picture which had become crooked. Ford apparently expected that he would be acclaimed as a hero for his act; instead he was condemned as a coward and Jesse became a national hero. But there is no evidence that there was anything in the least heroic, or generous, honourable or open-handed about Jesse James. Like that other much-touted bad-man, Billy the Kid, he was a vicious oaf. He learned his trade as a killer under C. W. Quantrill, who posed during the Civil War as a guerilla leader on the Confederate side, but who has been proved to have been a killer and a looter, a man of unnatural cruelty, cloaking his activities under an assumed patriotism.

* * *

The death of Mrs. Frank James removes the last contemporary witness of the doings of the notorious brothers, and she swore that she carried their true story to her grave. It seems unlikely, however, that she knew anything which would have radically altered the opinion of either history or popular legend about the James Boys. To the sentimental they will always be illumined with the light of romance; they will always be brave boys who were forced by cruel fate to adopt a life of crime. And to the historian they will always be robbers of a gross and unimaginative stamp, who lived vainly and died ingloriously.

Where Does Delinquency Begin?

When he presented his annual statement to the Toronto Board of Police Commissioners, Chief Constable D. C. Draper drew attention to the fact that juvenile crime had decreased during the past year, and then said that he considered the machinery for control of juvenile delinquency in Toronto inadequate. "The school under the leadership of the Department of Education is the proper and logical authority to give leadership in this field, with the support through co-operation and co-ordination of all other agencies", said he.

We could not disagree more than we do with this opinion. The school is not the proper and logical authority to deal with problems leading toward juvenile delinquency, and we do not think that the school should be saddled with any such responsibility. Too many people are apt to forget that a school is primarily a place of education, and not a combination reformatory and psychiatric clinic. It is desirable that children should be expected to show good manners and a proper spirit of tolerance and co-operation in their school life, but these matters are secondary to the school's main job, which is to provide the basis for a sound education.

The proper and logical authority to deal with the early symptoms of juvenile delinquency is the home. One of the essentials of home life is surely that parents provide training, guidance and discipline for their children, and that the advice of the Family Court is asked only in cases where the parents are no longer able to control their young. Admittedly there are parents who neglect their duty in this respect, or who are too feeble or too irresponsible to enforce their authority, but they are not a majority. Most parents bring up their own children in the way that they think best, and they would strongly resent too great an interference from school authorities. Particularly they would resent any application to their children of methods which were considered suitable for dealing with juvenile delinquents.

One of the faults of democracy is that it tends to judge us all from the level of the lowest. The majority of children are not potential juvenile delinquents, and nothing but harm can come of instituting a school system which approaches them as though they were. If there are children in our schools who are not amenable to the light discipline which is in force in our schools, let us establish special schools for them. But let us not load the schools with what is essentially the parents' job of instilling the fear of God into the young.

How To Be A Bore

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE world is full of discontented people. Some are discontented because they feel that in spite of their obvious merit, life has treated them badly. Others, slightly more discerning, feel that the explanation for their humdrum and unsatisfactory lives lies in some fault in their own natures. And of this latter group there are millions who every year go in for some form of self-cultivation in the hope that they will thereby find escape from their discontent. They are the people who take correspondence courses which guarantee to give them a large vocabulary, or superior executive ability, or irresistible charm, or will-power. They are the people who make best-sellers of such books as Dale Carnegie's "How To Make Friends And Influence People."

◇ ◇ ◇

AT present this very large section of the public is making a best-seller of a book by Marie Beynon Ray, which is temptingly called "How Never To Be Tired, or Two Lifetimes In One." I have read it eagerly because I am very often tired, and I am just as anxious to crowd two lifetimes into one as the next man. It is my sad duty to report to you that I still become tired and am still leading one life. There may be a secret of boundless energy, but Mrs. Ray has not confided it to those who lay out $3.25 for her book. Indeed, if you have not already read it, save yourself the trouble, for I am going to tell you all about it here.

ENERGY, says Mrs. Ray, feeds on itself, and the more you use it the more you will have. Whether this is related to any known mechanical or physical principle I cannot say. If you are tired, says Mrs. Ray, it is probably because you are bored; the thing for you to do is not to curl up in bed with a good book; on the contrary you must find something absorbing to do, and do it with all your might. Your job is dull, you say? Then make your job a mere incident in your day, and save your real excitement for your avocation, which you follow at night. Crowd your life with things to do, and leave no room for self-doubt, and negative emotions such as boredom, discontent, and yearning for the unattainable. Nothing is unattainable, shouts Mrs. Ray, and then proceeds to batter the reader about the head with stories of people who have achieved the seemingly impossible.

NOW this is all very cheerful, and I have read it all before. But I still maintain that it works better with some people than with others, and that there are a great many people with whom it will not work at all. What is more, it will only work in certain fields of endeavour. In a welter of forceful illiteracy Mrs. Ray thrusts upon us the examples of Edison, Lincoln, Benjamin Franklin, Henry Ford, Bernarr McFadden and all the usual heroes and demigods of the American pantheon, who, according to her, achieved and kept their great heights by noise, pushfulness and working 19 hours a day. It is not thus, I suggest, that the ordinary man finds happiness, and although Mrs. Ray writes glibly about psychiatry, I seriously doubt whether she has more than a bowing acquaintance with that branch of medicine. Dale Carnegie (whom Mrs. Ray admires unreservedly) taught us how to make friends and influence people by a calculated process of toad-eating and minor deceit; Mrs. Ray teaches us how never to be bored by instructing us to become infernal, bounding bores ourselves.

IT is to be feared that Mrs. Ray has played a not uncommon trick on herself and her readers; she has reduced a number of great men—and several not so great—to the level of her own comprehension, instead of trying to boost her powers of comprehension up to their level. The results are disastrous, though often funny. Obviously Mrs. Ray regards the acquirement of money as one of the chief ends of man, if not the foremost, and she gives plenty of figures to show what her gift of increased energy can mean in dollars and cents. Benjamin Franklin, she tells us, consciously formed his character along lines which he chose in his youth, and what was the result? He became one of the richest Americans of his day. There are aspects of the character of Poor Richard which appear to be unknown to Mrs. Ray. This frank worship of money is rather pleasing because it is so guileless, but somebody really ought to point out to Mr. Ray that not all men of great wealth are human dynamos; some of them are languid, quiet fellows who have become rich through superior cunning rather than through superior energy.

◇ ◇ ◇

ENERGY, to Mrs. Ray, seems to mean sheer physical bounce. Of intellectual energy she has only the vaguest idea. In her final chapter, Four Who Rule The World, she discusses the characters of Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek, and it is quite clear that she has no appreciation whatever of the mental power of any of these men. She is impressed by the multiplicity of Churchill's interests, and by the long hours that Stalin works; she admires Chiang because he wrote "last year's runaway best-seller," and Roosevelt because he is boyish about his stamp collection. But it takes a little more than Mrs. Ray suspects to lead a great nation. It takes more than the ability to shout and rush about and never be tired. It takes brains, and neither Mr. Carnegie nor Mrs. Ray has yet written a book telling us how we may change our ordinary brains for superior ones.

LIKE many another book of pseudo-psychology, this one is based upon a partial realization of what is, at best, a half-truth. Energy is a great help in any task, but most of us need to learn to use the energy which we have productively, rather than to increase our store. We need to learn to sit still and think, rather than to rush about and act. The most energetic creatures I have ever seen were some mice who lived in a bell-jar and breathed rarefied air. But they were still mice, for all their energetic nonsense, and nothing could make them anything more. Einstein, half-asleep in an armchair, is a more worthy model than a pepped-up mouse.

In July at Kew

From the oval-shaped flower-bed there rose perhaps a hundred stalks spreading into heart-shaped or tongue-shaped leaves half-way up and unfurling at the tip red or blue or yellow petals marked with spots of colour raised upon the surface; and from the red, blue or yellow gloom of the throat emerged a straight bar, rough with gold dust and slightly clubbed at the end. The petals were voluminous enough to be stirred by the summer breeze, and when they moved, the red, blue and yellow lights passed one over the other, staining an inch of the brown earth beneath with a spot of the most intricate colour. The light fell either upon the smooth, grey back of a pebble, or the shell of a snail with its brown, circular veins, or falling into a raindrop, it expanded with such intensity of red, blue and yellow the thin walls of water that one expected them to burst and disappear. Instead, the drop was left in a second silver grey once more, and the light now settled upon the flesh of a leaf, revealing the branching thread of fibre beneath the surface, and again it moved on and spread its illumination in the vast green spaces beneath the dome of the heart-shaped and tongue-shaped leaves. Then the breeze stirred rather more briskly overhead and the colour was flashed into the air above, into the eyes of the men and women who walk in Kew Gardens in July.—From "A Haunted House and Other Stories," by Virginia Woolf.

HERMANN AND THE DOODLEBUGS —By Thomas

Is Your Money Safe?

(MONTREAL STAR)

THE banks are a favourite target of the "reformers," and the United Farmers of Canada—at least their Saskatchewan section—have ojined the hue and cry initiated by those people who think that manipulation of money is the answer to the world's ills. In a brief presented to the House of Commons Banking Committee, the United Farmers demand that the administration of banking and credit be taken from the banks and vested in the Dominoin.

The demand is based on an initial error that is fatal to its conclusion. Control of banking and credit are already vested in the Dominion. That is why the Banking Committee is now sitting. It is engaged in the decennial revision of the Bank Act, an Act of Parliament control of banking and credit.

Moreover, the United Farmers overlook the developing role of the Bank of Canada. If it was true to say ten years ago that the chartered banks controlled credit, the statement is no longer true, for a large measure of control over the volume of credit is exercised by the Bank of Canada, which is a Government agency and therefore an agency of the people.

But this is not what money reformers like the United Farmers, the C.C.F. and the Social Creditors want. They want a scapegoat. This is quite evident from the rest of the brief presented yesterday. "Our considered opinion is that the present operators are not fit and proper to be entrusted with the operation of the nation's money and credit instruments," it reads. And it goes on to allege that the banks have been guilty of transgressions against the Bank Act, have proved inefficient in times of crisis, and have refused to share the losses suffered by all Canadians. Particular reference is made to the plight of the farmer in the hard years, although no mention is made of the fact that the wheat farmer—and it is Saskatchewan farmers who make the present demands—during both good and bad times took all that the traffic would bear in the shape of loans.

It is a proper retort to those who charge the banks with failure to protect the national interest during the depression to point out that not a single Canadian bank failed during that period when banks elsewhere were dropping by the wayside in droves. It was never necessary to close the banks in Canada, as it was in the United States, to save both them and the nation; and even the farmer now complaining began no run in the banks when the depression was at its worst. He knew that his money was safe, and he should remember now that the bank was discharging then its primary obligation, which is to its depositors and not to its shareholders. Our banks are still doing that. No Canadian depositor has lost a nickel through bank delinquency.

Canada has every reason to be proud of its banking system, which is regarded by those best qualified to judge, everywhere in the world, as one of the finest and strongest in existence.

Compulsory Savings

(NEW YORK TIMES)

COMPULSORY savings is one of the fiscal devices developed for the first time during this war. Such savings are effected by increasing the tax rate and then refunding part of the increase after the war. Both England and Canada have adopted this device to help meet their financial needs. The plan has had many advocates in this country also, and was adopted on a small scale in connection with the victory tax. However, the compulsory savings feature was dropped in connection with the tax simplification program.

Now the Canadians are abandoning the compulsory savings feature of their income tax after two years' experience. Since we have frequent advocacy of the introduction of an extensive compulsory savings scheme in this country, a brief review of the Canadian experience should be enlightening. The yield has been rather small. In the past fiscal year forced savings aggregated about $110,000,000, or about 4 per cent of the Government's expenditures. Most of these savings came from those in the lower income group who were not able to offset the compulsory saving requirement by voluntary savings as permitted under the Canadian plan. One reason for eliminating forced savings was that there developed many instances of "special difficulty and hardship" because of the heavy burden on this group.

The high rate of taxes for the combined tax and savings program was also considered to be one of the "many causes contributing to absenteeism, unwillingness to work overtime and lack of application on the job." Many taxpayers failed to distinguish between the refundable and the non-refundable taxes, with consequent adverse effect on incentive. While Finance Minister Ilsley admitted that he did not know exactly what effect these taxes were having on production, the need for such production is so "urgent and immediate" that even questionable restraints could not be tolerated. Hence the discontinuation of compulsory savings was recommended.

Finally, it was felt that this step could be taken without loss of funds to the Government because there has been built up a voluntary savings organization "which has achieved a notable record of success." As we have noted previously, the Canadians have been particularly effective in selling bonds to individuals — much more successful than we have been, to judge by the long lagging sales of Series E bonds in our Fifth Victory Loan drive.

Letter To The Editor

ANSWERS INDIGNANT SALVAGER

Sir,—Please allow me space to once again reply to one of these childish salvage letters which appear from time to time. The writers, who never have courage enough to sign their names, always put the blame for their own shortcomings on someone else. It is clearly stated in all ads, appertaining to salvage, everything must be tied, —also be salvageable, a doll carriage is not metal, in the salvage terms and all we ask for is rags and paper strongly, not prettily tied. There is a proper way to throw grenades, even if they haven't pink bows and there is a proper way to prepare salvage, if not properly prepared, it is left.

Have you considered, there is just one truck, covering the whole city, we too, are without help, and if every householder put out just one bundle not tied, we would have several thousand to tie, before it could be shipped, so if you are unable to tie one bundle why expect us to tie lots. (We don't get paid.) The committee keeps no funds, after advertising is paid for, every cent goes to our Army, Navy and Air Force auxiliaries, so those boys you are so concerned about, are the ones you are venting your spite on. You say you "took the trouble" for four weeks to gather your salvage, well I've taken the "trouble" for four years to listen to people like you, drive a truck in zero weather, stand for hours, sorting, baling and tying, not only salvage but rubbish, put out by those who think we should pick up anything, just because they want to get rid of it, and I am tired of it too. If it gives you comfort to watch your salvage burn, it is the government and our boys overseas, you are cheating, not the temperamental collectors, and I too, am an "Indignant Salvager," but will sign my name.

DORIS WHALON,
Chairman.

NOT TOO YOUNG

"Yes, it's great stuff, this tonic," said the salesman. "It'll make you feel ten years younger, sir."

"Ten years? Well, it's no good to me," said Brown. "I wouldn't mind feeling sixteen years younger, but ten years—no."

"How's that?" asked the salesman.

"I've been married fifteen years—that's why."

BARBER'S FEE

The Appeal Court of Manitoba has handed down a judgment which in effect nails the price barbers may charge for a haircut at thirty-five cents, except in the case of those barber shops where a hgiher rate prevailed previous to the basic rate period, August 11 to September 15, 1941.—Winnipeg Tribune.

SPARE THE MILKWEED

When farmers in that area of Canada bounded by Central Manitoba on the west and a line in Quebec drawn through Three Rivers are wielding the hoe or scythe this summer, they are asked to go easy on milkweed.' This request comes from the Agricultural Supplies Board. A Bible Message

The days of our years are threescore years and ten: and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labour and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away. (Ps. 90: 10.)

For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, all the days of his vain life which he spendeth as a shadow? (Eccl. 6: 12.)

Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field: but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way. But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares? He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou that we go and gather them up?

But he said, Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn. (Matt. 13: 24-30.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A very stout man was walking on the promenade of a seaside town when he noticed a weighing machine with the notice: "I speak your weight."

He put a penny in the slot and stood on the platform. A voice answered: "One at a time, please!"

From Macdonald Hastings' book Passed as Censored (Harrap) comes the following:

After medical examination, recruits for the Army are interviewed by an officer who recommends each man for a branch of the Forces in which his calling in private life can be turned to good account. The majority are easily placed; the minority have a way of baffling the most informed of military cross-examiners. My favourite interview—I give you a guarantee of its authenticity—goes like this:

Interviewer: "What was your job in private life?"

Recruit: "I was a radio producer."

Interviewer: "A radio producer? (Thumbing the official list of professions.) "But that is a reserved profession."

Recruit: "I don't think so, sir."

Interviewer: "Excuse me. The manufacture of radio sets is an essential industry."

Recruit: "But I'm not that sort of radio producer...."

Interviewer: "Then what sort of producer are you?"

Recruit: "Well, sir, I work for the broadcasting people...."

Interviewer: "Oh, so that's it! A wireless operator?"

Recruit: "No, sir, not a wireless operator. I'm afraid I know very little about the technical side of radio."

Interviewer: "You say you're a radio producer. Then you say you're not. You say you work for the broadcasting people, but you know nothing about radio...."

Recruit: "Oh, yes, sir? I know something about radio. You see, I produce radio programs."

Interviewer (triumphantly): "A printer?"

Recruit: "Not exactly, sir. What I mean to say...."

Interviewer: "All right. We're putting you on searchlights."

FEMALE LIFEGUARD—Beauty and efficiency was combined by the City Council when they hired Mrs. Ruth Choate to act as lifeguard at Inverlea Bathing Beach. Believed to be the first full-time female lifeguard in Ontario, Mrs. Choate holds first-class lifesaving certificates, is a powerful swimmer, and believes in keeping fit at all times. She is a great favorite with the children at the beach, and mothers who have accompanied the youngsters to the beach have commented on the efficiency and charm of this capable woman. 500 Children Are Swimming Daily At Inverlea Beach

By DON McGIBBON

With more than 500 youngsters coming to Inverlea bathing-park daily, and several hundred more who pop up on Sundays and holidays, Mrs. Ken Choate, Peterborough's first full-time feminine lifeguard, says she has a fairly busy time.

"But I like it", she smiled, "and because I love the outdoors, and the sun, it really isn't work to me at all."

"The same kids come nearly every day, and although I cannot call all of them by name, they learned my name faster than anything, and as a result, when I'm on the beach I can hear kids calling me from all side, . . 'watch me, Ruth' 'look at this dive, Ruth', and so on throughout the day. Strange to say, all of the children obey me without asking any questions, and I've never had to speak cross to a single child since I started here."

Also Plays in Band

The former Ruth McBride, she works every day, except rainy days, from ten in the morning, until 8.30 at night. . . . . and manages to play trumpet in Peterborough Women's Corps Trumpet and Drum Band in between times. "Of course, one of my ambitions is to play a trumpet in a swing orchestra, something like Harry James", she confided, "but I've got a lot of time till then, I suppose."

Not being a follower in the school of thought that says a woman who will tell her own age will tell anything, Ruth easily confesses she is 26 years old, but, as anyone with an eye for youth will tell you, she doesn't look a day over eighteen. Working in the sun has given her a smooth coat of chestnut-brown tan, and rumor would have it that more than one entranced youngster has asked her if she is an Hiawaiian or Indian girl. She isn't though, not with a maiden name of McBride, and a father with Irish blood and a mother from the Southern part of the United States.

Speaking with just a suggestion of an accent, Ruth said she liked every single child that comes to Inverlea to swim and have fun. Although the youngsters keep her on the run with the first-aid kit, what with tiny cuts and scratches, she doesn't mind catering to them and though modesty didn't let her say it, more than one little Casanova has come to her with a minor scratch, and lingered with her long enugh to undergo a complete operation. The same theory of junior puppy-love applies in the water, when some romantically-minded little boy, will shout out at the top of his lungs for help, and when Ruth swims out, abandons the act, and fails to hide his shameless smile at playing a joke.

A Serious Prank

"And that's something I'd wish you'd put in the paper," she said in a more serious mood. "I don't think children realize that when they call for help when they are not in trouble they are endangering the lives of every child on the beach. I have to take time to figure out whether the tot is really in trouble, or only acting and seriousness of this," she said.

Mrs. Choate started her job of safeguarding youngsters,—and the older novices at swimming, too,—evidence the 18-year-old girl she had to pull out of the current last week,—on June 15, of this year, and since then, estimates she has dragged about 20 people out of difficult situations. An expert swimmer, (and something of a psychologist on the side) Ruth has been swimming since she was 5 or 6 years old, and learned to swim in the same Otonabee river where she now works. Asked what is the easiest way to drown, she replied simply, "Just eat a big meal and go in swimming immediately". Ruth pointed out one should always keep his eyes open while under water, lest one should bang into a rock or other object in the water. She brushed aside the theory of a person going down three times before drowning as just so much eye-wash. "You can go down once and drown", she said, "or you can go down a dozen times and drown." She said as an illustration, that a small child can be up to her waist in water and the buoyancy and current will topple her over, and the child will go under water, once, fail to get her feet on the ground again, and drown. Yet that same child might go under and come up several times before drowning, she said.

All this time, while telling about swimming etc., Ruth was patiently coaching a little girl in the art of keeping about water and moving about while doing so. In a word, swimming.

Does Not Give Lessons

"Of course, I'm not supposed to give anyone swimming lessons", she said, "as it might take my mind off my work, and I'd forget about the others. But this morning there's no one else in yet, and this little girl has been after me for days to teach her to swim, so I'm showing her a few of the fundamentals."

"Ruth, can I go to the first pier?" a little boy, just arriving, asked.

"Yes, if you go slowly and promise not to go while I'm not here", the lifeguard conceded.

Ruth said more people get into difficulty in the water as a result of "showing-off," than any other reason. Even the older ones, who should know better, practice this more than the little kids, she said.

"Although a good swimmer can swim even when attacked by a cramp, the danger lies in getting panicky when it strikes, and gasping and choking while in the water," she pointed out.

"When I feel someone is really in danger, I get to them as fast as possible, and above all, keep an eagle-eye on the swimmer. If the person is really drowning, he won't make much, and I don't say anything except a couple of easy comments, and usually I can get him back to shore without a struggle. No, there hasn't been any drownings since I began work here, but without letting a minute go by, I'm going to touch wood," which she did!

So, all day and every day, except when it rains, Ruth is at her post in a job that takes skill, friendliness, tact, and patience.

"I never knew how few rainy days there could be, since I started here, and of course, I'm hoping for a nice shower soon," she confessed.

Some Highlights

Among the interesting highlights of her job, Ruth gave some illustrations of incidents that have had her laughing, or just wondering. She notices that people never thank her after being saved from possible drowning. She said mothers will approach her and ask her to keep a special eye on their particular children. "Even though there may be hundreds in the water, most of them have come down so often that I've come to know them, and to call them by name which makes things much easier for me," she explained.

Some of the foolish questions asked her are:

"Can you really swim?" (usually put to her by the younger set).

Another thing that puzzles Ruth, is when American tourists ask "Is this a natural park?"

"Now I have some queer queries from youngsters, but that's one poser that has me baffled. Whatever can they mean by a 'natural' Park"?, she laughed.

Then there are those who go into the bathing-house, stay for a few minutes, then come out and ask me where they can go to get dressed."

Children delight in asking her "if they eat all their supper will they be able to swim like her"? (Ruth studied swimming under Miss C. Littlefield).

At noon, just before going home for lunch, she walks to the side of the river, blows once or twice on a special police whistle she has to command silence, and then calls the children through a megaphone, to come out of the water. Without any opposition at all, the children come out of the water, and usually want to walk home with her, all the time asking her questions about swimming and such.

Ruth admits the children provide the most fun for her at Inverlea Park, although she received her greatest fright when a young boy, about 10 years old, was standing atop the bridge and lost his balance. Falling almost 25 feet into the water, the boy suffered only a few scratches when he rubbed along the cement side of the bridge for an instant. "He was only scratched," she said, "but he almost ruined my nerves doing it."

Mrs. Choate gets her biggest laugh when children of pre-school age, go in the water, and insist on removing their bathing-suits. "If civilized amenities weren't against it, I think all little kids would bathe without the benefit of clothes," she said.

There is enough human interest tales going on daily at Inverlea park to fill a book, Ruth pointed out. She said when afternoons were dull, and kids had tired of swimming, she would gather them on the beach and tell them all the time-worn stories, of Alice-In-Wonderland, The Three Bears and so on. She noted the stories hadn't lost any of their appeal, either.

Married four years, with hubby Ken Choate working at the Westclox, Ruth said he thinks it rather odd she should like life-guarding. He doesn't chide her, or make cracks though, she is glad.

"For a while, I thought some of the older boys would tease me here, but so far, that hasn't happened.

"Most of them are aware that my job is here, and that I'm quite capable of looking after the job," she asserted.

When asked by girl-friends why she took the job, Ruth retorts, "I like the fact I can wear comfortable clothes, I like children, and I like swimming. I guess I'm just the 'Sloppy Joe' type as far as clothes are concerned."

A brother, Stanley, is a weight-lifting instructor at the Y.M.C.A.

An all-round athlete, Mrs. Choate can tell at a glance whether a person can swim, and has no trust in water-wings, or other devices used for teaching children to swim. She says more boys than girls can swim (to which comment a tiny feminine swimmer chided, 'Oh Ruth, that's not fair'), although girls seem to put more time on it, and try harder.

"Yep, it's some job, when the water is crowded, and I hear people calling me all over the place, but perhaps that's why I like it so much. Anyway, it's fun, and I do have responsibility."

Brinton Girls Defeat Outboard Team

Brintons whipped Outboard Marines 7-3, in a Ladies' Softball League game, run off in good time at Ashburnham Bowl Tuesday evening.

Brinton's pushed the game off to a good start with a 6-run rally in the first frame. Outboard Marines held Brintons from any more runs until the fifth, when the carpet-weavers managed to push one run across. Marines scored for the first time in the fourth inning, and batted two runs in the eighth inning, to wind up the game 7-3, for Brintons.

Doris Walker pitched for Brintons, walking one, but striking out none. Helen Mark was on the mound for Marines, striking out six and walking none. Vera Mitchell was on first base for Marines, and turned in her usual slick game.

Thelma Batley played a fast game on third base for Brintons, ousting four Marines by nabbing fouls.

Ollie Smith gave a good performance on second base for Marines. Doris Walker smacked the only home-run of the game in the first inning, with two on bases.

The teams:

Brintons—Thelma Batley 3b, Jean Vass c, Marjorie Walling lf, Margaret Thompson 2b, Helen English cf, Gladys Lawson ss, Doris Walker p, Elsie MacKenzie 1b, Elva Laing rf, Norma Blackwell rf.

Outboard Marines—Teddy Miller c, Ollie Smith 2b, Vera Mitchell 1b, Helen Mark p, Marjorie Smith 3b, Faye Kelly rf, Bertha Phillips ss, Edna Smith cf, Eileen Young lf.

CHANGES MIND — Harlond Clift, veteran of 10 years in the major leagues, is coming back to baseball after staying out of the game all season. Clift, now with the Washington club after serving nine seasons with St. Louis Browns, joined the Nats in Chicago after flying from his home at Yakima, Wash.

Bob Burns Holds Duration Title

TORONTO, July 12. — Two years ago Bob Burns, of Weston, finished in a tie with Gord Brydson, Mississauga, in the annual P.G.A. title tournament over Ottawa's Chaudiere course. In the 18-hole playoff Burns edged his rival by one stroke, with a 70 against 71.

Yesterday the pair decided to test the quality of Burns P.G.A. "Duration Title" at Weston. It was a satisfactory trial for Bob, who stepped around his home course in 66, four strokes better than Brydson.

Somehow word got around that Stan Leonard, of Calgary and Vancouver, was the P.G.A.'s "Duration Champion." If it was necessary to prove the title belonged to him and not Leonard, Burns gave a good demonstration with his 66 gallop.

Rated one of the best putters in Canadian golf, Burns dropped a 40-foot putt on the 18th green to beat out Brydson in the 1942 P.G.A. playoff, but his pet club failed him twice in the Millar Trophy. Brydson and Bob Gray eliminated Burns in Millar semi-finals. In both instances Burns failed to sink two-foot putts.

With three major competitions coming up between Saturday, July 15, and Saturday, July 22, Burns will have full scope for his magic putting, and a chance to rout the Millar Trophy jinx. He'll be in the Kawartha Lakes Golf Club tournament field Saturday and Sunday, join the Ontario Open parade at Royal York Tuesday, and then hit the Millar trail Thursday at Islington. Bob won the Open at Ancaster in 1941, winding up with a final round of 66.

Top-Flight Teams In 5-all Tie

The leadership of the City Softball League is as much undecided as ever despite the fact that the two leading clubs, Switchgear and Plazas played a game before the biggest crowd of the season at Riverside Park Tuesday night that might have settled the argument.

Plazas set up a five-run lead by the end of the first half of the fifth and then saw Switchgear whittle down the margin until they finally tied it up at 5 to 5 in the ninth and Umpire Bob Batley called the game so the boys will have to do it all over again. Switchgear can cop first place by a win while Plazas need a victory to get up on even terms with the leaders. The clubs will tie into each other again on Thursday night.

It was a pitcher's battle between Red Stephenson, the Omemee lefthander on the mound for the Switchgear and Frank Stokoe who went the route for the Plazas.

Stephenson pitched fine ball outside of the fourth inning when Plazas bunched five hits to score four of their five runs. The tall southpaw blanked them for the rest of the game, allowing only one hit in the last four frames.

Stokoe also pitched very effectively for Plazas, striking out eight of the Switchgear and keeping their eight hits well scattered. He weakened a bit in the ninth with a win in his grasp and two hits, two walks and a wild pitch enabled Switchgear to pull up on even terms. In fact they had the winning run on third when the side was retired.

Plazas Score First

There was no scoring until the third when Plazas broke through for a run. Tucker walked to start the frame and ran to third when Joe Blewett singled on the ground into right. Starr flied to Nicholls. On a double steal Blewett scored. Pryde singled to left but Ellis flied to Holmes and Stokoe to McCormick.

Plazas had a big inning in the fifth. Heal beat out a bunt to start it off and when Burton also bunted Stephenson threw wildly to second and Heal ran to third. Padgett was hurt in the play and had to leave the game, Playford moving into second and Carpenter going to the outfield. Hawks tripled between right and centre, scoring Heal and Burton. Tucker doubled over third to send Hawks in. Blewett bounded to Ashmore, Tucker going to third. Starr got an infield hit, Tucker holding third. Pryde forced Starr at second, Tucker scoring. Ellis bunted safely but Stokoe fanned.

Switchgear got their first run in their half of the inning. Mowry laced a drive into left and when Burton tore in for it the ball ripped past him for a triple. Stokoe fanned both McCormick and Brockley walked. Mowry scored on Stephenson's Texas League single into right but Pryde cut Nicholls down when he tried to go to third on the play.

Switchgear got two more in the sixth. Jack Carpenter was responsible for the first counter of the inning in the quickest possible way by crashing a homer over Phil Pryde's head in right field. Holmes fanned and Ashmore was thrown out by Tucker. Hawks fumbled Playford's roller giving him a life and Mowry was passed. McCormick's fly into short left which Burton failed to hold on the run sent Playford in after which Brockley struck out.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

With the lineup of the Peterborough All-Stars announced everything is ready for the sporting classic of the season, the game between the famous Toronto Tip Tops and the Petes at Riverside Park on Friday night in aid of the Kinsmen's charities. Peterborough fans have been talking about this battle ever since it was announced and there is no doubt that a huge crowd will be at Riverside Park for the contest. The strength of the Tip Tops is known from one end of the country to the other and also south of the border. The Toronto gang have power at the plate, great pitching and they play fast, clever ball defensively. Here are the players with their numbers. Fans should cut out this list and have it with them Friday: Turner 1, Dowie 3, Eckler 4, MacKinnon 5, Titanic 6, Heys 7, Glen 8, Stukus 9, Deadey 10, Box 11, Jeffers 12, Cranham 14, McKinney 15, Walsh 16, Spero 17 and Hastings 18. Against this star-studded aggregation the Petes will have Cam Ecclestone of Tip Tops on the mound backed by a local team that has been chosen not only as a representative City League outfit but according to the way in which the players are going at the present moment, particularly in the matter of batting. Ossie Anderson of the Soldiers for instance justified his choice as second baseman last night by cracking out four hits, including a homer against U.E.W. and other players picked for Friday have for the most part been hitting consistently.

* * * * * *

Soldiers, riding along on the crest of a wave of victories that has carried through four straight games and seen them defeat every other team in the loop will be back in action again tonight with St. Peter's as their opponents. It should be a red-hot contest. The Saints, battling desperately for a playoff spot need a win badly and they are hopeful that they can turn the trick at the expense of the Military Training Centre despite the victory surge of the Soldiers. Either Bill Moorhead or Gene Reynolds will do the tossing for the St. Peter's team while Soldiers may elect to give Earl Revoir a chance to make his record five straight wins or use Pete Procyk the Winnipeg boy against the Saints. Soldiers may be shy a couple of regulars for this battle but they have ample reserves and are confident of maintaining their parade of wins at the expense of the Saints. The latter realizing just what depends on tonight's game are trying to field their strongest possible team and they will battle until the last ditch for a win. There should be a real crowd on hand to see the clash which shapes up as a keen fight between two well-matched clubs.

To Try It Again

Switchgear and Plazas who played a 5 to 5 tie in the City Softball League series last night in one of the best battles of the year will make another effort to settle the argument Thursday night when they will replay the Tuesday night affair. A win for Switchgear on that occasion would give them first place; on the other hand a Plaza victory would mean a tie for the top slot and the teams would have to meet once again to break the deadlock. Tomorrow night's game should be a hummer. Manager Murph Chambers of Switchgear may decide to bring Red Stephenson who made his first appearance of the season for the leaders last night down again for another shot at Plazas while the latter will probably throw Terry Woods or Dave Wilson in against the Switchgear. With everything at stake both teams will try every trick to bring home the bacon and the result should be a contest brimful of excitement until the last man is out.

There will be no game tonight in the Girls' Softball League owing to the fact that the fixture originally scheduled for this evening was played Monday. But there is a real argument billed for tomorrow night when the fast-going Aircraft team will meet the Brintons. The Aircraft outfit, now only a game behind the leading Westclox are anxious to keep their record clear in their fixtures with other loop clubs so that eventually they will have a chance to even up matters with the Big Bens by beating them in the fourth game between the two outfits. Aircrafters therefore are taking every game seriously and they will have a full lineup out against the Brintons who are a fighting crowd and would get a lot of kick out of knocking off the second-placers. Marg Selkirk will probably draw the pitching assignment for Aircraft while Brintons have not announced their likely starter. Both teams, however, expect to be at full strength and it should be a lively tussle for the honors. The game, of course, will be played at the Ashburnham Bowl and will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp.

"Jimmy Foxx's removal from the active list by the Chicago Cub management spells finish to one of the greatest figures ever to show in major ranks," says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review. "Reaching the Athletics at the age of 16, the double X man was a sensation with many Philadelphia and Boston American League clubs, but like so many other great performers, he made the mistake of staying on a couple of years after his time, and his National League appearances last season and this campaign, have failed to reveal any of the effect. Three times the American League's most valuable player, twice its hitting champion and second only to Babe Ruth in the hitting of home runs, James Emory's great accomplishments will never be forgotten where baseball is discussed. Conceded by such an authority as Connie Mack as the most versatile player in the history of organized ball, Jimmy could do star work at any position and was exceptional at first, third and behind the bat. A great friend of young players, who were finding the going tough, and extra popular with players and fandom alike, a marvellous figure has taken to the bullpen as coach of pitchers. A man who has done the things that are credited to Foxx rates something of consequence in the American League, and when managers are being sought, some owner may consider the immortal James."

The National Leaguers, ending a three-year reign of American League supremacy in the annual classic completely wrecked the all-stars of the junior loop at Pittsburg last night, winning by 7 to 1 in a game in which the National bats played a merry tune all evening. As usual in such affairs some of the players with the biggest reputations did not shine so brightly as usual and that was the case of the two pitchers with the best records in the lineups, Bucky Walters, the ace of the Cincinnati Reds and Tex Hughson, star of the Boston Red Sox, Walters started the game for the winners and allowed the American Leaguers their only run and five of their six hits in the three innings he worked. After that Ken Raffensberger, Rip Sewell and Jim Tobin stopped them completely. Hughson was the losing pitcher for the Americans. The Nationals jumped on the Boston ace in the fifth and lambasted him for four runs. Hal Newhouser of the Detroit Red wings didn't have much better luck when he went to the mound in the later stages. It was a complete triumph for the National Leaguers.

TORONTO, July 12 — (CP). — There's more than a remote possibility that professional baseball will be revived in Nova Scotia shortly after the war ends, "Gee" Ahern prophesies in the Halifax Herald. Return to the salaried game is being talked up with some interest, although it is probably still in the idea stage.

Nova Scotia, in common with other parts, took a fling at pro ball once or twice in the past, with the teams from the New England States providing the opposition and players from south the border carrying most of the load for the home teams.

Financial difficulties wrecked the league ships before, though interest was quite keen.

Like father:

George Hodgson of Montreal is following in the footsteps of his father, George Senior, down the splashways of Canadian swim pools. Pa Hodgson was one of the best swimmers produced in the Dominion, and won the 400 metres and 1,500 metres in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm. George Junior is said to have much of dads talents. He's entered in the Dominion meet at Vancouver.

Sportpourri:

June Simpson of Calgary is another example of inherited athletic talent. June, who won the midget championship in the recent school sports at Empress, Alta., is the granddaughter of Alex Simpson, a famed soccer back with Winnipeg's Norwood Wanderers when they took the Connaught Cup in 1911 and 1912 Her father is a former track and field star and boxer, an uncle, Bill Simpson, was a jockey and rode Boomerang to many wins, and her mother, the former Isabel Macfarland, was a spring champion at school....Railbird, race selector for the Vancouver Sun, has been setting a hot pace. He picked 19 winners in the first five days of the meet at Lansdowne Park....Golfing about Winnipeg: Big Dan Kennedy, well-known racehorse owner, is making a links comeback, preparing for the Manitoba amateur championships. He hasn't played in years....Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning, hearing that Coach Frankie Boucher of the New York Rangers celebrated his 20th wedding anniversary, cracked that the Boucher was "probably the first Ranger employee to celebrate anything after last season's disastrous record."

EQUINE INTELLIGENCE

Breaking loose in its stall Sunday night, a horse owned and prized by A. E. Thompson, realtor, displayed a degree of intelligence that has enhanced its owner's opinion of its sensibility. As Mr. Thompson tells it, and without any reservation, that the stable door was open. And so it wandered out into the yard. In the meantime it had cut a leg, and to remedy that accident it ambled out to Dr. Harold Worton's place on the Chemong Road and was waiting in the lane for its leg to be dressed when the veterinary got up at 6 o'clock.

City's Schools Exceed Objective In Drive To Purchase Hurricane

With the pupils of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School raising 143 per cent of their objective and the children of the city's six public schools raising 123 per cent, the schools of Peterborough City and County purchased sufficient war saving stamps and certificates from the first of February to buy a Hurricane fighter plane.

The campaign under the chairmanship of Gordon Monkman received the full support of inspectors, principals and teachers and its success is due entirely to the support given by the pupils of the schools.

The City Public schools had an objective of $7,500 and $9,205.50 in stamps were purchased; the City and County Separate Schools had an objective of $2,500 and as their June sales have not as yet been reported their total is estimated at $825 or 33 per cent of objective; the Collegiate pupils had an objective of $5,000 and the stamps sold were worth $7,164.50. The County Public and High Schools exceeded their $5,000 objective securing $5,411.75 or 108 per cent and the Examiner Carrier Boys who in the past have done such an excellent job only got 51 per cent of their objective of $5,000 or $2,525.25. The total objective was $25,000 and the total stamps sold $25,132.

Arrangements are now proceeding for the presentation of the plaque probably in September, details of which will be announced later. While the campaign was only on from February 1 the public school pupils in the past school year bought $13,889 in stamps and the Collegiate students $8,813.50 for a total of $22,702.50.

Meagher in giving evidence stated that Hampton was a former employee of the Churchill restaurant and that he had used a screw-driver to remove the hinge of the door of the stock room on the second floor. On one occasion in March, Hampton had stolen $50 and a pair of shoes. In the second case $1.45 had been taken.

Hampton declared that he had only got 45 cents on this occasion.

The accused's record, produced by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., showed previous convictions in Owen Sound.

Witness Swears Driver Not Drunk

Richard McMahon, 24, R. R. No. 10 Peterborough, who was charged in police court this morning with drunken driving on the Warsaw Road on June 29, entered a plea of not guilty and announced that he would conduct his own defence. Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K. C. prosecuted the case.

Roderick Maloney, Douro, 21, the driver of another car involved in the accident which resulted in the arrest of McMahon said that he had been driving west on the Warsaw Road near Leahy's Lane and went to pass a stationary car. Before he had got straightened out entirely his car came into collision with an east-bound machine and had the running-board torn off.

Maloney said that McMahon was the driver of the other car.

Asked as to his condition Maloney said that the accused seemed very excited after the accident and added that he himself was the same way.

"Would you say that I was drunk" asked McMahon.

"No I would not say so" replied the witness, who said to Mr. Kerr that he had gone to school with McMahon and knew him very well.

Provincial Constable Price Morris who investigated the accident said that in his opinion McMahon was drunk when he saw him at the scene He said that McMahon was unsteady on his feet, his face was flushed and his eyes red and witness said that he had noticed the accused staggering.

Constable Harold Mesley also swore that McMahon was drunk. He had seen him at the scene of the accident and afterward in the police station and noticed a smell of intoxicating liquor from his breath, thick speech, and unsteadiness on his feet.

At this stage the court adjourned for luncheon.

Fund Tag Day Nets $661 For War Victims

The group of workers who assisted in the Tag Day held last Saturday on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund have every reason to feel gratified at the result of their labors on behalf of the very worthy cause the fund seeks to assist, for the energy and earnest work they performed on its behalf has resulted in a splendid net total of $661.65 being realized for that purpose.

This is over $150.00 more than was realized a year ago, and it was all collected in the downtown section, this year no appeal being made to the factories in diffidence to the fact that many of the employees are giving in some shape or form on a regular basis, which in itself provides them with an opportunity to assist the cause under the auspices of their own respective groups.

Starting at 8 a.m. with workers from the girl guides in the persons of Phyllis Whyte, Sheila MacIver, June Gunn, Ann Winterbottom, Margaret Deal and Shirley Hudgin through Miss Gladys Bridcott, members of the Victory Workers, Mrs. B. L. Fowler, president, Mrs. A. Hempstead, Mrs A. Nelson, Mrs. E. H. Crofts, and Mrs. A. Smith, with Betty Jaquith, Jean DeNure, Marilyn Pomeroy and Margaret McNeely, all members of Miss M. Holden's Sunday School class, and Joyce Mein and Mary Morrison from King George street, they gave great indications of the earnestness they were bringing to bear on their task, for this shift alone together with Mrs. H. C. Jay, who had volunteered on her own account, realized the fine sum of $183.34.

For the 10 a.m. to noon period, members of the Peterborough Women's Auxiliary to the Navy in the persons of Mrs. Merritt, president, Mesdames G. H. Moore, F. Board, A. Chartren, J. M. G. Wilson, G. H. Fallan, L. Post, Jr., G. Eason, T. Littlefair, A. T. Pink, R. Burns, F. W. Honour, and A. Payne, with the Misses Mary Dorsett Eleanor McGee and Jeanette Sloan made an excellent showing for they rolled up the splendid total of $231.90. Two of this group each had a cheque for $5.00 in their boxes, both from G. N. Gordon.

The 12 noon to 2 p.m. period is an awkward one to serve, particularly for housewives with hungry husbands to appease, but in spite of this, members of the Echo Club and Rebekah's Mrs. J. P. Roberts, Mrs. R. Gurney, Mrs. W. Petrie, Mrs. A. Sage, Mrs. A. Clark and Mrs. Bruce MacLean with Mrs. C. H. Crouter were on hand, together with Doreen Ferguson, Elsie Wagstaff, June Bullied, Rayma Brown, Marjorie, Dorothy Carr and Shirley McDonald to raise a total of $106.09.

Mrs. C. M. Norman in charge of the Uptown Service Men's Recreation Centre gave the utmost in cooperation by arranging for Hostess Girls Ruth Rody, Naomi Manbeck, Jean Elcome, Dorothy Pearson, Loretta Condon, Jean Cranfield, May Lambert, Joan Pitchford, Jean Whatley, Gladys Bolton, Elma Browne, Jeannette MacMorran, Mrs. P. E. LaVictoire, Muriel Miles, Nancy Shadgett and Pearl Morley, with Gwen Woodcock of the C.G.E. office girls, raised a total of $86.01.

The final period from 4 to 5.30 p.m. was serviced by C.G.E. office girls Gladys Bridcott, Audrey Britnell, Nola Smith, Hazel Dalton, and Joyce Thomas through the kind arranging of Ben Smith, together with members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, Mrs. W. G. Downer, president, Mesdames G. Stevens, M. Sergeant, J. Mitchell, H. J. Mackey, Saunders and Hope, the Misses H. Houghton, Helen Tarkington, Doris Downer and Olga Stabler, who came to the rescue at the very last moment, with Mrs. A. T. Pink and June Gunn, both of whom served a morning period as well, between them added a final $64.86, which with 60 cents exchange on U.S.A. currency made a grand total for the day of $677.85.

Prizes donated by Ed. Riley, H. L. Garner, J. W. Steinkraus, Fred Cripps and W. C. Hughes for the top scorer in each period were won by Margaret Deal, Mrs. R. Burns, Mrs. B. MacLean, Loretta Condon and Mrs. H. J. Mackey respectively, and all concerned should feel they won a big prize in an amount of $661.65 which goes to the lofty purpose of helping all of the bomb victims now in distress.

In offering sincere thanks to all who assisted, the names of A. Bourne, accountant at the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Mrs. Gardiner and Miss Saunders of the same staff, with Mrs. Bourne and Miss M. Rodney should be included for the help given in counting the returns, a no mean task with over $600.00 in silver and coppers, and the fund management is very grateful to them all, as well as the Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion and G. Gimblett their president, for the use of their boxes, while the Commercial Press and Milf Hardill supplied the cards for the taggers at no cost.

Previously acknowledged	$77,412.47
Net returns from Tag Day held under the auspices of the fund management	661.65
Total to date	$78,073.12

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

JULY 12, 1940.—Royal Air Force bombed German naval bases at Kiel and Emden and other objectives in Germany. Two thousand refugees, mostly children, arrived in Canada on British liners. Marshal Petain as chief of state named head of French cabinet of 12 members with Pierre Laval as vice-president.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR—Bobbie Cruikshanks, one of the top-ranking pro golfers in the United States, winner of the North-South Open in 1943 and runner-up this year, was given a civic welcome last night when he reached Peterborough by train. He will compete in the Kawartha Pro-Amateur Golf Tourney being staged under Kinsmen Club auspices this week-end. In the picture, from LEFT to RIGHT, are Mrs. Lex Robson, Bobbie Cruikshanks, Mrs. Cruikshanks, Lex Robson and Mayor James Hamilton. (McGillen—Staff Photos.)

Bobby Cruikshank Here For Golf Tournament

One of the great professional golfers of the American scene, Bobby Cruickshank, winner of the North-South Open in 1943 and the runner-up this year, arrived in the city last night to compete in the Kawartha Lakes Pro-Amateur Tournament. A player with a long and excellent tournament record, Mr. Cruickshank was given a civic greeting at the station, where he was met by Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Lex Robson, and Art Lewis and Ken Smylie of the Kinsmen Club, under whose auspices the two-day event will be held this week-end at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

To sports historians and ardent followers of the game, Bobby Cruickshank will be remembered as the man who tied the wizard of the links, Bobby Jones, back in 1923, in the National Open, though he lost out in the play-off. In 1937 he finished third in the same tournament. He makes his home in Richmond, Virginia, where he is pro at the Country Club of Virginia. Mr. Cruickshank is a long-standing friend of Lex Robson, Kawartha's own pro, and the two were schoolmates in Scarboro. The famous American golfer is visiting with Lex for a few days before play gets under way on Saturday afternoon, and will likely get a taste of fishing in ditsrict waters before he picks up his war clubs to match his talents against some of Canada's best pros.

Bob Gray, holder of the Millar Trophy Cup, which he will likewise defend in a few weeks' time, is defending champion in the professional division that he headed last year with a 54-hole total of 215. Gray is unattached Other golfers of wide renown taking part in the tournament include Bob Burns, of Weston, duration holder of the Canadian P.G.A. title, who only yesterday gave ample proof of his claim to that title by stepping around his home course in a sizzling 66 in a match with Gordon Brydson of Mississauga, beaten by Burns in the P.G.A. two years ago and also a competitor in the Peterborough tourney. Brydson is holder of the Rivermede Cup.

Lex Robson and Willie Spittal, pros of the city's two golf clubs, will, of course, be among the starters. Others include Jack Littler, Cataraqui, Kingston, present Ontario open champion; Dick Borthwick, Oakdale; Les Franks, Islington; Bill Kerr, Cedar Brae; Art Hulbert, Thorn Hill; Gord Watson, formerly pro at Cobourg and now with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton; Cadet K. W. Adwick, R.A.F, Picton.

From Quebec Province come Stanley Horne, Islemere, Montreal; Jules Huot, Royal Quebec Club, Quebec; and Jerry Proulx, Sur-Le-Laval-Le-Sec, Montreal.

Major Herbert Mason In Charge Of Distribution Of Food In Rome

With the responsibility of the distribution of food supplies with the Allied Military Government in Rome Major Herbert G. Mason, of Peterborough, has had a prominent part in defeating a "black market" which had become strongly entrenched in the Italian capital prior to the arrival of the Allied authorities and in the subsequent period before A.M.G. became established.

Major Mason is the head of the Mason stores of Peterborough, grew up in the retail grocery business and went overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Regiment.

Major Carl S. Cate, of Boston, is head of A.M.G. in Rome, with Major Mason his assistant in charge of food distribution.

According to a story of A.M.G. operations in Rome, written by Rita Hume for the Toronto Star Weekly, the "black market" has vanished from the Eternal City.

"Its disappearance was a surprise to the Allied Military Government whose incorporation of Rome's complex two millions into the Fifth Army fold has been accomplished with astonishing ease."

Captain Mathias Correa, black market chief, smiled complacently behind his desk in the Rome area command headquarters and said, "There just isn't any black market, at least not in food. And that is just what we are concerned about."

Miss Hume's account is quoted in part as follows:

"How did you do it?" I asked the former district attorney of New York's southern district, who fought the black market in Naples. "Just cause and effect," he replied. "First, we brought in food with us. Second, military operations closed all roads within ten miles of the city. That prevented farmers from supplying produce to the black market. The squawks you hear are principally from people who used to be able to buy on the black market. What has resulted now is a general levelling. There is less food for some, but more for everybody."

Allied distribution of food has given Rome's populace the first equitable apportionment of basic needs in many months. Among the items were three virtually unobtainable in Rome—salt, sugar and olive oil. Canned meat, evaporated and powdered milks and dry vegetables were the principal foods. Distribution was through regular channels. Since the third day of the Allied occupation, 375 tons of food have been coming into the city daily.

The existent bread ration of 100 grams—or one-quarter loaf — per person, has been maintained. An elaborate series of extra rations for workers, school children, etc., actually means the majority are receiving much more. Primes of commodities have been set and published in a proclamation issued by Gen. Hume. Bars, restaurants, hotels and barber shops have been ordered to post the prices in their premises.

An interesting innovation in the black market division is the complaint office. It is a revealing insight into the open-hearted response of the former Fascist population to the Allied authority. The same citizens who under the Nazis were forced to live on false or "ghost" ration cards at least are able to turn them in without fear. New ones are issued under their right names. Most complaints concern overcharging by stores; others involve persons privately selling contraband in their own homes.

Gen. Hume said Rome in no way presented the difficulties Naples did. The Germans left a two-day food supply in Rome. Although water, light and gas were disabled, there was no wholesale devastation. Further, whereas in Naples German propaganda had taken effect, Rome awaited the Allies as liberators. The Vatican, he said, was of great help.

Courts, banks and schools as well as all governing functions are now running smoothly. Rome appears much the same as any bustling war capital in the world today.

BEWDLEY MAN KILLED—Pte. Ernest Davis, serving in Normandy with the S.D. and G. Highlanders, was killed in action on July 5. He has two brothers overseas, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis of Bewdley.

SERVING IN NEWFOUNDLAND—AW1 Lenore Johnston has been serving in Newfoundland since last December. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Johnston, of Warkworth, and before enlisting was employed by Research Enterprise at Leaside. Receiving her basic training at Rockcliffe, she took her training as a clerk general at Toronto and Halifax. One brother, L.-Cpl. W. R. Johnston, has been overseas about four years.

Bewdley Boy Is Killed Overseas

BEWDLEY, July 12.—(ENS). — Two weeks ago, Mrs. Frank Davis, of Bewdley, received flowers cabled by her son Ernest, in France, as a remembrance on Mother's Day, and on Tuesday word came that this soldier had been killed in action on July 5.

Pte. Ernest Davis, one of three brothers in the European war theatre, was 26 years of age and had been serving with the S.D. and G. Highlanders. He enlisted with the Midlands, later transferring to the Highland regiment. Before enlisting he worked as a truck driver at Port Hope. He had been overseas two years.

He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis of Bewdley, and a brother Tom had been serving with him on the French beachhead. A third brother, Frank, is with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy. Surviving besides those mentioned are a brother, Charlie, and two sisters, Olive and May all at home.

Projects Closed

MONTREAL, July 12.—(CP). — The Gazette to-day in a newspage story said that "for reasons of national security and to thwart possible mass escapes, several hundred enemy prisoners of war have been taken from work projects in Quebec province's vast northern lumber areas and returned to internment camps. The projetcs have been closed.

Chest Survey Discloses One 'T.B.' Case

Only one active case of tuberculosis has been discovered so far by the chest survey which is being carried on in the manufacturing plants of the city.

"In that case," Dr. Kelly, M.O.H., told the Board of Health yesterday afternoon, "the employee was advised to consult his family physician who confirmed the X-ray finding, and this man decided to go immediately to a sanitarium."

The survey has been completed in the following plants: C.G.E.-Genelco, Raybestos, Dominion Woollens, Quaker Oats, De Laval, Canada Packers, and is about finished at Outboard Marine and Manufacturing.

Other companies who have applied are: Peterborough-Brinton Carpet, Peterborough Canoe, J. J. Turner and Sons, Peterborough Lock, Nashua Paper and Westclox.

Incidentally it transpired that the local cost of this examination of industrial workers is borne by each manufufacturing company at the rate of 30 cents for each person. At C.G.E.-Genelco where something like 4,000 persons were examined the cost to the company would be around $1,200.

May Be Extended

Alderman Dutton said that some enquiries had come from smaller plants and from one chain store manager who employs a staff of thirty persons. The chest survey has been confined to plants of at least 100 employees because the equipment of X-ray machine and transformer is some tons in weight and not readily transported.

D. V. Canning suggested that possibly accommodation for employees in this smaller unit group could be provided at the Collegiate Institute, and it is likely that some approach for that purpose will be made to the Board of Education.

The survey, by technicians of the Ontario Department of Health, will continue here for the most of this month.

The Board of Health is delighted with the response of the citizens and the co-operation of the management of the local industries who have provided this service for their staffs.

"We are gratified that it has been so well received," Alderman Dutton remarked, "that it has progressed so smoothly and that the results have been so favorable. I think everyone of us will feel relieved that so far only one case has been found requiring treatment at a sanitarium."

Coal to Coke

A switch from coal to coke in the furnace of a Burnham street dairy has eliminated a neighborhood smoke nuisance across the river.

"Maybe we could get Len Clancey to do the same thing in the south end," Mayor Hamilton remarked.

Michael Hobbins Dies Of Wounds

One of the seven sons of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake street, four of them in the Canadian Army, Private Michael Hobbins died on Saturday July 8 of wounds suffered in action with an Eastern Ontario regiment in Normandy.

The information received by the young Soldier's mother on Tuesday was only the official announcement from Ottawa reporting him wounded in action and his subsequent death.

Private Hobbins was born in Peterborough twenty-three years ago, son of the late Patrick Hobbins and Mrs. Hobbins. He is survived by three brothers in the Canadian forces, Private John Hobbins overseas with the combat unit from Eastern Ontario in which he was companion in arms with the brother who is now reported dead of wounds; another brother Private Daniel Hobbins, R.C.O.C., overseas; and Private Maurice Hobbins of the Royal Canadian Engineers, Petawawa; and also by three brothers at home, Leo, Dennis and Gerald, and by his sister, Mrs. C. Cournyea who also lives at 200 Lake street.

The late Private Michael Hobbins was employed with the Canadian Raybestos Company at the time of his enlistment about three years ago. He had spent two Christmases in England. He grew up in Peterborough, attended the Sacred Heart School and was a member of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

In addition to the four brothers in the active Army, Dennis Hobbins enlisted with the Engineers but was honorably discharged eight months later; and the youngest boy, Gerald, is with the Reserve Army in its Peterborough unity.

Want a Slice

CHICAGO, July 12—(AP).—Seventy letters from Thompsons from all parts of the United States and Canada seeking a share of the $1,500,000 cash left by the late Mayor William Thompson have flooded offices of Mayor Edward J. Kelly, Frank Lyman, probate court clerk, and James W. Breen Thompson's attorney, who told of the inquiries yesterday.

NOW SERVING OVERSEAS—Sgt. Elsbeth Boorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Boorman, 55 Hunter street, is serving overseas. She enlisted in April 1942 as a secretary in the Psychiatrist Office, Medical Headquarters, Kingston. Before enlisting Sgt. Boorman was employed in the office of Thos. Mark and Son, General Insurance.

Dr. R. A. Kelly Full Year In M.O.H. Duty

"This is my twelfth monthly report, as on June 30 I completed a year as your Medical Officer of Health", Dr. R. A. Kelly recalled in his June review to the Board of Health Tuesday.

And Alderman Dutton, chairman, replied to that turning of the first year in the city's health service: "It has been a happy period working with you, Doctor. The work is being well done in view of the fact that you are understaffed. You are creating a place for yourself in this community as is indicated by the interest shown by the citizens in the office of the Medical Officer of Health and this department."

Dr. Kelly said he enjoyed the work and his associations, "and wish to express my appreciation to this Board and to the staff of the Department for their assistance and co-operation and friendship.

Looking back over the year I am afraid there is very little of an outstanding nature to bring to your attention. The sanitation staff has been increased by the part-time services of Dr. Harold Worton. This arrangement is working out exceptionally well. A third child hygiene centre was opened in the Park Hill wartime housing area and has been largely attended.

At the present time a chest survey of the larger industrial plants is being carried out. In addition an attempt has been made to carry out the health services in a spirit of friendliness and co-operation so that the public will realize that the department is for their benefit."

The first month of summer produced nothing serious in communicable diseases. Cases reported were chickenpox 55; German measles 4; measles 2; whopping cough 5. "These are all minor conditions and with the exception of chickenpox all show a decrease in incidence over May."

Only three patients were admitted to Queen Mary Hospital, and two remained from May. These five received care for a total of 64 hospital days. Two of the patients were city residents, and their stay was seven days.

Fatally Wounded: Private Michael Hobbins, 23, son of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake street, and the late Patrick Hobbins, was wounded in action with an Eastern Ontario battalion in the Normandy campaign and died of his injuries as reported to his mother Tuesday. He is survived by his mother, one sister, and six brothers, two of them overseas. Private Hobbins was employed by the Canadian Raybestos Company.

The engagement has been announced of Florence Edna Millard, younger daughter of Mrs. S. M. Millard and the late S. M. Millard, 156 Cameron street, to H. Capt. Robert James Leighton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Leighton, Winnipeg, Man. The wedding will take place in St. George's Anglican Church early in August.

A splendid contribution of $301 for the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund, was made by Hugh M. Campbell, on behalf of the employes of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, at their annual picnic held recently. The presentation was made in recognition of the gym displays put on for picnicers, by members of the Y.W.C.A. Miss Caroline Littlefield, who accepted the cheque for the girls, then turned it over to Mrs. T. J. Carley, who is in charge of the Peterborough Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund.

Given Shower

MARMORA, July 12—(ENS) — A miscellaneous shower was tendered Pte. and Mrs. Earl Lemard in the Town Hall on Monday evening in honor of their marriage, which took place in Peterborough on Saturday. The young couple were the recipients of many useful gifts from their friends, who spent an enjoyable evening in dancing, which was interspersed with the serving of refreshments.

Wed At Blind River

A quiet wedding took place in a floral setting, at the home of the bride's parents, when Isabel Eunice Quinn, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Quinn, Blind River, was united in marriage to Warren Jack Cole, of San Diego, California. Rev. Bateson officiated at the ceremony. Miss Jean Quinn and Charles Quinn, sister and brother of the bride, were the wedding attendants. After the ceremony, the couple left by train for Buffalo and San Diego. Mrs. Cole was formerly employed at Nicholls Hospital.

Shower For Sister

Mrs. H. Tippett, High street, was hostess for a miscellaneous shower in honor of her sister, Miss Doris Withers, whose marriage to LAC. J. R. Luther takes place July 20 in St. James' United Church. The bride-elect received many gifts, which were drawn into the room in a decorated basket by her niece, Marlene Tippett.

Those present included: Mesdames S. Luther, W. Withers, D. Blondin, G. Gilardi, D. Caravaggie, R. Tippett, D. Northey and E. Lucano; and Misses I. Withers, I. Reid, R. Luther, V. Crebar, M. Caravaggie and M. Thacker. Those who could not be present, but who sent gifts were Misses E. Tarling, G. Routly, L. McDougall and H. Bell.

Erskine-Thompson

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Grace United Church, Napanee, recently, with Rev. C. D. McLellan officiating, when Marguerite Helen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Thompson, South Napanee, became the bride of Sgt. George Erskine of Peterborough.

The bride looked lovely in her street length wedding dress of pale blue sheer with white half hat and shoulder length veil. She wore white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride's only attendant was her youngest sister, Miss Betty Thompson, attired in a street length dress of pale rose, matching half hat and white accessories. Henry Schemeihorn assisted the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents, where about 30 guests sat down to a table decorated with pink streamers and centred with the wedding cake. Serving were Mrs. M. Bentley, Mrs. F. Thompson, Miss Marion Parks and Mrs. Eleanor Cooke.

The bride and groom left for their honeymoon to Toronto and other points. The bride travelled in a dress of rose corded crepe and white accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

65 YEARS MARRIED—Pictured ABOVE are Mr. and Mrs. John Vansickle, of Cordova Mines, who are celebrating their 65th wedding anniversary today. Mr. Vansickle, who is 87, has been a farmer all his life, and, although he turned the farm over to his son Harry several years ago, he still helps out. Mrs. Vansickle is 85. Neither has been sick and each has taken part in a great number of Orange walks. They figure that they have attended at least 110 Orange walks between them, Mr. Vansickle being a member of the Norwood L.O.L. Married in Blairton in 1879, they settled first in Cardiff Township, Haliburton County, moving later to the Vansickle settlement, north of Cordova. There are five children: George, of Port Hope; David, of North Marmora; Harry, at the farm; Mrs. John Ferguson (Mary), of Peterborough; and Mrs. Edward Post (Eva), of North Marmora.

Bride Honored By Many Groups

Well-known in local church and service circles, Miss Marion Wray, whose marriage to Alexander Brackenridge takes place today, has been the recipient of several gifts on behalf of groups and organizations which she led, or of which she was a member. The King Edward Home and School Association presented her with a pair of book-ends, and the teachers of King Edward school joined to give her a set of small glasses.

In the church groups, the Ever-Ready class of Murray Street Baptist Church presented her with a pair of cornflower crystal candlesticks, and the C.G.I.T. group, of which she was leader, gave her a pair of small vases. From the north-end group of the Mission Circle of Murray Street, she received a salt glaze pitcher.

She was also guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower, given by Miss Ruth Ellis, 482 Mark street, when about 20 of her friends were present. A great many of her friends and acquaintances were present at her trousseau tea, given recently by her mother, Mrs. A. W. Wray at her home, 708 Elcome Crescent. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Wray and the bride-elect. Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. A. R. Winslow and Mrs. A. Bidgood, and pouring tea in the evening were Mrs. J. H. Sutcliffe and Mrs. A. Bidgood. Tea room assistants for the afternoon were Misses Isabel Wray, Margaret Brackenridge and Agnes Brackenridge, and they were joined by Miss Ruth Ellis in the evening. Mrs George Astell showed the trousseau in the afternoon, and Mrs. Vernon Read showed the trousseau in the evening. Mrs. Howard Brackenridge and Mrs. James Gaynor showed the wedding gifts in the afternoon and evening.

Marion Jean Wray Weds Roy Brackenridge

A pretty wedding of wide interest took place this afternoon in Murray Street Baptist Church, when Marion Jean Wray, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wray, 708 Elcome Crescent, was united in marriage to Alexander Roy Brackenridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Brackenridge, of Millbrook. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated, in a church tastefully decorated with delphinium and hydrangea. Stanley Northrop was at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white taffeta, with fitted bodice trimmed at the back from neck to waistline with small self-covered buttons, sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and a full skirt, gathered at the waist. Her veil and train of white net fell from matching Queen Anne halo, and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime red roses.

Miss Isabel Wray, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, in floor-length light blue taffeta, trimmed with accordian pleating, with full skirt, and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a matching flower hat of accordian pleating, and carried a bouquet of pink Briarcliffe roses.

Arthur Brackenridge, brother of the groom, was best man, and Jack Wray, brother of the bride, and Howard Brackenridge, brother of the groom, were ushers.

At the reception, held following the ceremony at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received, in a gown of navy blue sheer, with matching hat, and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in navy and white printed silk, with a navy hat, and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride chose a gold printed suit, with matching straw hat, and gloves, and a natural straw bag. On their return, the happy couple will make their home near Bailieboro.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

White is the last word in summer hats and dresses. During the hot weather nothing looks quite so smart as a cool white dress. It seems to deflect the rays of the sun. Dazzling white stands out against clear blue skies and a green countryside. Sun-tanned complexions too are at their loveliest framed in white. You will like yourself in one of the lovely styles shown this summer, made up in white cotton, rayon crepe or silk jersey. The coat style buttoned down front from the neckline to the hemline is a popular and becoming style. The jacket frock is also good this year and looks equally well on the thin or the stout figure.

With these dresses wear a smart white hat. If you want a large hat choose a white felt. The small sailor in either straw or taffeta silk, with a head band of flowers around the back of the head, the beret, either large or small, made of felt or bengaline silk, is also very much in the fashions front row.

The white topper is something your summer wardrobe cannot do without. It is indispensable when the day's breezy and the shadows cool. The casual chesterfield-type of coat cut on boxy swagger lines is easily thrown over dresses or little suits. Chesterfields come in soft white all-wool polo cloth with clear cut lapels and flap pockets.

Strategic stripes in the little suit dress lend themselves to so many artful changes. You can wear it as a dress, or wear the skirt with different blouses, or you can team the striped jacket with a plain skirt. These two-piece styles are shown in spun rayon with vestees of white cotton pique. White stripes on French blue, brown with gold shade stripes, or yellow on grey, are among the smartest colors this summer.

Several smart hats are shown in black, one felt, and one of stitched black rayon satin. A little cap, worn on the back of the head, is shown in black fur felt, with a chou of black rayon satin ribbon on one side. The stitched satin beret is worn well on the side of the head with a forward tilt and is trimmed with side whirls of braid and long tassels. This is just a hint of early fall styles which are very chic worn now with white dresses.

Millbrook Girls Are Married In Double Wedding

MILLBROOK, July 12.—(ENS). — A double wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Port Hope, on Saturday afternoon, when Rev. J. W. Gordon united in marriage Margaret Luella, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kennedy, Millbrook, to Percy Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Buck, of Peterborough; and Wilma Jane, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Millbrook, to Gordon Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Davidson, of Cavan.

The brides wore street length dresses, Miss Kennedy's being of ...k sheer with lace bodice and yoke and self-covered buttons down the back and front, and with full gathered skirt; hat was in white Milan straw, and her accessories also in white. Miss Armstrong's dress was of pink sheer with lace collar and small bows of self material down the front, and full gathered skirt; her hat and accessories were in white, and both brides carried arm bouquets of pink and white Rapture roses and wore gold lockets and chains, the gifts of their respective grooms. The bridal couples attended each other, and upon return to Millbrook a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, King street east, the bride's mother receiving in a two-piece dress of dusky rose crepe with white accessories; and Mrs. Buck, the groom's mother, a two-piece dress in blue crepe and accessories in white.

The brides' table was done in a color scheme of pink and white on a white damask cloth, centred with the three-tiered wedding cake and pink candles burning in silver holders. Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Davidson poured tea, and serving the guests were Jessie Murney, Jean Gillis, Mary Raper and the bride's niece, Maretta Olan.

Later the bridal couples left by motor for their wedding trip to Haliburton and other points north, Mrs. Buck travelling in a dress of salmon pink crepe with white trimmings and accessories, and beige polo topcoat; and Mrs. Davidson wearing a dress of heaven blue crepe trimmed in white and with matching accessories. Her topcoat was in beige, polo style, with brown velvet collar. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Buck will reside in Port Hope and Mr. and Mrs. Davidson on the groom's farm at Cavan.

For Thursday, July 13

UNDER VERY definite urges of energy, initiative and lofty ambitions this should be a day of concrete performance in many cherished directions, both in a business and purely personal direction. It is a time for making a well organized attack on advanced goals, with all the faculties and forces under high stimuli for achievement. There is promise of romantic adventure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of satisfactory accomplishment with happy fruition of cherished goals, practical constructive work in attacking new propositions, and generally reaching fulfilled ambitions with joy, friendliness and intellectual contentment in well-wrought activities. There may be some suspicious or menacing matters of an annoying nature in relation to papers, writings or even speech, and also there might be trivial social or domestic upsets. But romance and adventure should be pleasant in the long run, when impulses and emotions are managed with discernment.

A child born on this day should have great versatility and creative ability, with energy, ingenuity and fine ambitions. This should bring splendid results, much romantic pleasure and also a gracious gesture from Lady Luck.

MOTHER PLOTS OWN REWARDS

Children Will Show Respect, Consideration Through Life If Trained to When Young

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother is a widow 70 years old and makes her home with a single daughter. My mother is forced to earn her living by working on a farm as a farm hand nine hours a day, six days a week. She comes home at night and has to wash the dishes and clothes and do the ironing and cleaning after working all day in the fields, while sister sits and smokes and rests.

Mother has a divorced daughter who is in business in a distant city. She comes home every week-end with a lot of fine new clothes, but she only pays my mother $3 a week for board, room and laundry of her 14-year-old son. She earns plenty of money, but she never makes Mother a present or gives her any decent clothes.

Miss Dix, have you ever heard of two girls who are as heartless as these to their poor old mother?

HEARTBROKEN SON

Mother Should Be Firm

ANSWER: No. I never have heard of a more pitiful tale of the ingratitude of children, but I think your mother's head must be as soft as her heart if she lets her daughters impose upon her the way you say they do.

If she is able to hoe potatoes and plow corn, why doesn't she strike out and get herself a job where she won't have to add housework for a family in addition to her day's labor? And why, in the name of common sense, doesn't she make her prosperous daughter pay a decent board for her son? Nobody could possibly feed a 14-year-old boy in these days of food rationing on $3 a week.

Somehow I don't get very tearful over ungrateful children, because children treat their parents just the way their parents teach them to treat them. If Mother and Father bring their children up to show respect and consideration and to shoulder their part of the family burden they do it as long as they live. They don't try to enslave their parents.

Mother writes her own price tag, and she is either the queen of the home, or its beast of burden.

I don't wonder, Heartbroken Son, that you resent the way your sisters treat your mother, but what are you doing about it? Are you helping Mother? Do you send Mother a cheque every week? Or do you just weep over how hard-hearted your sisters are to her? You know, she is just as much your mother as she is theirs.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am married to a Mama's boy who frankly tells me that his Mother and his sister come first with him. Before our baby was born he refused to give me the money for its layette, said his Mother needed it for taxes, and that I had better ask my family for the baby's clothes.

His Mother tells me that she reared her son for herself, not for me, and that I will never get him, no matter how much I am married to him. I stood this as long as I could and then I left him and got myself a job.

Now he is in the army and seems to have improved some and we are on writing terms. I am wondering if he will ever change. What do you think?

BEWILDERED WIFE.

Mama's Boys Seldom Change

ANSWER: I doubt it. My observation is that Mama's boys always stay Mama's boys to the end of the chapter, and the wife always plays second fiddle. I strongly advise you to hold on to your job. You will always need it, because by the time he gets through paying Mama's and sister's bill there will be nothing left for his wife and children.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR MISS DIX: Should the gifts received at a wedding shower be returned when the engagement is broken? And what about the gifts the boy friend gives for birthdays and Christmas?

PUZZLED.

ANSWER: Look up the subject in your Emily Post. It seems to me that whether the gifts are returned or not despends upon how valuable they are. If they are just handkerchiefs and stockings or something like that, I think the girl might keep them as a consolation prize. But, of course, a pair of nylons would rank along with a tiara or solid silver.

Mining News

Stockholders of Leitch Gold Mines are being given an opportunity to participate in the newly formed Wakeko Mines, formed to explore 38 claims owned by Leitch Gold adjoining Wasa Lake Mines on the east and the Bazooka-Durbar claims under option to Siscoe Gold and Moneta Porcupine on the west in the southern part of Beauchastel township, Quebec.

Wakeko shares are offered at 15 cents a share on the basis of one Wakeko for every five Leitch shares held. Claims of the new company are astride the main Kirkland Lake-Cadillac-Malartic break or fault zone for length of 19,000 feet and results on both the Wasa Lake and Bazooka groups add interest to the proposed program. Gold values were found in earlier surface work and engineers have recommended at least 20,000 feet of drilling.

At Yellowknife Goodrock

C. P. Charlebois, in charge of operations at Yellowknife Goodrock Gold Mines, wires that he has uncovered an outcrop 50 feet wide and 300 feet long containing well mineralized quartz, slate, greywacke, schist and andesite. He recommends drilling and has called for tenders on an initial 3,000 feet.

Rouyn Merger Gold Mines advises the Toronto Stock Exchange that the June 8 instalment, comprising option on 400,000 shares, has been exercised. Balance of agreement comprses option on 1,399,993 shares with next instalment exercisable by Dec. 28. Issued capital is 3,080,007 shares, leaving 1,919,933 shares in the treasury.

Preliminary production figures for June at Paymaster Consolidated Mines indicated that daily recovery was at the highest mark since February. Output for last month was $92,055 from the treatment of 11,549 tons of ore for an average recovery of $7.97 per ton.

Public Offering

Fleetwood Yellowknife Mines, Ltd., is one of the newest companies to be formed for the purpose of carrying out exploration and development on two groups of claims in the Yellowknife district. First public offering of the shares is to be made next week.

Dr. J. F. Wright, geologist, who has just made a preliminary examination of the properties, reports that the two groups of claims are well located on or near the faulted zone trending from south to north along the Yellowknife Valley.

The company's west group of claims are described as being on a main break and adjoin property held by Frobisher Exploration, subsidiary of Ventures, which is currently one of the most active operators in the Yellowknife district, its interests including Giant Yellowknife.

Field work is to be started immediately on Fleetwood's ground under the supervision of Dr. Wright.

RUSSIAN DRIVE ON RAIL SYSTEM — A Russian field army, under Gen. Ivan Bagramian and cavalry and tanks commanded by Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky, are reported to be making a might push toward the Warsaw-Vilna-Leningrad railway—vital artery in the Baltics. Soviet units are fighting in the streets of Vilna, gateway to the Baltic republics, and have crossed the Lithuanian border to capture important Baltic ports. At the same time the Russians launched a tremendous artillery barrage in the direction of Pinsk and Brest-Litovsk in Poland, and have already captured important rail centres. Dotted arrows shows the possible route the Russians are following to present and eventual objectives.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It is not necessary for us to go into details regarding the Milk for Britain Fund. All of our bowlers are well acquainted as to why this fund was created. We all know how long it has been organized and the good it is doing and will do as long as it gets support from organizations such as our bowling club. And having that in mind, the ladies' games committee is asking support from all bowlers for their big mixed rink tournament on Friday night.

We can accomodate 32 rinks, and the ladies are hoping that more will come than we have room for. Should this be the case, many of us would be only too glad to "sit out," but still at the same time would be equally glad to contribute to this worthy cause.

Well, the standing in a couple of the groups has changed again. By virtue of last night's win, Bill Jeffries is now out in front by one point.

In group No. 3 George Sorensen is leading by two points, with C. Williamson a hang-up second. There was no change in group No. 4.

Maybe after tonight's games the standing may be changed again.

One-Man Mutuel Nabbed By Police

FORT ERIE, July 12 — The special Provincial Police squad under Staff Inspector E. T. Doyle, hot on the track of handbook operators on and in the vicinity of Ontario race tracks arrested John J. Darkins of Buffalo, N.Y., outside the track this afternoon on a charge of keeping a betting place.

Darkin, the police said, came across the river equipped with pads of the most modern form of betting slips to accept bets from the crowd gathered outside the track on Gilmour Road near the six-furlong pole. A large number of betting slips and a number of pads were confiscated when Inspector Doyle with Officers C. Vanzuben and W. W. Bibby arrested him. The slips on the pads were alphabetical and numbered. The bettor received a slip with the name of the horse and the amount and where wagered, either straight, place or show on it. The stubs were kept by Darkin. The Buffalonian was released on bail of $300 to appear Friday afternoon in the Police Court in Fort Erie.

Tie Is Up In Ninth

That was all until the last of the ninth when Switchgear, down 5 to 3, staged a rally. Mowry opened by ripping a single into right field. McCormick popped to Starr. Brockley drew a walk but Akers batting for Nicholls flied to Pryde in centre and there were two out. Stokoe could not get the ball over for Stephenson and walked him, filling the bases. Then he cut lose with a wild pitch on which Mowry ran home. Carpenter's sharp single down the first line which Ellis knocked down and couldn't field sent Brockley home with the tieing run. The winning marker was on third but Holmes lofted a popper which Tucker took and Umpire Bob Batley called it a day.

FALSE CARDING PRETTY

IT DOES any player good to see once in a while examples of the best work done by players who are much more experienced. Not that the same exact situation will necessarily arise again, but that the thinking methods of the stars are revealed. Such cases inspire the beginner, who has talent, to develop the same way of figuring out his moves in various situations.

North: ♠ A Q 8 7 3 2 ♥ 8 6 5 4 2 ♦ Q 9 ♣ None

West: ♠ 9 6 5 4 ♥ K 3 ♦ 8 5 3 2 ♣ A K 7

East: ♠ K J 10 ♥ A Q 9 7 ♦ 10 ♣ Q 9 5 4 3

South: ♠ None ♥ J 10 ♦ A K J 7 6 4 ♣ J 10 8 6 2

3♣	3 NT

Pay no attention to that most unorthodox bidding, by a South player in a tournament who was making a strained effort to win an unusual score on this deal. He got away with it, not so much because of his bidding, but because of what he did in the play.

West led the club K, A and 7, which East won with the Q. South could see at the beginning that he was gone if they ever switched to hearts. He managed to prevent this by the most astute kind of false carding. Sure in his own mind that West had only three clubs and East five, he decided to make East think his partner held four. This he did by putting the 2 on the first trick, the 6 on the second and then the 10 on the third. Sure enough, he created the illusion that West had held originally the A, K, 8 and 7.

East, to clear the suit, then led the 9 to South's marked J. He expected to see West put the 8 on that trick, setting up his own 5, so that later this card plus the heart A would set the contract.

But West, of course, did not have the club 8, so discarded a small spade. South now had one trick, the club 8 made a second one, diamond Q a third, spade A a fourth, and five more diamonds gave him a total of nine and his game. East said, after the deal, that if South had put the 8 on the third club trick he would have switched to a heart.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 10 9 ♥ J 7 ♦ A 6 4 2 ♣ J 7 6 4 2

West: ♠ J 8 6 5 ♥ Q 3 ♦ Q J 7 5 3 ♣ K 8

East: ♠ 7 ♥ A 9 6 5 4 ♦ K 8 ♣ A Q 10 9 3

South: ♠ A K Q 4 3 2 ♥ K 10 8 2 ♦ 10 9 ♣ 5

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West doubles 3-Spades and then leads the heart Q, how should South play to gain maximum results?

Farm Workers May Obtain Military Leave

OTTAWA, July 12 — (CP) — A check of army and call-up regulations following press reports of a speech by Premier Godbout of Quebec regarding exemption of farmers' sons and farm hands from military service show that farm workers may, under certain circumstances, obtain leave from military duties.

Mobilization boards have instructions to grant postponement to men engaged in farm work.

(Mr. Godbout was quoted as saying at L'Islet Sunday that farmers' sons "whether they now are in the services or if they did not comply with military service regulations, or even if they are considered deserters, will be exempted of any military service if they are given a certificate by the Mayors or agronomists." Last night Mr. Godbout said at Quebec he was speaking of farmers' sons and farmhands and did not recall saying anything about deserters

An army spokesman said today the procedure for farm workers now in the army and wishing to return to farm work is to make application to their Commanding Officer. They are required to prove by letter or other means the need for their services on the farm and they are then granted leave "if they can be spared." Length of leave depends on the circumstances.

Men who fail to respond to call-up notices are dealt with in court and turned over to military authorities, becoming subject to military regulations.

Farm workers when called are entitled to postponement upon application to a Mobilization Board.

Regulations covering such postponements say: "The Board shall, upon the application of a person employed in agriculture, grant him a postponement order until further notice unless it is established to the satisfaction of the Board that such person is not an essential worker in agriculture or that such person has, since March 23, 1942, ceased to be a person employed in agriculture."

Postponements granted under this section may be cancelled if the person ceases to be engaged in agriculture.

In the House of Commons yesterday Labor Minister Mitchell said Mobilization Regulations in Quebec were the same as in other parts of Canada.

Voluntary Enlistments Mark Of Free People

QUEBEC, July 12 — (CP). — Premier Godbout last night in a radio address said here that he "favored enlistment" for overseas service.

(Sunday at L'Islet, where he opened his campaign for the August 8 general provincial elections, Mr. Godbout said he was against conscription for overseas service this year as he was in 1939 and 1940.)

He added that he would "never favor coercion" for overseas service and that he "always advocated and will always advocate that defence of the sacred soil of our country, Canada, is a duty for every one of us."

Referring to overseas service, Mr. Godbout said "the voluntary contribution of our young men is the mark of a proud and free people. It is so generous and so noble that it should impose silence to the detractors who are endeavoring to have their brothers taken for cowards and make our heroes out as men cowering under the lash of the whip."

REDS WITHIN RANGE OF HUN BORDER

Americans Bypassing St. Lo Hun Garrison Doomed British Forced To Retreat

7 French Towns Fall To Americans Along 48-Mile Front

British Troops Regrouping In Good Order

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 13—(AP)—The Germans in St. Lo, ancient fortress in the middle of the base of the Cherbourg Peninsula, were being gradually strangled today by the arms of a powerful American tank and infantry offensive which already had passed by the town to the east.

Supreme Headquarters announced the capture of seven towns by the Americans in gains along a 48-mile front.

On the Allied left flank, however, a German counter-attack in the Caen sector recaptured Colombelles, about three miles northeast of Caen, from the British 2nd Army. British units also were forced back from Saint Honorine, which is east of Caen, across the Orne River and the Caen Canal.

But headquarters said the British 2nd Army is "regrouping very actively and strenuously for the assault south of Caen." The bulk of German panzer strength—five divisions—still is in the Caen area, it was revealed.

The Americans, meanwhile, cap[tur]ed La Boulaye, 2½ miles east [of S]t. Lo. They pressed on across [the] St. Lo-Bayeux road and cap[tur]ed La Barre de Smeilly, 2½ miles southeast of St. Lo.

[Re]capture Maltot

British 2nd Army troops were disclosed to have recaptured the bitterly-contested town of Maltot, five miles southeast of Caen, in the bloody triangle formed by the Orne and Oden rivers. It was retaken after see-saw fighting during which the enemy launched fierce and repeated counter-attacks.

It was in the region of Oden and Orne rivers that Canadian units have battled in conjunction with British troops.

Within a few hours yesterday the Germans twice attacked vital Hill 112 in the Caen area, but each attempt was beaten back with what headquarters said were "considerable tank casualties." The first blow was made with 40 or 50 tanks and two battalions of infantry. A smaller attack was made with about 20 tanks.

The American attack on St. Lo again was preceded by a heavy crash artillery upon German foxholes and hedgerow hiding places.

(The Paris radio said 32 divisions had been concentrated in the 14-mile stretch from St. Lo. to Caumont to the east, and a Nazi front line correspondent reported that the Allied artillery barrage was the heaviest yet encountered).

A dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, said Canadian troops in the area of Caen and its environs yesterday exchanged small arms and machine-gun fire with Germans still holding the suburb of Vauborg de Vaucelles across the Orne River from the fallen port.

No Appreciable Gains

Munro said that although other Canadian troops were in the line with British forces southwest of Caen, the British had borne the brunt of heavy fighting in the region between the Odon and the Orne.

Only other intensive fighting on the British-Canadian front came at a point near Tilly Sur Seulles, where neither side registered appreciable gains.

To the west, American assaults cleared the Germans out of the Laland Mauduit area southwest of La Haye du Puits and captured the road junctions of St. Germain and Gorges, three miles northeast and 4½

U.S. Casualties On Saipan Total 5,053

PEARL HARBOR, July 13 (AP)—Sustained American air and naval blows focussed attention today on Guam, southwest of Saipan which now is a United States operational base, carved out of Japan's inner defences at a cost of 15,053 casualties.

Already the enemy air force at Guam and on intervening Rota appears to have been knocked out by the same type of pounding as w[as] loosed on Saipan prior to its in[va]sion June 14. Guam has been bo[mb]ed daily for nearly a week and [in]termittently shelled by warships.

On Saipan, concealing caves and ravines were probed for additions which are expected to swell both the total of nearly 12,000 Japanese dead counted so far and the more than 10,000 captives.

Figures for both sides established new records for fierce fighting among the Pacific's islands:

1. The 15,000 American casualties, including 2,359 killed, 11,481 wounded and 1,213 missing.

2. The Japanese dead—11,948 already buried by U.S. troops, with many more to be accounted for.

3. The Japanese captives — more than 1,000 prisoners of war; more than 9,000 interned civilians.

The American casualties were announced in Washington yesterday by Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal.

In another section of the theatre, after two months of smoldering quiet, Japan's trapped, by-passed 18th Army suddenly attacked Americans entrenched near Aitape, British New Guinea.

It was announced today that the Japanese, faced with starvation or eventual erasure between advancing Australian and American troops, had massed a heavy force, apparent[ly] in the hope of blasting an escape route for 45,000 men westward through Aitape into Netherlands New Guinea.

After massing for several days, the enemy attacked Monday night along the Driniumor River 21 miles east of American-occupied Aitape.

Will Be Needed

NEW YORK, July 13. — (AP).—The Japanese Munitions Ministry, headed by Premier Tojo, has ordered production of "air defence fire engines" speeded up ahead of schedule because of "the acute situation that has developed," the Tokyo radio said in a domestic broadcast reported today by United States Government monitors.

Husky Youth Faces Manslaughter Charge After 77-Year-Old Guard Dies Of Injuries

BRANTFORD, July 13—(CP)—Harold Simon, Echo Place, Ont., today was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of John Baker, 77-year-old guard at a show ground here July 7.

Witnesses at the time said Baker was attacked "by a husky youth" when he tried to prevent unauthorized entry into the grounds. Medical testimony today said the elderly man died from a hemmorrhage of the brain.

Joseph Suvaillie, Ottawa, testified he heard Baker tell Simon he could not enter and after another argument, Simon struck Baker on the jaw with his fist and the man fell over a chair and hit a spoke holding a tent guy rope. He said the blow was not a hard one.

Glengarrians In Fierce Battle Wipe Out Hitler's Elite Regiment

By ROSS MUNRO, Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN CAEN, July 13.—(CP Cable).—An Ontario infantry regiment which was the first Canadian battalion into Caen shot a bloody path through its sector of the outer defence line northwest of the city, then struck straight for Caen, going in along the main highway from the west, it may now be revealed.

(The dispatch did not identify the Ontario infantry regiment, but Ontario regiments whose participation in the invasion has been announced are: The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Toronto; the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Cornwall, Ont.; the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, Galt, and the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.)

The unit fought for two days without rest in the victorious battle for Caen and advanced eight bitter miles through areas covered by German fire until it reached its objectives in the heart of the city.

Nothing stopped this Ontario regiment. It stormed and overwhelmed German strongpoints, ferreted Germans out of scores of trenches, assaulted buildings and cleaned-out streets.

Opened Path

These units were the Canadian spearhead which shattered the German line at Gruchy, Buren and Authie, neighboring villages five miles northwest of Caen, and opened the way into the city.

The first objectives for this Ontario regiment in the assault on the defence line was the village of Gruchy, one mile west of Buren and the same distance northwest of Authie. It was only a group of 50 or 60 stone and wooden houses and a few trees set in the open wheatfields. There was little cover approaching the village.

The Germans had made it a strongpoint, concentrating on elaborate trench systems for machine-gunners and snipers in the fields around the north and west sides of the hamlet. The enemy had been holding the position since D-Day. They had every advantage of ground defence.

Gemmell Mentioned

At 7.30 a.m. on July 8 the Canadians attacked. Great concentrations of artillery hammered the three enemy towns in this triangle of defence and the infantry moved out of their trenches and went south right behind the barrage. This Ontario regiment had two companies forward, one of which was commanded by Maj. Neil Gemmell, of Peterborough, Ont. They went through the yellow wheat and artillery fire kept the Germans down as the Canadians got into some bad open stretches. Gruchy itself was devastated and clouds of smoke veiled the battlefield.

Then the barrage lifted and the shells hadn't stopped falling for a minute before the stubborn Germans who had survived the shelling of their trenches opened up with rifles and machine-guns. The Ontario infantry closed with them and there was grim close-in fighting for hours.

Opposing the Canadians were fanatical troops of the 12th S.S. Division, a Hitler youth formation, and the Germans wouldn't give up until killed or wounded.

Scores of Nazi trench positions were in those fields around Gruchy and each one had to be attacked and destroyed. Describing this fierce action, the lieutenant-colonel commanding the unit said: "A section of eight men would move up on one of these trenches holding four or five Germans. Our men would crawl up

Churchill-F.D.R. To Meet Again

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 13 — (AP) — A meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt may come about before long, the way cleared in part by Mr. Roosevelt's revision of policy to permit practical co-operation with General De Gaulle.

The problem of Anglo-American relations with the French National Committee of Liberation has been one of the most difficult ever to trouble the course of afairs which have to be handled jointly by London and Washington.

Had this recognition issue remained in a highly unsettled condition with Allied Armies in France, it would undoubtedly have colored all the discussions of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt in their expected talks.

No time for these talks has been indicated. The President, however, has hinted at two news conferences that he expects to see the Prime Minister this summer or fall that he would probably make the trip to Britain this time instead of having Mr. Churchill come over.

100,000 People Leave London

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 13.—(AP).—Britain's first all-clear night in a month came last night amid some signs that Hitler's flying bomb attacks against London and the southern counties are tapering off. However, the attacks were renewed to-day.

Not a singel robot plane was reported over Britain after dark. For London it was the third raid-free night in a row, but the bombs have been striking the city during daylight hours—at the busiest periods, when they are apt to cause the most confusion.

Despite these respites, Londoners continue to bunk in shelters.

Coming from varying directions, the flying bombs brought death by ones and twos yesterday as houses and shops were demolished.

At least 100,000 persons, including 60,000 children have left London. Night life has fallen off. Twenty-one theatres have been closed, and bars no longer are crowded. Some of this change can be attributed to the fact that thousands of Allied soldiers were drawn from London by the invasion, however.

The London Daily Express said there had been many reports of "organized looting" after bomb hits. Looters face a possible death penalty.

Allies Score New Gains Across Italy

Lajatico Taken By 5th Army After Bitter Fight

BY NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 13 — (AP) — American troops of the Allied 5th Army, breaking through German defences in the Upper Era valley some 17 miles inland from Italy's west coast in a flanking move against Livorno, have captured the town of Lajatico in the bitterest fighting Italy has seen in recent weeks, Allied headquarters announced today.

The only major changes on the British 8th Army front came in the Upper Tiber valley, where Allied troops gained as much as four miles, halving the distance to the road jonction of Citta Di Castello. East of the Tiber the enemy withdrew from two strong hill positions.

Around Arezzo a focal point of major fighting on the 8th Army front for the past week, a lull settled down, but there were numerous brisk patrol clashes.

An official at headquarters said the enemy had massed more than 70 big guns around Arezzo.

American forces mopped up all enemy soldiers remaining in Latajico yesterday, taking 150 to 200 prisoners, and surged on northward. By noon they had clossed to a point only 12 miles from the Arno River Valley, key to the outer strongpoints of the German "gothic line" defences—supposedly the last strong natural barrier left to the enemy short of the Po River line in northern Italy.

Simultaneously French troops on the right of the Americans carved a path through German defence points and captured San Donato, astride a secondary highway in a mountainous area 25 miles southwest of Florence.

Still further to the east other French forces repulsed enemy counter-attacks against Hill 218, two miles southwest of Poggibonsi and 38 miles inland from the west coast. Clinging doggedly to their positions, the French inflicted heavy losses on the enemy and remained poised as a menace to Poggibonso, key junction controlling roads toward Florence and the Arno Valley.

The day brought no fresh news of the American elements which have taken Castiglioncello and progressed up the west coast to within eight miles of Livorno. Further progress on the coast appeared to depend largely on gains further inland, where it is necessary to root the enemy out of high ground commading the coastal plain.

200,000 Patriots Harassing Huns

STOCKHOLM, July 13 (AP)—The German high command is "discussing plans to shorten the front," as the result of the Russians' plunge to Alytus, 50 miles from the East Prussian border, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today.

This was interpreted here as meaning that the Germans are preparing to evacuate the Baltics.

Allied sources said an estimated 200,000 Russian Partisans are retreating with the Germans in Poland and as they move back are disrupting German communications and causing great confusion behind the wavering German lines.

RESIGNS POST—Lt.-Col. Eric Keeler, 50, of Belleville, Ont., who has been temporarily filling the appointment of officer commanding No. 3A Depot at Kingston, Ont., is relinquishing the command on medical grounds and will be succeeded by Lt.-Col. J. Roberts. Col. Keeler was formely officer commanding Military Training Centre No. 32 at Peterborough.

Maj. J. Mahony Awarded V.C. Fifth In Canada

OTTAWA, July 13 (CP)—A former newspaperman who continued successful direction of the holding of an Italian bridgehead after being wounded three times, Maj. John (Jack) Keefer Mahony, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., becomes Canada's fourth and the Empire's 90th Victoria Cross winner of this war, Defence Minister Ralston announced today.

The official citation told how "with absolute fearlessness and disregard to his own safety" he led his company in a May 24 action which was described as "vital to the whole Canadian Corps action and failure would have meant delay, a repetition of the attack, probably involving heavy losses of men, material and time and would have given the enemy a breather space which might have broken the impetus of the Corps' advance."

The modest soldier himself, mentioning the action briefly in a letter to his mother, wondered what his family had done May 24, and added: "It was a very busy day for yours truly and one I shan't forget in a hurry."

A slim, boyish looking, soldier, Maj. Mahony is an officer of the Westminster Regiment—a motorized formation. The action for which the coveted cross was awarded, took place at the Nelfa River, May 24. The Major's determination in gain-

New Brunswick Election Aug. 28

FREDERICTON, July 13 (CP)—Premier J. B. McNair announced today a general election would be held in New Brunswick Aug. 28.

The last general election was held Nov. 20, 1939, when 29 Liberals and 19 Conservatives were returned to the 48-seat Legislature. The standing at dissolution is Liberals 25, Progressive Conservatives 16, and vacant 7.

It is the fourth provincial election to be held this year. Saskatchewan citizens went to the polls June 15 and residents of Alberta and Quebec will vote Aug. 8.

Announcement of the election came as no surprise. The life of the present legislature—17th since Confederation—was due to expire late this year and it had been understood for months that the House would be dissolved and election writs called this year.

Several weeks ago political observers in the capital forecast late August as time of the election. For some time past, conventions of both parties have been nominating candidates throughout the province. Premier McNair was among those nominated and will be candidate in Victoria.

The 55-year-old Premier has been head of the provincial administration since March 13, 1940, when he took over following the resignation of Premier A. A. Dysart, who was appointed to the New Brunswick Supreme Court.

Stage 19-Mile Gain In Day Near East Prussia Battle Echoes In Germany

Swedish Radio Says Russian Troops 11 Miles From The Border After Driving 30 Miles Beyond Grodno

By EDDIE GILMORE, Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, July 13—(AP)—Russian troops drove to a point within 30 miles of East Prussia today in a 19-mile advance in the Suwalki area of western White Russia.

(Suwalki itself is but 11 miles from East Prussia. It is a city of pre-war Poland on a wedge of land between East Prussia and Lithuania. It lies 60 miles southwest of Kaunas and 90 miles from the Prussian Baltic coast. A Russian drive to the Baltic might trap two German armies in the Russian-annexed states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

(An NBC broadcast from Sweden said the Russians were within 12 miles of East Prussia after driving 30 miles beyond Grodno, also a pre-war Polish city. Such proximity would mean that battle echoes could he heard in Germany itself.

Other Russian columns struck within 38 miles of Kaunas, old capital of Lithuania in a seven mile advance. Detachments were within 29 miles of Grodno after racing 27 miles in 24 hours. Yet another group was 50 miles from Bialystok, strategic rail centre leading into Warsaw and East Prussia. Brest Litovsk on the river Bug was within 67 miles of forces on the north and 70 of those in the Pripet marsh area.

Warsaw itself was within 150 miles of Russian guns to the northeast.

Dauavpils, gateway to the Baltic sea and Riga, was feeling increasing pressure of two huge approaching Russian armies. Already its garrison was like the one surrounded in Wilno in Lithuania, bracing for the coming blow.

The newest disaster to befall the Germans came with Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's offensive against the Latvian Republic, which in its first two days gobbled up more than 1,000 vilages in a break-through which front dispatches said was now 100 miles wide and 25 miles deep north of Gen. Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic Army.

Yeremenko, fresh from his victories in the Crimea, moved to within 18 miles of the border of the Latvian Soviet Republic on the main Velikie Luki-Riga railway.

(A Reuter News Agency dispatch said Red Army tanks had plunged to within 35 miles of the East Prussian border in fighting south-west of the new front.)

A Moscow communique said more than 7,000 Germans ere killed and about 1,500 taken prisoner in a single day's fighting on the new sector.

Front dispatches pictured this latest offensive as well under way, and said the Germans were falling back pell-mell.

Prepare For Bad News

(The Berlin radio, apparently preparing the German people for news of a large-scale withdrawal along the entire eastern front, said: "It is obvious that the front cannot remain as it is. There are two alternatives. One is a large scale counter-offensive and the other the adaptation of the entire front to new lines. Since we are on the defensive on the east, the second alternative is the one to be applied.")

A dispatch to Izvestia said Yeremenko's offensive, which swept in the big towns of Idritsa, 22 miles east of the Latvian border, and Kudever, about 35 miles northeast of Idritsa, began with a heavy artillery barrage that blasted the Ger-

Munich Rocked In Huge Raid By 1,000 Heavies

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Munich was hit a hard blow for the third successive day by 1,000 American heavy bombers today while the 15th Air Force in Italy again stabbed at Nazi oil and rail facilities in northern Italy in raids which followed powerful night blows by the R.A.F.

Saarbrucken in western Germany also was hit by the heavies from England.

Up to 500 American planes smashed at Porto Marghera and Trieste oil storage tanks, four railyards on the Milan-Venice line, and the Pinzano rail bridge over the Tagliamento River 80 miles northwest of Trieste, Rome dispatches announced.

The railyards hit were at Brescia, Verona, Mestre and Mantua.

Munich is a transportation centre for railways and roads between Germany, Italy and France and the attack fitted into the rapidly snowballing campaign threatening to cripple German transport over all western Europe, the same as it now is disrupted in the northwest corner.

The Munich area now has received about 9,000 tons of American bombs in three days, making it perhaps the most intensively bombed region in the world.

Berlin said also a fleet was striking from Italy, as on the last two days.

A large fleet of R.A.F. heavy bombers without loss before dawn struck two of the most important rail centres in central France. Other British bombers from Italy battered the Brescia railyards in northern Italy by night. The Finns said Russian air forces joined the general melee by bombing their port of Kotka east of Helsinki.

Saarbrucken is a major steel and coal centre nearly athwart the western German border on a main trunk line to Paris, 200 miles due west. Mosquitos during the night had stung targets in the nearby Ruhr.

Upward of 500 R.A.F. heavies participated in the overnight operations, during which railway targets at Tours and Coulmont-Chaindey were the main targets.

Secret Weapon

TORONTO, July 13. — (CP). — Camouflaged as a mascot, "Spunky" the skunk, is the new secret weapon at naval headquarters here. Young, mild-mannered and care free, "Spunky" was picked up near Lake Simcoe after his mother was run over by a car.

OTTAWA, July 13 (CP)—This is a story of a gangly young hero of 17 with fuzz on his pink cheeks and a complete disregard for formalities who is back in Canada, after 18 months operational bombing missions, to teach his elders how to gun while he waits until he gets old enough to join them in action.

He is Sgt. Roy D. (Muscles) Hadwyn, son of a Lindsay, Ont., brakeman of Welsh origin, and he arrived today with a party of repatriated R.C.A.F. men that included Cpl. Bobby Bauer, the former Boston Bruin hockey star from Kitchener, Ont.

Muscles—because he hasn't any—was the youngest aircrewman in the R.C.A.F. until they found him out. He had just turned 15 when he enlisted Nov. 5, 1942, as an air gunner.

He got his mother and father to promise not to give him away and then he "dive-bombed" the recruiting officer in Toronto so persistently that the understanding veteran winked at his claim of being 18 and let him pass.

Fooled Family

He kept his family "quiet" by telling them he was merely a flying instructor and until they read this, Muscles says, they won't know that he had bombed most of the targets like Aachen, Cologne and Paris, took

6 Destroyers Lost In Invasion

LONDON, July 13.—(AP).— Six British and American destroyers were lost in landing operations in France, the Admiralty and the U. S. Navy Department announced tonight.

Three British destroyers announced lost by the Admiralty were the Boadicea, Swift and Svenner. The British also announced the loss of the frigates Mourne, Blackwood and Lawford, the trawler Lord Austin and the auxiliary Minster.

Total losses announced were 15 vessels, seven American and eight British. Several thousand ships were involved in the landings.

The former Grace Liner Santa Clara, renamed the transport Susan B. Anthony, also was lost by American naval forces along with the minesweeper Tide, the destroyer Escort Rich and the fleet tug Partridge.

The American destroyers were the Corry and Glennon, built in the 1940-41 program, and the Meredith.

2,000 Young Nazi Prisoners Reach Canadian Shores

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, July 13 — (CP) — About two thousand Nazi prisoners of war, their part in the figthting finished and apparently happy about it, have been landed in Canada and taken to prison camps in the interior of the Dominion.

The captives one of the biggest individual groups ever brought to the country, mostly were veterans of the Italian fighting. A sprinkling of members of Goering's Air Force was among them. So far as could be learned the contingent contained no prisoners taken in the Normandy invasion.

Many of the Germans were extremely young for soldiering and others were balding veterans, confirming reports from the battle that Hitler has been dipping deeply into Germany's reserves of manpower for his fighting forces. Some of the youngsters looked to be no older than 14, uniforms hanging baggilly on their immature frames.

Generally, they were a cheerful lot as they came ashore from the big ship that took them over here. Puffing contentedly at Canadian cigarettes, they marched quietly to their special trains a few hundred feet from the dockside and waited patiently for them to pull out.

As the trains left many of them waved laughing goodbyes to those standing near the tracks.

The bulk of the prisoners were in tropical kit, with shortsleeved shirts that displayed skin darkened by the Mediterranean sun. They appeared healthy and well fed.

MP's Wrathy Taxes Burdensome

Costing Them Money To Serve People Even Coldwell Agrees

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 13—(CP)—Members of the Commons, who indicated taxation had forced them into the position of penny-pinching politicians, set forth their woes in detail as debate on the budget resolutions opened yesterday.

The indemnity of the ordinary member is $4,000 a year and the estimates appropriation for indemnities for the present fiscal year totals $990,000.

But—and the debate was full of "buts"—members said that after they paid taxes at the present level on that $4,000 many of them were "in the red" when they totted up their accounts at the year-end. Finance Minister Ilsley held out little hope of a change in the taxation system to aid members of the present parliament.

The majority who participated in the debate, which sometimes was fiery with party lines ignored, suggested taxation adjustments rather than increase in the total amount paid them. They suggested that $1,500 or more should be tax free, looked upon as essential expenses, unavoidable because of the time they had to spend away from their homes each year and their travel expenses.

The discussion of indemnities occupied most of the day and completely overshadowed the subject matter of the clause before the House. It provides for abandonment of the compulsory savings feature of the individual income tax, and was approved just before the House rose at 11 p.m.

Hanson Starts

Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C.—York-Sunbury, the first to raise the question of indemnities, said that it cost him money to be a member, as his indemnity did not cover his expenses.

The "meagre salaries" paid public servants were a disgrace, he said.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said that in recent years many members of parliament had to "exist" on savings of former days, and some even had to forgo their life insurance. He endorsed the plea of Mr. Hanson.

Victor Quelch (S.C.—Acadia) said he could not understand why a member of parliament should be the one individual called on to pay income tax on his gross income without being allowed to charge expenses against it.

George Wood (L-Brant) said that members of parliament should have taxation concessions in light of their expenses, but he did not favor raising the sessional indemnity.

Mr. Wood said that the honor of being a member of parliament had to be considered as well as the monetary reward.

Can't Eat Honor

"You can't eat honor," interjected George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley).

Mr. Wood said that members of parliament had to set an example. There had been no trouble in finding people to take positions as members of parliament in spite of the alleged smallness of the indemnity.

R. W. Mayhew (L-Victoria, Ont.) said he was out money but was not concerned about that. He was concerned because he could not seriously recommend public life to some young men who should be coming to parliament.

D. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) said as teacher in Toronto he received about the same salary as he now received as member of parliament. Keeping his expenses modest he found he was about $1,000 a year worse off as a member.

Mr. Cruickshank said that two young members of parliament now with the forces "were having to give up politics" because of the present taxation situation.

(Mr. Cruickshank did not name the members but it was learned he was referring to Capt. Alan Chambers (L-Nanaimo), and Flt.-Lt. J. Sinclair (L-Vancouver North).

G. G. McGeer (L-Vancouver Burrard) said the question of income tax changes involved the right of parliament to have its will carried out by the ministry.

Mr. Ilsley said Mr. McGeer could introduce a want of confidence motion whenever he wished.

Much Harm Done

Mr. McGeer said the minister might be faced with that issue.

"I think the minister has done enough harm in the country already," he said.

"...I say to the minister that there are many of us supporting the government he represents who have to consider what we are going to do about this thing, if it continues."

Mr. Ilsley said parliament remained sovereign. It had pronounced itself on questions raised by Mr. McGeer about compulsory savings and income tax exemptions.

Douglas Abbott, parliamentary assistant to Mr. Ilsley, said he was in sympathy with opinions expressed by members but he would hesitate to vote himself what would be a reduction in taxes at this session.

Mr. Ilsley said members were taxed on the same basis as they were before the war, but taxation rates were higher. The same rules were being applied to other taxpayers as were applied before the war. Deductions for the expenses of earning a salary were not allowed. Members knew what indemnity they would receive when they sought election.

He did not favor making a change which would place members of public bodies in a different category from other taxpayers. A ceiling had been placed on wages, salaries and prices since 1941, and if members of parliament changed their own position they might be accused of finding a way out.

The minister said he had shied away from the question not because of lack of courage, because he had to do many unpopular things in recent years and had not refrained from doing them when he thought they should be done.

ing and holding the bridgehead and his personal heroism and resourceful leadership is described in the official citation accompanying the award.

The Major becomes the third British Columbia soldier to win the Empire's highest award for valor in this war. Lt.-Col. Cecil I. Merritt of Vancouver and now a prisoner of war, was so honored for his heroism at Dieppe. Maj. Charles Ferguson Hoey, of Duncan, B. C., was posthumously awarded the V. C. for service with British forces in the India-Burma campaign in February. Canada's fourth V. C. is Maj. Paul Triquet of Cabano, Que. He won the medal for bravery with the French-Canadian Royal 22nd Regiment at Casa Berardi, Italy, Dec. 14, 1943.

"On May 24, 1944, a company of the Westminster Regiment (Motor) under the command of Maj. Mahony was ordered to establish the initial bridgehead across the river Melfa. The enemy still had strong forces of tanks, self-propelled guns and infantry holding defensive positions on the east side of the river. Despite this, Maj. Mahony personally led his company down to and across the river, being with the leading section.

Gallant Action

"Although the crossing was made in full view of and under heavy fire from enemy machine gun posts on the right rear and left front, he personally directed each section into its proper position on the west bank with the greatest coolness and confidence. The crossing was made and a small bridgehead was established on ground where it was only possible to dig shallow weapon pits. From 3.30 p.m. the Company maintained itself in the face of enemy fire and attack until 8.30 p.m. when the remaining companies and supporting weapons were able to cross the river and reinforce them. The bridgehead was enclosed on three sides by an 88mm self-propelled gun 450 yards to the right, a battery of four anti-aircraft guns 100 yards to the left, a Spandau (a type of machine gun used by the Germans) 100 yards to the left of it, to the left of the Spandau a second 88mm self-propelled gun and approximately a company of infantry with mortars and machine guns on the left of the 88mm.

From all these weapons Maj. Mahony's company was constantly under fire until it eventually succeeded in knocking out the self-propelled equipment and the infantry on the left flank.

"Shortly after the bridgehead had been established, the enemy counter-attacked with infantry supported by tanks and self-propelled guns. The counter-attack was beaten off by the company with its Piats (Piat Projectors), two-inch mortars and grenades, due to the skill with which Maj. Mahony had organized his defences.

Encouraged Men

"With absolute fearlessness and disregard for his own safety, Maj. Mahony personally directed the fire of his Piats throughout this action, encouraging and exhorting his men. By this time the company strength had been reduced to 60 men and all but one of the platoon officers had been wounded. Scarcely an hour later the enemy tanks formed up about 500 yards in front of the bridgehead and together with about a company of infantry launched a second counter-attack. Maj. Mahony, determined to hold the position at all costs, went from section to section with words of encouragement, personally directing fire of mortars and other weapons. At one stage a section was pinned down in the open by accurate and intense machine gun fire. Maj. Mahony crawled forward to their position and by throwing smoke grenades succeeded in extricating the section from its position with the loss of only one man. This counter-attack was finally beaten off with the destruction of three enemy self-propelled guns and one Panther tank.

Wounded 3 Times

Early in the action Maj. Mahony was wounded in the head and twice in the leg but he refused medical aid and continued to direct the defence of the bridgehead despite the fact that movement of any kind caused him extreme pain. It was only when the remaining companies of the regiment had crossed the river to support him that he allowed his wounds to be dressed and even then refused to be evacuated, staying instead with his company.

"The forming and holding of a bridgehead across the river was vital to the whole Canadian corps action and failure would have meant delay, a repetition of the attack, probably involving heavy loss in men, material and time and would have given the enemy a breathing space which might have broken the impetus of the corps advance. Maj. Mahony, knowing this, never allowed the thought of failure or withdrawal to enter his mind and infused his spirit and determination into all his men. At the firts sign of hesitation or faltering Maj. Mahony was there to encourage by his own example those who were feeling the strain of battle. The enemy perceived that this officer was the soul of the defence and consequently fired at him constantly with all weapons, from rifle to 88mm. guns. Maj. Mahony completely ignored the enemy fire and with great courage and absolute disregard for personal danger commanded his comany with such great confidence, energy and skill, that the enemy's efforts to destroy the bridgehead were all defeated.

"The great courage shown by Maj. Mahony in this action will forever be an inspiration to his regiment and to the Canadian army."

Orange Leader Criticizes Draft Policy

KEMPVILLE, Ont., July 13 — (CP) — T. Ashmore Kidd, Grand Master of the Orange Order for British American, said in addressing a rally and parade of Eastern Ontario Orangemen here yesterday that the Order has always stood for the closest co-operation and unity within the Empire.

"We look with pride upon our Canadian troops who are fighting alongside the units of the Empire in Italy and France, yet it does fill us with anxiety and concern for our overseas forces when we see our government so slow in taking any action in regard to the 70,000 supposedly trained soldiers who have not volunteered to go overseas," he said.

"From the beginning of the war, the Orange Order has advocated a manpower policy for General Service. We wanted to take our place with the other parts of the Empire and the United States in enlisting men to go any place that the war effort required them.

"This has been steadily opposed by the government until today they have an issue on their hands. There are many evidences today that they are afraid to make the decision that all men called up must reinforce our men overseas. Why can't the Minister of National Defence enforce a manpower policy that will guarantee our boys all the necessary support?

"It would appear that Canada's manpower policy goes only as far as a certain element in the Province of Quebec permits the government, rather than being the expression of the Canadian people as voiced in the Plebescite."

Approximately 40 district lodges carried banners in the parade.

Other speakers included Miss Anna I. Grier, Burritt's Rapids, Grand Mistress of Ontario East; Rev. V. Atcheson, Cornwall; James A. Sanderson and Clarence Van Camp of Cardinal.

These two towns control 6 square miles of lowland to the north of the line of the Germans' general withdrawal.

The American offensive against St. Lo, mid-Normandy fortress town, made steady progress. Advance formations of tanks and infantry swept through La Boulaye, 2¼ miles east of St. Lo, and then pushed three-fourths of a mile south of La Boulaye.

Preceded by devastating artillery fire, American columns were driving toward and around St. Lo in a semicircle from the Vire river to the south of the road from Bayeux to St. Lo.

A similar situation prevailed northwestward in the Cherbourg peninsula around Lessay, where Lt.-Gen. Bradley's troops were about two miles from that road junction.

Both towns were under constant attack.

The doughboys advanced down both sides of the road to Lessay from La Haye du Puits and after taking Vesly, 2½ miles northeast of Lessay, then pushed south of the town for half a mile.

In the Vire river fighting the Americans recaptured Le Desert, which had been left in no man's land after a big tank battle.

A field dispatch from William Stewart, another C.P. war correspondent in the Caen sector, related how the Canadian battle flag was raised over the city by Canadian troops who helped to capture it last Sunday. It was the first city entered and captured by the Canadians since D-day.

A report from the St. Lo front said the Germans were using artillerymen as infantrymen. It was not clear, however, whether this was because Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was short of infantrymen or had a surplus of artillerymen whose weapons had been destroyed.

32 Divisions

The German-controlled Paris radio, in a broadcast possibly intended to prepare Axis adherents for further reverses, declared that General Montgomery had 32 divisions employed on the narrow stretch of the front between Caumont and the region north of St. Lo.

This came after a Nazi front line correspondent's assertion that the Allied artillery barrage was the heaviest ever encountered. He said the Allied air and artillery assault an German rear movements and communications faced the Germans with "a strategy utterly new in the history of warfare."

The Berlin radio asserted fresh American divisions were pouring into Normandy direct from the United States and added the Allies, through hundreds of loudspeakers on the front, were urging the Germans to desert.

to about 20 or 30 yards from the enemy position and throw grenades.

Slow, Tough Fight

"Time and again the Germans picked them up before they exploded and tossed them back to us. While our boys were doing this assault they were under fire from other trenches around them. This went on all around Gruchy and it was slow, bloody fighting. But every trench was cleared. The only Germans who gave themselves up were those in forward flanking positions who were cut off, and even then there were only half-a-dozen of them."

Section and platoon commanders bore the brunt of this battle and they performed their duties superbly. The Quebec tanks co-operated very closely with us and just as soon as our infantry was close enough to Gruchy to establish the fact that there were no anti-tank guns in the village our tanks were able to come over the field."

"They ran up and down over the slit trenches where the Germans were still fighting and fired into the trenches from 50 yards range. The Germans even had the nerve to stand up in the trenches and try to fire their version of the Piat gun at the tanks when they were 10 feet away. But they were mowed down before they could loose their bombs."

"When my two companies got to their objective at Gruchy and wiped out all resistance the Germans heavily mortared their own former positions while my men were digging in. This mortaring we kept up intermittently for hours."

Gruchy was taken at about 3 p.m. Saturday and while this attack was going on another company swung around west and went for Chateau St. Louet, just west of Authie. The Germans were holding strong dug-in positions in the wooded grounds of the Chateau. An Allied artillery concentration first hit the Chateau area and set the buildings on fire. The shelling was so heavy some of the Germans in one sector of the grounds didn't fight at all.

Used Grenades

But the rest of the Chateau area had to be cleared with grenades, rifles and Sten guns. The Quebec tanks supported the infantry here, too, despite the fact that they were fired upon by enemy tanks in Authie. The Canadians consolidated on their Chateau objective and anti-tank gunners took up position and dug in under mortar fire.

By 4 p.m. the Chateau position was firmly held. Meanwhile, a terrible struggle was going on for Buron where an Ontario regiment was engaged. Buron was finally captured and a Maritme unit fought its way forward to capture Authir and Franqueville, between Authie and Capriquet.

The Ontario regiment which took Gruchy and Chateau St. Louet was then given the daring task of going right into Caen. The attack was launched next morning, Sunday, after the troops had stood to all night without sleep. The leading companies in the Caen attack were commanded by Capt. Athol Stewart of Peterborough, and Capt. J. G. Stothart, of Ottawa.

The tanks were with them. Infantry and tanks moved together, advancing east astride the Caen-Bayeux highway, and just outside St. Germain on the western outskirts bumped into the first real German opposition on this route.

The Germans were in a group of houses and there was a mine belt right across the road and field. It took a struggle to get through the minefields, and eventually Canadian sappers got into it and cleared a path. German 88s fired on this spearhead, but the Canadians got among the houses of St. Germain and fighting against the German rearguard worked their way down the chaotic highway into Caen.

Every Building Hit

Today there is not a single building on that street that has not been hit once but many times. Telephone and electric wires hang limp from broken poles. It is an avenue of devastation and death.

The weary Canadians pressed on block after block, shooting up snipers and machine-gun posts. Ahead they could see the spires of the Church of St. Etienne, in the centre of Caen.

When the infantry hit particularly stiff opposition they called on the tanks and the tanks blew down whole houses with their guns. By 11 a.m. the two leading Canadian companies were in Caen proper and by 3 p.m. an entire battalion was on objectives in the centre of the city. During the whole advance the regiment's colonel moved forward within 100 yards of his leading troops in a Bren-carrier and the colonel of the tank regiment was alongside him in a scout car.

Contact was established by this unit with British troops who entered Caen from the north and the other Ontario regiment and the Maritime regiment also entered the city that first day.

part in the D-Day softening-up bombings and later ground strafed German troops holding up the Canadian advance in Normandy.

Ignorant of his actual role in the Air Force as mid-upper and tail gunner of a battle-scarred Halifax bomber, his mother's chief worry, he figures, must have been that he might get injured by one of those "Doodlebug" flying bombs the Germans are sending over Britain.

As a matter of fact when Muscles' bomber was returning from the D-day raid a half-dozen "Doodlebugs" came speeding along in his wake and passed him going 50 miles an hour faster.

"We were being chased at the time by German fighters so we must have been hitting about 300 when the Doodlebugs whipped by us on their way to England", he said. "We had to veer away from one of them as it was about to climb our tail."

He took a few shots at them with the little ammunition he had left after straffing Germans but was unsuccessful.

Must Wait Year

But his accurate gunning has brought down one German fighter and got credit for another as a probable.

How did they catch up with him? That's what he'd like to know. He doesn't think his mum and dad, even though they might have had suspicions he was on operation, would tattle on him.

"All I know is a brass hat came to our station from London one day just as I was going to take off on a mine-laying mission and told me I was grounded. He sympathized with me but told me I'd have to go back to Canada and wait until I got old enough to go in for the rough stuff. Well, here I am and I've got nearly a year to wait, gosh darn it."

He disclosed that the latest German ruse in air warfare was firing "scarecrow" bombs from their anti-aircraft batteries. The bombs explode and shower what looks like aircraft wreckage in the vicinity of Air Force bomber groups. "This is supposed to break aircrew morale, but I guess it doesn't have much effect, although one bursting near our plane one day knocked my windows out and scared the daylights out of me."

Creeping Barrage.

He recalled watching the invading armies establish the Normandy bridgehead. The thing that impressed him most was the terrific creeping barrage that covered the advance in the British-Canadian sector. "They just moved everything in front of them." His group bombed St. Lo and on the way back strafed Germans scurrying along the ditches in front of the advance.

Does he mind taking on the job of instructor? Well, now that he has thought about it it won't be too bad. A little tame perhaps and kind of embarrassing drilling guys older than he is, "but I guess they won't mind."

Bauer was met here by his pretty wife Marguerite, also of Kitchener. An old hockey leg injury may have brought on the sciatic condition he now is suffering in his back and leg. He spent six weeks in hospital in England and after he completes his 30-day leave he has to go before a medical board which will perhaps lead to further hospital treatment.

Goggin Denies Liquor Increase

TORONTO, July 13.—(CP).—Victor Goggin, Ontario Liquor Board chairman, conferred yesterday at Queen's Park with Premier Drew and Attorney-General Blackwell but quickly made a pre-conference denial of rumors that Ontario's liquor quota of 13 ounces a month would be raised to 40 ounces.

"Until we are given the same liquid gallonage of spirits proportionate to Quebec there can be no change," Mr. Goggin said.

Quebec's ration is 80 ounces a month, of which 40 ounces may be purchased each two weeks.

CCF Party Wants Newspaper, Radio Station

REGINA, July 13 — (CP). — The Saskatchewan section of the C.C.F. to-day aimed for a constituency C.C.F. membership of at least 50,000 to assist the first C.C.F. Government in history to achieve its objective of an administration "by the people and for the people."

At the first session of the three-day annual convention, Premier T. C. Douglas criticized "monopoly capitalism," charged the Federal Government places property rights beyond human rights and told of the Party's necessity to have a "powerful newspaper and a radio station."

By having a newspaper and radio station the C.C.F. viewpoint and policies "may be made near to the belief without distortion and misrepresentation," he said.

Highways Minister J. T. Douglas said if the Liberal Government of W. J. Patterson had gone to the country three years ago "he would have whipped the pants off our Party." In three years the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan had been built into a strong party.

Mr. Douglas, the Provincial organizer, appealed to members of the C.C.F. not to leave all the work of the Provincial Government to Premier Douglas and his Cabinet and Legislative members. "If we continue to work hard for the Party we can win every Federal constituency in Saskatchewan in coming Federal election," he said.

Saskatchewan has 21 Federal seats.

A large pasteboard sign on the convention platform read: "Ottawa next."

Great Future in Yellowknife

Hon. Charles McCrea, K.C., president, Negus Mines, Ltd., expressed the opinion yesterday on his return from a fortnight's visit to Yellowknife, Northwest Territory, that a great future awaits that district when the war is over. He found general expectation that all the liveliness in claim-staking, diamond-drilling and prospecting will result in new finds during the coming season.

When the war is over, reopening of the Con, Rycon, Ptarmigan and Thompson Lundmark mines and the active development of Giant Yellowknife will mean exceptional activity in the Yellowknife camp and there is every indication of its becoming an important gold area.

Application for listing of the authorized 3,000,000 shares of Aubelie Mines, Ltd., has been granted and the stock will be posted for trading at the opening next Tuesday. Of the 3,000,000 shares authorized 1,625,005 shares are issued and 1,374,995 shares remain in the treasury.

Three Holes Drilled

Marion Rouyn Gold Mines has completed three diamond-drill holes covering a length of 250 feet, results from which are reported by E. K. Fockler, geologist, to have established a gold-bearing veined shearing similar in character and attitude to the adjacent producing Powell vein.

The third hole, deepest of the three, has given the best results, a core length of 15 feet returning $8.98 per ton. The first hole returned $9.44 across 39 inchs at depth of 57 feet and the second hole at a depth of 83 feet returned 22 inches assaying $6.93. The third hole is 250 feet north of the No. 1.

Plan Big Contract

Under the direction of D. M. Giachino, recently geologist and mining engineer at Sladen Malartic Mines, preparations are underway to take care of the extensive diamond-drilling program planned to test the property of Nortyne Gold Mines in the recently revived Manneville Township section of Quebec.

President Norman Vincent reports that over $40,000 has been made available to the Nortyne treasury before any stock has been offered to the public and that it is planned to let one of the largest drilling contracts ever given by a development project of this kind.

New Malartic Mines

Assays from numerous diamond drill intersections of mineralized quartz and porphyry have indicated roughly a 10 to 12 foot vein carrying values up to $5, it is stated in a report by Alan Barton, mine manager covering operations at the New Malartic property adjoining East Malartic and Malartic Gold Fields. The principal values were encountered in Holes 8 and 16, which are spaced 100 feet apart.

The report states this quartz vein runs east and west and may be considered as a cross fracture at about 30 degrees to the line of contact with the granodiorite.

Ready To Drill

Directors of East Amphi Gold Mines, Ltd., announce that a contract has been let to carry out further diamond drilling on the company's property in the Malartic district, Quebec. Drilling is expected to start on or about Aug. 1, at a point about 100 feet west of where some ore intersections previously were obtained.

When this drilling is finished the machine will be moved to the east side of the property, where there is a plug of porphyry. Just to the north of the porhyry, two drill holes have disclosed the presence of a shear zone carrying low gold values.

Canned Goods To Be Plentiful

OTTAWA, July 13.—(CP).— The Prices Board announced last night an order simplifying the distribution of the 1944 vegetable pack, and said it expected to make more canned vegetables available for Canadian consumers than were available last year.

Provision is made for safeguarding priority claimants and preferred users on the basis of their previous year's requirements. The order requires canners to reserve sufficient stocks to meet demands of priority claimants—the armed services, war service canteens in advance areas, and Red Cross purchases for prisoner-of-war parcels.

Preferred users — hospitals, logging, mining and construction camps where meals are served to employees—are required to negotiate with regular suppliers for requirements for the coming season, by July 31.

Wounded Men May Wear Gold Stripes

OTTAWA, July 13 (CP)—Defence headquarters announced last night that personnel of the Canadian (Active) Army who have suffered wounds or injuries by enemy action in the present war are entitled to wear a gold stripe and those now in the service who were wounded in the First Great War may wear a red stripe.

Regulations covering the wearing of similar stripes for wounds were issued some months ago for R.C.N. and R.C.A.F. personnel.

The new army regulations states that stripes denoting wounds suffered in the present war will be of narrow gold braid, and will be worn vertically on the left forearm with the first stripe mid-way between the sleeve seams on the outside of the sleeve. Additional stripes will be spaced at half-inch intervals in front of the first wound stripe.

The announcement said the wound stripes were not to be considered as an award.

Soldiers entitled to wear them will be:

Those who have suffered wounds or injuries due to enemy action received on duty or otherwise while in an operational command.

Those who have suffered wounds or injuries due to enemy action when on duty in the air or on the ground in an operational command in the United Kingdom. In this category will come army personnel serving as paratroopers, anti-aircraft gunners and in other categories associated with the air force, officials said.

Those who suffer wound or injury due to enemy action when on duty in a non-operational command, including the Atlantic and Pacific commands in Canada.

Canadian MTB's Avenge Loss Of Craft

By GLEN FRANKFURTER
R.C.N.V.R. Photographer

LONDON, July 12—(CP Cable)—Canadian motor torpedo boats of the English Channel patrol exacted speedy revenge for the loss of a companion craft 24 hours before when they smashed up three German convoys in three hours and sank an E-boat and R-boat, it was announced Wednesday.

Following the path laid by a brilliant moon, the Canadian boats boldly sailed within sight of the Seine on a retribution hunt which began the night before when a Canadian craft was blown up, with a toll of two killed and nine missing, including Lieut. Dave William, D.S.C., of Vancouver.

The prowl was successful. At 11:15 p.m. the lookout spotted enemy E- and R-boats, and the Canuck flotilla, led by Lt.-Cmdr. Tony Law of Quebec City, closed in for action, opening fire with such speed and intensity that the Germans were taken completely by surprise. Within a few minutes one enemy craft crumpled under the weight of steel and went down.

The remaining Nazi boats broke up in confusion and began firing on each other. Law decided to let them fight it out among themselves and another craft was seen to burst into flames as the enemy flotilla re[illegible] the safety of Le Havre. [illegible]aw said "I doubt if it [illegible] port."

[illegible] Canadians turned for home another flotilla of E-boats came out to intercept them. Law met the new challenge by closing immediately. In 10 minutes of fast-moving action one of the E-boats burst into flames and went down and the other two ran for cover.

The Canadians' troubles were not over. A Heinkel bomber swooped on the M. T. B. group and one bomb smacked down not 30 feet from the Flotilla, rocking the craft violently. Oerlikon gun fire holed the Nazi plane and it limped off.

The M. T. B. Flotilla were nursing home one of their boats which had been made sluggish by engine trouble when a third formation of E-boats and R-boats closed in. Law's men plastered the Germans with high-explosives until the superior German force decided to call it off.

The three Canadian boats decided to call it a night, too, and headed home, three hours after firing their first shots.

Piece From Plane Misses Pedestrian

WOODSTOCK, July 13 — (CP) — Mrs. Rose Titus, Woodstock, narrowly missed being struck by a piece of glass and metal which fell from a plane, as she was walking along a street today. The shattered piece of material, about 16 inches long, was apparently a section of the cockpit assembly. It consisted of a piece of metal, painted yellow and green to which was attached a large setion of quarter inch plastic windshield material. No other fragment dropped in the vicinity and the plane continued on its way.

Seven Divisions From Britain Are Identified

LONDON, July 13—(CP Cable)—Seven British divisions—five infantry, one armored, one airborne—have been identifed by official sources as serving among Allied formations in Normandy.

They are the 3rd, 15th, 49th, 50th and 51st infantry divisions, the 6th airborne division and the 7th armored. The Canadian 3rd is the only Dominion division so far named, while United States formations named include the 1st, 9th and 29th infantry and the 82nd airborne infantry divisions.

The British 3rd division is a veteran formation which Gen. Montgomery commanded in France in 1939-40. The 15th, a Scottish outfit with a particularly strong representation from Glasgow, is made up of regiments which already have won names for themselves; this is the first time the division itself has been in action against the enemy.

The 49th, which has had long experience of soldiering in Iceland, drew most of its men from England's rugged north country, but has elements from East Anglia and Scotland as well. The 50th is a Northumbrian division which served in France earlier in the war and fought in North Africa and Sicily. Its men are mostly from coal-mining stock and have been described as "physically small but with hearts big enough for giants."

The 51st is Scotland's famous highland division whose record in this war especially in North Africa, is already well known. Africa veterans also are the 7th Armored men, probably better known as the "desert rats."

Roseneath WMS Holds 'At Home'

ROSENEATH, July 13.—(ENS).—Speaking at the annual W.M.S. "at home" on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Floyd Honey of Baltimore declared the tragedy of broken hearts, unfulfilled dreams and disillusionment were the greatest factors contributing to a divided community life, with its resentment and bitterness so often found on the far frontiers of home missions.

These outposts served for five months each year by a student missionary, call for a more adequate missionary service said Mrs. Honey as she urged larger missionary projects. Speaking from her own experience as a student missionary at Wesley Creek in the Peace River district, she said conditions existing in the newly opened ditricts were so different to what was expected by those arriving from England, that, coming face to face with hardships and privations a spirit of resentment and bitterness resulted.

The meeting was held in th town hall, the president, Mrs. R. Crego, presided and introduced Mrs. Honey.

All present were given a cordial welcome by Mrs. A. Halstead a vice-president of the host society. Mrs. Halstead also gave a brief resume of the development of missions from the time of Wm. Carey, the first missionary.

Mrs. A. Nill introduced Mrs. R. C. White, wife of the newly-arrived minister, and conducted a musical program period, as follows: A piano duet 'All in the Starlight' by Betty and Joan McMillan; a song by little Misses Carol McMillan and Mary Halstead, accompanied by Betty McMillan; a vocal duet, 'Waiting On Jesus,' sung by Misses Clarice and Betty Atkinson; a vocal solo, 'God Remembers When the World Forgets,' sung by Miss Margaret Atkinson; a piano duet, 'Caprice,' played by Misses Clarice and Betty Atkinson, and a trio, 'There Is Joy,' sung by the Misses Atkinson, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. W. A. Atkinson.

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe extended thanks to Mrs. Honey and to all assisting so generously to the program.

Speaking briefly as representatives for the guest societies were Mrs. W. I. Montgomery, Fenella W. M.S.; Mrs. D. Timlin, Centenary W.A.; Mrs. T. Coyle, St. James' Anglican church W.A.; Mrs. E. Crowe, Alderville and Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Roseneath W.A..

Supper consisted of a salad plate, cake, tarts and tea. Upwards of seventy-five were present.

NEW "KILL" RECORD—Capt. Fred J. Christensen, Jr., of Watertown, Mass., ace Thunderbolt pilot with the 8th Air Force, who set a record on July 7, the first fighter pilot to secure six kills on enemy planes in a single mission.

Bevin Promises Soldiers No More Dole

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 13 (CP)—"Ernie," said the men of Britain's famed 50th Division, "when we have done this job for you are we coming back to the dole?"

"That hurt," said Labor Minister Bevin telling the House of Commons of the visit he and Prime Minister Churchill took to bid the division God-speed just before the invasion. "It stung. Both the Prime Minister and I answered: "No, you are not.' "

And with that true story, Mr. Bevin open a three-day debate on the government's white paper to eliminate unemployment from Britain's post-war life. A new British declaration of war, was the way the Daily Herald described the debate, a war against unemployment, and other papers were equally enthusiastic in praising the promise implicit in the white paper and in the exhaustive debate.

One of the most important points made by Mr. Bevin was that wages must be related to productivity, the greater the production the higher the wages, and that the method of raising wages by long conferences over small increases. He did not know what instrument could be used to bring about the production-wages relationship but, he said, the principle was firmly fixed in his mind.

Must Be Fulfilled

The country's attention was firmly focussed on the fighting, but it would shift swiftly to see whether the white paper's intention had been fulfilled when the fighting was done. And, it was generally agreed, there was rich promise of fulfillment in the all-party acceptance of the white paper's principal points and the equally-unanimous determination to press the program through as quickly as possible.

Quote - unquote: Sir Stafford Cripps: There is a great deal missing from the white paper on employment which I should have liked to have seen included, and there is a great deal in it which many Conservatives would have liked to have seen excluded. That is what we mean by compromise.

Quintin Hogg (Conservative M.P. for Oxford): Sir Herbert Williams (Conservative, Croydon) reminds me of a pilotless aircraft. He has a distinctive note of his own and a considerable harassing effect. The blast and noise is terrific but inasmuch as he is entirely mistaken as to the direction which he is going, he goes into unexpected places at the wrong time.

M.T.B. Flotilla Attacks German Convoy

A BRITISH PORT, July 13 — (CP Cable) — A Canadian motor torpedo boat Flottilla commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. J. R. H. Kirkpatrick, D.S.C., of Kitchener, Ont., attacked a German convoy heading into the French port of Saint Malo, west of the Cherbourg Peninsula, sank two merchantmen, left one escort vessel in flames and damaged several others., the Royal Canadian Navy announced today.

Exact date of the action, the Flotilla's fourth engagement with the enemy, was not announced. Only a week ago, the Canadians attacked a convoy off Cherbourg, sank one enemy escort and sank or damaged several trawlers.

"It was a perfect setting for a torpedo attack and we took full advantage of it," said Kirkpatrick. "We released our fish and made two direct hits. As we withdrew we fired all our guns and by this time came under heavy fire."

Lieut. John Collins of Toronto, Commanding one boat told how they made two direct hits on one merchantman, sinking it in "great clouds of smoke and flame." His boat was hit twice at the water line.

"The crews worked feverishly, some up to their shoulders in water, plugged up holes and bailed like Ell," he said.

Sub.-Lt. Tom Poapst of Edmonton related how his boat, commanded by Lieut. Malcolm Knox of Montreal, closed on the convoy before firing its torpedoes. "We fired our torpedoes and covered our retreat with gunfire," he said. "All of a sudden there was a column of smoke and steam and then no ship. It just disappeared."

Lieut. George Moors, Fort William, Ont., experiencing his first M. T. B. action with the Flotilla, Commanded another boat. He said when they left the scene they could see only three ships in the convoy left afloat and one of them was burning.

Ural Section Arsenal For Russian Army

MOSCOW, July 13 (AP) — The inside workings of the Urals, Central Asia arsenal of the Red Army, have been disclosed to a group of American observers who made a two-week flying tour of the vast Russian interior.

The observers were impressed by the tremendous energies unleashed in the war effort, bringing promise of further development of the region in peacetime.

They found the entire industrial empire keyed sharply for war.

The slogan "Everything for the Front" is displayed widely. Newspapers, radio and theatres are used to bring the impact of war home to the workers while delegations are sent frequently to the military zones.

The effect of war could also be seen in the lack of consumers goods and clothes and in the run-down dwellings. Numerous temporary dwellings meet the housing shortage caused by an influx of refugees. Women constitute a big percentage of the workers.

A Victory For De Gaulle

What President Roosevelt has said about his talks with General Charles De Gaulle shows that the French leader has gained an important diplomatic victory. It has been said on good authority that when last the President and De Gaulle met, at Casablanca, they were unable to come to terms of any kind and that feeling between them was cold, to express it mildly. This was naturally embarrassing to Britain, which has gone a long way in meeting the demands of the French Committee; indeed, the agreement which exists between Britain and the De Gaulle group is expected to be the pattern for the agreement with the U.S.A. That agreement will give the French Committee virtual governmental powers.

De Gaulle is clearly pleased by what he has been able to bring about. When he was asked by newspapermen in this country to give an opinion on the results of his American visit, he said simply that the French Government was a fact and that the agreements which other countries made with the French Government merely represented the ways in which they chose to face that fact. But it was plain that he was well pleased and that he looked upon his visit as a success. It is more than likely that there is a quantity of French gold in the U.S.A. to which De Gaulle's Government will some day wish to lay claim; it is important, therefore, that the relationship between the two countries should be well-defined and cordial.

De Gaulle's Committee has not yet been recognized in any quarter as a provisional government of France, and both Britain and the U.S. have insisted that the decision on that matter must be made by the French people themselves. But it is the first step which counts, and De Gaulle has now enough backing to make himself a very real power in his own country. As non-military zones are set up in France members of the De Gaulle organization will take over the civil authority in them, being appointed by General Eisenhower. Shortly the De Gaulle Committee will set up advance headquarters in France, and when the time is propitious they will probably shift their whole organization to their native soil.

Much of the ambiguity of De Gaulle's provisional government (for that is what it is, although the Allies do not choose to call it that) has been removed. In the past the De Gaullists have sometimes been uncomfortable collaborators; we must hope that a change of status will bring a change of attitude.

Discipline And Freedom

An incident has been described to us by a gentleman who is very much interested in the Air Cadets, which we think may provide ground for useful comment. In a nearby city a group of Air Cadets were parading smartly down the principal street, and among those who watched them were two lads in their 'teens who lounged against a wall and looked on with cynical disdain. "Just wait till you see me in one o' them uniforms", remarked one of the youths, and his companion replied, "Yeah, that'll be the day!" The discipline of the cadet corps did not appeal to them, although they were badly in need of discipline of some sort.

A need of discipline among the youth of today has frequently been commented upon, and such organizations as the Air Cadets and the Sea Cadets are ready to give it. The boys who are members of these organizations learn to carry themselves smartly, to obey orders and, to a limited extent, to give orders. They develop self-respect and a useful esprit de corps. There are few lads who are not beneiitted by their association with such groups, and certainly they are infinitely preferable to the slouchers and street-corner loungers.

The danger of these cadet corps, as in all military organizations which are solely designed as disciplinary and training units, is that they may develop a harrow and barren discipline, fostering intolerance and extreme conventionality of conduct. This can only happen, however, if discipline is exalted for its own sake, and not as a means of training character. The boy who knows what discipline is has a great advantage over the boy who does not; but the boy who knows nothing except discipline, and who has no initiative or imagination of his own is a handicapped and potentially dangerous citizen.

We feel that the Air Cadets and the Sea Cadets are doing an excellent job. They are giving a training in discipline to many boys who might not get it in any other way, and thus are conferring an inestimable benefit upon them. The boy whose youth has been spent in lounging, slouching and avoiding any training in good manners and alertness begins his adult life under a heavy burden. A military discipline, with all its faults, is infinitely better than none at all, for it provides a groundwork for that all-important necessity of the free man—self-discipline.

The Right Way To Fight Inflation

We think that the Government deserves congratulations on the series of advertisements which it is publishing in the press of Canada in its campaign against inflation. Since the war began the Government, through its various departments ,has done a great deal of advertising by means of posters, radio, periodicals and newspapers; some of that advertising was good—that is to say, it made a direct and forceful appeal to the public; some of it was almost incredibly bad—dull, negative in emphasis and obscure in expression. The advertisements in the anti-inflation campaign rank high among the best Government advertising and might be taken as models of the right way of approaching the Canadian public.

These advertisements made generous use of humour, and humour in advertising is always attractive. There is a legend that Government advertising must be 'dignified' which may often be interpreted as 'stodgy and unreadable'. The anti-inflation advertisements also use pictographs—those little diagrams which do so much to make a complicated matter clear. And they are written in language which is neither economic jargon nor advertising jargon, but plain English carrying a plain message.

Inflation is not an easy or simple thing to explain to people who are not used to thinking in terms of economics. And the economists have a peculiar language of their own—a technical jargon—which they like to use in their discussions; it is their belief that this jargon makes economic discussion easier. But one thing is plain; the use of economic jargon in an advertisement which was designed to fight inflation would reduce its effectiveness by about 95 per cent. for very few people would read it, and not all who read it would understand it. But the Government anti-inflation advertisements explain the matter clearly, so that no one with a grain of intelligence can miss the point, and in our opinion they are doing a first-rate job. We hope that future Government advertisement will follow this good example.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Anthony Eden says that dawn is breaking over Europe. The German complaint is that the sun is rising in the west, east and south simultaneously.

A man of our acquaintance complains that when he uses a typewriter he makes a lot of mistakes in spelling. That's the worst of a typewriter; it's so legible.

"California Nudists Called On Carpet", says a headline. And the ribald Brantford Expositor says, "It would have been more appropriate had it been a bare-skin rug".

Reminder, by the New York Times: "The heaviest fighting of the last war took place in 1918, and the heaviest fighting of this war is likely to take place this year. But heavy and costly as the fight may be, if pressed to the limit of our strength, it has a chance of being crowned with the supreme reward—the victory this year in Europe forecast by General Eisenhower".

Detractors of capitalism should note that Soviet Russia will now allow its citizens to establish small businesses for profit, as an aid to reconstruction. This happened once before in Russia, in the early 1920's under Lenin's new economic policy, when private business helped stabilize and increase industrial production after the chaos of revolution. The fact that communistic Russia has twice turned to the safe and tried system of profit-taking in an emergency should persuade some people over here that the system has merit. It should even convince them that abuses under capitalism can be corrected without destroying the system.

South Africa And Eire

By GRANT DEXTER

THERE remain in this survey of the prime ministers' conference two Dominions whose positions with respect to Commonwealth relations are of importance. The sixth Dominion—the Irish Free State—was not a factor.

But while the Irish Free State, for obvious reasons, could not be represented or participate in discussions on the war situation, the effect of any decision reached upon Ireland was never absent from the minds of the prime ministers. If a policy of centralization had been approved, the return of the Free State to the councils of the Commonwealth after the war is over would have been made extremely difficult if not impossible.

On the other hand, the decision against centralization will facilitate the bridging of the present breach—a consummation devoutly wished by most if not all of the prime ministers. For, in a real sense, the decision of Ireland to remain neutral in this war will have compensations. Ireland has proved the point that the Dominions are autonomous and such proof will not be lost on the naitonalists of South Africa and Canada, or on those in other countries who argue that the sovereignty of the British nations is merely a fiction designed to obtain five or six votes in international organizatinos instead of one. To make the argument watertight, however, it will be necessary for the Irish Free State to resume her place in the Commonwealth when the war is over.

THE Canadian position is too well known to require amplification. Prior to the conference, Canada was regarded in the United Kingdom as the leading opponent of centralization. In the two-day debate on Commonwealth relations in the British House of Commons (April 20-21) the members kept on saying htat "even Canada" would agree to this or the other.

The event proved, however, that Mr. King did not have to exert himself to defeat the centralists. There was nothing to fight. He found agreement everywhere. Mr. Curtin, who developed his plan publicly on May 4, was promptly and publicly spiked by Mr. Fraser on May 5. And in any event, the Curtin plan was not acceptable to an other member of the Commonwealth.

The conference came to a complete acceptance of Mr. King's position naturally, inevitably and harmoniously. It was the only policy which offered common ground to all; upon which all could agree. Mr. King, so to speak, became the unifying influence. He won without a struggle, and he emerged from the conference with greatly enhanced prestige.

AS for South Africa, the impact of Prime Minister Smuts on the conference was negligible. This was due, no doubt, to the difficult and complicated character of that Dominion. Considering the problems which confront South Africa—the native problem, the Dutch and the English, etc., it is not surprising that Field Marshal Smuts remained out of the limelight.

On the question of Commonwealth consolidation, Field Marshal Smuts was naturally in outright opposition. Although reputed personally to be a centralist—a position which his philosophy of Holism would naturally lead him to adopt as the prime minister of that Dominion, he could do nothing other than support Mr. King. Indeed, he came to the conference pledged more definitely against centralization than even Mr. King.

And, conversely, South Africa warmly supported a world organization. Field Marshal Smuts, indeed, defined the kind of an organization favoured by the conference in a speech at Birmingham on May 19, three days later the conference closed. It will, he said, "almost inevitably be an improved and reformed version of the old League of Nations. That brave and brilliant improvisation failed in part largely because it was not clothed with sufficient authority and power to maintain peace. Next time responsibility should be placed— on those who have the power, and the Great Powers who won the war should be made responsible in the first instance for keeping the peace—at least for the transition period—until a more permanent scheme for effective police supervision could be worked out."

The phasing of this statement, along with the words used by Mr. Churchill, quoted earlier in this series, leaves some doubt as to the nature of the world organization to be established—particularly in regard to the keeping of the peace of the world.

But so far as Commonwealth relations are concerned, the position is crystal clear. No change was made in the relations between the autonomous British nations.

His Primer Days

Men who have to do with writing professionally are expected to say that they cannot recall a time when they were unable to read. This claim, for instance, Conrad made for himself.... At any rate I can make for myself no such claim as theirs, for I remember the first stages in learning to read, in accordance with the "antiquated" method which has long since been cast aside. First I was taught the alphabet at home and shown how to print both big and small letters. Then at a time when there were no kindergartens in Mansfield ,I was sent when four years old to the little red schoolhouse where my father and mother had learned to read. The schooltetcher, who that first summer was a woman, would have five or six of us children stand round her three or four times a day and ask us what words we would like to learn to spell. Then she had us spell them in chorus, and afterwards it was her custom to print them on the blackboard so that we might see how they looked. They were usually names of simple objects about the room like ink, stove, and desk, or such as we could see from the window like grass, hill, and road, or such as were familiar to us in our homes like dog, cat, and fire. I still remember when I learned to spell the hard word "rock." After we had acquired a vocabulary of a hundred or more words which we could spell as well as recognize at sight, there came the primer and in my case at least storybooks which my mother bought for me and a younger sister. Well I remember one story which for a time I read every day. It was called The Three Little Pigs.—From "Connecticut Yankee," by Wilbur L. Cross.

BRIGHT BOY

On reaching the age of 14, Henry left the school and started work in a solicitor's office.

At the end of his first day his father asked him:

"Well, my boy, and how do you like your job?"

"Don't think much of it," replied the youngster disdainfully. "Too dull and dry. I'm sorry I learned it."

Prelude To Invasion—Old Style

THE regiment with its officers was to be transported in ships provided by His Majesty's government for the occasion: and in two days after the festive assembly at Mrs. O'Dowd's apartments, in the midst of cheering from all the East India ships in the river, and the military on shore, the band playing "God Save the King," the officers waving their hats, and the crews hurrahing gallantly, the transports went down the river and proceeded under convoy to Ostend....

This flat, flourishing, easy country never could have looked more rich and prosperous than in that opening summer of 1815, when its green fields and quiet cities were enlivened by multiplied red-coats: when its wide chaussees swarmed with brilliant English equipages: when its great canal-boats, gliding by rich pastures and pleasant quaint villages, by old chateaux lying amongst old trees, were all crowded with well-to-do English travellers....and Donald, the Highlander, billeted in the Flemish farmhouse, rocked the baby's cradle, while Jean and Jeanette were out getting in the hay. As our painters are bent on military subjects just now, I throw out this as a good subject for the pencil, to illustrate the principle of an honest English war. All looked as brilliant and harmless as a Hyde Park review....

As they made that well-known journey, which almost every Englishman of middle rank has travelled since, there might have been more instructive, but few more entertain, companions than Mrs. Major O'Dowd. "Talk about kenal boats, my dear! Ye should see the kenal boats between Dublin and Ballinasloe. It's there the rapid travelling is; and the beautiful cattle. Sure me fawther got a goold medal (and his Excellancy himself eat a slice of it, and said never was finer mate in his loif) for a four-year-old heifer, the like of which ye never saw in this country any day."....

The idea of comparing the market at Bruges with those of Dublin, although she had suggested it herself, caused immense scorn and derision on her part. "I'll thank you tell me what they man by that old gazabo on the top of the market-place," said she, in a burst of ridicule fit to have brought the old tower down. The place was full of English soldiery as they passed. English bugles woke them in the morning; at nightfall they went to bed to the note of the British fife and drum: all the country and Europe was in arms, and the greatest event of history pending....

When our travellers arrived in Brussels, in which their regiment was quartered, a great piece of good fortune, as all said, they found themselves in one of the gayest and most brilliant little capitals in Europe, and where all the Vanity Fair booths were laid out with the most tempting liveliness and splendour....There was a theatre where a miraculous Catalini was delighting all hearers: beautiful rides, all enlivened with martial splendour; a rare old city, with strange costumes and wonderful architecture, to delight the eyes of little Amelia, who had never before seen a foreign country, and fill her with charming surprises....

Every day during this happy time there was novelty and amusement for all parties. There was a church to see, or a picture-gallery—there was a ride, or an opera. The bands of the regiments were making music at all hours. The greatest folks of England walked in the Park—there was a perpetual military festival. George, taking out his wife to a new jaunt or junket every night, was quite pleased with himself as usual, and swore he was becoming quite a domestic character.—From "Vanity Fair," by William Makepeace Thackeray.

Suspending An Unfair Law

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

SOME C.C.F. leaders are bothered because the Drew Government has seen fit to suspend operations of the new 48-Hour-Week law for the duration. The Act was passed at the last session, was supposed to have become effective July 1. In Kingston a few days ago E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, termed the suspension "a monstrous breach of constitutional government" and in Toronto union leaders meeting under the auspices of the C.C.F. trade union committee claimed it was a "betrayal" of the workers of Ontario.

This is all utter rot, as the C.C.F. leaders know. Operation of the bill was suspended during wartime largely because it should never have been passed in wartime, was practically an insult to the thousands of Ontario workers who are ready and willing to work longer hours to get war work finished.

It was suspended too because it was unworkable and the cause of deep resentment in one of Ontario's most important war industries—that of farming. True the original intention was that the terms of the bill should not apply to agriculture—during wartime at least—but that very fact added to the resentment which farmers and farm workers felt. It was not going to make it any easier for hard-pressed farmers to hold their help and farm workers felt they were being discriminated against. There was some bitter talk about the bill at farm meetings.

The bill no doubt was passed at the instigation of union leaders and in the first instance was thoughtlessly accepted by the Government as a good piece of social legislation. It was to have affected practically all industry in the province and called for a 48 hour week, six days' work a week, and one week's holidays a year with pay. It has been suspended for all war industries, except for the holiday clause which stands. The whole trouble was that it did not fit into the wartime mood of a lot of workers—especially those unorganized, white collar workers—and farmers.

The average farmer in Ontario, especially on dairy farms, is working something like a 70-hour-week, and is at his wits' end to know how he is going to get the mighty job on hand done with the limited labour available. He is producing considerably more than before the war, with a third to a half less labour. He is doing one of the finest war jobs in Canada. Then along comes this 48-hour week for organized labour in war plants. The farmer found his help leaving, dissatisfied, pointing to better conditions in the factories. No wonder he grew a little mad and did some hard complaining.

It may have been good legislation—but not for wartime.

Siena

Siena, that fought so much in her great days, has been occupied by the American forces. Perhaps there is no other Italian city that bears so completely the seal of the Middle Ages. Yet its Roman origin is marked by its arms, which it shares with Rome. The Sienese claimed to the descendants of Senius, son of Remus. The she-wolf and her twins are everywhere in sight. But the narrow, high up-and-down streets are thoroughly medieval. They run at all angles and not long with turning. Think of that great semi-circular square, Il Campo, curving up from the high-towered Communal Palsce, encompassed with tall red brick houses. Through its midst runs a red brick pavement. About are little white stone pillars, beyond a little stretch of stone pavement. In their time Siena was famous for tournaments ,then for bullfights and afterward for buffalo races..

The Palio ((mantle) race was established in 1605 in honour of the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin, whose image is on the banner given to the winner. In its modern form, three times round the square with ten horsemen each riding bareback, it began in 1656. Each rider had a cruel whip not for his horse but for his competitors. All the riders wore metal helmets for protection. The excited horses and the savage riders have been a curious spectacle to great crowds every August.

Its palaces and public buildings, churches and cathedral, its school of paintings, and most of all its great memories of St. Catherine, make Siena one of the most profoundly interesting places in the world. It is the town of St. Bernardino, the popular preacher, and of the great humanist Pope, Aeneas Sylvius Piccolomini, Pius II. Its Fonte Branda flows in Dante's Hell. Let us hope that after the peace the Palio will be run again and the old costumes and the banners emplazoned with the Lion or the Goose be seen once more.—New York Times.

LONDON IS ROOMIER

Until Thursday's sudden burst of sirens, what had surprised the average individual most, and perhaps slightly disappointed him, was that the everyday routine of life had been so little changed by the invasion. Transportation, for instance, which everybody thought would be badly snarled up, turned out to be affected far less than worried travellers had feared. The Southern Railway has been bringing its mob of hurrying business people into London every morning as blandly as if it didn't also have an invasion on its hands. London itself, since D-Day, has seemed more normal than it had for months before. There's a lot more room on its pavements, for one thing, now that the uniforms, both British and American, have thinned out, and the effect of their departure upon the average citizen's ability to get about town is staggering. Civilians lifting a timid finger for a taxi are overwhelmed when two or three attentive cabbies race up, and they are unsettled by the novelty of being able to buy a meal or a seat in a cinema with ease.—From the London Letter of the New Yorker.

FLYING BOMB INVENTOR

The man mainly responsible for the development of the "robot bomb" is an Austrian professor, Herman Oberth, inconspicuous except for a small moustache.

Now in his 50's, Oberth was once the sound- and -scenic-effects man in charge of the use of fireworks and explosives for UFA films. Reportedly an anti-Nazi at one time, he has been working on flying bombs and rocket machines for the past seven years, under special orders from Hitler and Goering.

Two years before the war, Oberth called on Gen. Kesselring with a mass of blueprints and models. Kesselring, after witnessing some tests, submitted a report to Goering, with the result that Oberth was given the run of the Wehrmacht's scientific laboratories and a special panel of Nazi research workers, radio men, aeronautical engineers, and inventors were put at his disposal as consultants. Shortly thereafter European scientific circles began to hear of new experiments in the Oberth catapult-'plane technique.—Newsweek Magazine.

A Bible Message

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty....

Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will set him on high, because he hath known my name....

With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation. (Ps. 91: 1, 14, 16.)

What man is he that desireth life, and loveth many days, that he may see good? Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it. (Ps. 34: 12-14.)

My son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments: for length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee. (Prov. 3: 1, 2.)

"Advance No 2 and be recognized."

"Sorry—hic!—chum," came the reply. "If I advance—hic!—No. 3 will fall down."

Lakefield Village Tax Rate Reduced By Three Mills

LAKEFIELD, July 13 — (ENS) — Three mills were cut off the village tax rate at the Council session on Monday evening, reducing the levy from 45 to 42 mills.

The general rate for the village actually was reduced by 5.1 mills from 19.6 of 1943, but this was offset by a rise of 1 mill in the county rate and a 1 mill rise in the High school, the latter caused by a raise in the teachers' salaries, and the former by a 1 mill levy for Red Cross purposes. Both of these levies are outside the Council's jurisdiction.

Broken down the various levies are as follows: County rate, 8 mills; general rate, 14.5; debenture rate, 1.5; public library, 8; High school, 8.7; Public school, 8.5—total, 42.

It was also decided that next year the dates for payment of taxes will be May 15 and Sept. 15, with the assessing for next year to be done this fall.

Balance of the revaluation concerning homes in Wards 1 and 2 will be finished during the summer in time for the fall assessment.

Withers Resigns

S. G. Withers, son of Bert Withers, addressed the Council presenting his father's resignation from the garbage collection, and offered to take over the job himself, stating that he had been handling the job personally for the past few months and said he was now familiar with the village and complaints would be fewer. His offer was accepted.

He also proposed the Council place the payment of garbage collection on the tax bills, but the Council would not agree to this, at least for this year.

Chief Samis in his report for the month listed 7 charges, 2 for speeding and 5 for failing to stop at stop streets—total fines $22 and $19.50 costs.

An unemployment insurance bill of $159 covering village employees for the past several years was held up pending an investigation of the inclusion of several names that the Councillors did not feel should be included.

Property Commissioner Grant reported that some action must be taken towards the repairing of the Memorial Hall furnaces.

Reeve G. D. Scriver, Councillors G. Charlton, G. Graham, Reg. Doubt and W. C. Grant and Clerk E. A. Northey were present.

Accounts were passed as follows: W. J. Charlton, cement for streets, $7; Ed. Humpage, auditor, $125; Samis, first half June salary, $51.20; Thomas Chaplin, stamps, $3.00; Charles Hemsley, pipe for street signs, $8.64; Percy Hockaday, grading, $10.50; labor for streets, $28.80; H. Kitchen Is Destroyed When Coal Oil Stove Explodes

TRENTON, July 12 — (CP) — The kitchen of the residence of Arthur Ellis was gutted by fire last night when a coal oil stove exploded as it was being lighted.

Mrs. Ellis' sister, Mrs. H. MacPherson of Port Hope, who was visiting, attempted to light the stove. In a moment the stove exploded and the entire kitchen was in flames.

Mrs. MacPherson rushed Mrs. Ellis' two children, Barbara, age five and Harvey, four, and her son, Danny, 15 months, all playing in the kitchen, through the door into the yard and then rushed back for the Ellis' baby, Bobby, age 13 months, also in the kitchen, and succeeded in reaching safety with him.

In a few moments the entire kitchen was destroyed, but firemen, on the scene quickly, were able to save the rest of the residence.

Saints, Soldiers Battle To Overtime Tie

Soldiers and St. Peter's hurled home-run punches at each other for ten ininngs in their City League battle at Riverside Park last night and then had to call it a night with the score all knotted up at 12-12.

There were four homers in the high-scoring affair, First Huck Herrick of Soldiers pasted one with the bases loaded in the sixth inning to put the Training Centre ahead 11 to 7. Saints picked up a run in the seventh and then Jack Condon slapped a four master to deep left centre with two mates on the paths in the ninth to tie the game up at 11-11.

Al Courneya apparently won the tussle for the Saints in the first of the tenth with a homer to centre on a drive that bounded away from Pete Procyk but Tony McIlveen came up with one out in the Soldier half of the frame and slashed a home run to right centre to even things up again.

The game was then called on account of darkness and the rivals will have to settle that one next week.

It was a free-hitting exhibition with the lead changing hands frequently and the rival pitchers having a tough time. Big Earl Revoir was as wild as the scenery in the north country, on the mound for the Soldiers, walking no fewer than ten of the Saints and yielding thirteen hits while Bill Moorhead did not issue so many passes but was touched up for 18 hits.

Tony McIlveen had four hits for Soldiers and Huck Herrick drove in five runs. Len Hollingsworth and Al Courneya slapped three hits each of Revoir's delivery.

Saints rattled off three double plays for a season's record and Mike Conroy and Len Hollingsworth had feature plays in the outfield. Best Soldier defensive play was a running catch of a popper back of first and Ossie Anderson handled eight chances at short in fine style.

Saints Start Well

St. Peter's opened with three runs in the first. With one away Revoir walked both Hollingsworth and Conroy and after Pearson had popped up also passed Murphy. Hollingsworth stole home on a return throw to the pitcher. Courneya singled into left scoring Conroy and when Chambers missed the toss to second to head off Courneya, Murphy ran in.

Soldiers came back with four in the third. Anderson walked, filling the bases. Paris fouled to Pearson. McIlveen lifted a high one to Courneya which the shortstop dropped. The batter was out on the infield fly rule but Chambers scored on the miss. Procyk hit a slow ball into left for two bases, scoring Revoir and Anderson. Herrick's rap to short got away from Courneya and Procyk registered.

Saints scored three runs with two out in the first of the fifth to go ahead again. With two away Murphy walked, Courneya singled to right and both scored on Carlson's triple to left centre, Moorhead singled to left to score Carlson.

Training Centre came back with three in their half. McIlveen singled to short, Procyk fanned but Herrick doubled scoring McIlveen and Dunkerley singled to send Herrick in. Conroy made a sensational diving catch of Junkin's fly to left but when his throw to third got away Dunkerley scored, putting Soldiers ahead again 7 to 6.

The Ball Player's Dream

St. Peter's tied it up again with a run in the first of the sixth on Hollingsworth's single, passes to Pearson and Murphy and Junkin's error but Soldiers roared back with four in their half when Herrick realized the ball player's dream. Revoir, first up, got a life on Carlson's bad throw. Anderson bunted safely. Revoir flied to Hollingsworth. McIlven dropped a single into centre, filling the bases. Procyk forced Revoir at the plate on a tap to Moorhead. Then Herrick laced his circuit clout, driving three runs in ahead of him and the Soldiers were in front 11 to 7.

Saints got one back in the seventh on walks to Carlson and Levine and Hollingsworth's single and then tied the game in the first of the ninth. Moorhead opened the attack with a single to left. Levine singled over second and Condon drove a homer to deep left centre and knotting up the game. The next three went out in order.

With one out in the first of the tenth Courneya lined a drive to centre which took a bad hop away from Procyk and the batter circled the bases to put the Saints ahead 12 to 11 but Tony McIlveen slashed one between Hollingsworth and Levine for a circuit clout in the Soldier half to save the game for Military Training Centre.

TRACING ANCESTRY

Homing pigeon authorities say that the dove sent out from Noah's Ark probably was a rock dove, of the same species as the modern homing pigeon.

DOUBLE OR NOTHING—"Iron man" stunt of winning two baseball games in one day has been performed successfully by Richard (Dick) Barrett, Philadelphia righthander, who finished off a game with the Pirates begun May 21 and also twirled the regularly-scheduled game, winning both. Barrett won 10 games for the Phils last year.

Touchdown at Saipan.

Marine Lieut. Joe Sabasteanski, who played centre for Fordham in the 1942 sugar bowl game got his first combat experience at Saipan when he was called upon to help stem a threatened Japanese counter-attack after a week on the beach supervising unloading of supplies ...."I'd rather play six 60-minute football games on one day than go through another session of shelling like the one we had," he commented."....In the same vicinity were Cpl. Calvin (Preacher) Dorsett, ex-Cleveland pitcher, and Pte Jim Bivin, who used to hurl for the Pirates and Phillies....Before the landing they had pitched their respective marine teams to division championships. The morning after D-day at Saipan they went to work hauling supplies from the beaches to the front lines...."I've got a fox hole you can land a plane in." Bivin told a combat correspondent, Hy Hurwitz, former Boston close baseball writer. "It's 25 feet deep and, brother I've needed it where I've been." That ddn't refer to his experiences with the Phillies.

Note from Sgt. John Derr, former Greensboro, N.C., sports editor now in India: "Guess I'm having the most fun ever out here, although this hot weather has put a damper on my golf and tennis....We play after 6 p.m., usually about 14 holes. Last week I turned in my best card, an 80 on the par 74 course. And to think that back in Greensboro I never was able to break 90 and cussed many times about shooting 100."

Chinese Is Lucky Cops Daily Double

CALGARY, July 12—A Chinese storekeeper from the little town of Gibbons in Northern Alberta came to the Calgary races for the first time Wednesday afternoon, and collected $3,388.05, the largest daily double in prairie racing history.

The Chinese, Yet Yoo, had the double locked up after he purchased eight tickets on Thatcher, winner of the first race, and simply covered the board when eight went to the post in the second half. Yet Yoo was the lone punter to collect the huge double.

The big payoff was created by Man of Iron, the one-horse stable of the Edmonton liveryman, Alex Ireland. Just one week ago Owner-Trainer-Groom Ireland set sail for the Calgary Stampede racing. En route he stopped off at Rimbey, Alberta, for a two-day county fair, and raced Man of Iron to a sucessful victory to pick up shipping expenses. Arriving in the Foothills City he had some difficulty in finding a rider as the 10-year-old had shown nothing in recent years on major tracks. Finally, Johnny Kipling, recently discharged from the R.C.A.F. after two years' service, agreed to take the mount and brought Man of Iron home winner by half a length at odds of 46 to 1.

By FRED D. CRAIG

All roads will lead to Riverside Park tomorrow night when the famous Toronto Tip Tops, one of Canada's greatest softball machines will battle with an all-star Peterborough team playing behind the well-known Cam Ecclestone, loaned by Tip Tops to the Petes for this occasion. The game is for the benefit of Kinsmen's charities and the proceeds will all be turned over to that most worthy cause. Tip Tops are paying their own expenses so that the entire gate receipts can be presented to the Kinsmen's Club. The game is regarded as the outstanding sporting event of the summer and it would not be surprising if several thousand people turned out to see the battle. Tip Tops are a well-balanced outfit, strong offensively as well as in the field and they play heads-up ball all the time so that they will be tough opposition for the Peterborough selects. However the latter represent the cream of the local crop and aided by the great pitching of Ecclestone should give the formidable visitors an argument for the honors. It promises to be a brilliant exhibition of softball. In addition to the merit of the game itself and of the cause in whose aid it is being held there is the added attraction of ten valuable gate prizes to be drawn for.

* * * * * *

The visit of the Victory Aircraft softball teams to Peterborough on Saturday should provide local fans with two most interesting exhibitions as the Aircraft teams have a fine reputation and will likely prove tough opposition. Victory Aircraft girls will clash with the Peterborough Aircraft girls' team in the afternoon game which is scheduled to start at 2.30 o'clock and will be played at Riverside Park. The Victory outfit are strong in all departments and so are the Peterborough lasses who will meet them, with Norma Strickland slated to do the pitching for the homesters. Victory Aircraft's men's team will be seen in action at 6.30 o'clock with the Plazas as their opponents and that should be another fine exhbiition of softball. The calibre of the Plazas is well-known to local fans and as the Victory outfit comes with the reputation of being a hard-hitting, fast-fielding outfit the clash should be well worth a trip across the big bridge. Both teams will be at full strength for the tussle and it should be a fitting windup to a week that has been crammed full of good softball.

Replay Tie Game

Switchgear and Plazas are going to make another effort tonight to settle the City Softball League leadership tonight when they meet at Riverside Park in a re-play of Tuesday's game which ended in a 5-5 tie. Manager Murph Chambers' team will toss Red Stephenson, the Omemee southpaw back against the Plazas in an effort to end the argument by grabbing off tonight's game and thus finishing the regular schedule in first place. Plazas on the other hand need a win to tie up the race and force another game to decide which club finishes at the top of the heap. Tuesday night's game was an odd one in the way the scoring went. In the first 4½ innings Plazas scored all their five runs and then were through for the night. Switchgear on the other hand crowded all their scoring into the last 4½ innings and waited until the last of the ninth to tie it up. Tonight's clash should be another red-hot battle with Terry Woods or Dave Wilson on the mound against the smooth-working left-hander and both clubs pressing desperately for the win that means so much. It is real playoff ball from now on.

* * * * * *

After a blank night girls' softball will again occupy the stage at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight when Aircraft and Brintons will tie into each other in a game that should prove one of the most interesting contests in some time. There is keen rivalry between the two outfits and it would make it a perfect season for the Brintons to knock off the second-placers in tonight's argument. They are fielding their strongest possible team in an effort to take a fall out of the Aircrafters. The latter, of course, are equally anxious to win because they are right at the heels of the leading Westclox team now and do not want to hurt their chances by dropping a game to one of the other teams. So Aircraft will be pressing all the way for a win. Tomorrow night the Johnson Motors outfit will stack up against the Peterborough Lock and that should be a lively affair too. The Lock outfit won the last time out and they are hoping to pick up another win at the expense of the Outboard Marines tomorrow night.

Golf At Its Best

The biggest event of the local golfing season will bring one of the classiest fields of professional golfers ever seen in action here Saturday and Sunday when the Third Annual Kawartha Lakes Pro-Amateur Golf Tourney sponsored by the Kinsmen Club will be held at the Kawartha Club. One of the outstanding golfers of the continent, Bobby Cruickshanks of Richmond City, Va., will represent the United States in the professional end of the tourney and the best of the Canadian shot-makers, including Bobby Gray, holder of the Rivermeade Cup, the 1943 Millar Trophy winner and the present Kawartha champion, Jack Litler, Kingston, the 1943 Ontario open champion, Gordie Brydson, Toronto, Stan Horne, Montreal, Dick Borthwick, Toronto, Jules Huot, Royal Quebec Golf Club, and Kawartha's own Lex Robson will be here. Phil Farley, Ontario amateur champion will head-line the amateur division of the tourney. The pros will play 54 holes medal play for $150 first prize, playing 18 holes Saturday afternoon and 36 on Sunday while the amateurs will do all their playing Sunday with prizes for 18 and 36 holes. This is the big week-end of the year in local golf circles and a large gallery is expected to follow the stars both Saturday and Sunday.

Rumors that the world series games may eventually be played under the lights do not seem to have any substantial foundation. Two reasons why they should not be played at night should be apparent to everybody. In the first place the blue ribbon event of baseball has always been played to packed houses so that there would be no cause to shift the games until night and in the second October nights are often so cool that games played under the lights would be tough both on players and fans. When it gets to that season of the year even afternoon battles are sometimes played in comparatively cold weather. No, chums, it will be some time before the world series is an under-the-lights affair. However, there is every reason to suppose that more and more games during the regular season will be played at night. It has been found that better attendance can be counted on and after all it is the box office returns that count. Baseball is a business.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Soldiers and St. Peter's set two new season's records in last night's game....They hammered two home runs each for a total of four circuit clouts which is tops for the year in that department and the Saints ripped off three double-killings, another new mark for 1944....Names of Peterborough athletes continue to appear in the casualty columns....Major Archie Hamilton, reported wounded, is one of the city's best-known cricketers and formerly did a lot of boxing while Lieut. Don Diplock also wounded, used to star on the back division of the Collegiate football squad....Bobby Cruickshank, American golf star who is here for the Kawartha Lakes tourney, has long been a famous figure on the links. Twenty-one years ago he tied Bobby Jones in the American Open and lost in the playoffs....City League now has three tie games to play off but one of them will be taken care of tonight when Switchgear and Plazas meet....St. Peter's are in both the others, having deadlocked with both Soldiers and U.E.W.....They will all have to be settled too for they will have a bearing on the standing....Incidentally the Saints have played more close games than any club in the loop and haven't had much luck....In addition to the two tie games they have lost two or three others by one run....There was an argument last night over the scoring of a play in the first inning when Levine dropped a fly but recovered in time to force a runner out at second....Really of course there was nothing to argue about....The scoring rules are explicit. They say: "In event of a fielder dropping a fly but recovering in time to force a runner at another base he shall be exempted from an error."

"GERMANS EVEN FINED YOU FOR GIVING SOMEBODY A DIRTY LOOK" — You wouldn't think it but these 2 pictures of Margaret Bell Ryan dramatically encompass a ten-year span. A decade ago this "fair and fleet" Canadian girl began breaking national and foreign high-jumping records, some of which still stand. Now she is a riveter, bucker and fitter in the mammoth Boeing war plant at Vancouver, B.C., helping to make the Catalina patrol bombers which, from this plant and from Canadian Vickers, Montreal, stream for the vital task of patrolling the seas.

She Was Dominion's Best Girl High Jumper Now She Helps Make Planes To Scour Seas

"Fair and fleet" are the words for Margaret Bell Ryan. Before the war put sports in the background, she was constantly in the spotlight as Canada's premier feminine high-jumper. She started setting the mark for timber toppers in her junior high days and has been breaking records ever since. With Saskatoon's Ethel Catherwood she holds the Canadian senior record of 5' 3" and, in addition, her intermediate and senior high school, senior indoor high, open indoor and New Zealand record jumps still stand.

Vied With Best.

Her effortless scissors-jump has taken her to all parts of Canada and the world. In 1934 she went to London for the British Empire Games. Competing with the best, she captured third place in the high jump and three days later repeated this performance at the Womens World Games, open to the women of all countries.

Her next trip was to Berlin and the 1936 Olympic Games as British Columbia's only woman track and field star. She got a little weary of the many "verboten" signs in spotless Berlin. "They even fined you for giving someone a dirty look," she says.

Two years later she again represented Canada at the Empire Games in Australia, topping the high bar at 5' 2" to place fourth.

Mrs. F. Staunton's Rink Wins Tip Top Tailor Trophy

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP). — Bowling on the green is as British as roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, but about the only place in Canada where the game is in the big-time category is on the West Coast. Where the game never advances beyond the friendly little competition in other parts, on the coast it's of tournament calibre.

The British Columbia Lawn Bowling Association is holding its 22nd annual roll, or bowl if you prefer, from July 17 to 22, with entries from all over the Canadian and United States West. Teams from points as widely separated as Calgary, Edmonton, Kamloops, Nanaimo, Prince Rupert, Seattle, and California will compete in the event—said to be the biggest and best of its ilk on the continent.

Just to show it isn't a young man's game either, the Oakland, Cal., rink grosses a total age of 321 years. The bowlers are 78, 87, 75, and 81, but still mighty keen on the hooks and curves.

Here and there:

Just to show that night sports really are the game of the future, J. P. Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram points out the great success of the harness racing arclight meet at Roosevelt Track in the U. S. Though followers of the trotters and pacers are by no means a very numerous company, an average of more than 5,000 nightly paid their way into the track for the 38-night meet....Phil Palmer, only Vancouver professional boxer now in the active ranks, is making a comeback in U.S. rings after being honorably discharged from the Navy....Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara reports that Tommy Gorman is cooking up plans for a race meet at Connaught Park, deserted these past few years because of the lack of entries....New Westminster lacrosse Salmonbellies reportedly aren't getting much attention from the fickle fans, who evidently are tired of seeing champions so much.

Death Toll 163

HARTFORD, Conn., July 13 (AP)—The Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus was put in the hands of receiver yesterday by order of Judge John H. King of the Superior Court. Judge King named the receiver on application of Attorney Julius B. Schatz, counsel for a number of persons who have brought suit against the circus as a result of injuries in the fire which last Thursday swept the main tent and resulted in a death toll of 163.

Kawartha Event Attracts Top Golfers

TORONTO, July 13 (CP) — Ontario's biggest golfing week of the season opens Saturday at Peterborough's Kawartha Lakes Club with a two-day 54-hole invitation tournament and winds up July 22 with the Millar trophy final at Toronto's Suburban Islington Club.

In between is sandwiched the Ontario Open, next Tuesday.

The Kawartha Lakes Event and the Provincial Open, both medal play affairs, will serve as tune-ups for the featured Millar trophy three-day match play tournament for the Eastern Canada professional title.

Prize money in the Millar trophy event is expected to be close to the $2,000-mark and Bob Gray, last year's winner in a memorable match with Lex Robson of Kawartha Lakes which wound up in a rain storm, will defend his title.

Three Quebec professionals are expected for the Millar trophy and Ontario Open events although their entries have not yet been received. They are Gerry Proulx, Laval Sur Le Lec; Jules Huot, Royal Quebec; and Stan Horne, Montreal Islesmere.

Toronto's veteran Rosedale pro, Jimmy Johnstone, who won the first Millar trophy event in 1928 will be back for his 17th trophy challenge. He also won in 1933. Bobby Burns, pro at suburban Weston, pushed into championship contention this week with a practice round of 66 on his par 70 home course.

Jack Littler of Kingston's Cataraqui Club, will be here to defend his Ontario Open title next Tuesday. This event is open to all professionals and to amateurs with handicaps of 12 or under. It is a 36-hole affair and the pros will compete for $325 prize money.

Golfers Are Enduring Breed

TORONTO, July 13 — That the roads of golf are long, long roads, and that they lead often to odd adventures in nostalgia, and that the breed of the travellers who stick to those roads is an enduring breed . . . all those bits of fact and fancy are bound up in one twosome today in the 11th annual professional-senior tournament of the Illinois Seniors' Golf Association at Skokie.

The twosome consists of Charles Evans Jr., and a little, blond erstwhile professional player, Seaman 1st Class Errie Ball.

In the years before the other war, when Britain was peopled with giants of golf, one of the greatest of them was John Ball Jr. Eight times, from 1888 to 1912, he won the British Amateur championship. In 1890 he won both the British Amateur and the British Open. Only three amateurs have ever combined the two national titles in a single year, either in Great Britain or this country. Ball was the first. Chick Evans, scoring his immortal double of 1916 in the United States title play, was the second. Bobby Jones was the third.

So today, Chick, now 54, will play a round of golf with the grandson of the man who set the style. John Ball was grandpa to Errie.

If that seems a simple little coincidence, it is more than that to Evans, because in the vast storehouse of his golf memories there are few brighter items than the first round of golf he played with John Ball.

Baksi Climbs In List; Next To Louis

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP).—Joe Baksi, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Ike Williams of Trenton, N.J., advanced to the select class among the heavyweights and lightweights, respectively, in new quarterly ratings announced to-day by the National Boxing Association.

Baksi, who recently defeated Lee Savold, now in the maritime service, took over the top position in the "outstanding boxers" listings, ranking behind champion Joe Louis and challengers Billy Conn and Jim Bivins. Williams moved up to the "logical contender" category in the lightweight division.

President Abe J. Greene of the N.B.A. pointed out there were new major changes in the quarterly ratings because most of the "name" fighters now are in the armed forces.

Greene said the N.B.A. intends to stick to its policy of "freezing" the titles of champions now in the military garb and has no intention of according "duration" recognition to civilian pugilists.

Among the titleholders now in the armed forces are Louis in the Army, light heavyweight Gus Lesnevich of the Coastguard, middleweight Tony Zela and welterweight Freddie Cochrane of the Navy, and featherweight Sal Bartola of the maritime service.

English Boxers.

Boxers from outside the United States were accorded more recognition than usual. Freddie Mills of England was given the third spot among the light heavyweights and English boxers made a clean sweep in the flyweight class.

The ratings as of July 7 include: Heavyweight: Champion, Joe Louis, Army; logical contenders, Billy Conn and Jimmy Bivins, both in the Army.

Light heavyweight: Champion, Gus Lesnevich, Coastguard; logical contenders, Lloyd Marshall, Cleveland, and Freddie Mills, England.

Midleweights: Champion, Tony Zale, Navy; logical contenders, George Abrams, Navy; Holman Williams, Detroit; Jake La Motta, New York; Tony Martin, Coastguard; Joe Carter, New York, and Jose Basora, Puerto Rico.

Lightweights: Champion, Juan Zurita, Mexico; logical contenders, Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia; Beau Jack, Army; and Ike Williams, Trenton.

Featherweights: Champion, Sal Bartola, Maritime service; logical contenders, Willie Pep, Connecticut, and Chalky Wright, Los Angeles.

Bantamweights: Manuel Ortiz, California logical contenders, Rush Dalma, Philippines; Tony Olivera, California.

Flyweights: Champion, Jackie Patterson, England; logical contenders, Peter Kane, Alex Murphy, Norman Lewis, and George Parks, all of England.

During Gary Cooper's visit to Chicago the autographiends were after him in full cry, one rabid admirer going so far as to up-end her infant-in-arms and asking Gary to write his name on the baby's didy—which he did. . . Bing Crosby's four sons will make their screen bow in "Out of this World," which stars Eddie Bracken. The kids will sing and dance. . . Those cowboy sagas aimed at juvenile trade have one omission that might have escaped your attention—they never fade out on a kiss. That's sissy stuff in the eyes of small fry. Right now there's quite a dispute on as to whether Roy Rogers ought to kiss the heroine in his next film. . . During the War Bond drive in the USA Victor Jory was induced to promise a kiss to each member of a women's organization that bought a $100 bond. Jory had to kiss 100 of them. They ought to give him a leather medal for service beyond the call of duty.

Hollywood cunning: In "The Thin Man Goes Home" a black cat follows at the heel of William Powell throughout the picture. There is nothing remarkably intelligent about the ebony puss. Powell rubbed tuna fish on the back of his shoes and the cat stuck to him like grease to a blanket. . . Since the Hays Office rules on the length of a kiss George Marshall, director of "Incendiary Blonde," instructed Betty Hutton to "keep the kisses short and make 'em sizzle". . . Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The major leagues agreed to unlimited night games during the week at their mid-summer conference at Pittsburgh but, in the post-meeting discussion yesterday, there was evident hesitation on the suggestion the world series could be played at night. President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cards spoke up with, "why think about night world-series game if you can pack the park in the daytime."

Regarding pennant prospects, the diamond moguls rated the Cards a "shoo-in" while Jimmy Conzelman of the St. Louis Browns argued his club had a good chance to break the team's record of never having won an American League championship.

After signing again as playing coach of the Indianapolis team in the American Hockey League yesterday, Johnny Sorrell said the capitals would again train with the N.H.L. Detroit Red Wings at Windsor, Ont., next fall.

No Racing.

General Manager W. F. Tunney announced at Los Angeles yesterday there would be no racing this season at the Del Mar Turf Club, owned by Bing Crosby. Tunney said the U.S. War Department did not favor a resumption of racing at the track.

Dick Wakefield, starry outfielder who was recently discharged from the U.S. navy, has returned to the Detroit Tigers and will resume play in the left field spot in to-night's game against Chicago White Sox.

Honors were spread in the first sports day for the airmen at Centralia, Ont., yesterday, with Ernie Goble former Toronto police constable back from three years' service overseas accounting for two events, the discus and shot put.

Newark Bears Showing Zip

By The Associated Press

Aided by five newcomers, the Newark Bears promise to maintain their record of not having finished in the International League Second Division since 1930.

Three of them, Bill Drescher Steve Kuk and Roy Zimmerman were instrumental in the Bears 7-0 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs last night. Drescher poled his third home run of the year, together with two singles, while Kuk and Zimmerman each struck triples.

The other two are Nick Rhabe and Floyd Bevens. Bevens, a pitcher has won three in succession and allowed only three runs in his last 27 innings. Rhabe chipped in last night with two hits and a run batted in.

Jersey City Giants stretched their League lead to one and a half games by defeating Baltimore Orioles, 11-3. Red Treadway spear-headed the Jersey 18 hit atack with four for six.

Lefty Kuipers shut out the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-0 in the first game, but the Leafs came back and captured the second, 5-4, to split a twin bill with the Rochester Red Wings.

The exciting second game, in which the Wings were shut out for eight innings by Al Jarlett saw them rally for four runs in the ninth to tie the score. However, in the last of the ninth Tommy Astbury led off with a single and scored the winning run as Harry Davis trippled him home. Ham Jordan, who relieved Jarlett, got credit for the win.

LONDON, July 13—(CP). — A third German secret weapon described as "the combat media of the German Navy" was mentioned by Dr. Rudolph Semler in a German transocean agency report last night. Semler said technical details were prohibited by censorship.

All-Star Game Still The Topic

By The Associated Press

With the three-day vacation over, the Major League swings back into the second half of the season today as the 14 clubs are summoning their second wind in determined efforts to overhaul the high flying Cardinals and Browns of St. Louis.

However, the All-Star game last Tuesday night and the interesting highlights emanating from it are still the main topic of discussion among the baseball folk.

Naturally, the National Leaguers are happy over their fourth victory in 12 games, but they are looking ahead to the fall with some misgivings, for after each of the other three victories, the older circuit lost the World's Series. The New York Yankees defeated their inter-borough rivals, the Giants, in 1936, duplicated over the Chicago Cubs in '38, and won again from the Cincinnati Reds in '40.

All four National League victories have come with the Frickmen serving as hosts to the American Leaguers. It also marked the first time the American League was the first to score, yet lose the game.

The 7-1 score represented the widest margin between the two teams since the game's inaugural in '33.

Reception Centre

TORONTO, July 13—(CP)— The Toronto Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society formally opened a reception centre, to be used in welcoming returning servicemen and British war brides, at Union Station here yesterday.

Civic Holiday Set For Aug. 7

By The Canadian Press.

Vast majority of cities and towns in Ontario already have decided to celebrate Civic Holiday as usual this year—on the first Monday in August—August 7.

A province-wide Canadian Press survey reveals that Ottawa, London, Sarnia, Galt and Welland Councils have not yet made any official recommendation in connection with the usual holiday, but the day officially has been declared a holiday in most other municipalities.

In the eastern part of the province holiday observance will be official in Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston, Peterborough, and Belleville, while in the north Timmins, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and North Bay will take the day off. Port Arthur and Fort William will do the same.

In the Niagara district officials of Niagara Falls and St. Catharines have decided upon the usual holiday as have Councils in the Western Ontario municipalities of Woodstock, Brantford, Kitchener, Waterloo, St. Thomas and Stratford.

The Civic Holiday custom was originated in Toronto 75 years ago —25 years before Labor Day was founded. The idea has spread to some centres in the West, though the Maritimes, Quebec and British Columbia hold no such observance.

Hastings W.A. Raises $125 At Annual Bazaar

HASTINGS, July 13—(ENS)—The ladies of Trinity United Church held their annual bazaar on Saturday in the Fleming block. They had an abundance of lovely home-made cookies.

Mrs. Fox, the president, assisted by Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Wray and Miss Mae Huycke were in charge of the selling.

Beautiful quilts, pillow cases, luncheon clothes, aprons and many more things were on display.

The ladies were well pleased when they realized by evening they had $125.

Bride and Groom Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Porter (nee Evelyn Moore) recently married were guests of honor at a dancing party Monday evening in Mr. Joseph Bolton's dance hall, Hastings.

American Delegation Wants Final Word From Russia

BRETTON WOODS, N.H., July 12 T (AP). — The American delegation to the United Nations monetary conference has served a virtual ultimatum on Soviet Union representatives demanding a final answer on the all-important question of quotas to a proposed multi-billion dollar currency stabilization fund.

This was learned yesterday from an unimpeachable conference source who added that the Russian group indicated a reply from Moscow might be expected by nightfall. He said he was "quite hopeful" the answer would be favorable.

Russia is known to be seeking a quota larger than $1,000,000,000 originally asigned to her in a tentative draft of the stabilization fund proposal and at the same time to be demanding credit for her war-devastated areas. The credit would be in the form of a gold contribution smaller than that required of other nations.

The United States delegation reportedly agreed to hike the Russian quota figure to $1,200,000,000, with the understanding that she put up one-fourth of that amount in gold or 10 per cent of her gold holdings, whichever was the smaller, or she could accept the smaller quota and thereby reduce her gold contribution proportionately under the formula that would apply to all participants.

The Russians, it was reported, have taken the stand that they had obtained pre-conference promises from the Americans for the special war credits, but this was to have been the result of a misunderstanding, possibly because of language difficulties.

It was understood that either Premier Stalin or Foreign Minister Molotov would have to make the final decision.

W.I. Branch Meets Names Treasurer

HAVELOCK, July 13 — (ENS) — Mrs. Joseph Hoffman was appointed treasurer for the Women's Institute Branch for the remainder of the year, after the resignation of Mrs. C. Price, who is moving away shortly. The Pres. Mrs. R. Jones presided. The programs for the year were distributed by the Secretary. An acknowledgement was received from the Department for the cash donation for the Jam Fund, and which stated the name of our Branch and the Sec. name were printed of the labels on jam containers, and in all probability, would be acknowledged by the recipient in England.

An outline for a Historical Research program was given and detailed instructions for the making of a Lord Tweedsmuir Scrap Book. The sick convener, Mrs. A. McMullen reported a box of fruit sent to a lady who is confined to bed, and the wheel-chair was loaned to a member, in need of same. Two dollars was received for rental of dishes. The report of the cemetery fund showed steady progress. A letter of condolescence is to be sent to the family of the late Mrs. J. R. Bedford.

Mrs. William Woodbeck was the program convener. A contest on "Articles not in use fifty years ago" was won by Mrs. R. Jones. An interesting "vehicle" guessing contest was all correctly guessed by Mrs. F. L. McKenzie. A bountiful pot-luck supper was served at five o'clock.

Homesickness Haunts Soldiers Reverie Brings Memories Galore

(Homesickness is not confined to any one group. But all soldiers suffer from it, and from the following story you can get a rough idea of what passes through the mind of young Canadians tossed by war into many parts of the world. The author knows: he was in the Army himself before being released to become a war correspondent in Italy.)

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, July 12 (CP). — You realized suddenly and were surprised that you were in the toils of a gnawing, possessive nostalgia. Just one, you were thinking. If you could have just one, this singular symptom of a transient homesickness would go away and you would be content again. Just one of those elegant doughnuts ma used to make and the world would be good again.

Doughnuts, you thought. But why them? Why in hell doughnuts when there were so many other things that had faded into a past of digestive glory? But your subconscious had picked its ground and the thoughts were good, but taunting.

Things They Miss.

And now you wallowed on, knee deep in awakened nostalgia.

What else did you miss after two years away from Canada? Hockey, you thought. The shriek of the referee's whistle The twisting, rampant tempo of the game. The rotated reaction of the crowd, the bias, the protests, the laughs.

Politics, you thought, and were surprised. Politics. The village halls and city auditoriums where the parties marshalled their thorniest orators and turned them loose on a high tide of abuse.

You thought of Italy and other words that had seemed indistinct and sometimes suspect. Words like standard-of-living and peasants and exploitation and democracy, began to stand for something that now at least had boundaries and frontiers.

Politics. The soldiers would go home with a new interest in the word.

The Lovely Things

Winter. The Canadian winter and the summer that followed and filled the trees with the wonder of the Maple Leaf. Winter and the swirling snow and the cold you could feel in your bones even after two years. Winter and hockey and skiing and skating and ice on the lakes and marshes.

Your nostalgia surged along the whole gamut of Canadian goodness. Movies and dances and the dash to an inevitably crowded restaurant after. Saturday night in a Maritime village. Gossip and intrigue and newspaper headlines about something that wasn't based on the blood of men.

You thought in quick succession of Fords and Chevrolets and, timidly, Packards; of new blue suits and dresses for the wife and of your daughter growing up, of beefsteak and apple pie and ice cream.

And doughnuts. Ah, doughnuts. And Ma to cook them.

HEARS FROM SON

Two Wounded Veterans Fined For Seranading Reserve Unit

Two wounded veterans of the present war were fined in police court this morning on a charge of having interfered with a drill of the 4th Reserve Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery Wednesday night, to which they pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. A. Gee.

The two returned men were Ora Phillip Quackenbush, 31, Havelock, a former member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who was wounded in an air raid in England in 1942, and his brother, Pte. David Quackenbush, 26, wounded at Ortona while fighting with the 8th Army in Italy and at present on furlough after returning from overseas less than two weeks ago.

Provost Sergt. A. McClure of the 4th Battery testified that while the unit was drilling on the square in front of the armouries Wednesday night the Quackenbush Brothers walked along Murray street past the parade repeating the orders as they were given during the drill and repeatedly calling the soldiers on parade "Zombies." The witness said that one of the men had been drinking considerably and the other was not so bad.

Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., brought out from the witness that the reserve battery was composed for the most part of men under the military age or unfit for active service.

"They are volunteers"? asked the acting Crown Attorney, and the witness answered in the affirmative.

Considerable Trouble

Major V. M. Eastwood of the Prince of Wales Rangers, Reserve, told the court that there had been considerable trouble for some time with persons interfering with drills.

"There seems to be a confusion in the minds of some people between the reserve army and the Zombies" said Major Eastwood. "The reserve army is mostly made up of men under military age or unfit, some of them veterans of the last war."

"What are the Zombies?" asked Magistrate Gee.

"Zombi is an African term" explained Major Eastwood "meaning a man without a soul. It is applied to men called up under the Military Service Act who refuse to go active."

"We had some drinks and thought they were Zombies" Ora Quackenbush explailned.

"I gather that you have no use for the Zombies" said Magistrate Gee.

"I certainly have not" said the elder brother.

"Neither have I" declared Pte. David Quackenbush.

Mr. Kerr pointed out that the members of the reserve battery were wearing the King's Uniform and that should be respected at all times.

Magistrate Gee fined Ora Quackenbush $10 and $2.50 costs and his brother $5 and $2.50 costs.

Major Eastwood told the court that recently a drill of his unit had been interrupted by soldiers in uniform who were Zombies themselves. They had been taken under custody and later turned over to military police.

New Life Is Put Into Grain Crop

Rain on Wednesday afternoon brought both agricultural and physical relief throughout the district after almost three weeks of dry and hot weather. At any rate it was ideal haying weather, and most of that fodder crop has been packed away into the barns.

Official guage showed only 13/100 of an inch, and although farmers would have been gratified if it had been nearer the half inch some of them this morning saiad the rain was satisfactory for the present. It will put new life into the grain crops that are now turning color, wheat and oats and some barley. Corn will be revived and the victory gardeners' potatoes should be refreshed, and the little ones should take on size.

In some places yesterday afternoon the accompanying wind tossed corn and wheat fields out of their ordinary stands, but they may recover quickly, and lodging is not likely to be serious.

Liberals Meet Tuesday, July 18

The annual meeting of the Liberal Association in West Peterborough will be held Tuesday, July 18 at 8:30 p.m. in Paragon Hall, T. J. Carley, K.C., informed the Examiner today. Its purpose is chiefly for the election of officers and discussion of business arising out of the meeting, and it is expected that Walter Thompson, newly elected president of the provincial Liberal Association, may be here, although definite information has not yet been received.

Lieut. Don Weese Writes From Italy

Lieut. Don Weese, of the Examiner's advertising staff, who is in Italy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment sends some interesting clippings from the two army papers "Maple Leaf" and "Red Patch," printed for the Canadian soldiers with the 8th Army.

The 'Red Patch" article described how Lieut. Weese's mortar crew laid down a deadly barrage and how Sergt. J. L. Down and Corp. F. D. Woods had the unique experience of being able to actually view the destruction they were causing The mortar crew had to move fast to catch a German platoon in the opening and the two non-commissioned officers were eye witnesses of what happened when the barrage landed.

Lieut. Weese also sent along some fine photographs of Mount Vesuvius in eruption.

Moses Grozelle Is Fatally Injured

LINDSAY, July 13—Moses Grozelle, 83, who was fatally injured in a traffic accident on Queen street, Monday afternoon, was the father of Mrs. Frank Guerin, Sutherland street, Peterborough. He was hit by a car as he started to cross the street, and died of his injuries five hours later. Dr. W. G. Collison, coroner, decided to hold an inquest Friday.

Port Hope Plans New Band Stand

Citizens in Port Hope have taken the first step towards ultimate erection of a shell band stand, similar to those splendid sounding boards in Oshawa and Cobourg. And it transpires that the bandmaster of the Port Hope band is none other than Fred H. W. Brooks, well known throughout the district and including Peterborough as secretary and inspector of the Central Ontario Division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

Port Hope has a citizens' band. Its concert Tuesday night produced $20.25 for the band shell fund. Much the same idea was proposed here by Fred Hope when he was a member of the council, but the distractions of the war left scant attention for the luxury of a big shell stand, and possibly a quality of music deserving such an investment.

At any rate his friends here will be interesed in the fact that Fred Brooks is also a musician and band conductor, and from the president of the Industrial Accidents Prevention Association, H. A. Cranfield, at C.G.E. this morning, it was learned that Mr. Brooks is going to Stratford to attend the convention of the Canadian Bandmasters Association opening Friday. One hundred delegates and guests are expected.

Major Hamilton, Cpl. Clarke Are Wounded

Two members of the S.D. & G. Highlanders, Major Archie Hamilton, second-in-command, and Corp. Sam Clarke, have both been wounded in recent actions on the Normandy fighting front. Telegrams arriving in the city yesterday from the National Defence Department state that the date of the wounding of neither man is yet available. No information regarding the nature of extent of Major Hamilton's wounds has been received, but Corp. Clarke is said to be "severely injured," suffering lacerations of the right side of the face, ear and skull.

Major Hamilton, who is 34 years of age and the son of Mrs. Miles Hamilton of Toronto and the late Mr. Hamilton, has been active in Army circles for some years, being a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers before the war and a lieutenant in that regiment at the time of his going active with the Highlanders. He was formerly employed at G. Whitaker's, where a brother, Samuel R. Hamilton, is working at the present time.

Father of Three

Well-known in the city, Cpl. Clarke is the husband of Mrs. Flora Clarke, 249 Simcoe street, and the father of a boy aged 10, and two daughters, 9 and 7. Almost since the time he first came to Canada from Ireland 15 years ago, he had been employed as a bell-hop at the Empress Hotel prior to his enlistment with the Highlanders. Only this week Mrs. Clarke received several letters from her husband, in which he good-humouredly gives fervent expression to his hope that relief would soon be coming, and states that he has been in the front lines for three straight weeks and has gone as long as 72 hours without any sleep.

"What I have seen of the French countryside is very much like that of England," Cpl. Clarke wrote home from embattled Normandy. "But in any case," he added, "you can give me the good old Peterborough scenery any time."

Cpl. Clarke, whose mother lives in Belfast, Ireland, has a brother in the British Army who has been a prisoner of war in Germany for nearly two years. Another brother was killed in an air raid over Northern Ireland at Easter time, 1942, and two other brothers are in service with the Royal Navy.

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

JULY 13, 1940.—Britain called up 32-year-old men bringing total callups to more than 3,300,000. Twelve German air raiders destroyed over United Kingdom. Royal Air Force bombed El Aden, El Gubbi and Bardia in eastern Libya.

REPORTED WOUNDED—Major James Morley and Lieut. Donald Diplock both serving with British Army, who have been reported wounded in France. Both were officers in the Prince of Wales Rangers and were on active service in Canada when they volunteered early this year to join British Army units.

Two Young Officers Serving With British Army Are Wounded

The wounding in action on the same day, July 6, of two Peterborough Army officers, Major James Morley ann Lieut. Donald Diplock, both in service with the British Army, was received by their families Wednesday, though information reaching the city has not revealed the nature or seriousness of their wounds. Major Morley has been with the Duke of Wellington Regimen, while Lieut. Diplock is attached to a Welsh unit.

Both men volunteered for service with the British Army and sailed for England together, arriving there on May 10. Lieut. Diplock landed in France on June 25. Two other Peterborough officers, Lieut. Philip H. Turner and Capt. Gerald F. McKinnon were also in the group that went as reinforcements on loan to the British Army.

Lieut. Diplock, an honor graduate of the Collegiate Institute and of McGill University, where he took his C. O. T. C., won his commission with the Prince of Wales Rangers in 1940, and after being turned down twice was accepted for Active Army service in October, 1942. He was stationed at Farnham, Quebec. Lieut. Diplock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Diplock, 512 Weller street, and his wife, Mrs. Barbara Diplock, lives at 286 Hunter street. He has one brother in the R. C. A. F.

Major Morley, another Rangers officer, is one of the men who went overseas with the Prince of Wales Rangers and he took his training on the West Coast. His wife, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Young, 141 Rubidge street and makes her home at 281-A Rubidge, received a letter from her husband in France only a short time ago. Major Morley was formerly employed at the C. G. E., where he served his apprenticeship as a draughtsman and was a foreman in the Meter Department.

With The Tourists

By DON McGIBBON

"Regardless of what anyone says about the Canadian system of liquor rationing, I think it's really a very wise plan, and it tends to restrain people from the free and easy ways of most Americans with regard to this", said Vernon Sider, Niagara Falls, N.Y., who arrived in Peterborough this morning.

After an afternoon of shopping in the city, Mr. and Mrs. Sider will head for Crowe Lake, near Marmora to holiday for more than two weeks. It's the third time here for both, and they said although last year the fishing was rather poor for them, from what they've heard from returning turists, they're going to have a very successful vacation, as far as the fishing is concerned. Mr. Sider pointed out the best advertising agency in the world, satisfied customers, is in operation in his part of the States, and this district never needs to be worried over lack of tourists.

Their grandaughter Caroline is also here and expects to get "a good tan, plenty of swimming, and lots of fun" before going home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diederich, who were interviewed by this column some time ago, were in Peterborough this morning, on route home to Lyndurst, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland.

With a perfect holiday behind them, marred only by a fishhook that became lodged in Mr. Diederich's hand, they promised they'd be back next year and would certainly tell people in their part of the country, about the grand fishing they enjoyed at Young's Point. While holidaying here, the couple stayed at Lakeview House.

Staying at McCracken's Landing, Stoney Lake, Mr. and Mrs. B. Dunford and baby of Windsor, and Mr. A. Dunford, Detroit, Mich., were in Peterborough today, catching up on some shopping.

Mrs. R. Wassen, Lakefield, sister of A. Dunord, is visiting with the party while in this district.

With five or six trips to his credit, B. Dunford says he intends to come here every year.

"The swimming is excellent, the meals are delightful, and the fishing's grand",—that's the way Mr. Dunford puts it.

A. Dunford, of Detroit, thinks there's something marvellous about the air in these parts, as it's improved his appetite 100 per cent., in the week or so he's been here.

The only feature of Peterborough that differs with an American city of the same size, is, according to Mr. Dunford, that you can buy things here for about half the price, and there's more things to buy.

The party has many friends and relatives living near Stoney Lake, and so far have only had the chance to visit Mrs. A. Lefave, who has a cottage at McCracken's Landing. Mrs. Lefave is an aunt of Mr. B. Dunford.

Another Aunt living up that way, is Mrs. G. Crowe who has a cottage on an island on Stoney Lake. They intend to visit Mrs. Crowe soon.

More than 1300 American tourists have applied for tourists food ration coupons, since July 1, the local Ration Administration Office said today. The Office pointed out that only those tourists who have private residences here, or were staying at hotels or boarding homes, have applied here. They said many others had probably been taken care of at other offices in this district, and also at the ration office in the City Building. The Administration Office reported the tourists think our ration regulations are much easier than those in the United States, and workers said the Americans were very courteous and pleasant when applying.

Large Black Bass Caught In Chemong

A 5½-pound large mouth black bass, just about the biggest reported in the Kawarthas this season, was caught this morning in Chemong Lake by Elmer Harron, 172 Hunter street.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Harron was fishing in the eastern section of Chemong Lake, toward the Curve Lake reserve, when this big fellow grabbed his hooks.

"It bent my steel rod double, and I mean a real and permanent bend," Mr. Harron told the Examiner. "I knew it no ordinary catch and I didn't waste any time on him. He was in the boat in three or four minutes."

Mr. and Mrs. Harron are spending a holiday at Chemong Lake, and were highly rewarded on their outing in this morning's tempered sunshine.

Y's Men's Club Carnival Friday

The band of the 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, will lead off the start of the Y's Men's Club Carnival Friday night, with a parade forming at the Armouries at 8 o'clock and marching across the river to Riverside Park. There it will give a half-hour concert as the two-day carnival of the club, in aid of its Boys' Camp and Boys' Work program and World Service Outlook program gets underway.

The big event of the carnival will be the draw for the Hudson seal fur coat on Saturday evening at 11:15 p.m. Several other prizes, including a coffee table, pair of blankets, and bamboo fishing rod, will be the prizes drawn for on Friday night.

The 10 cent bingo game should prove a major attraction to carnival visitors, with really beautiful prizes the rewards of the lucky winners. There will also be many other games and a snack bar selling refreshments.

Good Neighbors Near $1,000 For War Victims

A thousand dollars is a real lot of money, particularly when it has all been made up of quarters and nickels, and that one group of a relatively few ladies should have raised close to such an amount by coins of these two denominations speaks quite highly of the zeal they have exercised, for it has all been on behalf of a really worthy cause.

For a period of about two and a half years, the Good Neighbor Group headed by Mrs. P. Kitchen and Mrs. W. Townsley living beside each other on Ware street, have been holding house parties at regular intervals to which the fee each paid for an afternoon or evening of euchre games amounted to 25 cents, and in addition to which on most occasions a small draw at 5 cents a ticket was held for a prize donated for the occasion.

There is nothing spectacular about this, except that the wonderful results obtained testify to a loyalty and devotion to a cause on behalf of other people that is most commendable, and all those who have been associated with these two ladies in this splendid achievement on behalf of the sufferers from enemy bombs dropped from the skies over Britain, have every reason to feel very gratified at the results obtained.

To-day another $42.00 is credited in their name, the proceeds of five parties which were held in the homes of Mrs. Waterman on Rubidge St., Mrs. Head on Olive Ave., Mrs. Townsley on Ware St., Mrs. Sproule on Morrow Street and Mrs. Kitchen on Ware Street, each of whom render an extra service in this manner, and as the cycle goes around one can notice that former parties have been held in each of their homes on former occasions for the same purpose.

They are now reaching within striking distance of crossing the thousand dollar mark, their latest gift making a total of $972.06 that has come to the fund through their efforts, and it would seem on the grounds of their past record that the four figure mark will be chalked in the very near future.

Crawfords Grove Helper

Beautiful flowers have always been used as messengers of goodwill to the sick and distressed, and in the case of William A. Taylor of Crawfords Grove, they have through him made the means of giving a helping hand to the fund for at least the past three seasons.

For the second time this summer, a contribution from the source has now appeared with the gift of $3 listed in his name to-day, showing that he too is maintaining an interest in the welfare of people who at the moment are still living in the same type of unfortunate circumstances as existed when he first began to give help in this manner.

Car Drivers Fined Following Mishap

Two motorists were fined $10 and costs each in police court this morning when they pleaded guilty to charges of careless driving as the result of a recent accident on Highway 7.

The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock.

Thos. Parker, 13, Norwood, was one of the drivers and Percy Johnston, Indian River was the other.

Constable Grayling said that Parker had come out of a side road carelessly and had crossed over to the wrong side of the highway as another car came along and there was a collision. Johnston was the driver of the second vehicle and the witness said that the accused had no brakes and that his car did not stop until it had gone a considerable distance from the point of impact.

Everett Lee, 27, Dummer township, pleaded guilty to not reporting an accident and he also was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Constable Grayling said that Lee had been driving his car on a narrow road and had struck a horse and wagon. The animal was so badly injured that it had to be destroyed.

Milkweed Crop Appears To Be Failure

Cultivation of milkweed on farms in the Peterborough district for projected use in the manufacture of synthetic rubber appears to be generally disappointing, even to the extent that some of the fields which were artificially sown last year are being recommended for abandonment.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, told the Examiner today that he had visited the plantations during the last few weeks "and about ninety per cent of them seem to be a mess".

Farms in the Peterborough area were selected last year for this experiment, the first time milkweed cultivation was undertaken in Canada, because the soil seemed most suitable as indicated by tests and by the fact that the weed flourished in its propagation by nature. Several departments of the Dominion government combined in the arrangements which were offered to farmers for their co-operation, and nearly five hundred acres were sown.

Immediate results last season were regarded as fairly promising. Some of the fields produced healthy crops of the weed, and it was thought that other seed would appear in growth this year. Mr. Paterson said today that this anticipation had failed to come through, and even the yield of last summer has not appeared in its original extent.

"To me it is decidedly disappointing," Mr. Paterson said. "I am expecting a departmental representative to be here from Ottawa in the near future to decided what is to be done. It seems to me that some of the fields might as well be plowed up at once, and a few of them have already been abandoned. The best field I have seen in my round was near Beaverton, and it was seeded by nature and left to nature's own mysterious care beyond our knowledge."

Mr. Paterson expects that some decision in regard to the project will be announced after the visit of the departmental representative in the near future.

Soldier Is Given Reformatory Term

Pte. Edward A. Kerr, 18, of the Canadian Army, stationed at St. John's, Quebec, who pleaded guilty a few days ago to stealing an automobile here was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to a year in the Ontario Reformatory.

A record produced by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., showed a number of previous convictions against the accused under the name of Burns.

"Either this young man has determined to go wrong or hasn't sense enough to go right" remarked Mr. Kerr.

The boy's aunt said that his parents were dead and that he had more or less been kicked around since he was 11 years old.

"It would be dangerous to let the impression be created that all a soldier needed to do when he wanted to go home was to take an automobile" said Mr. Kerr.

Bonner-Worth Foreman Killed In France

Word of the death in action of Sgt. Charlie Chunn, who lived in Peterborough for eight years and was employed at the Bonner-Worth before enlisting in the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, was received Wednesday by Mrs. E. P. Sheehan, 503 Murray street, at whose home Sgt. Chunn boarded during his residence in the city. A letter written from England by his wife, whom he married a year or more ago, informed Mrs. Sheehan that the soldier was killed in action June 9.

Sgt. Chunn was night foreman of the Drawing Department at the Bonner-Worth. An Englishman by birth, he came to Canada in the early thirties, living for a short time at Milton before making his home here. While in Peterborough he had always lived at Mrs. Sheehan's residence.

The hospitality of the city and particularly of Mrs. Sheehan evidently made a deep impression upon Sgt. Chunn, for he carried back with him to England many fond memories which he conveyed to his English wife. In her letter Mrs. Chunn states that she was not informed of her husband's sacrifice until a week after his death occured; and that in her overwhelming distress at the sad event, "I know not now how to live."

His father, two brothers and two sisters, living in London, survive the soldier whose love for his new-found country was so simply and truly expressed in his enlisting in one of its famous regiments and giving his life for it on the beaches of Normandy.

St. James' Group Reviews Work

Despite the sultry weather, the members of St. James' W.M.S. Auxiliary gathered in satisfactory numbers for their July meeting, with Mrs. Waterman, Lock street, a shut-in member, as hostess.

Mrs. E. M. Davis, the president, occupied the chair. The routine business followed, after which department secretaries brought encouraging reports of their work. Among these were: Mrs. H. F. Doig, reporting community friendship, and Mrs. F. W. Craik, Christian stewardship, in a story, "Just for Today."

Letters of thanks were read from sick and bereaved members who had received cards of sympathy.

The treasurer's report shows that good work is being done with $137.30 raised during the first six months.

Closing this year's study, Mrs. Ernest Johnston gave the two last chapters of the book which covered, 1, "The Inspiration for Work," and 2, "All of Life for Christ."

Upon motion, the literature secretary was instructed to send for the new study book, "West of the Date Line," by Constance Hallock.

Discussion regarding "Minister's Night," usually sponsored by St. James' W.M.S., resulted in the decision to hold the annual event early in October, with Mrs. E. M. Davis, president; Mrs. A. Wallace, pianist, and Rev. F. W. Craik being appointed a committee of management. The Jean Wagar Mission Circle is to be invited to join the auxiliary for the occasion.

The treasurer, Mrs. R. B. English, received the fees and offering, and Mrs. Bert Pitchford, who presided to the conclusion of the program, called upon members of Mrs. Rose's group to assist her.

The responsive Bible lesson was led by Mrs. Pitchford, with Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Johnston assisting.

Jean and Patty Hughey sang a group of little motion songs, accompanied by Mrs. Wallace. The hymn, "O for a Closer Walk With God," was followed with prayer by Mrs. Pitchford.

Rev. Mr. Craik, in a few words of commendation, expressed the greetings and good wishes of his church to the auxiliary, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Orange Leaders Praise Bouchard As 2,000 Parade At Hastings

HASTINGS, July 13—(By Staff Reporter)—The town of Hastings, gaily bedecked in orange, red, white and blue bunting, played host Wednesday to more than 2,000 members of the Loyal Orange Lodge, L.O.B.A., and Juvenile Lodges, who came from all over Peterborough County, to join in the annual July 12 celebration and march, commemorating the 254th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. Street banners throughout the town welcomed the Orangemen, some proclaiming, "God Save Our King", "What We Have, We Hold", and "Our King and Constitution". Scattered heavy showers prevailed during the day, but despite the inclement weather, few were prevented from marching in the colourful parade, and wearing the orange, blue and white uniforms, synonomous with the "glorious twelfth" observance.

"The best twelfth of July celebration we've ever had", was the way W. J. McMillan, County Master, described the event. He said he was pleased to see such a large turnout of members, and he congratulated the Orangemen of L.O.L. 558, Hastings, on the splendid manner in which they made preparations for the celebration.

In Lodge 65 Years

Among the oldest marchers in the parade, were William Dickson, 76, of Bewdley L.O.L. 149, and A. F. Graham, 75, of Castleton 554. Mr. Graham, who has been marching in Orange parades for more than 65 years, stated if he lived another 75 years ,he still be an Orangeman.

One of the youngest members to join in the parade, was 5-year-old Rita Kennedy, of Trenton Coronation Juvenile Lodge. The Orangemen began to arrive in Hastings at 9.00 a.m. by bus, auto and truck. By 1.00 p.m., large numbers were still entering the town.

At the Hastings Orange Hall, the individual lodges formed into lines, and marched to the Hastings park, where the entire parade was made up. After a 10 minute delay because of a sudden teeming downpour, the parade, led by "Billy" McMillan, riding a white charger, left the park, and with shrill fifes and bagpipes swirling, began a circuit march of the town. Although wartime conditions deprived many of their colourful uniforms, the familiar orange sash, blue caps, and white trousers were much in evidence, and gave the event a touch of pre-war atmosphere and attractive cherry-red rain capes were worn by some of the juvenile lodges.

After walking through the streets of the town, the parade returned to the park, where the Orangemen and visitors were addressed by E. F. Reid, Past Grand Master, Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East; Rev. W. Lennox, of St. George Anglican Church, Hastings; Major J. F. B. Balfour, W. Goodfellow, Past County Master, M.L.A.; Rev. J. Davey, St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Hastings and Rev. J. Glover, Hastings. Mrs. L. Morgan, D.G.M.B.A., of Windsor, who is vacationing in the Hastings district, was scheduled to speak, but was unable to attend.

E. F. Reid Speaks

Mr. Reid complimented the Hastings, but because of previous assotion of the event, and told the crowd that never was there such a need for an organization like the Orange Lodge, as there is today. He said, "Despite the crisis our empire has gone through, we in Canada have everything to be thankful for. There is no great gathering of young men here today, but there is a huge gathering of young men in the armed forces in Europe today—not in the Orange uniform, but in the King's uniform."

"They are overseas", declared Mr. Reid, "laying down their lives for the Orange Order principles, their forefathers fought to give them. Over a third of our men in the Orange Association in Ontario, are in the service of their country, and I urge you who are left, to do no less than they, to keep that Union Jack flying.".

"In Ottawa, on Parliament Hill, there is a propaganda agency at work. They don't [illegible] they are doing us a good turn, but they are", asserted Mr. Reid. "We in Canada, need more honest, loyal Canadians such as Senator Bouchard, and never was the opportunity greater for the Orange Order to fill the ranks," he said. Mr. Reid said it was his first celebration of July 12 in Hastings, but becauseof previous associations with the town, this year's observance brought back many fond memories and recollections of Hastings. He forecasted an increasing growth of the Orange Order, and said he was particularly pleased with the way the Orangemen walked—"rain or shine".

Religious Organization

"The Orange Order is first, and foremost a religious organization", said Rev. W. Lennox. "It is not enough to merely parade, if we are not upholding and backing up our convictions in daily life," he said. "We should continually remind ourselves of the obligations we undertook at our initiation into the Order, and if we fail to uphold these obligations, then we are most certainly not Orangemen", he declared. He appealed to the Orangemen to back up the boys in the armed forces with prayer in church, and praised His Majesty King George the Sixth, for the example he set during the blitz in England. Rev. Lennox told the Orangemen they should all be very thankful to belong to the great Commonwealth of Nations.

"We can and will become a great united Canada", said W. A. Goodfellow. "I am a firm believer in the principles of this order, and in the work it can help to promote a united Canada, not separatism", he said. Mr. Goodfellow described Senator Bouchard as a "great French-Canadian, worthy to carry on the work of Sir Wilfred Laurier, a gentleman who, without a doubt, always put his fellowmen before his political party". He congratulated the County Master on the parade and celebration, and said it was the largest Orange walk in the Hastings district, for many years.

Quoting William of Orange's famous words at Boyne: "The Protestant religion, I will maintain", Rev. J. Davey said as long as there are men with the courage of Senator Bouchard, the threat of any minority group, such as the alleged Jacques Cartier group, to make an attempt to control the destiny of Canada, is bound to failure. "The Bible is our stand," said Mr. Davey, and the Bible is infallible."

Block French Language

He told the gathering that with regard to the French language increase in usage in Ontario, it is easy to take a passive position, but appealed to the Orangemen to fight it, unless they want it.

He praised the Orange Association for maintaining the principles gained for them by their forefathers in the 16th century reformation period, and forecasted an increase, including the L.O.B.A., in membership and support in the future.

Maj. J. F. B. Balfour stated the Orange Lodge is going to depend more and more upon the women members, and urged more women to join and take their stand with the rest of the Orangemen.

Maj. Balfour lauded Sen. Bouchard, and told the gathering he had no personal offences against the French-Canadians. He said he has lived among them, and found them to be victims of educated, and semi-educated politicians. He said they have been trained all their life to think one way, and lack of education in the province of Quebec, thinks Maj. Balfour, has much to do with the gullible manner in which they permit themselves to be led. He reminded the crowd of Laurier's impartial policy, of giving favours to no one, and respecting one man's religion no more reverently than another's.

Maj. Balfour expressed pleasure at being able to attend the Orange walk, and hoped he would see everyone again next year.

Dinner and supper was served for the Orangemen by the Ladies' Aid of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and the Women's Association of St. George Anglican Church. Meals were served in the Post Office building, and in V. Bolton's dance hall.

An Old Lodge

One of the oldest lodges participating in the observance, was the Bewdley L.O.L. 149, 110 years old last January.

The plan of giving prizes to the lodges judged best in appearance and number, has been discontinued temporarily.

During the evening, an exciting softball game between Campbellford and Hastings, was won by the Campbellford boys, by a 28-11 score.

Later, the Orangemeh danced in the town hall, to the music of the Hastings Melody Makers, featuring round, and square dances.

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

RUE DE GEOLE, CAEN, July 13 (CP Cable)—A few days ago this was a street. Now it is only a jagged pile of smoking rubble. You can tell it was a street by looking at a little blue metal sign on one of the few remaining walls.

Two R.A.F. blockbusters landed in Rue De Geole, about 100 yards apart. In each funnel-like crater a three-ton truck could be easily hidden. Scores of dead civilians still lie under the tons of dust and broken yellow masonry.

Yesterday morning a young German of the Hitler Youth Division was found hiding in the ruins and reports reached the resistance movement headquarters that there were more Germans to be picked up in a house of Rue De Geole.

Helped By R.A.F.

The job was given to Paul Leroy, 20-year-old Parisian, who was to be helped in bringing the Germans back, dead or alive, by a young Breton Partisan, Jacques Lehohe (Sic). At the same time they were to bring back for questioning the landlady of the house where the German was found hiding.

Their armament consisted of a commando knife and a sub-machine gun, the kind dropped by the R.A.F to men of the Maquis.

I was permitted to accompany them on their mission.

While the young Breton walked ahead, keeping a sharp lookout, Leroy kept up an unbroken conversation, recalling that he had done a lot of Maquis fighting and described the day when his comrades held the village of Carjarac for 48 hours against a mixed force of Gestapo and Darnand Militiamen, killing 65 of the enemy. He personally accounted for seven with one machine-gun burst.

On another occasion he had taken part in the execution of three garage employees who had spied for Darnand (Chief of an organized outfit which collaborated with the Germans) and whose denunciations had led to the shooting of 60 Patriots.

Uses A Knife

Some days ago Leroy was sent by his leaders to deliver a message to Caen and stayed there to make life miserable for the Germans. Last Thursday, the day before the big bombing, he was entering Place Gambetta in his disquise when he discovered a German soldier crouching behind a machine-gun.

"I was unarmed except for a little penknife with a three-inch blade," he said. "But I crept up to the Sauerkrautman and gave him of my little penknife between the shoulders. He groaned and fell and I heard later that he had been stabbed by a "dirty young Frenchman." I'm that "dirty young Frenchman" and proud of it."

At the house where the Patriots were sent to investigate, Paul went boldly up the stairs while Jacques covered the windows with his tommy gun. Five minutes later Paul came out with a sobbing, middle aged woman who swore she was only the landlady and had nothing to do with the Germans. Paul told her if her answers were satisfactory she had nothing to fear and, as they guided her back to headquarters, both boys seemed disappointed not to have found any Germans in the house.

Canadians May Fight In East

TORONTO, July 13 —(CP)—The Globe and Mail said today in an Ottawa dispatch that "more direct participation in the Pacific war by Canada is implied by the dispatch recently to the Far East of an air mission said to be headed by Air Vice-Marshal Lee Stevenson.

"Air headquarters refused today (Wednesday) to comment on reports that the mission, composed of a half-dozen or more senior officers, is the advance party of a sufficient number of air crewmen to increase substantially the R.C.A.F. forces operating against the Japs under the Mountbatten command.

"Only last week, however, intimation was given of action in that direction by the appointment of Air Commander John Plant as deputy air member for air staff (plans). This officer formerly commanded an amphibious R.C.A.F. squadron that has been operating from a Ceylon base for two years or more."

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Whalon has been named quartermaster at the camp, and so will have her hands filled planning meals for the approximately 50 girls now registered.

Navy Auxiliary Plans Ways Of Raising Funds

Several small but important items of business were discussed and decided upon at the regular meeting of the Navy Auxiliary in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., Wednesday evening.

Most pertinent and timely questions for discussions were the various means to be used by the auxiliary during the next few months to raise funds for their ditty bags. The first important project is the tag day, to be held September 16, and ways of improving canvassing were suggested. Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, general convener for the tag day, asked for suggestions and outlined several plans she had formulated.

The rummage sale, to be held October 5, will be a vital project during that month, while November's entertainment will be the big bazaar, being planned for November 24 in the market hall. Mrs. G. J. Fallen, Mrs. G. G. Eason and Mrs. A. Chartren were named as the bazaar committee, and it was decided to hold sales of various articles, and to serve tea. Mrs. Chartren said that she had arranged to have two Scotch dolls made, on which tickets could be sold, the winning tickets to be drawn at the bazaar. This idea was endorsed by the meeting, and Mrs. K. Simpson offered to make the tickets, while Mrs. Percy Hooper said that she would donate funds to buy materials to make them.

Considerable discussion ensued when the president, Mrs. Frank Merrett, asked for a decision on a request made to her, that two women from the auxiliary serve on a committee for the Navy League. Members felt that a great many people believed that the Navy Auxiliary and the Navy League are really the same organization, while in reality they are separate and distinct. The Navy Auxiliary—the Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary to the Navy—is purely an independent group of women working for Peterborough and distrct boys, whereas the Navy League is a collection of groups, working from a common treasury for Navy boys throughout Canada.

It was also stated that in the charter given to the auxiliary they promised that they would not be connected in any way with any other organization, and so it was decided to remain for the time being as a separate organization and to decline the offer of a representation on the Navy League committee.

A present will be sent to Wren Gwyneth Flowers in hospital in England, as a remembrance from the auxiliary, with wishes for a speedy recovery. A letter from Mayor James Hamilton about a proposed Labor Day field day was read by the president, and she was named as a representative to attend a meeting on July 19 to discuss plans.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we will have a few recipes for small cakes, so necessary during the summer. When you are asked at the last moment to make up a lunch for a day's outing you will have part of the lunch all ready in these delightful cookies. These cakes together with some sandwiches, the fillings of which I gave you a few days ago, are ideal for picnic lunches.

Chocolate Drop Cookies

2 squares chocolate, ½ cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, ½ cup sweet milk. Melt the chocolate and add to the melted butter, add sugar, egg and milk, then the soda and flour sifted together. Drop by spoonsful on well greased cookie sheets and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. or 400 degrees F. for 12 to 15 minutes. These may be frosted if desired.

Raisin Rocks

1 cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups molasses, 1 cup seeded raisin, flour. Put shortening, sugar, molasses, ginger and salt into a saucepan together, stir the mixture until it boils, and boil for 5 minutes. Pour into a bowl and stir in flour and soda sifted together until it is stiff enough to drop from a spoon. Add the raisins and drop by spoonsful onto a greased, shallow pan. Bake the rocks in a moderate oven 370 degrees F. or 400 degrees F.

Honey Hermits

1½ cups honey, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon and cloves, 3½ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder. Mix honey and melted butter, add eggs, milk, salt, raisins. Sift cinnamon, cloves and baking powder with the flour. Beat well and drop on a greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Tea Cakes

2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups flour, 1 cup chopped nuts. Cream the butter and sugar, add well beaten eggs, then add milk alternately with the sifted ingredients. Add the floured nuts last. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderate oven. Split each cake, butter it and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon or grated maple sugar and chopped nuts may be used. Serve hot with afternoon tea.

JUST FOR WOMEN

LONG GOWNS AGAIN

New York fashion designers are featuring the long evening gown again with a vengeance, in their new fall fashions. Flattering long gowns have been "out" for two seasons, being replaced with knee-length styles, gay with spangles, but definitely lacking in the appeal a long swishy skirt can give. The short-skirted dress is now being called a restaurant suit, for informal occasions, while the long, romantic style is 'way out in front, and increasing its lead all the time.

Feminine and flattering are the by-words for the new fall sports fashions, as gay colors and smart styling combine to make an irresistible duo. Sports clothes are softly tailored, with longer jackets, longer waistlines, wider and squarer shoulders. Draping for pockets, and at the waist is also coming back again, and is somewhat reminiscent of styles of several years ago. With daytime dresses and suits, towering, draped turbans, which cover the hair and ears, are making their bow, an matching gloves are also shown.

Summertime always brings that desire for a bronze shade of tan that will be the envy of everyone. A really smooth coat of tan is definitely flattering, and has an air of elegance about it that no makeup can really match. However, while there's nothing more attractive than an even tan, it must be acquired with patience and care, to protect the skin, as well as keep tempers from fraying. Somehow or other, tempers always burn just as much as tender, scorched skin.

So, take heed, and get you tan by degrees. Start taking the sun in five to ten-minute periods, working up gradually to half an hour or more. Protect the skin with lubricating creams, especially around the eyes, while acquiring that "golden girl" look. Leave off glasses, but keep eyes closed from the sun. However, don't forget usual morning and evening care and cleansing of the skin just because it's summer.

After acquiring an enviable bronze glint to you skin, show it off by wearing a lipstick in clear red or orange-red tones, and wear white, beige, and brown costumes, to accent the skin tone.

CURTAIN CARE

Recent tests have shown that summer care of curtains is vitally important, to conserve them in wartime. Exposure to sun proved to be the most common destroyer of curtain fabric, followed closely by heat and humidity. As a result of these experiments, certain shades and materials are recommended.

Cotton curtains, of coarse, twisted yarns, withstood sunlight better than light fine yarns; mercerized curtains were more sunlight resistant than unmercerized; and material containing a dark dye lasted much longer than fabrics in lighter shades.

Therefore, for windows which get a great deal of sun, replace dainty lace or net curtains for the summer, with cool, dark-colored material. Elaborate patterns are not necessary, and are not as stylish as simple, quickly-made curtains. The latter are an extra-smart touch for a summer cottage, and can be laundered and used again an again, even on different windows, because of style simplicity.

BE CAREFUL

A great many women are now doing their own housework, since so many maids are doing their share in Canada's war plants. Here's a point to remember about lifting heavy articles which will save many a strained and aching back or shoulder. To pick up a heavy bucket or basket, crouch with one foot slightly behind the other, and use the large thigh muscles as leverage to bring the body up again, instead of leaning forward and putting all pressure on the back.

Smartest summer colors seen so far have been the ever-popular white and black, or white and navy blue or white and dark gray combinations, and — surprisingly — brown. Brown sounds rather warm for summer, but in reality is very smart, and blends in with so many other shades that it's ideal for curtailed wartime wardrobes. Remember too, that brown is ideal for fall wear, so will do double duty.

CULINARY CAPER

Here's a special little tip they say is really something! Try toothpicking onion slices on the side of a roast, with garlic for roast lamb—Gives an added tang of flavor to the meat, and also peps up the gravy.

Hattie Carnegie makes a dinner dress with softly draped details on a column silhouette. Note the epaulette sleeve caps, the close-throat neckline.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

DRAPED TO A COLUMN—A rayon crepe with beautiful drape qualities here heralds the return of the full length dinner dress, which needs must be of restricted yardage, however long. The new long dresses sneak back, as it were, by avoiding deeply cutout necklines; the balance of evening style ethics appears to give the cutouts to the short skirted models only.

Queensboro Walk Attracts Big Crowd

MARMORA, July 13.—(ENS).—"It goes to show that the Orange folk of Centre Hastings are neither made of salt or sugar," said a lady who was present at the 12th of July celebration staged by Queensboro L.O.L. on Wednesday at Robert Woods' Grove, about 2½ miles northeast of Madoc Village. Despite the rain which fell in showers throughout the morning, most of the lodges in Centre Hastings, with L.O.B.A. lodges, turned out with many members and supporters, and though rain fell the heavier at parade time, about 2 p.m. most of the lodges headed by their banner and music fell in for the time-honored march. Mention should be made also of the various ladies, some who had passed the allotted span of life who staffed the four booths which sold refreshments. Without any covering beyond the leaves of the trees neath which their booths were placed, they carried on with a cheer and composure unexcelled by sailors on a stormy sea. When the showers got heavier after noon the ladies of one booth presented an amusing spectacle as some of them used cartons and other unusual articles to cover their heads. The four booths were operated by Hart's Red Cross Society, the Women's Association and the Young People of Queensboro United Church and the Ladies' Guild of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Queensboro. When skies lightened about 3 p.m., County Master Philip Carr attempted a program at the speakers' platform. The Spencer Kiltie Band took well with the crowd as they played a number of selections. The county master then gave a speech, outlining the principles of the Orange Order and than asked if other speakers who were to have spoken earlier in the afternoon were present. Only one of that number was present to respond to the invitation, Past County Master W. J. Cottrell, of Marmora. He spoke on the true identity of Orangemen. The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Though the heavy showers interferred with the day's program being carried out as arranged.

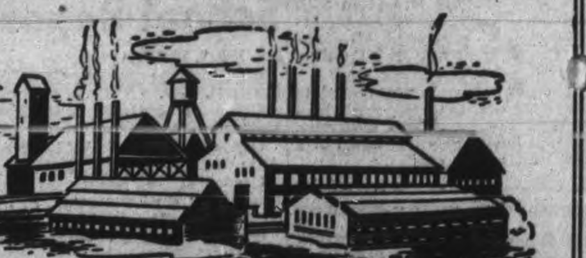
DOING OUR BEST... to serve you!

Operating a retail furniture store these days is pretty much of a "headache" but if it's our part of the general war effort we accept it gladly and will do the best we can about it. You know, of course, that we are making every possible effort to secure and offer for sale the things our customers need for their homes.

We do not hesitate to use the long distance phone or the telegraph service to importune manufacturers for merchandise with which to replenish our stocks or to follow up on shipments of merchandise which have been promised us, in fact, we are sparing no expense in order to continue the service to which our customers have been accustomed.

Air mail special delivery letters are used without stint to contact manufacturers from whom certain merchandise may be procurable and in many cases these are written to personal friends connected with leading manufacturers who might be in a position to help us by seeing that shipments of merchandise we order are speeded on their way to us.

We have even been directly to the furniture manufacturing centres to plead for shipments of enough merchandise to take care of the requirements of our regular trade. This involves time and travel expense, but we have not hesitated to do it.



During the last two months we have made many trips searching for merchandise we know our customers would welcome . . . and with some success too! Our long and continued patronage of many of the leading ing manufacturers has stood us in good stead with the result that much of the merchandise procured is either on our floor now or will be arriving any day to bring our stocks more nearly in line with what you have been accustomed to find on our floors so, no matter what you need in home furnishings, we're still pretty sure to have it . . . and we're still offering our customary good service and money back guarantee as always.

Navy Auxiliary Plans Ways Of Raising Funds

Several small but important items of business were discussed and decided upon at the regular meeting of the Navy Auxiliary in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., Wednesday evening.

Most pertinent and timely questions for discussions were the various means to be used by the auxiliary during the next few months to raise funds for their ditty bags. The first important project is the tag day, to be held September 16, and ways of improving canvassing were suggested. Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, general convener for the tag day, asked for suggestions and outlined several plans she had formulated.

The rummage sale, to be held October 5, will be a vital project during that month, while November's entertainment will be the big bazaar, being planned for November 24 in the market hall. Mrs. G. J. Fallen, Mrs. G. G. Eason and Mrs. A. Chartren were named as the bazaar committee, and it was decided to hold sales of various articles, and to serve tea. Mrs. Chartren said that she had arranged to have two Scotch dolls made, on which tickets could be sold, the winning tickets to be drawn at the bazaar. This idea was endorsed by the meeting, and Mrs. K. Simpson offered to make the tickets, while Mrs. Percy Hooper said that she would donate funds to buy materials to make them.

Considerable discussion ensued when the president, Mrs. Frank Merrett, asked for a decision on a request made to her, that two women from the auxiliary serve on a committee for the Navy League. Members felt that a great many people believed that the Navy Auxiliary and the Navy League are really the same organization, while in reality they are separate and distinct. The Navy Auxiliary—the Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary to the Navy—is purely an independent group of women working for Peterborough and distrct boys, whereas the Navy League is a collection of groups, working from a common treasury for Navy boys throughout Canada.

It was also stated that in the charter given to the auxiliary they promised that they would not be connected in any way with any other organization, and so it was decided to remain for the time being as a separate organization and to decline the offer of a representation on the Navy League committee.

A present will be sent to Wren Gwyneth Flowers in hospital in England, as a remembrance from the auxiliary, with wishes for a speedy recovery. A letter from Mayor James Hamilton about a proposed Labor Day field day was read by the president, and she was named as a representative to attend a meeting on July 19 to discuss plans.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we will have a few recipes for small cakes, so necessary during the summer. When you are asked at the last moment to make up a lunch for a day's outing you will have part of the lunch all-ready in these delightful cookies. These cakes together with some sandwiches, the fillings of which I gave you a few days ago, are ideal for picnic lunches.

Chocolate Drop Cookies

2 squares chocolate, ½ cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, ½ cup sweet milk. Melt the chocolate and add to the melted butter, add sugar, egg and milk, then the soda and flour sifted together. Drop by spoonsful on well greased cookie sheets and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. or 400 degrees F. for 12 to 15 minutes. These may be frosted if desired.

Raisin Rocks

1 cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups molasses, 1 cup seeded raisin, flour. Put shortening, sugar, molasses, ginger and salt into a saucepan together, stir the mixture until it boils, and boil for 5 minutes. Pour into a bowl and stir in flour and soda sifted together until it is stiff enough to drop from a spoon. Add the raisins and drop by spoonsful onto a greased, shallow pan. Bake the rocks in a moderate oven 370 degrees F. or 400 degrees F.

Honey Hermits

1½ cups honey, ¼ cup butter, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon and cloves, 3½ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder. Mix honey and melted butter, add eggs, milk, salt, raisins. Sift cinnamon, cloves and baking powder with the flour. Beat well and drop on a greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Tea Cakes

2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups flour, 1 cup chopped nuts. Cream the butter and sugar, add well beaten eggs, then add milk alternately with the sifted ingredients. Add the floured nuts last. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderate oven. Split each cake, butter it and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon or grated maple sugar and chopped nuts may be used. Serve hot with afternoon tea.

LONG GOWNS AGAIN

New York fashion designers are featuring the long evening gown again with a vengeance, in their new fall fashions. Flattering long gowns have been "out" for two seasons, being replaced with knee-length styles, gay with spangles, but definitely lacking in the appeal a long swishy skirt can give. The short-skirted dress is now being called a restaurant suit, for informal occasions, while the long, romantic style is 'way out in front, and increasing its lead all the time.

Feminine and flattering are the by-words for the new fall sports fashions, as gay colors and smart styling combine to make an irresistible duo. Sports clothes are softly tailored, with longer jackets, longer waistlines, wider and squarer shoulders. Draping for pockets, and at the waist is also coming back again, and is somewhat reminiscent of styles of several years ago. With daytime dresses and suits, towering, draped turbans, which cover the hair and ears, are making their bow, an matching gloves are also shown.

SUMMER TAN

Summertime always brings that desire for a bronze shade of tan that will be the envy of everyone. A really smooth coat of tan is definitely flattering, and has an air of elegance about it that no makeup can really match. However, while there's nothing more attractive than an even tan, it must be acquired with patience and care, to protect the skin, as well as keep tempers from fraying. Somehow or other, tempers always burn just as much as tender, scorched skin.

So, take heed, and get you tan by degrees. Start taking the sun in five to ten-minute periods, working up gradually to half an hour or more. Protect the skin with lubricating creams, especially around the eyes, while acquiring that "golden girl" look. Leave off glasses, but keep eyes closed from the sun. However, don't forget usual morning and evening care and cleansing of the skin just because it's summer.

After acquiring an enviable bronze glint to you skin, show it off by wearing a lipstick in clear red or orange-red tones, and wear white, beige, and brown costumes, to accent the skin tone.

CURTAIN CARE

Recent tests have shown that summer care of curtains is vitally important, to conserve them in wartime. Exposure to sun proved to be the most common destroyer of curtain fabric, followed closely by heat and humidity. As a result of these experiments, certain shades and materials are recommended.

Cotton curtains, of coarse, twisted yarns, withstood sunlight better than light fine yarns; mercerized curtains were more sunlight resistant than unmercerized; and material containing a dark dye lasted much longer than fabrics in lighter shades.

Therefore, for windows which get a great deal of sun, replace dainty lace or net curtains for the summer, with cool, dark-colored material. Elaborate patterns are not necessary, and are not as stylish as simple, quickly-made curtains. The latter are an extra-smart touch for a summer cottage, and can be laundered and used again an again, even on different windows, because of style simplicity.

BE CAREFUL

A great many women are now doing their own housework, since so many maids are doing their share in Canada's war plants. Here's a point to remember about lifting heavy articles which will save many a strained and aching back or shoulder. To pick up a heavy bucket or basket, crouch with one foot slightly behind the other, and use the large thigh muscles as leverage to bring the body up again, instead of leaning forward and putting all pressure on the back.

POPULAR SHADES

Smartest summer colors seen so far have been the ever-popular white and black, or white and navy blue or white and dark gray combinations, and — surprisingly — brown. Brown sounds rather warm for summer, but in reality is very smart, and blends in with so many other shades that it's ideal for curtailed wartime wardrobes. Remember too, that brown is ideal for fall wear, so will do double duty.

Queensboro Walk Attracts Big Crowd

MARMORA, July 13.—(ENS).—"It goes to show that the Orange folk of Centre Hastings are neither made of salt or sugar," said a lady who was present at the 12th of July celebration staged by Queensboro L.O.L. on Wednesday at Robert Woods' Grove, about 2½ miles northeast of Madoc Village. Despite the rain which fell in showers throughout the morning, most of the lodges in Centre Hastings, with L.O.B.A. lodges, turned out with many members and supporters, and though rain fell the heavier at parade time, about 2 p.m. most of the lodges headed by their banner and music fell in for the time-honored march. Mention should be made also of the various ladies, some who had passed the allotted span of life who staffed the four booths which sold refreshments. Without any covering beyond the leaves of the trees neath which their booths were placed, they carried on with a cheer and composure unexcelled by sailors on a stormy sea. When the showers got heavier after noon the ladies of one booth presented an amusing spectacle as some of them used cartons and other unusual articles to cover their heads. The four booths were operated by Hart's Red Cross Society, the Women's Association and the Young People of Queensboro United Church and the Ladies' Guild of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Queensboro. When skies lightened about 3 p.m., County Master Philip Carr attempted a program at the speakers' platform. The Spencer Kiltie Band took well with the crowd as they played a number of selections. The county master then gave a speech, outlining the principles of the Orange Order and then asked if other speakers who were to have spoken earlier in the afternoon were present. Only one of that number was present to respond to the invitation, Past County Master W. J. Cottrell, of Marmora. He spoke on the true identity of Orangemen. The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Though the heavy showers interferred with the day's program being carried out as arranged.

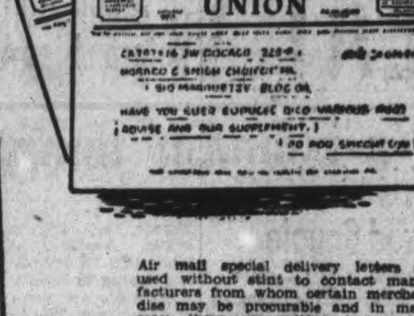
to serve you!

Operating a retail furniture store these days is pretty much of a "headache" but if it's our part of the general war effort we accept it gladly and will do the best we can about it. You know, of course, that we are making every possible effort to secure and offer for sale the things our customers need for their homes.

We do not hesitate to use the long distance phone or the telegraph service to importune manufacturers for merchandise with which to replenish our stocks or to follow up on shipments of merchandise which have been promised us, in fact, we are sparing no expense in order to continue the service to which our customers have been accustomed.



Air mail special delivery letters are used without stint to contact manufacturers from whom certain merchandise may be procurable and in many cases these are written to personal friends connected with leading manufacturers who might be in a position to help us by seeing that shipments of merchandise we order are speeded on their way to us.

We have even been directly to the furniture manufacturing centres to plead for shipments of enough merchandise to take care of the requirements of our regular trade. This involves time and travel expense, but we have not hesitated to do it.

During the last two months we have made many trips searching for merchandise we know our customers would welcome . . . and with some success too! Our long and continued patronage of many of the leading ing manufacturers has stood us in good stead with the result that much of the merchandise procured is either on our floor now or will be arriving any day to bring our stocks more nearly in line with what you have been accustomed to find on our floors so, no matter what you need in home furnishings, we're still pretty sure to have it . . . and we're still offering our customary good service and money back guarantee as always.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question: Our Scout Master is taking his troop for their first camping trip and needs some expert advice in regards to meal planning. He will be allowed Ten Dollar a day for food for himself and assistant and 12 boys from 12 to 16 years old. Each boy must cook his own noon meal over a camp fire and all cooking will be done by the boys with Scout Master's help and supervision.

Would you please help us with the menus and shopping list for seven days. We mothers will make cookies and pastry so desserts are no problem—then too we can prepare some meats to take with them such as a baked him and possibly a large roast to use for cold cuts. Any help you can give us will be very much appreciated. A.A.

Answer: My first warning is to send very little meat or fresh vegetables along for unrefrigerated food will spoil in a day. You large roast for cold cuts sounds very attractive, but what scoutmaster or boy is going to see that it keeps overnight?

Send along smoked bacon, potatoes, oranges, onions, and very little else that is not canned or dried. They will have to pick up their supplies of meat en route, or kill it or fish for it. Eggs are easy to buy when they are hiking.

Canned pork and beans, canned spaghetti, cans of fruit, and packages of biscuit mix are essential — even though the cans weigh heavy.

(1) Kabobs (see below); raw carrots, bread or if not carried hot biscuits (bannock), canned pears or raw oranges, ginger snaps.

For boys of the age you mention coffee is probably out of the question. They will have to buy their milk and carrots from a farmer for this meal.

The Kabobs are merely cubes of meat, slices of bacon and onion threaded on greensticks and roasted by turning them over the fire. The bacon supplies the fat, and the stick the utensils; the boys like the non-washing-up feature of this method.

(2) Campers' Hash (see below); raw cabbage; hard tack; berries or cherries or other local fruit in season; pound cake, milk.

Campers' Hash is a most satisfactory mix for boys love the simplicity of it. Into hot bacon fat in pan slice raw potatoes thinly—skins may be left on if potatoes are scrubbed clean; while stirring frequently, add sliced onion (about 2 to a large panful) and hamburg steak, and salt and pepper. The amount of hamburg required is variable, but four boys can easily eat 1½ pounds with 6 large potatoes. Salt and papper and catsup can be passed. This mix should be almost constantly stirred. The cabbage could be "cabbaged" from a garden patch en route.

There is no set rule for Hungarian Goulash—but it usually consists of a can each of beans, corn and tomatoes, and whatever meat you have on hand—bacon will do, chopped cooked meat, raw beef or veal. Mix the whole business in your all-purpose frying pan, heat through and if you are expert add dumplings made from prepared biscuit mix—a cover is necessary if the dumplings are used.

Curry Favor For A Day

By MARY MOORE

If you had a gentleman chef and he did all the major cooking of a special meal for special guests, you'd talk about it too.

Well Ronnie was born in India, and remembers a good deal of his life there, even though he has spent all his adolescence in England or Canada and is now at university here.

He is just as charming as he is tall—6' 4"—and that's a lot of charm. Well, he was ingenuous enough to describe curries he had eaten and sly me asked him if he could make one.

It didn't take me more than 5 seconds to resolve to have a curry dinner with people who'd appreciate it, when he said in his modest manner, "I fawncy I could with your help." My help making a curry! and I didn't even know where Manipur was when the Japs were threatening it!

The results were so good that when I came down to Garny's (where I am at this moment) I had to rustle one up for her too, for the fowl she had was smallish and needed stretching.

Ronnie's Chicken Curry

The chicken should be cut from the bones, but for some obstinate reason I wanted it left on, so Ronnie yielded. For 6 people my 6¾-lb. fowl just did nicely.

Saute 3 coarsely cut onions and 2 cups cut green beans in 2 tablespoons rendered out chicken fat until golden. Lift out into a kettle (preferably one with a trivet like a Dutch oven, because this mixture can burn), and saute ½ large cabbage cut into about 3-inch chunks, each piece held together by the heart. When cabbage is golden and lifted out into kettle, saute pieces of chicken (they should NOT be rolled in flour).

Now I have quickly discovered curry powders have varying strengths; mine was weak and Ronnie used the entire bottle—1½ oz.; Garny's was strong and 2 teaspoons were enough for their American palates. So you should start off with ONE teaspoon. So mix one teaspoon curry powder with ½ cup of the tomatoes you are going to use, and add it to the fat in pan with 2 teaspoons salt. Mix, then add remainder of a large can of tomatoes and stir and pour this over your sauteed vegetables and chicken and add enough boiling water to show between pieces of chicken, but not to cover. Put on lid and simmer gently 2 hours. Now the fun begins for you start tasting.

At this point Ronnie added another tablespoon curry, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, and some butter color to give it richer color and flavor. You will have to use your own judgment—it should be a rich golden brown—have enough flavor that you are glad to pop a forkful of rice in your mouth after each bite. It will require 3 hours boiling in all—and 5 minutes before serving stir 3 tablespoons cornstarch into ½ cup water and stir this into the curry to thicken it. When the curry required more liquid during he cooking Ronnie added milk.

When serving pile a generous serving of flaky boiled rice in centre of each plate and surround with the curry. I served plenty of milk too.

My opinion of curries is this: For those of us who have venturesome appetites it was a treat; for those who entertain at night they would make a grand midnight dish; but for dyspeptics, children and timid cooks—thumbs down! — it's pretty nervy.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX.....

ERRING WIVES PAY HEAVILY.
Barter Names, Husbands, Children Merely to Satisfy Desire for Flattery, Kisses.

The philandering husband has always been a familar figure in our midst, but the flirtatious wife has been a more or less rare bird. Of course, there were specimens of her here and there but she was still uncommon enough to be pointed out as an object of interest and to furnish food for gossip. But of late years the species has been increasing so fast that the married woman woman with her boy friend is no longer a zoo exhibit. She is just a bedraggled hen who is trying to act like a pullet and who hasn't gumption enough to know that her fly days are over, and that if she has a good safe roost pole she had better stay on it.

And whether the loosening of morals among wives is due to the times and the changing of standards of conduct, or whether women have decided that men have no right to monopolize unfaithfulness, and that what is sauce for the gander is also sauce for the goose, no one knows.

Certainly the modern woman has no more reason for scrapping her marriage vows than her Grandmother had. Indeed, far less. For while Grandpa was no doubt a noble, Christian character, he was a petty tyrant as a husband, and no wife nowadays would put up with being treated the way he treated Grandma. Also, the women in the past must have lost their tastes for their husbands as often as they do now, but they stuck to their bargains and sat by their cradles instead of stepping out with playboys.

Grandmother Had More Principles.

In this Grandma showed that she not only had more principle but more sense than her granddaughter, for a wife makes a losing trade when she exchanges her meal ticket for a glass of synthetic champagne. And under Heaven there is no more ludicrous and pathetic sight than that of a middle-age woman taking to the primrose path.

Human nature being what it is and men and women being cut off of the same bolt of cloth, there are doubtless just as many women as men born with wandering feet. Just as many wives as husbands are fed up to the teeth on domesticity. They are tired of hearing the baby howl and looking at the same face across the breakfast table that gets homelier every time they glance at it.

And perhaps more women than men go through that awful panic when they suddenly realize that they are growing old. They see that they are fading, their allure slipping from them, and they know with a deadly certainty that soon no boy will whistle at them, no man want them. It is then in their frantic desire to hold on to youth and love and all that made the glamor of life, and to have one more bite of romance, that they make the fatal mistake of wandering off of the straight and narrow path.

As a rule they are not in love with the Other Men. They are just trying to fool themselves into believing that they can thrill at a man's touch as they did when they were 18, and that they can inspire the grand passion in lads young enough to be their sons. They are so hungry, so pitifuly starved for flattery and sentiment and kisses that have, at least, a little warmth in them, that they barter for them their good names, their homes, and their husbands and children.

It is a terrible price that the women philanderers pay when they break the Seventh Commandment.

THE STARS SAY.....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 14

A fairly propitious state of affairs is read from this day's aspects, both lunar and mutual. Some form of change is indicated, with surprise angles that may be turned to much success and personal gratification, in business as well as social affairs. There may be conflicts or antagonisms in connection with public or community matters, but these may be amicably composed. Also there is indication of a lavish and unwarranted use of finances, probably in furthering social or sentimental celebrations.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of progress and personal advancement, enhanced prestige and popularity, with probable change of interests and environs. Peculiar situations may arise calling for precaution and shrewd management of dubious or equivocal affairs, and as well there might be complication of a public or group nature. Romance and social functions are to the fore and on these dangers from over extravagance or indulgences should be averted.

A child born on this day may have varied talents and mechanical abilities of surprising merit. It should enjoy a successful and romantic career, probably due to its popularity and good nature in public contacts

Drunken Driving Charge Laid Over

The charge of drunken driving against Richard McMahon of R.R. 10, Peterborough, arising out of an accident on the Warsaw Road, was enlarged by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Wednesday afternoon until Friday morning.

The remand was caused by the fact that McMahon who acted as his own lawyer, told the court that he had some witnesses he wanted to call and they were not available yesterday.

In police court this morning a charge of assault against M. R. Castle was dismissed.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

Bingo Halls Nightmare To Fire Chief

TORONTO, July 13.—That some method must be devised to control halls where bingo is played, was the opinion of Judge Ian Macdonell yesterday after Fire Chief George Sinclair told the Royal Commission on Public Halls that bingoes were a "nightmare" to him because they were "an extreme fire hazard."

Chief Sinclair declared that on numerous occasions his inspectors had visited halls in which bingoes were held and found tables blocking entrances. The proprietors had been forced to remove tables to allow egress, the chief added.

"The main trouble in case of fire would be a panic," the chief said. "Bingoes are a nightmare to me."

Judge Macdonell pointed out that unless the games are played in halls to which the public is admitted, the situation would not come within the scope of the commission, which is investigating the safety situation of public halls.

Sittings Adjourned

After sitting three days, the Royal Commission adjourned yesterday and will sit again at an unannounced date in Hamilton, Port Arthur and Fort William. The commission later will sit in other Ontario centres.

Just before adjournment, Judge Macdonell said that two recommendations of the commission might be that no inflammable decorations should be hung in public halls and that there should be at least two exits in every hall.

L. C. Anderson, fire prevention engineer of the fire marshal's office and the last witness, agreed with his honor that two exits are "absolutely essential" to safety and a province-wide law requiring this measure is "long overdue."

The judge was critical of the system used in Toronto to enforce safety regulations. He said there appeared to be a situation in which the building department, police department and license department did not at all times know what the others were doing.

"The police chief said he only knew what his department was doing," said his honor. "This witness (Assistant Building Commissioner Philip Thompson) says he doesn't know what steps the police take to carry out specific recommendations. This is a condition that is to be deplored."

Fire Chief Sinclair said that in view of the disastrous circus fire in Hartford, he would insist that firemen be stationed beside each circus tent in Toronto. The force would be adequate to cope with a sudden fire and the cost would be charged to the circus, he said.

Operate Without License

Last year, 97 public hall licenses were issued in Toronto, according to George Keeler, issuer of licenses in the treasury department. In 1944, 25 per cent. of this number are being held up pending approval of the premises by the building commissioner. He said he did not know whether the 25 per cent. were operating without licenses because that was a matter for the police. James McCubbin, secretary of Toronto Police Commission, stated it was a fact some of the 25 per cent. were operating with licenses and this was a matter for prosecution in the courts.

All buildings in Toronto except private residences and those belonging to the R.C.A.F. are inspected twice yearly, testified Capt. W. D. Slaght, chief of the fire prevention bureau of the Toronto fire department. The R.C.A.F. has its own inspection service. He said he found all buildings in a good safety condition except that some required structural alterations. Alterations of this type are a matter for the building department, he said.

TEMPT THE OPPONENTS

EVEN THE most hopeless contract can sometimes be made, possibly with an extra trick, if the declarer gets a break or two in luck and tempts his opponents to make a certain mistake or mistakes. Such developments are among the things which add spice to the game and keep it from ever getting monotonous.

That was a pretty thin double by West, and he wound up sorry he had made it. First he made an unfortunate lead, his heart Q. East played low, letting the K win. Then the canny declarer, Stuyvesant Wainwright, of New York, cousin of General Jonathan Wainwright, went to work. Just note his technique.

Hoping to steal a trick, he led the spade 2. West played low, expecting to let his partner win this, but the 9 did. Then the top three spades shut West out of any trump trick at all. Next the heart 2 was led, the J forcing the A. East led back his diamond K to the A, and the diamond 2 to the 10 was taken by the J. That made two tricks for the defenders. West returned the diamond Q, which was ruffed with the spade 3. The last spade, the 4, was scored, to give the opponents a chance to discard wrong.

East fell for it. If he had discarded the club A on this, West could have won the next trick and then cashed a diamond, but he held on to the A. So East had to win the club which was led next, and then could only lead away from his heart 9-6 into the declarer's 10-8. That enabled Mr. Wainwright to take the last two tricks, scoring one more than his contract.

South America Upheavals Are Numerous

By JOHN LLOYD
Prensa Asociada Staf Wrnter
Distributed by The Canadian Press

(Mr. Lloyd, president of La Prensa Asociada, affiliate of the Associated Press in South America, has just completed an extensive tour of that continent.)

WASHINGTON, July 13 — The short-lived Colombian revolt, in which dissident units of the army made President Alfonso Lopez of Colombia a prisoner, is another of a series of fast moves that have brought the Latin American situation sharply to the attention of statesmen here.

Starting in Central America, the revolutionary fever in the Colombia instance extended to a country known for its democratic tendencies. In this case, the movement has been diametrically the opposite of those that took place recently in Guatemala and El Salvador.

In those two little Central American countries, dictatorships were upset. In Colombia a completely democratic president who only last May tried to resign was seized by army officers during military manoeuvres and held prisoner. The vice-president took over the government and called on loyal soldiers to move against the rebels; last night the revolt was reported quelled.

The Latin American situation, apparently without rhyme or reason, is the outgrowth of clashing ambitions and sharply contrasting theories and ideals which show no sign of immediate solution. Dictatorship may give way to democracy in one upheaval and exactly the opposite occur or at least be attempted in another, all within the general scheme of the Latin American problem.

There are diverging schools of thought as to the respctiev merits of dictatorial and democratic government.

Pilot Likes New Attack-Technique

SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, July 13—(CP Cable)—A Canadian Alacore of the Coast Command, experimenting with an attack-technique devised by one of the squadron's pilots, bombed two stationary auxiliary-type German vessels off Cap Gris Nez, France, early today and scored hits on at least one of them.

Two great red-colored explosions were observed and a column of smoke 300 feet high obliterated view of the ships, which may have been enemy tank landing craft.

"I scorned the new technique at first," said PO. O. H. Menny, of Timmins, Ont., pilot of the plane, "but changed my mind after this attack. The enemy was taken completely by surprise and the ships provided no opposition."

Naturally, he didn't reveal details of the new technique.

WO. R. A. Leech, of Smiths Falls, Ont., the navigator, said "it looked like two good hits on one of the ships."

25 Allied Divisions Now In France; Germans Using An Equal Number

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 13—(CP)—The Allied sea-borne invasion of Italy at Anzio in January was the last big "dress rehearsal" for the invasion of France launched June 6, and a comparison of the Allied progress on the Anzio and Normandy bridgeheads after they were established for five weeks shows valuable lessons were learned from the earlier operation.

The Anzio attack, launched Jan. 22 with the apparent objective of capturing Rome speedily, had by the end of February, five weeks from its inception, developed into a holding operation. But the bridgehead established there was of major value when the final Allied drive on Rome was launched May 11.

The Normandy invasion after five weeks has led to the capture of two valuable ports—Cherbourg and Caen—and has engaged some of Germany's best armored divisions stationed in Western Europe.

After five weeks at Anzio, the Allied bridgehead formed a rough triangle, running from the coast 20 miles east, then approximately due south for 12 miles to the sea. Its area was some 160 square miles.

The invasion of France was on a much bigger scale in every way. The Normandy line now is about 60 miles long. The British, American and Canadian forces in Normandy hold approximately 1,900 square miles of French soil.

At Anzio the British and American troops who went ashore encountered no opposition from the enemy at first. They drove inland and almost cut the Rome-Naples coastal railway before the Germans counter-attacked.

In Normandy the D-day invasion forces landed from rough seas, and went ashore at most points under heavy German fire. They had to smash barricades in shallow water and fortifications ashore.

Parachute and glider troops were used on a heavy scale in Normandy. At Anzio only a few paratroops were dropped mainly for sabotage operations behind German positions.

Prime Minister Churchill said in a war review that 40,000 to 50,000 Allied soldiers were used in the Anzio landing. The Germans had arrayed 10 divisions against them after the first five weeks.

For the Normandy invasion, Gen. Eisenhower upsed the 21st Army group, including the British 2nd Army and the American 1st Army. Perhaps as many as 25 Allied divisions—including the Canadian 3rd division — now are in Northern France. Thirteen Allied divisions already have been identified.

The Germans have committed some 25 divisions, including seven crack Panzer divisions, to the battle in Normandy.

Allied air power and sea power played a far bigger role in the gigantic operation against Northern France than in the relatively small-scale Anzio attack.

Syntona Gave Prompt Relief to Acid Stomach And Nervous Indigestion

"Now I Enjoy My Meals Once More," Says This Woman—Free of Gas, Dizzy Spells, "Sleep Is Sound and I Feel Ever So Much Better in the Mornings."

"I have told many people of the experience I have had with Syntona and I am glad to make this public statement," said Mrs. Osborne Hill, Ohsweken, Ont., in a recent report.

"For several years I suffered with gastric acidity and nervous indigestion. There were many things I couldn't eat at all, because I had so much gas and heartburn. I often felt nauseated at the thought of food I was subject to dizzy spells followed by a throbbing headache. My nerves were all on edge and I began to have backache and pains in my limbs and joints. I could not get to sleep at nights, so I always felt tired and listless in the mornings after.

"I was badly discouraged, for I didn't know what to do for relief and then one day a friend told me about a medicine that helped her and that the name of it was Syntona.

"I got some of this medicine and started taking it. In only a few days my food began to digest better. As I kept taking it my appetite picked up, I could enjoy my meals once more without having all that gas, acid risings, and heartburn afterward. Now I want to say this medicine has helped me in every way. At my time of life I was having hot flashes and nervous spells, but now my nerves are calm. I am free of the aches and pains and I have no dizziness or headaches. My sleep is sound and restful and I feel ever so much better when I awaken in the mornings."

REDS CROSS BORDER INTO GERMANY

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP)—The Russian Army pushed on today from captured Wilno, where the Germans lost 13,000 dead and prisoners, and edged to within 28 miles of Kaunas. (Germans have evacuated Pinsk in the western Pripet marshes, 100 miles from Brest Litovsk, the German radio said. The town is on the railroad from Luniniec to Warsaw and has been outflanked for several days.)

Other Red Army units were 21 miles from the strategic railway through Kaunas to Riga, the Latvian seaport capital, and to Tallinn in Estonia, front dispatches said. Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's cavalry and tanks were 50 miles from Eydtkuhen, a border city in East Prussia. Farther south in the Grodno region the Russians were 29 miles from the Suwalki triangle of East Prussia.

Nearing Grodno.

Cherniakhovsky's left flank moved up within 28 miles of Grodno, while to his south Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's units advanced rapidly through the Brest Litovsk province and reached places 60 miles from the city on the western Bug river, one of the few natural barriers before Warsaw.

NEW YORK, July 14—(AP)—N.B.C. today quoted a German underground radio station as reporting that "Russian armies entered Rozanka, in East Prussia, at noon European time." Such a town is not shown in available Gazeteers, which however list a Rozanka in pre-war Poland on the Bug river 35 miles south of Brest Litovsk.

The Red army was closing two huge arms around Pinsk. The city appeared doomed and its inhabitants could already hear Soviet artillery.

On the middle Baltic front the Baltic army of Gens. Andrei I. Yeremanko and Ivan Bagramian made steady progress toward Daugavpils and Riga. Bagramian's left flank has almost connected with Cherniakhovsky's fighters between Daugavpils and Wilno. This appeared to be the objective for a united push through the centre of the Baltics towards Memel and the Baltic Sea.

(Finns were warned in a domestic broadcast that their country might soon be outflanked by complete collapse of German resistance on the Baltic front, where the situation was described as "most critical." United States government monitors heard the report.)

At the north of the Baltic front, Yeremenko has broadened his front to over 100 miles. On the right flank he was approaching the Latvian border between Opochka and Poskov in an advance west of Novorzhev.

Red Army tanks, cavalry and infantry were surging closer to East Prussia despite general stiffening of German resistance and hurried Nazi efforts to stem the Russians by hurling large numbers of reserves into several sectors.

Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's 2nd Baltic army killed 3,000 Germans and captured at least 600 in the northern sector, while another 1,000 were killed and almost 400 captured southwest of Lida, a rail junction south of Wilno.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's 3rd White Russian Army neared the rail centre of Grodno west of Liea, capturing Nova Ruda, 18 miles west of Grodno, in a 25-mile advance.

Bracken Denies Toronto Clique Trying To Dictate Party Policy

WINNIPEG, July 14—(CP)—John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, here today denied that a "Toronto clique" had attempted to dictate party policy to him.

"I want to state emphatically that there has been no effort on the part of Premier Drew or anyone else to dictate the policies of the National Progressive Conservative party," he said in a statement issued shortly after his arrival here.

Mr. Bracken added there had been no indication by any newspaper or newspaper publisher. He said such a claim was "just plain nonsense."

(The Ottawa Evening Citizen in a newspage story by Torchy Anderson Wednesday said that a Progressive Conservative caucus had discussed alleged attempt of a Toronto clique" to gain control of the party. The Toronto Telegram yesterday said that Premier Drew and George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, were rumored to be planning to oust Mr. Bracken from the Party leadership. Both Mr. Drew and Mr. McCullagh denied the report.)

Inspired Propaganda

Mr. Bracken, who plans to spend several days in Winnipeg, said there had been a deliberately inspired campaign to create an impression of division within the Progressive Conservative party.

"Therefore this article (published by the Ottawa Citizen), based on rumor, is not surprising."

His statement follows:

As I was leaving Ottawa for Winnipeg, an article appeared in the Ottawa Citizen to the effect that I was being dictated to by a Toronto clique. I am taking this first opportunity to comment upon it.

The imputation contained in the article is entirely unjust and is unwarranted by any facts. There has been a deliberately inspired campain to create an impression of di-

British Take 3 More Towns

ROME, July 14—(CP)—British troops of an Indian division of the British 8th Army have seized three more towns in the Upper Tiber Valley, while American units of the Allied 5th Army captured the village of Pastina, 13 miles southeast of Livorno, and drove on two miles through an Luce, almost due east of that German stronghold, it was announced today.

The American thrust followed a secondary highway midway between the Italian west coast and the Era Valley, and threatened to outflank enemy strongholds on both those major routes to Livorno.

Equally significant gains in hard fighting were scored by French troops on the American right wing.

The embattled Frenchmen advanced two to 2½ miles northward from San Donato and captured San Gimignano and the neighboring village of La Casette. This brought them within 17 miles of the Arno River at Empoli, and tended to develop a threat to the flank of the defenders of Poggibonsi, five miles east of San Gimignano.

Today the French celebrated Bastille Day by continuing their assaults and mopping up isolated pockets of resistance in newly overrun territory.

The Nazis struck back. North of Pastina, the enemy launched a futile counter-attack last night against

Turks Closer To Allies

Anglo-American-Russian Talks Continue

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP).—Officials watched Ankara closely today as Anglo-American-Russian talks continued with Turkey to bring that important neutral closer to the Allies.

While it seems unlikely the Turks will join the war against Germany at this stage, concrete developments to aid the United Nations appear in the offing.

First step may be a severance of Turkish economic relations with the Nazis, who are getting wool, oil seeds foodstuffs and certain critical materials from Turkey.

Without any fanfare, the Turks have already cut thier over-all trade with Germany by 50 per cent., in addition to placing a complete ban on chrome exports to the Nazis.

Reports from Ankara have shown a sudden increase in diplomatic activity there, and it was learned here that three-way conversations have been going on with the Turks for three weeks.

An Ankara dispatch said German Ambassador Franz Von Papen had left, which might indicate Nazi alarm at the rapidity with which Turkey is heading towards the Allies.

Turkey's key position of two years ago when Russia was fighting in the Caucasus and British forces were engaged in North Africa, now has revised so that abandonment of her neutrality could imperil the whole German system in the Balkans and speed the end of the war.

Bombers Lash Budapest Oil Targets

Bad Weather Slows Aerial Work On Normandy Front

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 14 —(AP)—Up to 500 escorted Allied heavy bombers attacked Budapest railway yards and four oil refineries in Hungary today in continued, determined efforts to destroy German fuel supplies and communications.

Foul weather hampered operations in support of the battle in Normandy, although some flights cut through clouds and squalls and bombed railroad yards at Beauvais and Montdider, far east of the battle fields.

The new two-way forays followed a night of minor aerial activity during which a small force of R.A.F. Mosquitos bombed unspecified targets in the Ruhr Valley while other British planes laid mines in enemy waters. No planes were lost on these operations.

Three of the Hungarian refineries were on the outskirts of Budapest—the Fanto, Shell Koolaz and Hungary Peroleum Company properties—with a total annual capacity of 358,000 tons. Other heavies sought out the Petfurdo Oil Works five miles south of the Hungarian capital and also bombed the Ferencuaros railway yards in the city.

A considerable number of aggressive Nazi fighters were encountered and several were destroyed by the four-engined bombers and their lightning escort. Mustang fighters met interceptors over Budapest and bagged an unspecified number.

Another flight of bombers and Mustangs struck the Mantua railyards in Italy.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers attacked the French railyards, crowded with freight trains supplying German divisions locked in battle in Normandy. All planes returned.

Roads Deserted

Fighter-bombers destroyed five German planes in scattered combats during the morning without loss. In sweeps over France, they strafed trucks and shot up flak towers.

Sixteen German planes were shot down with seven Allied planes reported missing thus far. Ten were destroyed by a squadron of Canadian Spitfires over Laigle, 63 miles southeast of Caen.

American fighter-bombers made what was described as one of the longest dive-bombing attacks to date against 14 important bridges battered during the day.

Between 30 and 40 "short order" missions requested by the ground forces were executed for the purpose of knocking out German strongpoints and gun positions in the path of Allied forces.

Patrolling fighter-bombers, looking for a chance to pounce on German movements toward the front, found both the main and secondary roads empty. Even big trucks, seeking protection against air attacks, crawled along farm roads and country lanes.

CAPT. R. T. F. BRAIN

Rev. R. T. F. Brain Wounded At Burial Service

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 14.—(CP Cable).—The brotherhood of suffering is completely selfless, Capt. R. T. F. Brain, padre of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, a Canadian 3rd Division infantry unit, told a press conference yesterday at Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force.

"In every group of casualties it is known instinctively who is the worst wounded and every effort is bent to helping him."

Brain himself was wounded by a mortar shell five days after the landing in Normandy, while conducting a burial service. The former curate of St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough, Ont., appeared at the press conference, limping and using a cane, to tell British, Canadian and American newspapermen about the work of chaplains.

He said their battle role is "to be anywhere there is need, any time of day or night; to do anything from speaking words of cheer, encouragement and strength to dispatching convoys."

He emphasized the psychological importance of conducting burials at regularly stated times. The fact the Canadian Army fingerprints all soldiers was proving valuable in identifying the dead when other means

Hon. Jacob Nicol Named Senator

OTTAWA, July 14 (CP) — Hon. Jacob Nicol, K.C., of Sherbrooke, Que., newspaper publisher, financier and member of the Quebec Legislative Council has been appointed to the Senate for Quebec's Bedford division, it was announced today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Long prominent in Quebec politics and well-known publisher of several French newspapers in Quebec, Senator Nicol had been a member of the Legislative Council since 1939 and had served as Speaker of the Provincial Upper Chamber from 1930 to 1934.

Senator Nicol's appointment to the Senate brings the Liberal representation in the 96-seat Red Chamber to 51. There are 33 Progressive Conservative Senators and 13 vacancies.

The appointment reduces the vacancies for Quebec in the Senate to three. The last appointment from that province was that of Senator T. D. Bouchard, former Quebec Minister of Roads, who was called to the Red Chamber about a month ago.

The announcement, made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said Senator Nicol will represent the Bedford Division of Quebec, which formerly was represented by Senator R. H. Pope, who died several months ago.

Huns Retreat Slowly Near Lessay

American Troops Digging In Before St. Lo City

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 14—(AP)—American infantrymen, slowed in their attack on St. Lo, burrowed into the ground and held resolutely to their positions two miles outside that highway centre of the Normandy peninsula today in the face of an increasing German artillery fire sweeping the approaches.

To the west, however, the American army was on the move from St. Lo to the sea, with infantry and tanks only 1 1-6 miles from the Germans' western anchor of Lessay, and Supreme Headquarters said the Germans apparently were making an "orderly withdrawal."

Late headquarters announcements mentioned no changes in the battlelines at Caen, at the eastern end of the front, and General Montgomery's British and Canadian troops apparently were at a standstill here, as the Americans were at St. Lo.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, reported from the Caen front that Bastile Day found that sector quieter than at any time since D-day.

Big Punch Coming

Southwest of Caen General Dempsey's men continue to hold firm while they regroup for the next big punch.

At a time and place chosen by the Allied commanders they may strike with superior strength across the Orne into the good tank country between Caen and Falaise where they can come to grips with German armor.

Besides being ideal ground for a decisive armored battle, the country here is extremely suitable for airfields — much more so than the beachhead zone where the landing strips are already in operation.

Iron Out Salient.

Between Lessay and St. Lo the Americans had virtually completed, after several days hard fighting, the ironing out of a German salient which had bulged toward Carentan in the middle of the beachhead.

Robots Checked During Darkness

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 14.—(AP).—London experienced its fourth successive bomb-free night last night, and while a few flying bombs fell in the southern counties and others hurtled over today, the robot raids appeared definitely checked—at least during hours of darkness.

Although there is no pretense the flying bomb problem has been solved, the daily Allied pounding of launching sites and strengthened fighter patrol along the coast clearly are having good effect.

The man in the street in London frankly expects Hitler to come up with some new "secret weapon" — perhaps a rocket bomb of five tons or more, capable of shattering a skyscraper. But military men doubt that attacks by such aerial giants could be sustained for any length of time.

Concrete structures recently captured near Cherbourg apparently were intended as launching platforms for some sort of super rocket bomb.

Huge Ramps

Allied headquarters permitted open discussion on the potentialities of these installations, but maintained official silence on the structures, which had a slightly elevated concrete ramp. 70 feet wide and 50 feet thick, 700 to 850 feet long.

The Germans now are using makeshift platforms for launching the flying bombs. From the air the platforms resemble toy construction sets. They are not nearly as elaborate as the original platforms knocked out before D-Day under the weight of 50,000 tons of bombs dropped on the Pas De Calais sector.

Lack of supply dumps may account for the tapering off of attacks on Britain during recent months.

There is no indication of the Germans experiencing shortage in these low-cost one-ton bombs, but they do face a headache in bringing them to the launching grounds, storing them and affording protection to group crews.

Allied air cover is so tight the bombs can be brought up only during darkness, and there is no place to store large numbers without detection.

Since the "vengeance" attacks began a month ago the Germans have launched more than 3,000 bombs, killing about one person per bomb. In addition thousands have been bombed out of their homes and considerable damage has been done to stores.

The Ministry of Home Security said last night civilian air raid casualties in the Unted Kngdom last month totalled 1,935 killed or believed killed, 5,906 injured and detained in hospital.

The dead included 231 children under 16. Yesterday a bomb landed in a block where children waiting to be evacuated were lined up to receive gifts before leaving. At least 12 dead were taken from the wreckage, and an eyewitness declared the queue "disappeared in the debris."

Japs Encircle Henyang Again

By SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer.

CHUNGKING, July 14 — (AP).—The Japanese again encircled the pivotal Hunan city of Hengyang on July 10, three days after the Chinese had broken the siege, and it still is surrounded, a Chinese Army spokesman said to-day.

He announced further that the Japanese now control the Canton-Hankow railway from Hengyang to the outskirts of Laiyang, 32 miles to the south, and have shifted their field headquarters from Changsha to Hengshan, 25 miles north-east of Hengyang

(A Tokyo broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the Japanese air force had begun using the airfields at both Changsha and Hengyang, compelling the American Air Forces to withdraw to other fields some 600 miles distant.)

On the Yunnan front the advancing Chinese have virtually surrounded their main objective, the ancient walled city of Tengchung, and the Chinese High Command said its eastern gate was being attacked by units which had cleared away the enemy from the city's approaches in a day of heavy fighting.

Huns Facing Certain Defeat May Start Horrible Blood Bath

By ALEX H. SINGLETON, Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 14—(AP)—Herbert Clairborne Pell, United States representative on the Allied War Crimes Commission, expressed belief today the Germans would attempt to destroy Occupied Europe before their defeat, as a preparatory measure for another war.

That destruction will be beyond anything the world has ever seen," Pell told an interviewer.

He spoke after a German military broadcast saying that "before elements of destruction can encompass the heart of our nation, we shall turn the fortress of Europe into a whirlpool sucking in all these destructive forces with a roar which will blot out eveything except the call for blood."

Pell asked bitterly:

"How long does it take to burn a city?

"All the destruction they have done in four years to London is nothing to what they could do to Paris with 200 of 300 men carrying 50-pound packs of incendiary bottles in four hours.

"I do believe they will attempt the destruction of the occupied part of Europe, their purpose being part of a systematic process of enfeeblement while they remain relatively strong. And write that in capital letters—STRONG."

Pell said he based his belief on what he saw happen to Poland while serving as Minister to Hungary, and on the study of Nazi philosophy while he was in Portugal. He said his conviction was absolute.

"They now are relatively well fed and in excellent physical condition and their country is relatively untouched," he added, "they are counting on the period after the war, when France will have to go through the pioneer stage of rebuilding roads and bridges and so forth and while other countries are shaking hands and attempting to get trade."

Canadian Area Fairly Quiet

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES AT THE CAEN FRONT, July 14 — (CP Cable) — Bastille Day saw this sector quieter than at any time since D-day and several celebrations of the French National holiday were held near the Canadian front line, with Canadian soldiers participating in the ceremonies.

While there was the usual sporadic shelling and mortarring along the front, there was a lull in major activity on the part of both sides as consolidations were carried out.

Only excitement during the night on the Caen sector was a big fire which blazed in Fauborg De Vaucelles held by the Germans across the River Orne. It was believed a German ammunition dump in a church had been set afire.

Eleven members of the German forces—including eight Poles—came over to the British lines and gave themselves up.

On roads leading toward Caen from German positions in the rear there is little movement because of constant Allied air patrols over every highway and trail.

R.C.A.F. Spitfires also came across south of Lisieux and in the resulting combat F.O. Stanley McLaty of Winnipeg claimed a probable kill.

Robots Will Not Affect War

Defensive Tactics Are Having Measure Of Success

LONDON, July 14 — (AP). — Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, said in an interview today the German flying bombs "cannot affect the outcome of the war in any way except give us one reminder that this Nazi regime is a foul and beastly thing to be wiped off the face of the earth."

He said defensive measures were "having an important measure of success and making an appreciable difference in the weight of the attack." He added that everything the Government could do was being done.

If it had not been for the work by the R.A.F., he declared, "the attacks we are suffering would have been serious to our war effort."

While Mr. Morrison was talking to reporters, members of the House of Commons again raised the question of a secret session to discuss the robots. Foreign Secretary Eden agreed to have one "if there was a wide or general demand," but he added that "it does not seem the best way to handle the matter."

Mr. Morrison said he thought the Germans were "genuinely surprised" that the robot casualties were not higher. He said persons not doing essential work "are better out of London."

Pearl Harbor Attacker Dies On Saipan

PEARL HARBOR, July 14.—(AP). —Death amidst humiliating defeat at Saipan of the Japanese admiral who led the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941 added weight today to Nippon's western Pacific reverses even as Tokyo radio betrayed increasing concern over Guam.

Admiral Nimitz disclosed last night that Vice-Admiral Chichi Nagumo, who directed the blow which opened the Pacific war, perished along with 16,000 other Japanese on Saipan.

Nimitz in an earlier communique announced the ninth straight day of task force attacks on the former U.S. outpost of Guam and last night the Tokyo radio reported battleship and carrier plane blows extending these into the 50th day.

The enemy admiral died the day before Saipan was completely conquered and the day after thousands of Japs were slain in a suicidal counter-attack on Tanapag.

"On the same day (July 7), one Rear Admiral Yano lost his life," the communique added.

"Vice Admiral Nagumo was in command of the Japanese forces which attacked Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, and was in command of the Japanese carrier task force that was destroyed in the battle of Midway. Prior to his present duty, he was commandant of the Sasebo naval base (in Japan, recently raided by B29's).

Meanwhile hungry, determined vanguards of 45,000 trapped Japanese troops in British New Guinea were smashed with heavy losses in a preliminary attempt to break Allied encirclement, but a well-planned enemy offensive appeared imminent today.

Headquarters announced the bloody checking of a Japanese assault in force Wednesday at dawn against Allied outposts 21 miles east of Aitape. The conflict, on a jungle-choked battleground, produced some of the most savage fighting of the entire New Guinea campaign.

Camp Kawartha Filled For July

A good season is being enjoyed at Camp Kawartha for Boys on Clear Lake, and the camp is filled for July with the probability that it will be filled for August too. About 70 are at the camp at the present time, including the director, N. C. Munro and camp leaders. Most of the boys are from the city, but there are also several from district communities like Havelock, and the Rotary Club in Belleville has sent up a small group.

Considerable effort is going into the project of bringing the camp buildings and equipment into first-class shape, and re-roofing of the main buildings is going on at the present time. When repairs are finished on the boathouse, a generator is to be installed which will provide electric light for the camp.

Hitler Reduces CombatReserves

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP). —Drastic reductions in the strength of supply and combat reserve units have been ordered by the Germans to stretch thier dwindling manpower resources for a three-front war, Acting War Secretary Patterson reported to-day.

A captured enemy order, he told a news conference, disclosed that several months ago the Nazis in Italy had already found it necessary to reduce their combat rear echelon by 20 per cent and all supply units without replacing them in the rear. The Germans were then preparing to make similar transfers—but without replacements—of other soldiers under 38.

On all fronts, said Mr. Patterson, the German reserves are dwindling.

But he emphasized that the enemy is still efficient.

Terror Grips Hearts Of Many

LONDON, July 14.—(CP-Reuter). —A broadcaster on the German forces radio speaking of the Russian advance, said yesterday the situation was "serious" and "the fight for life and death is one."

"The Russian flood is surging against our eastern frontier," he added. "It threatens to spill over our whole German land.

"No wonder that terror grips the hearts of many of our people at home. We soldiers know this terror for we have experienced it a thousand nights. It frightens us no longer.

"But we are determined to keep it from our loved ones at home."

"Before the peril can reach the heart of our beloved country we will turn this continent into a malestrom of destruction where only one cry is heard, the cry for blood."

Welfare Account Is Increased In June

The Welfare account for June amounted to $837.40 as compared with $792.32 for the sixth month last year. The number of persons receiving help was 85, one less than a year ago, but the number of heads of families increased from 15 to 18 and their dependents from 36 to 36. The allowance for each person was up from $9.21 to $9.85 for the month.

Expenditure from January 1 to June 30 was $8,556.60, of which $2,376.00 was borne by government and the Ontario Medical Association, leaving $5,779 against the city treasury, and $8,221 for the remaining half of the year, from the total appropriation of $14,000 by the council.

Traffic Mishap Brings $7.50 Fine

Orville Harran, Elm street, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of careless driving in North Monaghan township and was fined $7.50 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Provincial Constable Price Morris, giving evidence in the case said that Harran in his car had been following a city bus down Lock street. The bus stopped to let off passengers and when Harran went to pass it there was another car coming north and to avoid a collision, Harran swung to the right of the bus. In doing so his car collided with a woman who had just got off the bus. She was knocked down but was not injured.

The officer stated that the brakes on Harran's car were not equalized and pulled the car sideways.

Capt. Brain instituted a system under which Canadian padres carry small fingerprint kits and send back prints of otherwise unidentifiable dead—a system believed to be unique among the Allied armies.

"The wounded are quiet; the wounded do not swear; do not want dirty stories to cheer them up," he said. "The soldier is not very articulate about religion. He turns to God out of thanks, not fear. His prayer is to be able to see things through."

He said French civilians in the landing area at first were rather hesitant about receiving the invasion troops because they were convinced "Jerry would throw us back in the sea," but when they saw the landing was established their attitude changed and they came extremely helpful. The French cures are most co-operative, he added.

House Approves 26 Changes In Budget List

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 14—(CP)—Commons members yesterday leafed through the budget income tax resolutions, offered a few suggestions and laments and then approved 26 or the total of 33 changes proposed.

Revenue Minister Gibson gave the members an assurance he was considering appointment of a board to advise him in respect to income taxation appeals.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C.—York-Sunbury) led the protest against the present system which he said meant that the appeal of a taxpayer against an income tax assessment was "from Caesar to Caesar," in that the authority who made the assessment also dealt with the appeal.

The minister said that a board of referees to deal with standard profits under the excess profits act had given effective service, and he was giving consideration to setting up a similar advisory board to deal with appeals under the income war tax act.

This would be a more workable solution than an independent board such as that suggested by Mr. Hanson.

While the present act did not say the taxpayer had a definite right to appear before the Revenue Minister with an appeal, personal interviews actually were given many taxpayers.

Mr. Hanson said that in appeals it would be advisable "to get away from the atmosphere of the (taxation) department" and have an independent tribunal.

Arthur Roebuck (L.—Toronto Trinity) said he did not consider the system of appeals to the minister satisfactory and a system of judicial decisions was warranted.

Howard Green (P.C.—Vancouver South) said small business men and others were not in a position to pay a lawyer and other costs involved in an appeal. A cheap, summary appeal should be provided for.

A clause approved by the House in committee allows taxpayers to count as a deductible expense on a specified basis amounts spent on research in connection with their business.

C.C.F. members said that "bonusing" of private companies to encourage research was not sufficient and further attention should be given the encouragement of research by the government to organizations such as the National Research Council.

Finance Minister Ilsley said he did not think the government had the research facilities, or could furnish them, to undertake the work it wanted one in the next few years. Many industries were in a position to undertake research in certain lines more competently and more economically than the government.

The proposed provision to encourage research did not cover many research expenditures connected with the earning of income. Farming would be considered a business for purpose of research under the act.

Auxais, Les Camps de Losque, Es-Aubris and La Vincenterie. These advances left the American line running almost straight from a point northeast of Lessay to the Pont Hebert area northwest of St. Lo. This line was from 2½ to four miles north of the Lessay-St. Lo road.

In the Lessay region, infantry and tanks advanced from one to three miles along the coast, and cleaned out the area up to Havre de St. Germain, the deep inlet which stretches inland almost to Lessay and forms a bottleneck between the sea marshlands.

Lessay itself was under artillery fire, with the Americans but 2,000 yards from the town.

Despite the widespread American pressure along the whole front there was no indication a breakthrough had been achieved anywhere. Progress was made in costly short pushes against strong German rear guards who fought desperately for each foot of ground while the bulk of the forces withdrew.

By a trick of terrain, the more the Germans withdraw in the Cherbourg peninsula the easier their task of defence becomes, because each mile they go back they shorten the front — which now extends about 100 miles.

As long as the Caen sector remains relatively unchanged, the Germans can continue their southward withdrawal as far as Granville —25 miles from their present positions—and when they reach that point their front line would be shorter by 30 miles than it is now. This would allow a greater concentration of troops and make the Allied task of offence more difficult.

Only an advance in the Caen sector could prevent Field Marshal Rommel's deence position from becoming easier. A successful attack there would again spread the German front.

Yesterday was one of the worst flying days of the campaign over the battlefront, with only about 500 sorties being flown by small formations of aircraft. Some of the individual attacks, however, were among the heaviest of the Normandy campaign.

I want to state emphatically that there has been no effort on the part of Premier Drew or anyone else to dictate the policies of the National Progressive Party. George Drew is a very strong part of the Conservative team and a man for whom I have the highest regard.

As to dictation by any newspaper or newspaper publisher it is just plain nonsense. I might add that I do not believe it was the intention of the writer of the Ottawa Citizen article to aid or abet the smear campaign. I will, however, in the near future, have more to say to those who have deliberately set out to misrepresent the facts in regard to the party which I have the honor to lead.

4-Year-Old Boy Struck By Car

When four-year-old William Casey, of 137 Rubidge Street, ran out into th roadway following his pet dog at Townsend and Park Streets, he was struck and knocked down by a passing automobile, sustaining a slight concussion and a bruised knee.

The accident happened as Frank Whatman, 279 Park Street, was driving south on Park Street at between 20 and 25 miles an hour. He told police that he saw a boy and a dog at the south-east corner of Park and Townsend Streets, and as he approached the intersection the dog ran into the road. The child followed and although Whatman put on his brakes, he said that parked cars prevented him from swerving enough to miss hitting the little fellow.

Americans digging in on Monte Maggiore.

A bloody bayonet and hand-grenade engagement drove the foe back. Pastina was taken late yesterday after street fighting. The Americans wiped out the German garrison.

An Allied spokesman said the capture of Pastina, San Luce and the nearby heights was a flanking threat to Terriciola, German fortress town in the Era Valley, through which Allied troops have been making a major attack toward the Arno River to flank Livorno and Pisa.

The 8th Army front was without substantial change, except in the upper Tiber Valley, where British troops seized three more commanding heights. These were Monte Santa Maria, Pavalto, and Civitella, Doug How, Canadian Press war correspondent reported.

Poles near the Adriatic occupied Palazzo Simonetti and Casa Acqua. The enemy outpost at Lamontagnola was annihilated, but the line was virtualy unchanged.

Advance elements still were seven to eight miles from Ancona, which lies 100 airline miles south of the lower mouth of the Po River, ultimate German defence line in Northern Italy.

The 8th Army was reported holding firmly to Monte Castiglio Maggio, the bloody slopes of which have seen see-saw fighting in recent days.

Just south of Arezzo, British infantry ambushed an enemy patrol.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force flew 1,800 sorties yesterday and last night.

Heavy bombers hit oil storage tanks at Trieste and Porto Marghera, railyards at Brescia, Mestre, Verona, Mantua and the rail bridge at Pinzano.

Great formations of medium bombers battered bridges in an onslaught reminiscent of the destruction of communications in Central Italy.

R.A.F. heavies bombed the Lambrate rail yards east of Milan last night, leaving the target enveloped in smoke and flames. Frequent explosions were heard, indicating ammunition trains were hit.

Six Allied planes were missing. German planes failed to appear.

New Assistant Caretaker Named By Board

Appointment of J. A. Holden as assistant caretaker of the Collegiate Institute at a salary of $1,150 a year plus cost of living bonus was confirmed by the Board of Education Thursday night in their approval of the report of the property committee presented C. A. Sollitt.

Purchase of two new fire extinguishers for the Collegiate was also authorized, and minor repairs to the doors as outlined by Fire Chief Gimblett were also directed to be made by the building supervisor, Fred Finnie.

Mr. Sollitt's report also informed the Board that Mr. Finnie had been directed to proceed with the repairing of the blackboards at May's School in accordance with a request by Inspector K. S. Wightman. This action was also endorsed.

Purchase of new combination padlocks for the 300 lockers at the Collegiate, suggested by the Principal, C. S. Browne was approved. No alterations are required for the use of the locks, and the students are charged 75 cents for each lock. This charge will be repaid to each student, if returned, on graduating from or leaving the Collegiate.

Miss Margaret Westbye, secretary at the Collegiate and Vocational School, wrote that she had accepted as stenographer with the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service and expected to be called early in August. She requested leave of absence beginning August 15 "for my length of stay in the service."

Advisability Questioned

D. V. Canning questioned the advisability of binding the Board to the granting of leave of absence in this instance, and T. J. Carley remarked Miss Westbye could at least be assured of priority in the event of vacancy at the expiration of her service with the Women's Naval Auxiliary.

C. A. Sollitt, moving that the request for leave of absence be granted, remarked that the Board was a public body and should conform with parliamentary precedent. "We should try to obey its Act," he said.

"Some positions have already been filled three or four times," Mr. Carley commented.

"Punching a typewriter is not like a man enlisting for active service," Mr. Canning said. "If the position is open on her return she can be given priority."

And that was the effect of the resolution which the Board adopted, declining to grant Miss Westbye leave of absence.

Appointment of Miss Helena Gough in Miss Westbye's place, as reported by C. S. Browne, was confirmed in a resolution by Mr. Carley, seconded by Mrs. F. K. Harris.

Mr. Browne wrote that three applications were received to an advertisement, and Miss Gough's was the only one indicating suitability. He arranged with her to begin her duties on July 17 at $840 a year and cost of living bonus. "These arrangements have been made after consultation with the chairman of the Board and chairman of the committee on appointments. I regret the necessity of acting without authority and consent of the Board and respectfully recommend that this action be confirmed."

The resignation of Mrs. Minnie Lister as janitress of the Collegiate and Vocational School was accepted.

Request Deferred

Request by Miss Mary Squire of the Public School teaching staff for one years absence was left in abeyance by a resolution by Dr. C. M. Scott, seconded by Mr. Sollitt, pending the receipt of further information as to the reason for such a long absence.

Miss Squire's letter was as follows: "I have been advised by Dr. H. G. Carleton to ask for leave of absence from the staff for a period of one year. Thanking you or same. Sincerely yours."

An explanatory letter from Dr. Carleton in regard to Miss Squire's application was as follows: "After a very careful examination of the above teacher of your staff I have advised her that she ask for leave of absence for a period of one year. There is no doubt her condition is aggravated by her injury some time ago, and I feel that with a year's rest from teaching her condition will clear up, and that is all that will do it."

Mr. Canning said he was willing to consider leave until Christmas, but the Board decided to "request further information" before granting any leave.

Teachers Sick

Mr. Wightman reported 22 days lost through sickness or other causes by the members of the public school staff and Miss Margaret Westbye, secretary at the collegiate, reported the teachers all on duty during the month.

The two school nurses reported for the month of June 1,080 classroom inspections; 35 children were excluded for various causes; 154 minor accidents were attended to and necessary dressings applied; 120 vision tests given and 278 home visits made of which the nurses played an important part in selecting of children for the tonsil clinic conducted by the Lions Club.

Miss M. J. V. Jory in her report for the year in Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Prince of Wales and Park Hill Road schools made 4,642 classroom inspections; excluded 247 children for coughs and colds, 169 for skin infections; 35 for suspicious rash and 155 for uncleanliness; 542 minor accidents were attended to; 1,979 simple vision tests were made; 1,566 hearing tests given and 1,579 home visits made. In April Miss Jory assisted Dr. Robert Nott in giving 586 Dick tests; assisted in giving five inoculations one week apart to 178 children and assisted Dr. R. A. Kelly in giving final Dick tests to 89 pupils.

Dr. Olive M. Rea reported 194 complete physical examinations; with 181 parents present; 35 children were given special examinations. 15 children showed defects and were marked for observation.

Dental Report

Dr. S. J. Graham, the school dental officer, reported results of the checkup in King George school where 409 pupils were examined. One hundred and ninety-two of these pupils were found to have their teeth OK.; 75 children were treated by family dentists; 66 at the school clinic; 63 are still needing treatment; 211 fillings were made with 51 extractions.

During the school year Dr. Graham examined 2,848 children, completed 1,934 amalgam fillings, 32 temporary fillings, 163 treatments, 211 porcelain fillings, and treated at the school clinic 516 children, 461 deciduous teeth were extracted and 112 permanent.

Fred Revoy, school attendance officer, reported 26 children absent through illness during June; 34 absent for home help; two truants and eight absent through parental neglect. No home permits were granted and of the 10 public school applications for employment certificates four were granted and of the four made in the collegiate one was granted.

School Attendance

An attendance of 801 for June was reported at the collegiate and vocational school with 557 in the academic department and 244 in the vocational. Queen Alexandra School with an average attendance of 96.18 per cent, the highest of the year, led the public schools; King George had 94.92 per cent; Park Hill, 94.81 per cent; Queen Mary, 93.73 per cent; Prince of Wales, 93.39 per cent; King Edward, 92.61 per cent and Central 96.85 per cent. The total attendance in the public schools 2,888.

War savings stamps were sold during the month to the value of $2,061.50. At the beginning of February the public schools undertook to sell $7,500 for the purchase of a fighter plane. The amount sold in these five months was $9,173.50 and the total sales for the school year, $13,389.

With The Tourists

By DON McGIBBON

"The Canadian system of food rationing definitely has it all over the American method," said J. L. McNally, Detroit Michigan, who was in Peterborough this morning doing some shopping.

"The cost-of-living in general would appear to be way down in Canada as compared to the United States, and clothing costs in particular please me very much," he said.

Here with Mrs. McNally, and his sister, Hilda, of Westport, Ontario, Mr. McNally said it was heaven to find meat not on the rationed list over here, and that as a result, most of their meals have consisted of meat, much the luxury in the States right now.

"Some of your commodities are improving too," said Mrs. McNally, "and this year is the first time I've been able to enjoy a Canadian cigarette."

"I only wish the war would end soon, so we could stay here longer," said Mrs. R. S. Pringle, Bradford, Pa., in the city this morning with Mr. Pringle. The two have a cottage at the head of Stoney Lake and have been vacationing here for two weeks.

Mrs. Pringle said prices in Canada seemed to be much lower than in the States, and pointed out Americans pay 16c per quart for milk, while the cost here is down 6c. Meat rationing not being in effect here, Mrs. Pringle said she had already enjoyed some nice beeksteak, and roast beef. (These are the only two meats rationed in the States). Cheese is another food on the Americans' restricted list, and since the Pringles are fond of cheese, they have been enjoying all they want of it while in Canada.

"One thing I've noticed while in Peterborough is the thriftiness of the people," commented Mrs. Pringle. "I've been doing a great deal of shopping over at the Farmer's Market, and although prices are much more reasonable than where we come from, and quality is good, I was impressed most by the thriftiness of both the buyers and the sellers," she said.

Mr. Pringle is most pleased right now, about that 20 lb. muskie he hooked the other day. "It wasn't as big as another one that got away," he pointed out, "but I guess everyone says that, don't they?" he smiled.

Mr. and Mrs. Pringle have been vacationing here since 1931.

Purchased Blankets

"Have I enjoyed shopping here? ....just take a look at those lovely blankets I just bought," declared Mrs. E. G. Beach, Warren, Ohio. "Prices are low, and there seems to be plenty of goods in the shops, and as a result, we tourists are having a grand time shopping. Since we can take a hundred dollars worth of merchandise back across the border with us, you can bet we're doing all the shopping we have time for," she said.

Mrs. Beach is here on vacation with Mr. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hurlinger, Cleveland, Ohio, and Betty Jane Beach, and Elsworth Beach, from Warren. They are staying at Beachwood Hotel and summer place, which their son, C. M. Beach, founded and operated for eighteen years, until his death last autumn. The resort is on Deer Bay and this particular party has been holidaying there for more than 19 years.

"Oh yes, I think the cost-of-living for Canadians is lower than for Americans," said Mr. Beach, "and as far as I know, the ladies have been enjoying the shopping very much... they've been spending enough time at it," he hinted.

The tourists caught 120 bass within the first week of vacation.

Pretty Soft Time

Mrs. P. H. Miller, Hamilton, Ohio, Miss M. C. Collins, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Mrs. G. C. Sternaid, Shaker Heights, Ohio, are three American tourists who agree that Canadians have a "pretty soft time" of food rationing.

"It's nothing like the States," said Miss Colins, "and I think the fact you're not rationed on shoes, cheese, and meat is simply wonderful."

The ladies explained the American system of rationing by points, and said they thought our method of coupons with time limits to be much more convenient.

"There's only one thing I miss," offered Mrs. Sternaid, "and that's the second cup of coffee. Why with coffee so plentiful in the States, I've always wondered why you people were rationed on it. And we've never been bothered with tea rationing," she said, adding that coffee in Canada was different from "good Yankee coffee."

Mrs. Miller wondered if she could get apricots here, as they were absolutely unavailable in the United States. She too likes a second cup of coffee, which, she says, is the one and only thing Americans wouldn't enjoy in Canada.

"Just the same," she said, "I think shopping here is just fine, and as for your rationing system, well, you don't know how lucky you are."

Two Students To Obtain Help

Two girls have been recommended to the executors of the W. G. Morrow estate for financial assistance toward their secondary education, G. W. Craw, chairman, reported to the Board of Education Thursday night.

Their identity is known only to Mr. Craw, Carl S. Browne, principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, and K. S. Wightman, Public School Inspector. One of these girls is already attending the Collegiate Institute and the other has just passed her entrance examinations.

The late W. G. Morrow requested in his will that certain help be provided for Peterborough school children whose parents were unable to provide for them the advantage of continuing their studies into higher grades, and if the executors accept the present recommendation these girls will be the first students to share in Mr. Morrow's provision.

Mr. Craw told his associates that he had made enquiry from Mr. Wightman and Mr. Browne as to whether they knew of any pupils whose circumstances, and whose school record, proposed them for the W. G. Morrow benefaction.

As to whether the Board should endorse the recommendation of the two girls, T. J. Carley said he understood it to be a matter entirely for the chairman to deal with and in conjunction with Mr. Wightman and Mr. Browne.

"I wouldn't want to know the names of these children myself", Mr. Carley said, "and we do not wish their names to be made known in any way outside of those who have to consider them."

Mr. Craw said the section of the will of Mr. Morrow mentioning aid for students was pointed out to the executors, and in their turn they suggested the recommendations for assistance be made to them. The decision finally rests with them on the recommendations going forward from the three officials designated by the will for that responsibility.

Winners Of Prizes

Mr. Wightman reported to the Board the names of the pupils of the entrance classes of the Public Schools who qualified in their recent examinations for the Board's prizes, each receiving $10 worth of books. They are: Allan Lavis, Central; Helen Dummitt, King Edward; Jean Brown, King George; Ethel Fine, Prince of Wales (Mr. Windrim); Wilfrid Woodcock, Prince of Wales (Mr. Mattice); Dorothy Sanders, Queen Alexandra; Doreen Goodfellow, Queen Mary.

English Lord Would Jail 50,000 Gestapo

LONDON, July 14 (CP) — Lord Vansittart, exponent of harsh dealing with the Germans, demanded in the House of Lords today that 50,000 members of the Gestapo (secret police) be imprisoned after the war "until the Allies decide which of them should be executed and which deported to some destination like Devil's Island.

The former permanent undersecretary of the Foreign Office estimated there are 200,000 members of the Gestapo. He said the Allies should take a fourth of them as "the first instalment."

The occasion of his outbursts was the debate on the killing by the Germans of 50 British airmen, including six Canadians, in the prisoner of war camp, Stalagluft III, last March, which Lord Vansittart called "coldblooded butchery" by the Gestapo.

Lord Cranborne, replying for the government, said: "We intend to root out utterly whole that devilish organization (Gestapo)." It is our firm intention that those responsible for those crimes shall pay the full penalty for them and I personally should be very glad to see the handing over of a substantial proportion of these odious men."

He added, however, that he could not "commit the government or Allies at the present stage."

CANADA'S LATEST V.C.—A proud and grateful British Empire today honored Major John Keefer Mahony, V.C., 33, former newspaper reporter of New Westminster, who led a company of his hometown regiment in establishing a bridgehead over the Melfa River, Italy, on May 24 last, and of holding it against repeated tank and infantry counter attacks and the withering fire of German 88mm self-propelled guns, mortars, machine guns and rifle fire. Awarded the Victoria Cross for his resourcefulness and personal courage, he is the third Canadian to receive this honor in this war. (Canadian Army Photo)

Hand Badly Crushed

COBOURG, July 14 — (ENS) — John German, who is training for a commission at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, had his right hand badly crushed when it was caught in the mechanism of one of the big guns during training. At first it was thought that amputation of his fingers might be necessary but later it was found that it could be avoided. He is the son of Judge J. C. M. German of Cobourg.

Fear Hitler

MOSCOW, July 14 — (CP). — Fear of incurring Hitler's wrath has outweighed the prospect of captivity among German commanders and is one of the reasons why the Red Army has been able to capture 19 generals in 20 days, according to reports here. The Russians are scrupulously observing the conditions for imprisoned officers.

U.S. Would Lift Restrictions On World News

NEW YORK, July 14 — (AP). — The New York Times said yesterday the United States would ask other Allied Nations—and compel enemy countries — to remove or minimize all restrictions on the free exchange of news after the war.

In a dispatch from Washington the Times said that, as a step toward agreement by the United Nations, Great Britain would be asked to open discussions on the subject here this fall.

The conference, the newspaper added, would be aimed at discussion of the question of cable and radio rates and the drafting of a convention on the freedom to report and transmit the truth in and to all parts of the world.

Great Britain already has indicated its willingness to participate, the Times said.

"The American draft of the terms of surrender for Germany, now before the European Advisory Commission in London, contains a clause demanding that the Germans abandon all control over the communications outside their own frontiers and give the German people the right to listen freely to foreign broadcasts.

"The American terms of surrender also demand complete control by the Allies over all German communications within that country. These same stipulations were written into the terms of surrender for Italy....

Part of Plan.

"It is clear these requirements are only part of a wider plan under which the United States will ask the United Nations to co-operate, in removing all barriers to free news reporting in all countries and in guaranteeing that news may be moved quickly and cheaply from all parts of the world to all other parts over a fair and unfettered world communications system."

The Times said that it is understood that the aims pertaining to enemy nations have been accepted by other members of the European Advisory Commission, Britain, and Russia.

James L. Fly, United States Federal Communications Commission chairman, the Times reported, has proposed that all nations at the peace table must accept these basic principles:

"A uniform rate for all messages throughout the world; 'low rates' with a maximum of a 'few cents per word to any gateway in world'; creation of 'instantaneous radio communication beteen all important areas in the globe'; establishment of uniform and low press rates throughout the world, and, 'finally free ingress and egress of information and freedom for all peoples of the world to communicate with each other,' with facilities equally available to citizens of all nations 'without any form of preference between them.'"

Cobourg Kinsmen Hold Big Carnival

COBOURG, July 14—(ENS)—Cobourg Kinsmen Club carnival, held on the public school grounds, was patronized by a large crowd last night. The carnival was held on two nights, Wednesday and Thursday, but due to rain on Wednesday many did not attend, believing it had been postponed. Prizes were of good quality and the various games were quite popular.

The carnival will help finance the eyesight conservation survey which the Kinsmen Club has undertaken for public and separate school children. Each child will receive free eye examination, which means that 800 children will know whether their eyesight is normal or requires attention. In extremely needy cases the Kinsmen club will furnish spectacles. The eye examinations will be made by Gordon Garnet and Joe Stewart.

Bewdley Boys Are Fighting In France

BEWDLEY, July 14 (ENS)—In a letter received by Mr. William Dixon from his grandson, Pte. Bob Bullock, in Normandy, he spoke of hearing from his brother, Pte. Bill Bullock in Italy. Pte. Frank (Red) Davis is with him in Italy. Both were well, and in Normandy Bob Bullock and Tom Davis were at that time in touch with the latter's brother, Ernie Davis, killed July 5. These boys are all with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Cook received word that their sons, Norman and Ross Cook had spent some time together.

In the obituary of Pte. Ernest Davis, killed in action in Normandy July 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, Bewdley, two members of the family were omitted among the survivors, they are Mrs. William Silver (Edna) of Port Hope and Carl Davis of Cambellcroft. Two weeks ago Mrs. Davis received money for flowers intended for Mother's Day from her son Ernie. This is the first Bewdley casualty. Much sympathy is extended the bereaved family.

Bewdley Lodge 110 Years Old

BEWDLEY, July 14— (ENS).— Bewdley may boast of one of the oldest Orange lodges in the Dominion. With the exception of one it is the oldest in a wide area.

Ogilvie Gowan came to Canada in 1830 as Grand Master and up to January 1834 had organized 130 lodges in support of the British Crown. On January 18, 1834, he founded the Bewdley Orange Lodge, which is still a very active society. Many of the other early established groups have long been out of existence. Records show that a Twelfth of July has never been missed by the Bewdley lodge in its one hundred and ten years.

The oldest member of the Bewdley Orange Lodge is William Dixon. Mr. Dixon has been an active member for the past fifty-four years, becoming a member at the age of twenty. He is the proud possessor of all the Royal Black degrees, which is all that can be obtained in Canada. For five years he was Master of the Bewdley lodge, another five Master of the District of Port Hope and for many years has been secretary of Bewdley lodge. During all these fifty-four years Mr. Dixon has never missed a Twelfth of July celebration. This year about twenty-five Orangemen from Bewdley journeyed in a truck to Hastings where they took part in the parade.

The death of Pte. Ernie Davis in Normandy this past week is deeply felt by this lodge. He, as well as his brothers, also overseas, have been members since an early age and were the first from the Bewdley district to enlist.

Mr. Dixon's grandsons, Pte. William and Pte. Bob Bullock, also Orangemen from an early age, enlisted early in the war from Bewdley. They are serving in Italy and Normandy.

Cleaning Little Lake

The City Council is to be congratulated on its decision to take steps to clean Little Lake, which has been contaminated with sewage for many years. Dr. A. E. Berry of the Ontario Department of Health is to be asked what steps should be taken to purify the lake and keep the water clean; as a sanitary engineer of experience and high reputation, Dr. Berry should be able to give the city the best possible advice. In its present condition Little Lake is a potential threat to the health of a large part of Peterborough.

Because of its dirty condition Little Lake cannot be used as it should be for the pleasure of the people who live near it. This is a pity, because the lake is beautiful in itself, and is one of the amenities of the city. A great deal of money has been spent in one way and another to show the lake to best advantage. Where once there stood an unsightly wharf and lumber mill, there is now a pleasant stretch of park; a good job was done when Point St. Charles was cleared and planted with trees which, in a few years, should make it a beauty-spot; the Dominion Government built a good wharf off Crescent street, and also put a fine stone facing along the brink of the lake from the present site of George Street Wharf to the cemetery. The lake itself is placid and beautiful and could give a great deal of pleasure to swimmers and rowers if it were clean.

The Council has made a beginning on a job which has been hanging fire for some years, and we hope that it will be carried through to a successful conclusion without any intervening period of needless delay. When Dr. Berry makes his report let us get to work at once, without once allowing the report to hover near a pigeon-hole.

A Political Appraisal

Elsewhere on this page we publish an appraisal of the political situation in Canada, written by Mr. W. R. Givens, of Kingston, formerly published of the Standard in that city and a lifelong supporter of the Conservative party. We think that what Mr. Givens has to say will be enlightening to many of our readers who may be inclined to look at the approaching federal election from an exclusively Ontario viewpoint. It is significant that Mr. Givens, in spite of his firm allegiance to Conservatism, speaks carefully weighed words of praise for the Government which is now in power and which, in his opinion, has done a magnificent job for Canada during the war.

We should also like to draw attention to the fact that Mr. Givens, as a Conservative, does not feel that his party has been best served by the policy which has kept John Bracken out of Parliament. When Mr. Bracken was chosen to lead a national party it was undoubtedly a shrewd move for him to spend a few months in acquainting himself with the national scene, in order to facilitate his change from a provincial to a national political figure. But like Amos and Andy in one of their exploits, "it seems like he paused too long", and the expectancy which his waiting aroused turned to disillusion and the fear, probably unjust, that he had cold feet. Many Conservatives beside Mr. Givens saw the danger of that prolonged wait.

Mr. Givens concludes with the hope that Canadians will do some serious thinking before they go to the polls at the next election, and that they will bear the peace conference in mind. A peace conference is no place for untried men to represent an ambitious country.

Ten Lives For One

One of the characteristics of the Japanese soldier which makes him, in the popular estimation, a dreadful opponent is his contempt for his own life and for the lives of his comrades. We of the occidental countries prefer not to die in battle if we can help it; we learned long ago the lesson which Bernard Shaw presses home in Arms and The Man — that the first duty of a good soldier is to keep alive as long as he can. Not so the Jap; he looks upon death in battle as a glorious opportunity to assure his eternal salvation, and he does not hesitate to throw away his life for a trifling gain, or no gain at all, for his side.

This has been very well illustrated in the recent battle on Saipan. The Japanese garrison there numbered 20,000 men, and when they saw that their situation was untenable they refused to surrender; they continued to fight with inadequate weapons, charging the American emplacements with grenades and even with improvised spears, and now that the island has fallen it is safe to say that not more than a few score of the garrison were taken alive. The American dead number about 2,000; the Japanese almost 20,000. To pay ten lives for one and then lose is not very good war, however much it may appeal to the ferocious spirit of the Japs.

The fanaticism which seeks death rather than surrender is sometimes a formidable element in a fighting force. But it is a spirit which cannot be employed indiscriminately, for now that the Japanese are not having things all their own way there will be many Saipans. Do the Japs reckon on losing ten men for every one they kill of the United Nations' forces? If so they still have something to learn about fighting. The tendency of our occidental commanders is to save lives whenever it can possibly be done; the Japanese system seems to include a foolish waste of life. Even with their millions they cannot win on that principle.

On Reading Speeches

Every twelve months or so the press of Canada comments on the bad parliamentary habit of reading speeches; sometimes we wonder if the subject might not be enlarged to include the parliamentary custom of making speeches under any circumstances. So many of the utterances in the Commons are dull, vapid and repetitious that if three-quarters of the members never spoke at all, nothing of value would be lost. However, we send men to Parliament to speak, and speak they must. But why do they speak so badly?

A speech which is read from a manuscript never has the zest and ring of one which is delivered from a few notes. And it is also a fact that debate—which is one of the chief means of advancing the business of Parliament — is out of the question when members read what they have to say. We also have a theory that speeches which are read from manuscript not only seem longer, but actually are longer, than those which are given extempore, or from notes. The average M.P. has not enough ideas to keep him going for more than five or ten minutes if he has to rely on his wits; but if he has a wad of manuscript in his hand he is able to wade through all that he has thought and read and heard for weeks past, while the business of the House waits for him.

We really do not know whether parliamentary oratory was better in the past than it is now, or not. There is always a tendency to exalt the past at the expense of the present. But if it was no better it certainly cannot have been worse. There is a limit to what human flesh can bear, and there is no record of a Speaker of the Canadian Commons having died of boredom, or having gone mad from outraged sensibilities.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some people are asking what Senator Bouchard will do next. The Ottawa Journal suggests that he might run for mayor of Toronto.

Canada's cost of living index dropped from 119.2 to 119.0 during May. But don't squander it! You will be expected to show the difference in your Bond purchases.

An Illinois man was arrested for going about the streets without any clothes on. The technical charge, we understand, was female impersonation.

A dispatch tells us of some news which has been picked up "by a CBC listening pest". It's their talking pests that we object to.

Comparing the British pub with the Canadian beverage room, the Stratford Beacon-Herald comments on the fact that the pub is compelled by its license to supply food, drink and recreation, and that it is quite possible to go into one and have a meal without ordering a drink of any kind. This is so, and it is also true that pubs stock soft drinks for those who want them; we have seen very considerable quantities of milk consumed in a pub at lunch-time! What would happen to a man who asked for milk in a beverage room?

The Smell of Hay

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

THIS is haying time. How melancholy to realize that millions of Canadians will see no magic in those words, will not know what haying means nor smell in memory the brave perfume of it! How far have we advanced along the road of industrialization, urbanization and demoralization when most of our people have never felt a pitchfork in their hands!

But to the Canadians who have come off the land haying days are a moping memory, the supreme festival of the year. Haying was hard work but it became a kind of game, a race to get the hay into the barn, and to the lonely farm it brought new faces, the boys of the haying crew, and everybody behaved as if it were a holiday.

THOSE were the days before modern machinery. On the farm where I worked as a boy there was not even a mower. We reaped the fields with scythes; and I have always held since then that no man really knows hay until he has learned to scythe. It is the perfection of the athlete's art, the final co-ordination of muscles, and it has in it more rhythm than a symphony.

Tirelessly, like a well-balanced machine, the farmer swings his scythe, turning it upwards at the end of the swing to lay the hay in a neat windrow, and with every swing of his body he sees the line of his attacked pushed back a few inches and thus, hour by hour, he advances across the field. It is a battle against the massed hosts of the hay from dawn to dark, in which the muscles of one man seem pitted against the whole forces of nature. All the satisfaction of conquest has been lost with the disappearance of the scythe.

After such labour, how sweet was the noonday rest! The right kind of Canadian farm had a brook running through it, with cool trees and water chuckling over the boulders and perhaps a trout or two dozing in the shade. The farmer's wife had made up a special drink flavoured with lemon and (for some mysterious therapeutic reason of her own) with oatmeal, which was supposed to cool the blood. Or perhaps we had brought out a crock of buttermilk which was sunk in the stream to keep it cold. Then, with some loaves of fresh bread, homemade, sitting rather heavily on the stomach when we came out into the heat of the hayfield again.

THEN came the job of cocking the hay — a skilled operation if each cock was to be built like a roof, to turn the rain. Then the loading of wagons, the lift of hay into the loft and the joy of leaping into it from the rafters. How sad to think that many Canadian boys have never known these delights! And still fewer Canadians, I suppose, have slept on a haycock in a summer field. It was the great English actress, Ellen Terry, who first declared that no one had known life or seen the universe whole unless he had slept thus, but I daresay our ancestors knew it long before her time.

On a haycock, better than on any other bed, you can look at the swarming stars of the summer sky and see how the bowl of the heavens tilts slowly during the night, a fact unsuspected by the sleepers on spring mattresses. You can smell the deep emanation of the earth, breathing deeply in the darkness, the smell of the ground itself and, over all, the clean perfume of the new-mown hay, compared with which all the bottled perfumes, the double-distilled scents of commerce and the aroma of beautiful women are garish and cheap.

You can hear the secret night sounds of the earth, the whir of night hawks, the last sleepy chirp of robins, the hoot of owls and the click of crickets. On a haycock you sink back into the earth and become a part of it and feel yourself whirled through the emptiness of space upon its safe carriage. You go back to the earth almost like the buried corpse and feel the sense of eternity while you are still alive.

BUT I do not expect anyone but a grown-up farm boy to understand this. Perhaps even the modern farmer, with his great gasoline machines, has forgotten it. Perhaps it is only possible to understand the glory of haying time if you labour with your hands, and certainly you can never understand it unless you are young. The city person sniffs the new hay as he drives his car along a country road, and he says it is a pleasant smell. As well say that the Rockies are pretty or, as one of Dickens' characters said, that Shakespeare was a clever fellow. The smell of hay, oh, poor underprivileged city dweller, is the smell of nature and creation, it is the glory of the year's whole growth, it is the memory of our youth when the world was magical.

A Bird Of A Boner

In matters of politics, The Toronto Globe and Mail may not be considered editorially infallible. Indeed, a great many critics will consider that to be something of an understatement. When it comes to matters of science, however, the Toronto morning paper is usually careful and frequently exact.

But alas! there is always the exception to prove the rule, and The Globe and Mail committed it yesterday. Expressing delight over the recently publicized fact that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery is a bird-lover, its editorial went on to discuss the ornithological and other likes of other famous Britons, and finally speculated briefly on similar penchants that might be displayed by German generals.

"We doubt," said The Globe and Mail, "that any of the High Command of Hitler's Reichswehr has a love for, or even interest in, birds. Anyhow, if Field Marshal Rommel or Field Marshal von Keitel keeps any bird as a pet, we would expect it to be some bird of prey.... Indeed the only appropriate feathered pet for the headquarters of the Reichswehr pet for the headquarters of the Reichwehr would be a condor, the scavenger vulture which lives by picking the flesh off the bones of the Hindu dead when they are exposed, according to traditoinal ritual, on platforms near Buddhist temples."

Now there IS a multiple-howler of top flight! In the first place, the condor is South American, not Asiatic. In the second, it is the Parsees, not the Hindus, who place their dead on the Towers of Silence. In the third, these towers have nothing whatever to do with the Buddhist temples, which are places sacred to another religion again. It would appear that The Globe and Mail should be "given the bird," which is the English equivalent of raising the Bronx cheer.

DROWNS THE BAD STUFF

"You don't make very good music with that instrument," said a by-stander to the man with the bass drum as the band ceased to play.

"No," admitted the drummer, "I know I don't; but I drown a heap of bad music."

POSTWAR PLANNING IN BERCHTESGADEN —By Thomas

The Political Outlook

(By W. R. GIVENS, former Editor and Publisher of the Kingston Standard)

NOT in years has the political situation in Canada been more involved and the political future more obscure than at the present time. Despite that a devastating global war is being waged in which Canada is terrifically and gloriously engaged, there has suddenly sprung up in the Dominion an intense yearning for political power and position on the part of numerous politicians and near politicians with the result that already the party muezzins from their minarets are calling the faithful—not to prayer, for they realize that elections are not won by prayers—but to action, that they may be prepared when the hour strikes for a Dominion-wide general election.

To attempt to forecast with any degree of accuracy the possible course of events when the election comes were worse than futile, for nothing—not even a horse race—is so uncertain as the outcome of an election. It is possible, however, to consider some factors which are likely to influence the voters, apart altogether from the purely political factors. The most vital and compelling of these is that the world war is still on; that it has not yet been won; that before it is won many more precious lives will be sacrificed, many more homes devastated and a far greater burden of grief and misery be imposed upon the civilized world. Under the circumstances it is manifest that here in Canada, as elsewhere, there must be no letdown in the war effort and in sending forward all necessary war equipment—arms, munitions, etc.—and the fullest measure of reinforcements for our troops at the front when these become necessary. We may depend upon it that the men and women of Canada, thousands upon thousands of whom have fathers and sons, brothers and sisters, overseas will not be unmindful of this and will have little patience with any political or other effort that will distract from the continued carrying through of these most necessary deeds.

A SECOND factor to be considered in connection with the possible election result is that there is a very grave danger that we may be bedevilled by rival groups in Parliament each clamoring for recognition—C.C.F., Bloc Populaire, Union Nationale, Social Credit, New Democracy and Labour Progressive, to say nothing of the several smaller groups in Quebec who have got into one another's hair and have apparently outgrow their political britches. Add to these outgrow their political britches. Add to these at once arises the spectre of a stalemate with vacillating, unsatisfactory and compromise legislation of a kind that led to the undoing and final downfall of France. Ultimately, indeed, in view of the growing strength of the C.C.F., and the odd votes cast here and there for the other groups, it may mean that, alone, neither Liberal, Conservative nor C.C.F. will be able to form a government and that in self defence the Liberals and Conservatives will be obliged to join forces to carry on at least until the war is over and the peace made. Certainly it is unthinkable that either Liberal or Conservative would join with C.C.F., with the socialistic, communistic spirit that the new policies of the C.C.F. clearly disclose.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN this connection an examination of the records and the position of the three chief parties, C.C.F., Conservative and Liberal, may not be without profit—and it may here be said that in this examination the endeavor has been made to make it as fairly impartial as possible. Taking first the C.C.F., a talk with the man on the street will disclose that many former Conservatives and Liberals are wavering in their allegiance to their one-time loves and that there is a strong feeling among them that it is time for a change. We are told by the C.C.F. and their new-found followers that the masses are on the march and that the underdog of yesteryear is no longer content to remain the underdog but is resolved, if his vote will help to bring it about, that rights and privileges long denied him must no longer be denied. Thus it is that there recently has been a strong swing to the Left in the Dominion and that it seems likely to be a continuing one as witness the last Ontario provincial election and the recent C.C.F. landslide in Saskatchewan. Higher wages, better living and housing conditions, the right to unionize, the right of collective bargaining, unemployment insurance, old age pensions—these and the like are planks in the C.C.F. platform which make strong appeal to many voters.

❖ ❖ ❖

COMING to the Progressive Conservative party, the thought that first suggests itself is that if the revivification of the party under its new leadership had set in before the C.C.F. movement had got so thoroughly under way there would be more hope for it than appears at the moment, though undoubtedly it will increase its numerical following in the next House, as it deserves to do. It has already selected some very able candidates and its leaders have set up a challenging and sound platform. Unfortunately most of its appealing planks had earlier been enunciated by the C.C.F. or had actually been put into effect by the Liberal government. Thus their effectiveness had largely been nullified. Over and above all this has been the weakness of the party in its representation in the House of Commons, where the opposition has been carried on by a few able and intensely loyal Conservatives who rendered excellent service but who were sadly handicapped by the absence of their leader, Mr. Bracken, from the scene. That Mr. Bracken's failure to assume active House leadership disappointed many of his followers and had disheartening effect upon Conservatives throughout the country is certain.

❖ ❖ ❖

AS for the Liberal party it is a foregone conclusion that there will be a sloughing off of their support, some of it going to the C.C.F.'s, some to the Conservatives. There is nothing, however, to warrant either the assumption or the statement that this means, inevitably, the defeat of government, though those who hold to that view are quick to point out that a war-time government always suffers in an election following war. Higher taxes (even though inevitable and necessary if the war is to be carried to a successful conclusion), rationing of food, gasoline, liquor, etc., regimentation, rent control, price fixing, freezing wages and compulsory saving—these, it is declared, will bring the government down. As against this is the generally admitted fact that the government has done a magnificent work in the conduct of the war—in the tremendous expansion of the navy and of the air forces and in the raising of a huge army, all alike bringing honour and glory to Canada. Then, too, there has been the planning (and securing) of the enormous industrial production that is to our credit.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt, Premier Churchill, Premier Curtin of Australia, Premier Fraser of New Zealand, Premier Smuts of South Africa have freely testified to this, while industrialists, statesmen, military, naval and air experts from other countries have re-echoed these praises. Whom, then, ask supporters of the government, are we to believe? The partisan opponents of the government? Or the great leaders of the Allied powers who not only are loud in their praises of Canada's war effort but loud also in their praise of Premier King himself who is at the head of the government and who is in closer touch with the British prime minister and the president of the United States than was any other Canadian leader before him.

Surely, the able and responsible leaders of the Government of Canada that has carried its heavy burden of war for these long devastating years have well earned the right and the privilege to see the war through to the end as well as to sit at the peace table with those other Allied leaders with whom they have long been associated and whose views they so well know. If we want Premier Churchill and President Roosevelt to be at that peace table—as we do—then, as fair-minded Canadians, we should, with becoming pride, wish our own premier to be there to help carry through the determined policies.

WHATEVER our answer at the polls, of one thing we must make certain and that is that there shall be no lag in our war efforts, no lessening of the force of our drive to help end for all time the endeavor of the Huns and the Japs to dominate the world. At such a time as this when much of the world is bathed in blood and tears and there are yet dire and deadly days ahead of us, it seems regrettable that an election must be held but, since it must be, it is to be hoped that when we cast our ballots we shall have some regard for the eternal fitness of things and, quitting ourselves as good citizens, put country before party.

WHAT'S IN A NAME!

The Advance has frequently asked that the names of pupils in school promotion lists should not be made up with the surname first and the Christian name following. The incongruity of this Chinese method is shown by three following lines from one school report, these lines reading: "Kiss Nancy, Knott Dorothy, Orr Mary."—Timmins Advance.

TWO JOKES

Two Anglo-American stories. A farmer in a remote corner of Southern England said, I'm sure in all good faith, "I gets on well. I like these Americans over here, but I somehow can't get along at all with the white fellows they've got along with them." The second is very simple. An Englishman, seeing a cheerful American, asked, "Why do you Americans all look so cheerful?" The American replied, "Well, you see, we go back to the United States after this show. You have to stay on here."—Critic, in New Statesman and Nation.

GIFT OF C.P.R.

The natural resources department of Canadian Pacific Railway is following out the practice established in both the Eastern and Western irrigation projects when it makes an offer to the farmers of the C.P.R. Lethbridge, Raymond, Magrath and Coaldale areas to give them the project as a going concern.

The position of the company seems to be that it has passed the stage where it is in the land business in a large way, and having proven that irrigation is feasible and practicable in the plains area of Southern Alberta, it is willing to forego its investment in irrigation canals and headworks and hand them over to the farmers who benefit from the water rights. In the Eastern and Western projects along the C.P.R. main line at Brooks and Strathmore the company has given to the farmers irrigation works worth many millions of dollars.—Lethbridge Herald.

A Bible Message

And, behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life? And he said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.

He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, Thou shalt do no murder. Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness. Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?

Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me. But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions. (Matt. 19: 16-22.)

How much better is it to get wisdom than gold! and to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver!....

Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it. (Prov. 16: 16, 22.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A member of a firm which makes novelties rushed into his partner's office with a rough model of something he had just thought of. It was pretty complicated.

"Look!" he said, "I've got an inkwell, calendar, small clock, paper-weight, pencil-sharpener—see! At the back of the calendar — place for stamps. Nice, eh? And, look, this bronze dog is a fine decoration—and off comes his head for cigarets."

The other partner studied the contraption for a long time.

"It's superb," he said at last, but he added, sadly: "It lacks something. I don't know what, but—ah! I've got it!" He pounded the table enthusiastically. "From somewhere should come music."

A man went to the bar and ordered a Martini, drank it, chewed up the bowl of the glass, and threw the stem over his shoulder. He continued this for about six Martinis and noticed the bartender was staring at him.

"I guess you think I'm crazy, don't you?" he asked.

"I sure do," the bartender replied, "the stems are the best part."

Wright-Peterson

HAVELOCK, July 14 (ENS) — A wedding of much local interest took place recently at Erskine and American United Church, Montreal, when Miss Julia Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Peterson, of Kenora, Ontario, was united in marriage to Mr. W. Gerald Wright son of Mrs. W. J. Wright and the late Mr. Wright of Havelock, with Rev. Leslie Pidgeon officiating. Following a reception at the Ritz—Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Wright left to spend their honeymoon at Lake-of-the-Woods, Kenora, Ontario.

Softly Tailored Vests Much In Style

Fashion designers are always full of surprises, and the latest thing they have sprung on unsuspecting girls is the vest—yes, the vest. Don't get the notion however, that these vests, shown with skirt and jacket, and blouse, are mannish or lacking in style. On the contrary, the softly tailored ensemble, featuring a slim, very slightly flairing skirt, and high-neck cardigan jacket, with vest of contrasting material, and full-sleeved blouse, with the new bow-tie neckline, is the ultimate in chic costuming.

Added to the undeniable smartness of the outfit, is its durability and versatility, since it offers several different costume combinations. Made of warm light materials, the vest, buttoned up back or front, can be worn with several different skirts and blouses, and is easily worn for extra warmth beneath any jacket. Also, it is light, and takes up little space in crowded suitcases of late summer and early fall vacationers. The two piece is always acceptable, since the jacket can be worn separately with other dresses, as can the skirt, with various blouses and jackets, and there's never any trouble in donning a smart, appealing blouse. So, an investment in this new outfit will be certainly worth while, since its dividends in service and smartness will always be realized.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As the pickling season is not far away, our recipes today will be along that line.

Tomato Marmalade

1 quart ripe tomatoes, ¼ cup seeded raisins, 1 pound sugar, 1½ lemons. Peel the tomatoes and cut up in chunks or slices as desired. Wash lemons and slice very thin. Put all ingredients in a saucepan. Cook slowly 1½ hours, or until mixture is the consistency of marmalade. Bottle and seal.

Sweet Pickles

Soak 300 small cucumbers in water 24 hours. Next place in brine strong enough to sustain an egg for 24 hours. Drain, cover with equal parts vinegar and water, leave in this for 3 days. Drain thoroughly. Take 4 quarts of vinegar, 2½ pounds brown sugar, ½ oz. whole cloves, ½ oz. whole alspice, ½ oz. whole pepper, ½ oz. mustard seed. Boil spices in a bag in the vinegar for ½ hour. Put pickles in jars or a stone crock and pour over hot vinegar. Add ½ teaspoon alum to the weak vinegar solution. Use cider vinegar.

Canned Tomato Soup

Do not skin the tomatoes, 1 basket tomatoes, 1 head celery, 4 onions. Boil all together, strain and add 2 tablespoons salt, ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon red pepper, ½ cup of flour, creamed with ½ cup butter. Boil until soup thickens, then put in sealers. Add milk when serving.

Mustard Pickles

100 small cucumbers, 1 quart small onions. Cut and put in a crock, cover with cold water and one generous cup of salt and let stand over night, drain and cover with boiling water. Let stand until cool, drain and cover again with boiling water, let stand until cool and drain.

Mustard Dressing

3 pints cider vinegar, 5 or 6 cups brown sugar. Put in a kettle and let heat, but not boil. Mix ½ cup flour, ½ cup mustard, 2 teaspoons tumeric powder, 2 teaspoons currie powder, 2 small teaspoons white pepper. Mix all smooth with a little cold vinegar, then add hot vinegar and mix again. Add cucumbers and boil 10 or 15 minutes. Bottle while hot.

GIRLS MUST ABIDE BY CUSTOMS

Stern Father Throws Daughters To Wolves in Bringing Them Up According to Old Ideas

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband was brought up very strictly by a Scotch Grandmother and he is trying to rear our children the way he was. We have twin daughters of 17 and they bitterly resent the restrictions he puts upon them, particularly his rule that they must be home by 10 o'clock of an evening. The perpetual scenes over the way their father treats them is making a growing gulf between them that I deplore very much, and is wrecking all of the old happy relationship that once existed in our family circle.

What can I do to straighten matters out?

K.W.W.

ANSWER: Nothing, unless you can find some way to modernize your husband's opinions and bring them up-to-date, but nothing in the world is so hard to do as to induce people to discard their old ideas for this year's models.

Your husband will just have to face the fact that unless he wants his daughters to be old maids he will have to let them do as the other young people are doing, within reasonable restrictions, of course. They should not be permitted to stay out all night carousing, but to ring the curfew of them at 10 o'clock cuts them off from all the parties, the dates and the good times they are entitled to at their age.

For parties do not start until 10 or thereabouts and no girl would be asked a second time if her boy friend has to drag her away just when things get going. Father may say that parties should begin at six and end at 10, but not even Emily Post can alter the social customs of the day.

In trying to protect his daughters the stern father simply throws them to the wolves, and that is a pathetic thing for him and for them, because, meaning so well, he does so much harm. In trying to save them he takes away from them the only protection that a girl can have, and that is in her home and being on confidential terms with her father so that she can talk things over with him, instead of having to lie to him.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: After 19 years of married life my parents are about to part. Their trouble is over money. My father gives my mother $31 a week out of which she has to pay all of the living expenses and everything that goes to the upkeep of a family of three, and because she cannot save $10 a month out of this my father accuses her of being a bad manager, while she says she can't do it with the increased cost of living. The quarrel continually about this and my father threatens to leave home. What can be done?

MARRIED DAUGHTER.

ANSWER: If your father could be induced to handle the budget for a single week and see how much everything costs nowadays, he would no longer accuse your mother of being a bad manager. He would think that Mr. Morgenthau should call her in to help him run the nation's finances.

Your father is right in thinking that everyone should make an effort to save something for the rainy day that comes to us all. My suggestion for solving your problem is for your mother to try to get one of the part-time jobs that are to be had now. I have heard of several women who fattened their budgets by taking care of the children of the women who had gone to work in factories.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it proper for my sister to go off and spend week-ends with the young man to whom she is engaged? I am very much opposed to it, but she says there is no harm in it.

TROUBLED SISTER.

ANSWER: No girl who has the slightest regard for her reputation would do such a thing. Your sister may be pure as ice and as chaste as snow and the young man's middle name may be Joseph, but no one will believe it of them. A hotel register has furnished the evidence in many a divorce case.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, July 15

According to the ruling planetary influences this day may be devoted to the pursuit of pleasure rather than to more prosaic affairs. Celebrations, parties, social and affectional affiliations, with gaiety and festivity may be carried to the heights. However, there may be danger of this being carried to excess, in outlay of funds, energies and erratic or over-impetuous behavior. Due precaution against intrigues or undercover activities may justify such quest for happiness and sidestep poignant regrets or suspicious entanglements, affecting the good name.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which the finer things of life, in beauty, creative ability, romance and the urge for emotional gratifications may be uppermost. Such overweening indulgences may have reactions on finances, credit, health and personal integrity, if carried to excess or extremes and to the neglect of mere profitable preoccupations. Regulate expenses and emotional impulses, for safety and security.

A child born on this day should have fine traits of character, with versatility in creative expression. Its overpowering emotional impulses may lead it to extravagance and unwise extremes.

Another Try

Earl McCready

John Katan, the Palermo Panther, who claims that he was robbed here Tuesday night when the bout was awarded to Whipper Billy Watson, has been demanding another chance and Promoter Tunney has decided to give him his opportunity. He has booked the two for a return battle at the Brock Street Arena next Tuesday. On the same card the stormy petrel, Al Bunny Dunlop, is booked to meet the popular Earl McCready in the semi-final—the fast-moving Joe Maich and tall Joe Christie will battle in the preliminary.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight at 7.30 o'clock the ladies section is sponsoring its annual "Milk for Britain Fund" tournament. We are expecting the biggest crowd of the season. Telephone your name in before 7.30 p.m.—but whatever you do, be out and help support this worthy cause.

There was a lot of bowling going on Thursday night and the spectators saw all kinds of it. Big scores, small scores, one-sided scores and even scores. The Ashby-Lawrence game was a dandy all the way through, with Lawrence grabbing a two on the last end to win out by one shot.

Dave Bell, four down going home almost pulled the rabbit out of the hat. When F. Kerr played his last bowl, Belly was lying four and maybe five. Mr. Kerr with his last bowl drew in for second shot. The railway agent played his last bowl and only missed by a hair. It was another good game.

Benny Chesler's rink came to life and handed Tom McMillan (group leader) his second defeat of the season. It was Chesler all the way and he finished about 10 up and getting stronger all the time.

GOODYEAR SYNTHETIC RUBBER TIRES*

Have a —

1. "COMPRESSED TREAD"
This is Goodyear's latest type of tire construction. Proper inflation of tire compresses the tread, makes it less liable to puncture and assures longer wear. It's a pre-war feature that helped keep Goodyear "Canada's first choice in tires".

2. "FOUR-WAY" TRACTION
This is another pre-war feature. The greatest all-direction, skid-resisting tread design ever invented. The Goodyear tread provides maximum traction and safety and slow, even wear.

3. SUPERTWIST CORD
The best pre-war quality Goodyear Supertwist Cord goes into Goodyear's Synthetic tire. This stronger, more durable cord provides extra stamina to resist bruises and blowouts.

4. HIGH TENSILE STEEL BEADS
The accurate fit of a tire on the rim that means longer tire life, depends on the beads. Goodyear's high tensile, high carbon steel beads are the best money can buy.

By FRED D. CRAIG

A record crowd is certain at Riverside Park tonight when Toronto Tip Tops and the Peterborough All-Stars, sparked by the pitching of the great Cam Ecclestone will meet in an exhibition game for the Kinsmen's charities, which worthy cause will benefit by the entire proceeds. The famous Tip Tops, who are in the top flight of Canadian softball machines are coming down to Peterborough at their own expense, as they did last year, and this fine gesture on their part ensures a huge contribution toward the Kinsmen's fund. Local fans are looking forward to a treat and they have every reason to do so for the Tip Tops are a powerful team, strong in every department who play softball at its best and the Peterborough club, aided by the clever pitching of Ecclestone look formidable enough to make the crack visitors show their best wares to come down in front. It is expected that big Suz Turner will fog them in for the Tip Tops, although Dowie may also be handed part of the pitching assignment for the powerful Toronto outfit.

* * * * * *

Just how the Tip Tops will line up for this outstanding attraction has not been announced but McKinnon will probably do the catching with Eckler at first base, Ab Box at second, Heys at shortstop and the veteran Hastings at third with Pete Glenn and Leo Deadey among the outfield possibilities. The Tip Tops will be numbered so we repeat the numbers here for the benefit of local fans: Turner 1, Dowie 3, Eckler 4, McKinnon 5, Titanic 6, Heys 7, Glenn 8, Stukus 9, Deadey 10, Box 11, Jeffers 12, Cranham 14, McKinney 15, Walsh 16, Spero 17 and Hastings 18. The Peterborough team will start as follows: Ossie Anderson 2b, Mike Conroy lf, Tony McIlveen cf, Ashmore 1b, Blewett rf, Starr c, Tucker ss, Hawks 3b, Ecclestone p. Other local players to see action will be Holly Mowry, Stan Murduff, Frank McCormick, Art Heal and Jack Condon while Jim Ellis will manage the outfit. Incidentally the fans and players are asked to note that the game is called for 6.45 o'clock, fifteen minutes earlier than the regular City League starting time.

Three Places Settled

The City Softball League playoff situation was considerably clarified by the victory of Switchgear over Plazas last night. That win gives Manager Murph Chambers' team first place with Plazas in second slot. The Soldiers are in the third spot and now all that remanis is to settle the battle between St. Peter's and U.E.W. for the fourth posiion. They each have a game with Soldiers to play and if necessary have a tie game between themselves to run off. The playoff setup calls for Switchgear as first placers to meet the fourth-place club in one bracket of the semi-finals while the Plazas and Soldiers will likely clash in the other semi-final series. The semi-final rounds will be three-out-of-five affairs and the two winners will meet in the final series to decide the championship. One complication is that the Soldiers, even if they should win the title cannot go on and participate in the O.A.S.A. playdowns so that in the event of a Military Training Centre victory, the runners-up in the last round will represent Peterborough in the provincial series.

There is a feast of softball for Peterborough fans this week. After tonight's big game, two more attractive struggles are on the cards for tomorrow when Victory Aircraft men's and girls' teams will be here for two exhibition fixtures that should provide plenty of entertainment. Tomorrow afternoon the Victory girls will battle with the local Aircraft team at Riverside Park at 2.30 o'clock and that should be a lively argument between two well-balanced girls' teams, both of which are strong in all departments. Norma Strickland will do the hurling for the Peterborough team and they will have their strongest lineup out ,anxious to grab off a win from the classy visitors. The Victory men's team will clash with the Plazas in a 6.30 o'clock game also at Riverside Park and that should provide a lot of softball entertainment. The visitors have some outstanding performers according to all reports and Plazas will have to play their best ball if they hope to come home in front of the strong outfit representing the Victory plant. The two Saturday battles will round out a week that has seen a lot of action on the softball front.

Down Belleville way an effort is being made to revive minor league baseball and in spite of a number of obstacles some progress is being made. Peterborough fans will wish the movement every success and would like to feel that something of the same sort was going on here. Writes Ken Colling: "Harry Moore, mentor of a junior baseball team in Trenton, is anxious to affiliate with the two local junior baseball clubs to start a Quinte district baseball league. Yesterday Harry's charges invaded the Alemite Field and after nine keenly-contested innings the Trenton boys walked off the field on the long end of a 6 to 5 score. One thing is certain, these junior baseball games are being productive of some close scores all of the way around. Manager Jack Doyle, of St. Mikes, stated today he was endeavoring to get an exhibition game with "Doc" Empson's Roslin nine some time this week. The local junior ball teams are sadly in need of baseballs and persons interested in the old game can materially help its revival by providing the odd baseball for the kids."

The big leagues were back in action Thursday after the layoff for the All-Star game and the St. Louis Cards took advantage of the opportunity to add another win to their long list by beating the Cincinnati Reds 3 to 2 in eleven innings with Jurisich pitching a six-hitter for the champs. London's Frank Colman came through with a pinch triple for the Pittsburgh Pirates to enable the Corsairs to beat the Chicago Cubs 3 to 2. In the American League two double-headers were split. The Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees broke even in their twin bill, New York taking the first 4 to 2 and the Red Sox grabbing off the second 8 to 4. St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians also divided a double card, the Brownies taking ten innings to win the second game 4 to 1 while the Indians took the first 6 to 5. Detroit Tigers had an easy time walloping the Chicago White Sox 9 to 1, scoring eight runs in the second inning. Incidentally the return of Dick Wakefield, released by the Navy, will be a big help to the Bengals. He was back yesterday and got two hits.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Jack Playford, Switchgear centre fielder pulled a charley horse in going after Eddie Starr's triple to centre last night and had to be carried off....Playford was slated to play against Tip Tops in tonight's game at Riverside Park but will have to sit that one out....Some new season's records were made in last night's game... Jim Ellis had one by slamming two homers and Cal Nicholls another by batting in seven runs....City League hurlers have not been covering themselves with glory in the last couple of games. In the fixtures of Wednesday and Thursday nights five pitchers allowed a total of 52 runs, 61 hits, including eight home runs and dealt out 31 bases on balls.... That is undoubtedly something, chums, but it certainly is not pitching. Some of the loop hurlers have about as much control as the Liquor Control Act....Jim Ellis would have had a perfect night at bat last night if the umpires had not missed one. He slammed a liner to centre and McCormick diving for the drive got the ball in his hands but dropped it when he hit the ground....However the batter was declared out.

Drafting Room Defeats Aircraft By 10-5 Score

The Drafting Room boys whipped the Aircraft outfit 10 to 5 in an Industrial League game played on the Bonner Worth field on Thursday evening. Shadgett for the winners started off the hitting by slamming out a home run and also came through with a nice double play with Mathieson at first.

Kemp went best at bat by bunting safely twice and securing two hits and a walk. Beesley and McCartney for Aircraft were the pick of the instrument boys.

Ellis, Stokoe Hit Homers But Plazas Lose

Switchgear settled the question of first place in the City Softball League at Riverside Park last night when they outscored Plazas 17 to 11 in a scoring fest, to grab the top shelf and leave the losers in second position.

That means that Switchgear will play the fourth team in the semi-finals and Plazas will meet the third-placers in the other bracket.

Plazas made 15 hits for a total of 33 bases, including three homers, two triples and five doubles, but the lack of control of their pitchers, along with a couple of costly errors, sent in more runs than they could drive home with their bats.

Switchgear took full advantage of the generosity of Woods and Stokoe on the mound for the losers and came through with 15 blows themselves on top of 11 passes to win by a wide margin on end. Akers went the route for the winners, despite the barrage of extra base hits and the fact that he handed out six walks himself.

Drives in Seven Runs

Holly Mowry again led the Switchgear on the attack with four hits in six trips to the plate but Cal Nicholls supplied much of the scoring punch by batting in seven runs, four of them on a homer with the bases loaded in the seventh. Jim Ellis sparked the Plazas with two homers and a single in four trips to the plate, driving in five runs, and Eddie Starr had a double and triple.

Jack Carpenter, Switchgear left fielder, went far over the left field foul line to snare a long fly and turned the play into a double killing by an accurate peg when Hawks tried to go to second after the catch. Burtin had a running shoestring catch and Ellis a fine play on a foul near the grandstand.

A triple to right by Mowry and Cal Nicholls' fly to centre, scored the first run of the game for Switchgear in the second. Plazas came back with two in the first of the third on Heal's single and successive doubles by Jack Tucker and Joe Blewett.

Switchgear had a field day in their half. With one away Woods lost control and passed Carpenter, Ashmore and Playford to load the sacks and then singles by Mowry, Brockley and Nicholls, with a high throw to first by Tucker, sent in five runs.

That made it 6 to 2, but Plazas got three in the first of the fourth. Pryde tripled to centre and rode home on a homer by Jim Ellis to deep left centre. Art Heal doubled to centre and scored on Hawks' single.

In their half Switchgear ran the total up to 8 to 5 when Jack Playford doubled past third to score Carpenter and Ashmore.

Plazas rallied again in the fifth to tie it up again. Starr's triple to centre, singles by Ellis and Burton, Woods' double and an error on Heal's bunt sent the three runs in.

Four on One Hit

Once again Switchgear took command in the sixth, when they scored four runs on one hit. With one out Ashmore walked and McCormick was safe when Ellis dropped Woods' toss after the pitcher had fielded a bunt. Mowry popped to Tucker for the second out and then Woods lost control altogether. He passed Brockley to fill the bases and walked Akers and Nicholls, forcing in two runs. Frank Stokoe took over at this stage and passed McNabb, forcing in the third run and Tompkins got the only hit of the frame with a single to centre to drive in the fourth marker.

That made it 12 to 8. Stokoe carved one off the lead in the seventh with a homer over Brockley's head in right but Switchgear roared back with four more in their half, when Ashmore walked and Mowry and Akers singled, the latter on a close play at first to fill the bases and Nicholls unloaded them with a homer to left, Burton was slow going back for the drive and just got his finger tips on the ball.

Carpenter's double to right and singles by Mowry and Brockley gave the winners their final run in the eighth.

Plazas last kick was in the ninth when Starr doubled with one out, and after Pryde had gone out Ellis hammered his second homer to left centre, scoring Starr ahead of him. Stokoe walked and Heal got his third hit but Burton rolled out.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 14—(AP)—You won't hear this mentioned very loudly, but one objection to Jack Zeller's latest proposal of moving baseball players up to the big leagues only through the draft route might be that it isn't quite legal...That's a touchy subject in sports when club owners long have protected their interests through a sort of "job freezing."...But this corner recently cooked up an idea for dealing with high school and college kids through a system akin to the pro football "draft" (it sounded swell, too) only to hear from some wise baseball men that it infringed the players' rights and never would stand a legal test...Zeller, incidentally, suggested the same sort of thing in connection with his newest anti-farm move and [illegible] here it appears that the two [illegible] would come under the sam[illegible] heading.

Safety First

The Dodgers are staging "scrap waste paper collection day" at Ebbets Field when they play the Reds next Thursday and anyone bringing 35 pounds or more paper can get in by paying only the tax...Leave it to Branch Rickey to figure out that any guy lugging that much wouldn't bring anything to throw at the athletes.

Aircraft Trims Brintons 12-1

Aided by steady pitching by Pat Wilson, Aircraft polished off Brintons 12-1, in a fast-played Ladies' League softball game, Thursday evening at Ashburnham Bowl.

One run pushed across during the last half of the ninth saved Brintons from a complete smothering at the hands of the swing-skirted opposers.

In that frame Brintons' Thelma Batley, first up, walked, the next batter struck out, the third popped to the catcher, and the fourth hit a high ball out into the near left field. The Aircraft short-stop, left-fielder and third baseman all made a dash to catch the fly, collided and the ball bounced to the ground. In the ensuing confusion, the first batter made home.

Neither team scored until the fifth inning, when in a wild splurge of heavy hitting, Aircraft turned in six runs. With two more counters gained in the seventh, eighth and ninth, Aircraft totalled their final count at 12. Brintons' one and only bid in the ninth, made up the final score.

Hurling for Brintons was Phyllis Corrigan, who played a good game. Brintons' third base assignment went to Thelma Batley, who played that post efficiently. Some snappy short-stop work was turned in by Aircraft's Norma Strickland, and Eleanor Craig worked at the first base chore for that team. Rose Redpath nabbed several flys in right field, besides blasting out a home-run in the ninth, and a triple in the eighth.

The teams:

Aircraft—Margaret Batley, cf; Annette DeCarlo, c; Norma Strickland, ss; Eleanor Craig, 1b; Margaret Selkirk, lf; Audrey Patterson, 2b; Pat Wilson, p; Emma Roberts, 3b; Rose Redpath, rf; Margaret Lowe, lf.

Big Leaguers Comeback May Be Fast

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Can Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Bobby Feller, Johnny Vandermeer and scores of other big leaguers in service pick up where they left off when they come marching home from war?

The queston was partially answered yesterday when Dick Wakefield, recently "detached" from the Navy's Iowa pre-flight school, stepped into a Detroit uniform and banged out two hits in the Tigers' 9-1 slaughter of Chicago.

Judging by first-day impressions it may not be so tough for the stars to resume their careers. Wakefield is out of the Navy because the need for fliers apparently has decreased. He has been away from the big show for only half a year after hitting 316 and leading the league total hits and doubles as a rookie. Others making a more violent change may find the readjustment more difficult.

Wakefield's two hits helped the Tigers rout Orval Grove with an eight-run spurt in the second as Paul "Dizzy" Trout coasted to his 11th win.

St. Louis held its 2½-game margin in the American flag race by scoring three times in the 10th for a 4-1 victory in the second game after bowing to Cleveland, 6-5, in the opener of a twi-night double-header.

Boston and New York Yankees divided as they opened a vital six-game series. The Yanks took the first, 4-2, as Ernie Bonham outpitched Rookie Red Barrett with the help of Bud Metheny's two-run homer. Yank Terry scattered six New York blows in the finale after the Sox hopped on Atley Donald for four unearned runs in an 8-4 triumph.

Al Jurisich of the Cards got the nod over Jim Konstanty of the Reds in a tight 11-inning National League duel when Danny Litwhiler doubled home Walker Cooper for a 3-2 edge over Cincinnati.

Frank Colman's pinch triple enabled Pittsburgh to top Chicago, 3-2 for its fifth straight.

TALKING IT OVER AT PITTSBURGH—Here are the two managers of the teams which met in Pittsburgh for the all-star baseball classic, July 11, talking it over before the game. They are william Southworth of the Nationals, winners of the game, and Joe McCarthy of the Americans.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 14 — (CP). — The Winnipeg Rugby Club, made famous by the exploits of the Peg's Blue Bombers, is planning to set up a plaque or honor roll with the names of bombers contributing their serivces to the Armed Services.

Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning says that Osborne Stadium has been chosen as the site for the Hall of Fame, appropriately enough. It was there that Bombers gained their renown on the gridiron, spanning out to take the Grey Cup and Dominion title in 1935, 1939, and 1941.

"It's to be hoped that the Rugby Club profits by the mistake of the Ottawa Rowing Club and makes no distinction between its members who are on active service and those who are in Canada's Reserve Army" comments Herb. He referred to the late-lamented affair at Ottawa where the name of Theodore Dubois, former Canadian senior sculls champion, was removed from an honor roll of club members in the services because he hadn't volunteered for overseas duty.

Success story:

Some people like to paddle their own canoe, and in that class definitely are the members of the Chateauguay Aquatic Club in Montreal. Just six years ago the club's predecessor, Chateauguay Boating Club, went on the financial rocks, had its clubhouse seized and lost its charter. A group of sportemen got together to salvage the wreckage, and to-day the new club has its head above water. The members are enthusiastic, so much so in fact that a group of girl members travelled 110 miles by truck to see the boys strut their stuff in the Radisson Regatta.

Incidentalyl:

Jimmy Johnstone, veteran golf pro at Toronto's Rosedale Club, is attempting a comeback in the Dominion match play championships. He captured the Millar Trophy in 1928, and five years later took it again, so he is 'way past due for another triumph....Montreal Canadiens, apparently are really serious about this softball business. So much so that a would-be Habitant apparently has to major in mushball before he hooks on with the team. Frankie Eddolls is playing in Montreal now, and reported will hook on with Canadiens next winter.

Dick Borthwick In Top Form

TORONTO, July 14.—Don't count Dick Borthwick, Oakdale professional, out of the Millar Trophy money-war bond scramble next week at Islington.

Dick sounded his tournament challenge yesterday afternoon in a practice round at Islington by shooting a subpar 68, despite fives at the 17th and 18th. Islington par is 73.

What made the challenge more impressive was that Bob Gray, the ex-Scarboro pro, and defender of the Millar next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was in Dick's foursome. Hugh Borthwick and Les Franks, the home pro, also had a good look at Dapper Dick along the 18-hole route.

The Oakdaler practically took Islington apart on the first nine, a tough par 37 trip. He was out in 31. Returning he needed par fours as the 17th and 18th for a 66, seven below standard numbers, but ran into his two fives for an incoming 37, against par 36.

Late in the afternoon a substantial delegataion of local professionals and amateurs point for Peterborough's Kawartha Lakes Golf Club for the two-day money and medals tournament Saturday and Sunday. Proceeds of the tournament will go to the Peterborough Kinsmen's Club Milk Fund. Ken Smylie is tournament chairman.

Tuesday major golf attention will be focused on the combined Ontario Open-Amateur a 36-hole event at Royal York. Then it will swing to Islington for the Millar Trophy, a match-play competition for Canadian pros only.

Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Scot linksman, and an outstanding figure in United States golf circles for many years, may be persuaded to join the Ontario Open field Tuesday. He is expected at Peterborough for the Kinsmen's event.

Although not eligible for the Millar, Cruickshank is being invited to participate in the Runnymede Lions tournament program.

Tommy Warren Joins Dodgers

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals lost their finest flinger today—and perhaps their chance for the International League flag.

Tommy Warren, who went the route against Buffalo last night for his seventh victory—he has only two defeats—joins Brooklyn Dodgers at Boston today. Tom was one of the big reasons the Royals are only five percentage points behind the league-leading Jersey City Giants.

Warren allowed four hits and fanned four, providing stimulus to the Royal attack with two singles.

Newark's 8-4 victory over Jersey City marked a couple of five-straight streaks. Pitcher Floyd Bevens' five-hitter was his fifth consecutive win, while the triumph was the Bears' fifth in a row and their 12th in their last 13 games.

Bill Rabe's four-for-four, including a home run, sparked Newark's 13-hit attack against Mike Mellis, who suffered his sixth loss.

Back to third place went Baltimore Orioles as they swept a double-header from Syracuse Chiefs, 4-1 and 14-6. Stan West pitched the route in the opener, allowing only four hits. The Birds scored twice in the fifth to break a 1-1 tie.

Alex Mustaikis turned in a three-hit shutout for Toronto, his second whitewash of Rochester Red Wings and his 10th won of the season. Not content to allow three scattered hits, Alex contributed a home run and a double. He stole third after his double and scored on Tony Ordenana's infield out. The victory put the Leafs one game behind the fifth-place Newark Bears.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Real form was displayed by a westerner, Tr. H. Taylor of Chisholm Mills, Alta., last night in the "Olympic games" at Camp Borden when he cleared the cross bar at 5 feet 10¼ inches to win the running high jump and set a new Canadian Army record. Cpl. V. H. Richardson of Toronto was a double-winner in taking the half-mile and one-mile events while Pte. L. A. Burger, Welland, proved the winner of the three-mile feature. Lt. D. Weaver, Fort Erie, tossed the discus 90 feet 8 inches to win that contest. Competitors from all parts of Canada took part and drew the commendation of Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, general officer commanding the camp.

Because of a player-shortage, the Ryder Cup golf series this year has been abandoned, it was announced yesterday at Detroit, after raising more than $100,000 for war relief during past war years. In its stead, Craig Wood, duration national champion, will play Sam Byrd of Detroit in a 36-hole charity match July 29-30.

The field of two-year-olds for the $60,675 Arlington Futurity at Chicago tomorrow has dwindled to four or five from an original entry list of 163 to form the smallest starting pack for the event in 15 years. The pick of the starters are said to be John Marsch's Free For All and Errard.

Sinkwich Rejected

Former Georgia all - American footballer and more recently with the Detroit Lions in the pro grid sport, Frankie Sinkwich yesterday was rejected for army service at Cleveland yesterday, after previously having been discharged from the marines and the maritime service for physical reasons.

Dighting Scot, a Scotland-sired Hambletonian candidate owned by Joseph F. Burke of Plainfield, N.J., went a mile in 2:04¼, fastest time registered by a three-year-old trotter this year, as he won the first heat of the $2,500 Peninsular Farm Stake at North Randall track, Cleveland, yesterday, but he was far back when Red Tower nosed out Rapid Hanover in the second and third heats.

Bill Nicholson, the Chicago Cubs' heavy-hitting rightfielder, had to be replaced in yesterday's game against Pittsburgh Pirates because of an injured right hand and fore-arm sustained last Sunday when hit by a pitch from Ace Adams of the New York Giants. Lou Novikoff subbed for Nicholson.

Valdina Foe, owned by John Marsch of Chicago, won the Arlington Park's $10,000 Grassland handicap yesterday by four lengths in the American record time of 1:51 for the mile and an eighth over the turf.

Bobby Bauer Returns Home From Overseas

OTTAWA, July 14.— Cpl. Bobby Bauer, former Boston Bruins hockey star, arrived here yesterday with a party of repatriated R.C.A.F. men.

Bauer was met here by his pretty wife Marguerite, also of Kitchener. An old hockey leg injury may have brought on the sciatic condition he now is suffering in his back and leg. He spent six weeks in hospital in England and after he completes his 30-day leave he has to go before a medical board, which will perhaps lead to further hospital treatment.

Apart from the sciatica he feels fine. He hasn't "been thinking much about playing hockey again." The only thing in his mind has been getting the war over with and getting home. He is a Radar technician attached to a Canadian bomber group in which his two famous line-mates—FO Milt Schmidt and PO. Porky Dumart, also of Kitchener — also are members.

He played on a team with Schmidt last winter that beat a team on which Dumart played for the group championship. "I think all the boys have their old ability, but as I say, we havent been giving much time to thinking about hockey these days."

Raymond Raps Loans To Gt. Britain

MONTREAL, July 14 — (CP) — Policy of the Federal Government was the main topic of Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire leaders campaigning for the August 8 Quebec general elections.

Andre Laurendeau, Provincial Leader of the Bloc Populaire, opening his party's campaign at a mass rally here, said he "was formally charging the Liberal Party with wanting to denaturalize French-Canadians through centralizing everything in the hands of the Federal Government."

Maxime Raymond, the National Leader of the Bloc Populaire and member of Parliament for Beauharnois-Laprairie, speaking at the same meeting, said that, while the Federal Government had not been able to find money to relieve unemployment before the war it had "found billions to kill and to give England, a country richer than ours."

Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale Leader and former Quebec Premier, said in a radio address that if victorious his Party "will retake all the (Provincial) rights which have been ceded and abandoned to Ottawa or taken over by Ottawa.' He added Union Nationale would "give the Province of Quebec a Government of Quebec, for Quebec and by Quebec, within the frame of the Canadian constitution.'

Liquor Traffic

He listed among the Provincial rights he said were ceded, abandoned or taken over by the Federal Government: Unemployment Insurance, regulation of "liquor traffic", exploitation of Quebec natural resources including mines, water powers and forests.

Mr. Raymond said Prime Minister MacKenzie King had "camouflaged" the word conscription by calling it mobilization "but that will not fool the people who remember that recruits, as our conscripts are called were sent to Kiska to fight Japanese in a country outside Canada boundaries."

The Federal Government, Mr. Laurendeau said, spent "billions of the war rather than to the benefit of the population of the whole country. Money spent for the war, he added, had it been spent for Canadians, "would have given each of the 2,500,000 Canadian families a $3,000 home."

Chicken For All

TORONTO, July 14—(CP)—Every man, woman and child must be educated to eat at least one egg a day and chicken at least once a week as a means of absorbing the present record output of egg and poultry when army and lend-lease needs no longer require to be met, Homer I. Huntington of Chicago, told the Ontario Poultry conference here last night.

By The Canadian Press

Maj.-Gen. Christopher Vokes is close to the top among Canada's growing list of younger generals and one who boasts an enviable record in the field, extending through the tough campaigns of Sicily and Italy.

He is an Irish-born six-footer with a flaring bushy moustache and a cold glint in the eye—which can change sharply with his humor to a warm sparkle. In his rise from the rank of major which he took overseas with the 1st Division in 1939 he has held posts as staff officer—but he always said he wanted to be a fighting soldier and he didn't stay long on staff jobs.

MAJ. GEN. CHRIS VOKE

He proved himself a fighting officer when as brigadier he commanded the 2nd Infantry Brigade in Sicily often directing actions himself from forward positions under fire. In Italy he gained promotion to the acting rank of major-general and was given command of a Canadian infantry division.

Gen. Vokes believes discipline and salute are the hallmarks of a good soldier and he shares the Montgomery confidence in the value of heavy artillery barrage.

Inspiring Leadership

As his troops were attacking Leonforte in Sicily in July, 1943, he went up front when heavy enemy fire disorganized his men. He personally set to work to reorganizing the position under observed enemy fire without regard for his safety, so inspiring his officers and men that the enemy positions were taken next day. For that and his general leadership he won the D. S. O.

Born in Armagh, Ireland, April 13, 1904, he came to Canada as a youngster. He was educated at Kingston Collegiate Institute, McGill University and Royal Military College and at 21 was commissioned in the permanent force, Royal Canadian Engineers.

His massive frame and his interest in things military marked him as a soldier from the start. In 1935 he graduated from the staff college at Camberley England, and returned to Canada. He went overseas in 1939 as a major. By 1942, he was promoted to brigadier and given command of the infantry brigade he subsequetly took to Sicily.

After the victorious Sicilian battle of Nissoria, private soldiers of his command told correspondents:

"If you want to write a story about someone, you should write it about the brigadier. He really won the battle himself."

And Chris Vokes is proud of his men. When he took over divisional command he told them that "to command incomparable fighting men such as yourselves is an honor which does not sit lightly on my shoulders."

Gen. Vokes wife lives in Ottawa. They have one son, Christopher John.

Carpiquet Town Just Place Of Dead

BY LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

CARPIQUET, France, July 14 — (CP Cable) — Devastation which veterans of the First Great War say exceeds anything they ever saw has been wrought in this small farming centre taken by Canadian infantrymen, who then pushed on to capture the important airfield nearby.

Carpiquet is a place of the dead. The only life visible are a few birds chirping in trees that have been stripped of leaves and even bark, and farmyard animals wandering pathetically among the trubble.

The smell of death is in the air. Carcasses of cattle lie in farmyards and although Allied dead have been burried blackened German bodies may be seen where they fell.

The fall of Caen, city three miles to the east, overshadowed the capture of Carpiquet and its airport but the scenes of destruction testify to the savagery of the struggle. Canadian troops in the fight included battalions from the Maritimes, Ontario, Western Canada and a French-speaking Battalion from Quebec.

He Was Trained

LAFAYETTE, Ind., July 14.—(AP).—Two women complained to Police Sgt. Cecil Baker a dog was in their car and wouldn't get out. Baker removed the dog, found a tag with the name of Alvin Fay, whom Baker telephoned. "Put the dog on the phone," Fay said, "and I'll talk to him." Baker was dubious but obeyed. "Pot," Fay admonished, "get right on home." The dog went directly to Fay's residence.

SPEAKS TO CANADA — Gen. Charles De Gaulle, president of the French Committee of National Liberation, as he spoke standing in the archway of the Peace Tower, Ottawa.

Lt. Walter Ward Describes Invasion Scene

"I'm having a grand time at the 'second front', and I wouldn't have missed this for anything," wrote Lieut. Walter G. Ward, R.N., in a letter to his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Ward, 52 Murray street.

Serving on the British cruiser Scylla during the invasion of France, Lieut. Ward said, "As you may have heard, we are on the flagship carrying the admiral of this force, and I'm attached to the staff as an advisor on radar. I must say it's been very thrilling. We knew some time ago of course, and it's been the experience of a life-time seeing the details and plans being put into operation. It's also interesting to sit here and listen to the news broadcasts of events we are actually seeing," he said.

Felt Great Thrill

The young officer wrote, "I shall never forget as long as I live the thrill I felt setting sail from England, as flagship of this greatest armada of all time. As far as the eye could see there were ships, all sizes, shapes and descriptions. And then, the crossing—watching the unfolding of plans—wondering if the Channel would be swept clear of mines, wondering if we would surprise the Huns . . . and finally that great and marvellous night when the bombardment took place. I cannot imagine a more terrific barrage. Thousands of tons of bombs unloaded by the air forces, followed by one of the most terrific naval bombardments of all time. Then the little landing craft slowly crawling into the beaches. Truly wonderful, and yet it goes on. There are thousands of ships around here. Last night, the coast-line was a mass of fires, and everything was going on. Well, I haven't much time right now, there seems to be some aircraft about, so I'd better go," the letter concluded.

It was written June 7, just one day after D-day, and was received by Mrs. Ward Monday.

Second Letter

In another letter, written June 8, and received here Wednesday, Lieut. Ward said, "Well, I'm writing this while sitting on the after gun deck, during the mid-afternoon, our slackest period. We're just off shore here, and as I look around, of course I see a great number of ships and landing craft going here and there. Then there's a sort of continuous roar of guns, and once in a while, the sharp crack of a cruiser's guns, or the heavy oomph of a battleship's bombarding.

Then as I look up, I see terrific fires here and there . . . and over there, just coming over a hill, are dozens of tanks and lorries. Further along, some Jerries are being escorted along with their hands high in the air. Now I hear the pleasant and familiar sound of some Spitfires heading inland, and the whistling sound of the Lightnings, (P-38). Now, I can hear what sounds to be anti-tank fire. Things are sure livelier here this afternoon."

The letter continues, "It's rather awe-inspiring sitting here, looking at this stretch of coast rolling back from the beach in gentle slopes . . . and thinking that on this small ordinary-looking countryside, are focused the eyes of the world, and on those soldiers in there, and the power of the airforce and the support of the navy, rests the destiny of mankind for years to come."

Enlisted In 1942

Lieut. Ward enlisted in the R.C.N.V.R., in March 1942, just as he graduated from McGill University in electrical engineering. After taking a special course in radio in Toronto, the 29-year-old officer went overseas in June, 1942. In Britain, he was assigned to specialized radio work in connection with radar, with the Royal Navy. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, after serving on an aircraft-carrier in the British fleet.

He was educated at Peterborough Collegiate and while attending McGill, worked during the summer at the C.G.E. here. The letter received Monday by Mrs. Ward, was the first official word of her son taking part in the invasion.

Pity The Cook

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(AP). — The trial of four merchant seamen, accused of throwing the ship's cook overboard off New Guinea because they didn't like his cooking, ended abruptly yesterday when one of them pleaded guilty to assault to do bodily harm. Fred L. Slettebo of Edmonds, Wash., pleaded guilty to the charge and asked for probation.

THE ELEPHANT AND THE COSAIR — Plodding along and taking his own good time, a lumbering elephant pulls a Royal Navy Vought Corsair to a parking area on a jungle airfield somewhere in the Indian theatre of war. The Corsair can do 100 miles in the air with its 2,000 h.p. engine in use in the time it takes to cover a quarter of a mile of runway when elephant-propelled.

Perth Regiment Plugs Along On Italian Battlefront

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALYY, July 14—(CP)—Tough marches through country studded with mines; long hours with little sleep and less food; constant harassing by German rearguards, mortars and self-propelled guns. These were the experiences of the Perth regiment in the Canadian Corps' advance through the Liri and Saçco Valleys.

There was nothing spectacular about the Perths' fighting. Their job was exploitation and pursuit from the time they crossed the wide-bedded Melfa river until they passed through the village of Arnara, southeast of Frosinone.

Shelling and mortaring were the chief obstacles in the Perths' advance after they crossed the Melfa. Then, as they pushed on to within about 1,000 yards of Ceprano, they encountered mines. They met Germans too, in small but stubborn groups.

Bridges across the Liri river were destroyed, so the Perths, first battalion to enter Ceprano, crossed by boat. The river is swift and deep in places with little room for manoeuvring river craft, so one boat was used to take over the whole battalion, 16 men at a time.

Clash at Ceprano.

There was a small-scale clash in Ceprano where from 40 to 70 Germans held out in houses until they were killed, taken prisoner or withdrew. Another clash with about the same number of men came a mile or two beyond the town and again the Germans retired leaving dead and prisoners.

Pofi, then Arnara, were next on the Perth route and there were more brushes with snipers and occasional machine-gunners. Most opposition, however still came from shells and the majority of the Perth casualties, which were not excessive, resulted from self-propelled 75's and 88's.

During their advance the Perths marched, dug in. marched, then dug in again as many as five times in 24 hours. Roads were mined, bridges were cut and supply was difficult so some troops went 2½ days on meagre rations.

The men were tired, but as Capt. Frank Kennedy, Stratford, Ont. said "the tension of battle kept them going." They had no blankets, only their fatigue clothes and anti-gas capes, and they needed none for they rarely slept.

Here are some incidents the Perths recall from that six-day, 20-mile advance:

William Ross Allen of Windsor, Ont., six-foot four-inch private, brought up rations and served as stretcher-bearer whenever necessary.

At Ceprano he went out for the wounded and returned with a casualty and a prisoner. He had to cross the Liri with the wounded soldier, and as the boat was on the far side, plunged into the rapid stream, swam across and brought it back.

Millbrook Man.

"He was doing things like that all the time," said his company commander, Maj. Harold Snelgrove, St. Marys, Ont.

Credit for getting most of the troops across the Liri went to Sgt. E. W. Turner, helmsman in the boat. There was shell fire to add to the natural hazards of the crossing, but under Turner's guidance there wasn't a hitch.

Another river crossing, not quite so successful, came earlier in the advance, before the first bridgehead had been established across the Melfa. Majors Snelgrove, C. B. Arrell, St. Mary's, T. H. White, Stratford, J. E. Tipler, Stratford, and Capt. Sammy Ridge, Millbrook, Ont., went on a recce in jeeps to the river.

They thought the Canadians were further ahead than they were, and were considerably shocked when their own artillery began to drop shells in the river bed just as they were crossing. Then they saw Western Canada infantry fording the stream. Mortars began to fall nearby so the officers abandoned their jeeps and took shelter.

When the mortar bombs began landing behind them they decided it was time to leave. They could see Germans on the far bank of the River were unarmed themselves, and had scarcely counted on such a warm reception.

The brisk fight for Ceprano was all in favor of the Perths. Their Bren gunners, one section of which consisted of Sgt. F. S. Blackman, St. Mary's, Cpl. W. A. Doyle, Owen Sound, Ont., who was later killed; Ptes. F. R. Longhurst, St. Mary's, and J. A. Neve, Longwood, Ont., were in houses from which every German movement could be observed.

"We could see them all over the place and every time they moved estimated there were from 40 to 70 Germans in the town. The Canadians killed six or seven before the enemy pulled back.

The fight on the far side of Ceprano involved men from Ridge's Company. A reconnaissance patrol went out towards a house and found a German half-tracked vehicle in which there were two bottles of brandy and women's silk underclothing. Snipers opened fire and the patrol returned.

Use Piat Guns

Later Cpl. J. L. Derrick, Montreal and Ptes. A. L. Allingham, Anthens, Ont., D. C. McDormick Pelee Island, Ont., J. Windover, Toronto, W. P. Simpson Stratford, L. D. Fairbairn, St. Mary's, C. E. Inman, Fort William, Ont., and B. W. Heaslip (Hometown Unavbl) who was wounded, went forward to the same place and found another German vehicle. They destroyed it with a P.I.A.T., and then a hail of bullets nicked the dirt around them.

The Germans had brought up reinforcements—some 50 to 60 of them—but they were beaten off, leaving several dead and prisoners.

WOUNDS DESCRIBED

Harris, D. V. Canning, T. J. Carley, K.C., and P. J. Scollard, representative of the Separate School Board.

TERRIFIC DROUGHT

Normally with weather as it was Thursday night the beverage room patrons would be few in number, but the citizens must have been still suffering the effects of the heat wave, for there was a line-up of men jamming the door at the Grand Hotel and about ten couples waiting inside for a chance to get into the women's beverage room. Champlain Hotel was packed, and all the other hotels were closed, their quota exhausted by the unusual demand.

GETTING PREPARED

Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., announced today that arrangements had been made with the Fire Chief to have Jim Burns, chief supervisor and Jim Buchan, life-guard at the Lions' Bathing Beach, take further instruction in the art of artificial respiration. Both men have some training on how to revive a person who is taken from the water unconscious, and are taking the added instruction to make themselves fully qualified should an emergency arise.

KAWARTHA ENTRIES.

The field of top-flight golfers competing in the Kawartha Lakes Invitation Tournament has now widened to 20 or more professional names, with added entries just received to-day. They include Hugh Borthwick; George Cummings of Toronto Golf; Bill Little of Belleville; Paul Penna from Pine Point; Archie Grimsditch, Credit Valley; Ben Norris, former Kawartha pro; George Kelly, Galt; and Jack Roberts, Oshawa.

GERALD DUFFUS RETURNS.

Lieut. Engineer Gerald Duffus, R.C.N.V.R., son of Senator and Mrs. J. J. Duffus, 397 Reid street, returned home Thursday night from overseas.

RUBBISH FIRE

A small fire that caused no damage was extinguished by firemen at 4.15 p.m. Thursday, when children playing with matches set some rubbish ablaze in a shed in the rear of 255 McGill street.

NOT SEVERELY WOUNDED

Further word was received by the wife of Major James Morley Thursday afternoon, indicating that her husband, reported wounded in the Normandy fighting, sustained shrapnel wounds in the left breast and the right hip.

CANOE IS FOUND.

When Paul Guerin, 110 Sophia street, was out on Little Lake Thursday night in a rowboat, he came across an empty canoe floating on the lake. The missing craft was placed in Murdock's boathouse, Maria street, for safekeeping.

STARTING TIMES

The professionals will tee off Saturday afternoon in the first round of the Kawartha Lakes Invitation Tournament at 1:30 p.m., and their 36-hole play Sunday will begin around 9:45 a.m. Amateurs, who may go either 18 or 36 holes on Sunday, may start off at eight o'clock.

A MAMMOTH BASS

Herb Bradley caught a 6¾-pound big mouth, black bass in the Mississauga River at the week-end. This stream empties into Lovesick Lake east of Buckhorn. The Bradley bass would be up in the front row in any fishing competition around here this season, but those awards are suspended probably only until the war ends.

HAVING ITS FACE LIFTED

The Post Office clock is about to have its face lifted . . . both literally, and actually. All four sides of the big ticker have been in need of repairs for some time, and before long, the faces and hands will all be re-decorated, and glass that has become chipped or cracked, will be replaced with new installations. An interesting new type of scaffold is being used to reach the clock. Called the "Safeway" scaffold, the first 12 feet up are squared, and from then on, the affair just slips into place. It has reached the height of 70 feet, from where workmen say the job can be conveniently handled.

C.G.E.-Genelco Total $7,189 For War Victims

It has been one continued story of achievement by the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., with Genelco Ltd. on behalf of the war torn sufferers from enemy bombing attacks over the British Isles, and in view of the more urgent need of help at the moment, it is a tribute to them and their apparent mindfulness of the needs of others besides themselves, that the fund is to-day able to record a further three separate gifts for this worthy cause.

In all some 214 separate donations have been made by the various departments since the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund came into existence, this having rolled up a splendid total of $7,189.91, which actually accredits them with being responsible for a full three regular donations of £500, with over £100 of the fourth of such gifts that have been cabled over to the Lord Mayor of London.

From this it can be readily seen that they have done a considerable amount of good in alleviating the horrible distress that follows to any family unfortunate enough to be hit by these terrible instruments of destruction, and when one considers that official statements from no less an authority than Prime Minister Churchill himself disclose that close to 10,000 casualties in killed and wounded people have occurred in the recent short space of time, their help just now is most opportune, and will do still further good in their name.

Industrial Control Department $335

Leading the way in this years achievements, the Industrial Control Department, headed by P. Killingbeck as foreman, have surely demonstrated what can be accomplished when people follow a star of sacrifice and virtue for a good cause, for through the support given to the definite interest on behalf of the cause by Phillip Weir, they have now made seven different gifts this year, rolling up a grand total of $180.74 in that short space of time, and when their former contributions are added, they have a splendid total of $335.81 to their credit.

The same goodness is very high in evidence through the work of the Induction Motor Test Dept. through Miss A. McCracken, who have given on at least sixteen different occasions, their contributions always appearing under the title of "Odd Nickels" and when considered that this is the smallest of groups in the plant, one has reason to feel they may justly feel quite pleased at their own record.

Then a third gift appearing today comes from the Inspection Dept. of which D. Hill is foreman, they too having been heard from on former occasions, the whole making a day which particularly belongs to the big industrial plant, which plays an important part in the economic interests of the city, just as it has played in the humanitarian work the fund endeavours to carry on.

This Monday next will again be a day of personal gifts, and the fund management would again reiterate the plea of His Worship Mayor Hamilton made two days ago for personal help, to which there has already been some response both from the city, and in the district.

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

JULY 14, 1940.—Maj. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton made lieutenant-general in command of a new British army corps which included Canadian forces in Britain. Prime Minister Churchill in world-wide broadcast predicted long fight against Germany and said: "We shall seek no terms; we shall tolerate no parley."

WOUNDED—Cpl. James Beavis, who has been reported wounded in France on July 4, according to word received by his brother, Ken Beavis, of 639 Roger street. Cpl. Beavis enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in 1940 and recently transferred to a Western Canadian unit.

BROTHERS IN SERVICE—George Nelson (RIGHT), who enlisted with the Royal Canadian Artillery in Cobourg in April, 1942, and is now serving overseas with the 23rd Field Regiment as a signaller. Ordinary Seaman Milton Nelson (LEFT), now training at Kingston. He enlisted with the R.C.N.V.R. in January. Before enlisting he was employed with the Kawartha News Service, Peterborough. They are sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nelson, of Dartford.

City's Public Schools Filled Committee Studies Problem

Signs of increasing attendance in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute, with a consequent problem of accommodation already looming, were discussed by the Board of Education Thursday evening to the point of naming a special committee to make a survey of the probabilities and report, if possible, at the next meeting on the second Thursday of September.

The committee members were as follows: Mrs. F. K. Harris, Mrs. E. Parnall, T. J. Carley, D. V. Canning and C. A. Sollitt, with G. W. Craw, chairman, ex-officio.

The subject of diminishing reserve of accommodation was broached by Mr. Craw with the suggestion that it seemed to be advancing to the stage which the Board should consider as a definite responsibility to the people and their children, and with an eye, if need be, to post-war action.

Mr. Craw stated that 245 pupils were leaving the Public Schools from the entrance classes this year, and 343 children were entering Grade I when the new term begins in September.

"That means an immediate increase of one hundred children distributed among our present schools with the prospect of crowding the junior classes," Mr. Craw said. "Mr. Wightman has been trying to get an idea of what we are to expect at the two Monaghan schools, but we do not know yet what we have to prepare for there."

On a percentage basis Mr. Craw estimated that the suburban school population would increase from 500 to 600, and while May's School might be able to absorb its new pupils, Confederation was already in the problem class, and some shift would have to be, probably the re-opening of a room in basement of Queen Mary School to adjust the attendance.

Auxiliary Rooms

Junior grade rooms are filled, Mr. Craw said, and the Board has in use only one auxiliary class for boys. "We should have another of those rooms for boys and two for girls."

The auxiliary rooms are for the special attention required by some boys and girls who fail to keep up with their classes, fall behind in the progress of studies, and become something of a special problem. The chairman expressed the opinion that the Board should enquire into the question of accommodation for the present and especially the future and try to find out what might be expected in the direction of attendance and provision for it.

Mr. Craw said that one solution might be the erection of small annex schools, if needed, instead of enlargements of present buildings. The two-room annex in the Park Hill area was quite successful, according to the report of Mr. Wightman. An alternative might be adopted at the Central School. One of the buildings is nearly one hundred years old, and people realize that a new school is really needed in its place. The Board might enquire into the idea of erecting a wing in its place and build another to add to it when needed. Part of it could be used as a Junior Collegiate, a plan that was in operation in some places with good results.

"With Grade IX in a junior high school we know that many of the students do not select their course until they have passed through that grade. These are some of the ideas regarding accommodation which I feel should be looked into and find out what we are likely to need."

T. J. Carley said he agreed that a committee might enquire into the facts and probabilities, but he was inclined to think the school population would decline after the war if families that came here for munitions work began to depart.

"And every other body in the city has a post-war planning committee, so I guess this Board might as well have one," D. V. Canning remarked.

Modern Education

Inspector Wightman reminded the members that modern education was advancing rapidly beyond the old frontiers of a generation ago, that new schools are incorpating accommodation for visual education by use of motion pictures and there was also radio aid to be considered.

"If we are ever to make use of these modern movements in education we should have at least one room available for that purpose," Mr. Wightman said. Local accommodation for kindergarten work was insufficient, and "we are about one room short in each school."

The discussion indicate a field of investigation and the Board left the appointment of a special committee to the chairman.

Thomas Miller War Veteran Passes In City

Veteran of two wars, Thomas Miller, 123 Maude street, died this morning at Nicholls Hospital, following an operation on Thursday.

Mr. Miller had been ill for five weeks, and had prepared for the operation to which he had looked forward with hopes of successful issue and restored health. He wsa born in Peterborough seventy years ago, son of the late Finch and Mary Miller. The family was long prominent in this city especially in military and music circles.

As a young man Tom Miller was attracted to military life, and it is recalled from memories of some years ago that his father advised him to the effect: "If you are going to join the army you might as well do it right; go over to the Old Country and see whether one of the Guards Regiments will take you." Tall for his years and ruggedly proportioned, the young man accepted his father's suggestion, worked his way across the Atlantic on a boat, and enlisted in the famous Scots Guards. The Royal Household regiments set a premium on physical fitness and especially on stature. Their recruits had to be at least six feet tall, and young Miller qualified in all respects. He was with that regiment for three years prior to the outbreak of the South African War, and served with the first battalion of the Guards in South Africa; and altogether for seven years, retiring as a sergeant.

The late Finch Miller was for years conductor of the 57th Regimental Band, a musician with training in the Old Country, and this talent displayed itself in other members of the family. Tom Miller played in the old band under his father's exacting baton, and occasionally later with the bands of the 93rd Battalion and the 57th Rangers.

In the last war Mr. Miller enlisted in the 93rd Battalion of which he was Regimental Sergeant Major, went to France and after a period of escort duty returned to Peterborough in 1917. He had been employed for years as carpenter with T. C. Ephgrave, but for a time was Chief of Police at Millbrook prior to his enlistment with the 93rd Battalion under the late Colonel Tom Johnston.

Mr. Miller was widely known in Peterborough, and to them the news of his death will be received with deep feelings of regret. He is survived by his wife, the former Mabel Loomis, three daughters, Mrs. G. McDougall of Peterborough; Mrs. R. Eagle of Sutton and Mrs. B. Yonge of Peterborough and two sons, Pte. Walter Miller, who enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and is now in France, and Flight Sergeant Douglas Miller, R.C.A.F., of Jarvis, Ontario; also three brothers, William of Rochester, Fred of Chicago and Walter Miller of Peterborough.

Mr. Miller was a member of St. James' United church and of the Canadian Order of Foresters. The funeral will take place Monday at 2 p.m. from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. F. W. Craik will conduct the service.

Many Fish Dying Cause Said Unknown

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association was able to secure the services of Reg Werner of the Department of Game and Fisheries, to go to Sandy Lake to investigate the death of many fish found floating on the lake surface.

In this case it was not the raising and lowering of water, as Sandy Lake controls its own level. G. R. Langley reported this case.

MAROONED

Frances, one of the beautiful and comparatively new newlyweds on Stewart street had an embarrassing experience this week. With her husband due for dinner in an hour, she decided to clean the upstairs windows. She climbed out on the verandah roof, and was busy when the window slammed shut isolating the lady on the roof. After a half hour sit, she paged a passerby who came to her aid, and released the prisoner.

KILLED IN ACTION — Pte. John Patrick Hobbins, who was killed in France July 8, the same day as his brother, Pte. Michael Hobbins, lost his life. Both were serving with the S. D. & G. Highlanders and are sons of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake street.

Pte. J. Hobbins 2nd Brother Killed Overseas

The second son of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake street, to give his life for his country, Pte. John Patrick Hobbins, 30, was killed in action in France July 8, according to word received from Ottawa by his mother. Earlier this week, the soldier's brother, Pte. Michael Hobbins was reported killed in action, also on July 8. The capture of Caen, and the fighting preceding it, took place around that date, and it is quite probable the two Peterborough boys died fighting for that vital centre.

Pte. Hobbins was born and brought up in Peterborough, and attended Sacred Heart school and church. He is the son of the late Patrick Hobbins, and Mrs. Hobbins. He is survived by two brothers in the Canadian Army, Pte. Daniel Hobbins, R.C.O.C., overseas, Pte. Maurice Hobbins of the Royal Canadian Engineers, Petawawa, and three brothers at home, Leo, Dennis and Gerald; and also by his sister, Mrs. C. Cournyea Lake street.

The late Pte. John Hobbins was employed by the Brinton Carpet Company before enlisting in June, 1940. After training in Kingston, Ottawa and Debert, N.S., he went overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in 1941.

Dennis Hobbins, brother of the late soldier, enlisted with the Engineers, but was honourably discharged eight months later, and the youngest boy, Gerald, is with the reserve army in Peterborough.

Lots of Poultry

TORONTO, July 14 — (CP). — W. A. Brown, Chief of the Egg and Poultry Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture Marketing Service, told the Ontario poultry conference here yesterday that while Canada may have an estimated 30,000,000 pounds of surplus poultry for sale this year "the market outlook is strong on this continent."

Court Acquits McMahon On Drunk Driving

"After hearing the whole evidence I have decided to give the accused the benefit of the doubt", said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning in dismissing a drunk driving charge against Richard McMahon, R.R. 10, Peterborough.

The Crown's evidence in the case which arose out of an accident on June 29 on the Warsaw Road, near Leahy's Lane was heard Wednesday and there was a remand until this morning to allow McMahon to call witnesses.

Today Fergus Moher, Douro township, who saw McMahon at the scene of the accident shortly after the collision swore that the accused was sober at that time.

"Do you think you are more experienced in regard to drunken men than police officers are," asked Mr. Kerr and the witness replied that he did not think so.

Fabian Mooney, swore that he had worked with McMahon all that day at Curtis' brickyard and had come into town with him in the evening. He stated that they had visited a beverage room and each had had three glasses of beer.

Mooney declared that McMahon was not drunk, at the time of the accident. He himself had been brought into the police station after the accident, he said, but had been allowed to go after being tested by being required to walk a crack in the station.

"If a man can walk and talk I wouldn't say he was drunk," Mooney said when asked as to his idea of what constituted drunkenness. He said that he could drink half a dozen pints of beer without showing any signs of being affected by it.

McMahon swore that he only had the three glasses of beer as stated by Mooney and that he was not drunk. He said that the accident was caused by the other driver suddenly cutting out to pass a car parked on the road and declared that it was too late for him to do anything about averting the crash.

"I am not reflecting in any way upon the evidence given by the police officers in this case," said Magistrate Langley. "But there is a doubt and the accused must be given the benefit of it. In his manner in court and his appearance one would almost think that he was drunk."

"I am acquitting you," he told McMahon, "but this should be a warning to you. Don't get into a motor car to drive if you have been drinking."

Pte. Ed Amyotte War Casualty

Pte. Edward Amyotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Amyotte, 359 Euclid Avenue, has been officially reported wounded in action somewhere in France, according to word received Thursday by his mother. The young soldier formerly worked in the pressroom of the Examiner, and in a letter written July 5 to P. McLean, of the Examiner pressroom, told of being right up in the front lines, and said he expected in a week, he would be due for a rest behind the front.

The letter continued: "One of the Peterborough boys here, Fred Delaire, received a bunch of Examiners from his brother in the Engineers . . . and they sure looked good to us boys from Peterborough. There are quite a few Peterborough boys here, including Fred Crowe, Al McQuarrie, Jack Tighe, Herb Bowen, Fred Hill from Lakefield, and J. P. Hobbins." (Pte. John P. Hobbins has been officially reported killed in action July 8. Pte. Amyotte was probably injured in the same battle and area in which Pte. Hobbins gave his life).

Pte. Amyotte joined the S.D.&G. Highlanders in November, 1940 and after training here, Ottawa and Debert, N.S., went overseas with that regiment in 1941. He had been employed in the Examiner for three years, and following that, went to Toronto, where he worked for a short time. A brother LAC. J. Amyotte, is with the R.C.A.F. and stationed at Halifax.

Mining News

Unofficial reports of good drill results at Donalda Mines and a possible stock deal with New York interest caused a flurry in the shares of that company on the over-the-counter market yesterday.

Although it was reported in yesterday's issue that a further 1,000,000 shares of Bear Exploration and Radium, Ltd., were listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange, there are actually no more shares of the company available for trading than there were five months ago. At that time authorized capital was increased from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares, and it is this additional million shares which have been listed.

Aldermac Copper Corporation advises that by agreement of July 12 Mac Holdings Corp. has underwritten 100,000 shares at 25 cents a share, payment to be made forthwith, and optioned 400,000 shares in 100,000-shares blocks at 25, 30, 35 and 40 cents a share.

Pacific Oil & Refinery advises that an extension of one month has been granted in connection with the July and all subsequent instalments under agreement with Brookland Ltd. Next instalment is exercisable by Aug. 12.

Diamond-drilling started last week on the N'Kana property on Conwest Exploration Co., in the Yellowknife district, adjoining the Con and Rycon properties on the northeast in the central section of the camp. Geological mapping of this and other properties held by the company has been under way for several weeks under the direction of A. W. Johnson, chief geologist for Central Patricia. Several holes were spotted in the southern section of the claims.

Prospecting and exploration work will be started as soon as possible on the claims recently acquired by Fleetwood Yellowknife Mines under the direction of Dr. J. F. Wright. The west group is on the main regional break of the area and ties on to holdings of Frobisher Exploration Co., on the west. Dr. Wright reports that the formations bordering major regional breaks may be crossed by subsidiary structures carrying gold ores and the ground along, or close to, one of the main breaks in the field is regarded as attractive for exploration. The east group of claims is directly east of the company's west group, the two locations being separated by the Nib ground.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

REDS STEP UP WESTWARD DRIVE—Racing westward at a surprising rate of speed, Russian forces are gobbling up miles of territory. The broken line, RIGHT, shows the battlefront at the start of the present Red Army offensive. In a period of 18 days, Stalin's troops drove forward 230 miles. The shaded area on the map indicates the territory recaptured by Soviet units under Marshal Cheniakhovsky. If these forces continue at their present rate of speed, they may cross the German border into East Prussia within a week and reach the Baltic sea within two or three weeks.

Douglas Quirt In Hospital Making Progress

TORONTO, July 14—On an airfield near a Canadian hospital in England, a young pilot climbed into a Mosquito bomber a few weeks ago, took off smoothly and flew gaily and expertly over the neat countryside for a half hour or more.

When he landed, he picked up his crutches, made his way slowly and stiffly to a wheelchair and returned to the hospital.

FO. DOUG. QUIRT

"It was really wonderful to be back flying again," FO. Doug Quirt, Peterborough, recalled at Christie St. Hospital last night. "It's been a year since the crash, so it was really swell. I even buzzed the old hospital."

The crash he spoke of so casually occurred in July last year. The lean-faced quick-talking pilot had been flying Mosquitos for months on photographic reconnaissance over Poland, Czechoslovakia, France, Norway, Germany and points between—14 trips in all.

Carry Only Camera

"Photo recce means we carry nothing but the camera," he explained. "No guns at all, but plenty of speed. Jack (the navigator) and I had just succeeded in shaking off three Focke-Wulf 190's and we were pretty well pleased with ourselves.

"The fog that day was the worst I've ever seen. We flew along, relying on our altimetre and hoping for a break. The last thing I remember is Jack standing up to wipe the windscreen. We hit a hill, going almost 300 miles an hour."

Ten weeks later, FO. Quirt recovered consciousness in a hospital bed and learned that his back was broken. The navigator had been killed instantly; Quirt survived through a combination of a seeming miracle and the straps which held him to the seat. Both feet, which had been resting on the rudder bars, were snapped at the ankle.

Romance Enters Hospital

"Funny thing," he laughed. "While I was 'out' my brother paid frequent visits to the hospital. Obviously there wasn't any use of sitting in my room, so he spent the time with a nurse. Two weeks before he went into France, he married her.

Doug. Quirt's progress has been slow. Paralyzed from the break down, and with internal injuries further complicating his recovery, he has regained the use of his legs to the knee, is able to wiggle the toes of his left foot. In a year, he expects to enter university.

The crash last year was the Peterborough boy's second major accident. The first happened almost three years ago at an eastern Canada coastal reconnaissance base, where he was taking off in a Lockheed. One engine conked out and the heavy plane spun in and burst into flames.

Doug Quirt, then a sergeant pilot, escaped by running through the flames, protecting his face with his arms. He spent months in hospital that time, in wearisome skin grafting.

Nab Police Chief

ROME, July 14 — (AP).— Pietro Caruso, Police Chief of Rome during the final four months of German occupation, may be the first of enemy leaders to be tried as a war criminal.

Investigators say they already have affidavits that Caruso personally chose 50 of the 320 Italians executed in masse by the Germans last March in reprisal for the killing of 32 SS. soldiers.

Soldier's Wife Faces Eviction

TORONTO, July 14—A "guard of honor" of veterans of the last war and the present war will be at 12 Ridley Gdns. Monday morning to prevent the eviction of the family of Sgt. Francis A. Poole.

This was the statement last night of Ald. Charles Sims, himself a veteran of the last war, who said he would accompany the "guard of honor." Wives of men overseas, who have expressed an interest in the case, will also be present, he said.

The family, consisting of Mrs. Poole and four children, face eviction Monday unless accommodation is secured. A daughter, Lenore, enlisted in the C.W.A.C. last week, when the threat of eviction still hung over the family

Move for Extension

Ald. Sims will visit Mayor Conboy today and demand that Judge Egerton Lovering, who issued the eviction order, be recalled from his vacation to grant a further extension to the family.

He said he visited the owner's lawyer yesterday but was unable to arrive at a compromise. Welfare Commissioner A. W. Laver had been unable to secure other accommodation for the family, Ald. Sims stated.

"The feeling among the veterans is high," he said. "Some of the boys are going down there Monday with battle flags. There will be at least a couple of dozen but there may be many more. At present time, I can see no hope of anything but the 'guard of honor' if this family is not to be put on the street."

The family physician told Mrs. Poole a few days ago that she must not become excited or she would suffer complete collapse. Ald. Sims asserted.

"I hope that before Monday, some real estate agent who hears of the plight of this family may get them a house," said Ald. Sims. "Their situation is desperate."

At Board of Control yesterday afternoon, Con. D. A. Balfour denounced earlier statements of Ald. Sims regarding the case.

"This man says there will be riots in Toronto," said Con. Balfour. "There will be no riots in Toronto. We have a place to put a person who starts a riot in this city and that kind of statement should stop."

Drew Denies Bracken Story

TORONTO, July 14.— (CP). — Premier Drew last night described as "completely untrue and without foundation of any kind" a published report in the Toronto Evening Telegram yesterday which said that Premier Drew and George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, were rumored to be planning to oust John Bracken from the leadership of the Dominion Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. McCullagh stated: "The story is too fantastic to call for any comment."

The Telegram said that rumors that a Toronto group said to be led by Premier Drew and Mr. McCullagh were planning to oust Mr. Bracken "have been heard around Queen's Park for some time."

The Ottawa Evening Citizen in a newspage story by Torchy Anderson Wednesday said that a Progressive Conservative caucus had discussed "alleged attempts of a Toronto clique" to gain control of the party.

3 Nazis Escape

TORONTO, July 14 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police Headquarters here yesterday announced that three German Prisoners of War working on a labor project at Vermillion Bay in the Kenora district had escaped. R.C.M.P. officials said they expected the escaped prisoners' freedom would be brief because of black flies which caused one escaped Nazi to surrender this week.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BE READY FOR THEM

SOME OF the fancy tactics of advanced players are not profitable moves to attempt, in the long run. But it is well to understand them, so you may protect yourself when some smart chap tries to victimize you. One of those is a No Trump game bid by a player with a long solid suit, who has on the side a card which he expects to be a sure trick taker in the suit likely to be led.

North: ♠ 10 7 6 4 ♥ J 4 3 ♦ A Q 10 9 7 4 ♣ None

West: ♠ K 5 3 2 ♥ A 7 6 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ 7 6 3

East: ♠ A 9 8 ♥ Q 10 9 8 5 ♦ K J 6 ♣ 9 8

South: ♠ Q J ♥ K 2 ♦ 2 ♣ A K Q J 10 5 4 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♦	1♥
3 NT

West made the natural lead, a small card from his heart A, the K winning. South then promptly ran eight club tricks and had his game, and the diamond 2 to the A enabled him to score an extra trick.

A spade lead would have ruined South. East could have won that, returned his heart Q through the K and so would have killed South's entire hand. There would have been no entry to start the club suit. As a consequence, the defenders could have picked off plenty of tricks as the declarer kept leading away from the dummy.

South's bid is a standard gag of tricky bidders. It is based on the expectation that the suit bid at his right would be led. Always it pays to view such bidding with a bit of suspicion. If South had the standard kind of hand for a jump to 3-No Trumps, he would have been more likely to jump to just 2-No Trumps over East's 1-Heart. The hop into 3-No Trumps was largely for the purpose of preventing any more bidding, which might give West more information about what he should and should not lead.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 6 ♥ 8 4 3 ♦ 9 8 4 2 ♣ A K 9 7 4

West: ♠ K J 10 8 3 ♥ 7 6 2 ♦ 7 3 ♣ 6 3 2

East: ♠ None ♥ A K 10 9 5 ♦ A K J 6 ♣ Q J 8 5

South: ♠ A Q 9 7 5 4 2 ♥ Q J ♦ Q 10 5 ♣ 10

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Spade and North 2-Clubs, what would you do in the East if you were out to gain the biggest possible result on this deal?

CANADIANS MOVE INTO ACTION—In battle formation these Canadians move forward in the Oden River section of Normandy. Note grim expression on the first man's face.

Glengarrians First Into Caen

By ROSS MUNRO, Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE CAEN FRONT, July 15.—(CP Cable).—The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont., was the first Canadian regiment to get into Caen last Sunday morning. Supported by tanks of the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, Sherbrooke, Que., the Highlanders went down the rubble-piled streets shouting their wild battle cry, "Up the Glens."

Close behind came the Highland Light Infantry from Galt, Ont., and the North Nova Scotia Highlanders, Amherst, N.S. These three infantry regiments, with the faithful Sherbrooke tanks which have supported them ever since D-day, formed the vanguard in the battle of Caen.

It was these four units which battled throught the German defence triangle hinged on the three towns of Burn, Gruchy and Authie northwest of Caen in the early phase of the action and then pushed on to Caen itself.

In addition armored cars of the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars, Montreal, also shared in the advance on Caen, moving into the city alongside a famous British Cavalry Regiment.

Names of these units were released to-day along with names of the Canadian formations which fought in the battle of Carpiquet which preceded the capture of Caen.

Regiments in action at Carpiquet were: The North Shore New Brunswick Regiment, Newcastle, N.B., the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, a Toronto unit, Le Regiment de la Chaudiere, Lake Megantic, Que., the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Fort Garry Horse, a Winnipeg regiment.

In the Carpiquet action the North Shore New Brunswick regiment and the Chaudieres led the assault on Carpiquet village July 4 and captured it, supported by the Queen's Own and the Fort Garry Tanks.

Hit the Airfield.

The Royal Winnipeg Rifles, with some Fort Garry Tanks, attacked the southern edge of the Carpiquet airfield through July 4 and fought a bloody battle in and around the south hangars before they were ordered to withdraw because of fierce German artillery, mortar and machine gun fire, as well as enemy tank attacks.

From July 4 until Caen fell July 9 the four units in Carpiquet village were subjected to terrible artillery and mortar bombardment but stuck through it and beat off four German counter-attacks.

They took the offensive July 9 and the Queen's Own went forward to capture their original objectives—the administration and control buildings on the east side of the airfield.

The Chaudieres swung around to take the south hangars, supported by Fort Garry Tanks.

Raged All Day.

6 Parties, 200 Candidates Girding For Quebec Election

MONTREAL, July 15.—(CP).—With official nomination day in most constituencies more than a fortnight away, more than 200 candidates are already campaigning for the Quebec election Aug. 8. The three leading parties, Liberals, Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire, have their campaigns well underway, while the C.C.F., Labor Progressives and Union Des Electeurs (Social Credit) will heighten their efforts in the coming week.

Official nominations will be held in most constituencies Aug. 1 and candidates will probably pass the 300 mark. Choices made to date for the Legislature's 91 seats number as follows:

Liberals 83; Union Nationale 71; Bloc Populaire 43; C.C.F. 18; Union des Electeurs seven; Labor Progressive four; Independent Labor one; Nationalist one; Independent Nationalist one. Total 229.

Premier Godbout will run in his old seat, L'Islet, with Joseph Bilodeàu, minister of municipal affairs in the 1936-39 Union National Government, his only opponent so far, while Union National Leader Maurice Duplessis will again contest Three Rivers.

Andre Laurendeau, Bloc Populaire provincial leader, will run in Montreal Laurier.

The C.C.F., Union des Electeurs and Labor Progressive parties will contest only part of the 91 seats and have not named provincial leaders.

R. Lamoureux, Congress of Labor organizer, who is Quebec president of the C.C.F., will oppose at least three candidates in Montreal St. Henry.

Jean Bourget, Quebec organizer of the Labor Progressive Party, will run in Montreal St. James against four or more opponents.

Rene Chaloult, Nationalist member for Lotbiniere in the last Legislature, will contest Quebec (County), and has been given the support of Ernest Gregorie, a member of the Union des Electeurs and vice-president of the Creditist Association of Canada. However, the Union des Electeurs organization in the county have decided to select a candidate or their own.

Paul Gouin, founder of the former Action Nationale Liberale which helped to overthrow the Taschereau Liberal administration in 1935, and an A.L.N. member in 1935-36, will run in L'Assomption as an Independent Nationalist with the support of Mr. Chaloult.

Jean Drapeau, who ran as a "candidate of the conscripts" in the 1942 Federal by-election in Montreal Outremont against War Services Minister LaFleche, will be the Bloc Populaire candidate in Montreal Jeanne Mance.

Switch To Provincial Field

Quebec Election Attracts 5 Members

OTTAWA, July 15—(CP)—Belief was expressed today in political circles here that no more federal members will resign to contest seats in the Quebec election Aug. 8.

Five Quebec members of the Commons—three Liberals and two Bloc Populaire party supporters—have already left their federal seats to seek election in the provincial field.

The five men were believed to have made the switch after being assured that they would be given cabinet posts if their respective parties won.

One of the Liberal members, Maurice Gingues, who represented Sherbrooke constituency in Quebec, resigned his federal seat after being appointed minister without portfolio in the Quebec cabinet.

Lionel Bertrand, Liberal member of the Commons for Terrebonne constituency, was another to resign, and it was reported he would be named provincial secretary if the Liberal government of Premier Adelard Godbout was returned to power. Hon. Hector Perrier, present provincial secretary, will not run again.

L. P. Lizotte resigned his seat as federal Liberal member for Kamouraska, and it was believed he likely would be a candidate for a cabinet post if he and his party were elected.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier, member of the Commons for Portneuf constituency, and Edouard Lacroix, member for Beauce, were the two Bloc Populaire party supporters to enter the provincial field. The two were among the first to join the Bloc Populaire party when it was formed two years ago after three Liberals bolted from their party over the conscription issue.

Reds Launch New Drive At Tarnopol

German Resistance Stiffens Near Prussian Border

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, JULY 15 (AP) — The Germans announced today the Russians have launched a long-awaited offensive in Southern Poland—extending to 500 miles a front which in the north challenges the last-ditch string of forts guarding the Junker homeland in East Prussia, now less than 20 miles ahead of the Red Army.

The Germans said the Russians struck from northwest of Tarnopol, where they last were reported within 30 miles of strategic Lwow, and west of Luck, 120 miles southeast of Lublin, which guards the southeast approaches to Warsaw.

A drive from Luck also would pose a southern flanking threat to Brest-Litovsk, fortress town scarred by two wars, which stands on the main line west to Warsaw and anchors the enemy's Bug River defences.

Reds Mum

"Some Russian penetrations were eliminated in counter-thrusts," the Berlin radio said of the new offensive.

Moscow, habitually silent on new operations until they are well developed, had not mentioned any new drive south of the Pripyat Marshes.

The Russians kept up their breakneck pace through wavering defences as they struck on in the Baltic States toward the fortified line guarding East Prussia. The BBC said in a broadcast beamed to Europe that the Germans had begun to dismount installations in the East Prussian fortress Port of Konigsberg.

The Germans were throwing up street barricades and defences in buildings and houses in Grodno, Bialystok and Brest Litovsk, and bracing against the steadily advancing Russians in the Baltic cities of Kaunas and Daugavpils (Dvinsk) the dispatches said.

(From London came word that three Nazi news agencies—D.N.B., Transocean and International Information Bureau—announced to day that the Russians have opened a "long-expected" major offensive between Tarnopol and Luck in Southern Poland.)

The Nazi line was reported wide open in numerous sectors from the Velikaya river, last barrier to the Middle Baltics, to south of the Pripet marsh region around captured Pinsk. The Germans appeared unable to hold anywhere as five Rus-

Quiet Prevails For 5th Night

By JAMES E. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 15.—(AP).— The official program of removing civilians from London because of the Germans' robot-bomb attacks constitutes the "biggest and most speedy evacuation of any of the war," Minister of Health Henry U. Willink said to-day.

He disclosed that 207,468 persons registered for evacuation and 152,652 were taken away from the capital under the program in the 13 days ending yesterday.

Flying bombs caused some damage and casualties last night in the southern counties, but quiet prevailed in London for the fifth successive night.

The Minister of Health said in a press conference that 14 residential nurseries and two schools for handicapped children have been moved from flying bomb target areas.

The heaviest attacks have been coming in daylight all week at times when the bombs might be expected to create terror.

The German radio said the purpose "is not only to destroy industrial and military objectives, but also to create among Londoners the feeling of constant insecurity by which their capacity for war work will be adversely affected."

The evacuation of the capital was said to be greater than during the 1940-41 blitz, and finding refuge for the women and children seeking to escape the bomb attacks was becoming a serious problem.

Scores of evacuees have returned to London after being turned away in safe areas, and the government may be forced to crack down on those reluctant to open their homes, it is reported here.

Mechanic Wins British Empire Medal

BRANTFORD, July 15.—(CP). — While he rested in a hospital bed yesterday recovering from a tonsilitis attack, Cpl. F. C. Cox, Brantford aero-engine mechanic stationed at nearby No. 5 Service Flying Training School of the R.C.A.F., received word he had been awarded the British Empire Medal.

The award was made in recognition of his courageous action in bringing about the rescue of Lac. D. M. Slauenwhite of Boston, Mass., from a burning plane wreck near the flying school last March.

Cpl. Cox's parents reside in Toronto but he and his wife have made their home here for some time.

Bombers Wreck Trains In Paris Area

By AUSTEN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, July 15 — (AP). — British heavy bombers hammered at railroads in the suburbs of Paris early to-day as a climax to widespread night air assaults in which other heavies hit flying-bomb installations in France and Mosquitos ripped into German positions in Normandy and objectives in Germany.

The important Villeneuve-St. Gorges railroad yards on the southeastern outskirts of Paris gave the Lancasters their target for to-day. Reconnaissance had disclosed large concentrations of rolling stock there, loaded with supplies for the battle area.

Seven bombers were missing from the attack on Villeneuve-St. Gorges. A communique said one failed to return from the operations during the hours of darkness.

The fliers said visibility was poor while they were en route to Paris, but the weather over the target as clear. One of two explosions during the attack sent a sheet of flames along the tracks, indicating an ammunition train as hit.

The yards at Villeneuve - St. Gorges last were hit the night of July 4. One of the largest railway centres in the Paris area, the yards are a distributing point for traffic from the south of Paris.

One of the night Mosquito formations sped to 60 miles south of Tours, and made a low-level attack on German barracks in a forest. They dumped more than 32 tons of bombs on the buildings. Other Mosquitos continued their attacks on German communications throughout the night.

The U.S. Army Air Force announced yesterday's heavy-bomber attack on targets in the Amiens sector resulted in no loss of bombers or escorting fighters.

Americans 3 Miles From Leghorn

ROME, July 15. —(CP).—American units of the Allied 5th Army have driven to within 3½ miles of the vital seaport of Livorno and have captured Chianni, 13 miles inland from the west coast, it was announced to-day, while the British 8th Army occupied the village of Santa Lucia in the Upper Tiber Valley.

The 8th also advanced to within two miles of Citta Di Castello, a road junction with heavy fighting going on in the hills around it.

Battered German units fell back at many points before Livornobn as the Americans moved to within artillery range of the town and within nine miles of the Arno river.

In the Arezzo area British troops exerted steady pressure on the enemy. Farther east the 8th Army straightened its lines by advancing through Gualdo Tadino to Fossato Di Vicco, 23 miles northeast of Prugia.

Canadian tank units held positions in the hills on the west side of the Chiana Valley, without gaining or losing ground, Doug How, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported.

Italian troops occupied Cingoli, 22 miles southwest of the east coast port of Ancona and the village of Strada, two miles north of Cingoli, to assist in straightening the line.

The French, who celebrated Bastille Day by seizing Poggibonsi in a combined flanking move and direct assault, pursued the enemy northward.

An Allied spokesman said the leading elements of the American forces on the west coast were within six miles of the edge of Livorno late yesterday. Frontline reports declared by last night, however, that the doughboys had punched to within 3½ miles of the outskirts at one point and to within 5¾ miles at another.

In a broad forward sweep, one American column passed Ghizzano, 23 miles due east of Livorno, and occupied all the important heights covering the approach to the Arno River, 10 miles away.

Another American force captured Villamagna, 15 miles west of Poggibonsi, while still other United States units swept through Chianni and Belvedere, enemy strongholds guarding the sea valley avenue to-

Reach Suburbs Lessay, St. Lo Canadian Front Still Quiet

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 15 — (AP) — American troops, striking forward four miles and straightening a loop in the centre, hammered at the Germans' triple-bastion road line in western Normandy today, fighting a mile from Lessay and two miles from Periers and St. Lo. A lull persisted on the British-Canadian sector to the east but heavy German shelling of British positions in the Maltot and Eterville areas from four to five miles southwest of Caen, and the Canadian positions southwest of Caen was reported.

Gen. Montgomery is still apparently preparing his big attack. Allied armor is at full strength.

British troops have captured more than 7,000 Germans and killed or wounded four times as many —28,000 to 30,000—since D-day, a British staff officer at the front declared.

The whole Allied bag of prisoners was above 54,000, for an American announcement June 14 said 46,819 enemy troops had been taken by U. S. forces.

3 Towns Fall

Three towns fell in the four-mile American southward drive from the marshes of Plessis toward Periers, closing in the American Line menacing that middle stronghold, in the largest single-day advance since Cherbourg's capture. Sixteen towns and villages on the American front have been seized in the last 24 hours.

The Germans fought desperately to hold their line on the lateral road running from Lessay 21 miles southeastward through Periers to St. Lo. A front dispatch said the enemy poured the toughest artillery fire yet encountered against one U.S. column nearing the Pont-Herbert Road north of St. Lo after a 600-yard advance. Infantrymen fought yard by yard for the big road hub of St. Lo, and were closing in from positions at La Barre De Semilly two miles to the east.

This was the position of the American front this morning:

Lessay—One mile north of the town after the capture of the hamlet of Beauvais, converging on the town from the east where they were two miles away at Pissot, while on the west they were about 1½ miles away after advancing from St. German Sur Ay.

Periers — A late telephone call from the 21st Army group this morning said the Americans had driven to within two miles of the town from the north. The exact position was not given. Previous information few hours before, how-

Guam Pounded For Ten Days

PEARL HARBOR, July 15 — (AP). — The Tokyo radio reported to-day that 85 American planes had raided Guam and that two American heavy bombers attacked Iwo Jima in the Kazan group, 870 miles north-west of Guam, and added:

"A powerful unit, with carriers, battleships, cruisers and destroyers is continuing activities near Guam. The air situation does not allow a moment of optimism."

Since the Kazan or Volcano Island group heretofore has been beyond the range of American land-based bombers, a raid by Liberators would mean that the heavy bomber strip on newly-captured Saipan Island had been put into operation.

Last night Admiral Nimitz disclosed in a press release that carrier plane attacks on the former United States outpost of Guam have been unbroken through 10 straight days. These bomb and rocket blows have been augmented by warship shellings.

Two starvation-threatened Japanese forces are attempting to break Allied encirclement in New Guinea, one by bitter fighting and the second by escape through hazardous jungles, headquarters in New Guinea announced today.

The "fierce resistance" of American outposts halted an initial breakthrough attempt of the 18th Iperial Army, after vanguards of its 45,000 men crossed the Driniumor river, 21 miles east of Aitape, in British New Guinea. Fighting continued along a fluid front, while the main body was forced to reorganize for another attack under continual fire.

Remnants of the now-impotent Japanese garrison in the Sarmi-Manfin Bay area, about 300 miles westward in Netherlands New Guinea, plunged toward inland jungles from positions made untenable by Allied advances.

Bancroft Boy First Casualty To Arrive From France

KINGSTON, July 15—The first Military District No. 3 casualty from the fighting in Normandy, Bdr. J. S. Black, of Bancroft, arrived back in Kingston early yesterday.

Black, who fought three days in France with an anti-tank battery and was wounded in the leg by shrapnel as Canadians pushed towards Caen, returned to this district with Capt. H. H. Roberts, of Westport, Ont., and 18 other ranks.

With other Canadians, Black crossed the channel in a motor transport and transferred to a landing craft tank off-shore for the beach assault. Although tanks had gone ahead to clear a path for them on the beach, Black stated there was still plenty of work for his battery when they landed.

Plenty of Opposition

"Pushing inland we passed many French people, but we did not have time to stop and talk to them," he said. "Our morale and equipment was wonderful, but we met plenty of stiff opposition.

"I left most of my equipment somewhere in the battle zone, but with the kind of fighting that is going on in France you do not bother to go back 'for a bit of webbing!'", the bombardier declared from his bed at Kingston Military Hospital where he is now confined.

"He was everywhere and always on the go", was the comment of

Many Delegates Seeking Nomination

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP).—Vice-Presidential candidates abounded to-day as anxious Democrats awaited word from National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan on the White House attitude towards their ticket's second-place entry.

Mr. Hannegan reputedly had in his possession a letter from President Roosevelt to the party convention, which will begin the business next week of nominating him for a fourth term, expressing preference for the renomination of Vice-President Wallace, but leaving final decision to the delegates.

With many delegates contending Mr. Wallace cannot win on his own, the list of those who hastened to make themselves available lengthened hourly.

Among the latest whose names came to the front were four senators: Alfred (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, Claude Pepper of Florida, Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Elbert Thomas of Utah.

These, along with Governor Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Supreme Justice William O. Douglas, War Mobilization Director James S. Byrnes, Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, were listed in pre-convention lobby gossip as in a receptive frame of mind.

Ministers Get $10,000 In 2 Departments

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 15 — (CP) — The Commons yesterday completed its working week with a burst of progress that made members hope the morning sittings which begin on Monday and continue until the end of the session would not try them for too long.

Still eager debaters although they have been in Ottawa since January, the members yesterday gave third readings to bills establishing the National Health and Welfare Department, ratifying a taxation convention with the United States and consolidating naval orders.

They gave first reading to a bill to provide salaries of $10,000 each for members who will head the new portfolios of reconstruction and national health and welfare, and then went on with the chore which lasts almost the length of the session—the passing of nonwar estimates for the various government departments.

In discussion of the Ministers' Salaries measure, Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said there should be consideration of combining some of the lighter Cabinet portfolios so there would be no increase in the number of Cabinet members.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said it was the government intention that the Minister appointed to the reconstruction portfolio at first would be one already holding a portfolio in another department.

Two departments related to the war—Munitions and National War Services—would gradually be eliminated after the war, and if the Minister who happened to hold one of these portfolios were the one appointed as Minister of Reconstruction provision had to be made for his salary when holding this new post.

"I cite these two but in doing so I do not mean to imply necessarily that it would be the Minister of either of those departments who would be appointed minister of reconstruction," Mr. King said.

(The Ministers are Munitions Minister Howe and War Services Minister LaFleche.

The Government had no desire to have a larger number of ministers than necessary.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (P.C.-York-Sunbury) said he wondered if the Minister of Veterans' Affairs would be a new portfolio or whether Pensions Minister Mackenzie would be transferred to it.

"It is a matter of good behavior," said Mr. King, smiling.

Mr. Hanson said he thought the Cabinet too large, with more ministers than ever before.

Mr. King: "I do not think so."

Mr. Hanson said he would like to see fewer and better ministers and have them paid better, and Mr. King said all would like that situation.

Consider Voting

Monday the House will consider Senate amendments to the Commons bill providing voting facilities for electors on war service.

An appeal for a broadened program of child and maternal welfare in the post-war period was made by Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity-North Battleford) during committee consideration of the health bill.

She sought an amendment to make specific provision in the bill for a child welfare branch with some of the officials being women.

Her amendment was ruled out of order, but both Prime Minister MacKenzie King and Pensions Minister Mackenzie assured the House that its purpose was already covered in the general terms of the bill and that the maternal and child hygiene branch of the present Department of Pensions and National Health, which will continue under the new department, is the kind of branch she had in mind.

Albino Robin

GORE'S LANDING, July 15.—(ENS).—A rare specimen of bird life has made its appearance around the cabin home of Henly Sorby, one of the nature lovers of this village. It is an Albino robin.

The bird is pure white with a dusky head, a dark streak down the back, and tail and wings are slightly touched with dark grey. This is the first Albino robin to be seen around the village.

ward the Arno Valley.

Belvedert is 5½ miles north-east of Chianni.

Americans also captured Peccioli, another strongpoint in the Era Valley River, only nine airline miles from the river's junction with the Arno.

In the coastal sector the 5th Army moved up three to five miles. Advance elements of Highway main route to Livorno and Pisa, by mid-afternoon yesterday were on line 2½ miles north of Castiglioncello.

Four miles inland there was hard fighting just west of the village of Gabbro during the afternoon.

Send Grenadiers In.

In an apparent effort to protect the withdrawal of other divisions which suffered heavy losses in recent fighting, the Nazi command sent the 3rd Panzer Grenadier Division back into the line on the 5th Army front after a week's rest.

Prisoners taken by the 5th Army since it started its offensive May 11 now exceed 32,000, while the 8th Army reported prisoners were pouring into its cages at an average rate of 160 daily since the offensive began. This would add a total of more than 10,000.

The possibility was seen that the Germans plan to fall back on the Arno River. Recent aerial reconnaissance showed the enemy digging gun emplacements along the Arno between Florence and Pisa, and evidently the Germans intend to make it the outer edge of the deep Gothic line fortifications, extending back into the Apennine Range.

It was officially announced that the town of San Gimigmano, which the French captured July 13, has been reduced to ruins since by the German shelling. Spokesmen declared the Allies never considered the town a military objective and by a flanking action brought its fall without harm.

Religious Education Course Is Postponed

The Board of Education was advised at its meeting on Thursday night by Inspector K. S. Wightman, that he had received a circular sent to all principals of secondary schools in the province by Dr. J. G. Althouse that the course in religious education would not commence in September.

Inspector Wightman also informed the board that he had never been advised that the course would commence in the primary schools.

Resistance groups," said an official statement.

Eisenhower's announcement added:

"The Supreme Commander therefore makes the following statement:

"One—French forces of the interior constitute a combatant force commanded and directed by Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig and forming an intregal part of the Allied Expeditionary Force.

"Two—French forces of the interior in the Maquis bear arms openly against the enemy and are instructed to conduct their operations against him in accordance with the rules of war. They are provided with a distictive emblem and are regarded by General Eisenhower as an Army under his command.

"Three—in these circumstances, reprisals against resistance groups violate rules of war by which Germany is bound. Such crimes only strengthen the determination of the United Nations in bringing the war to a speedy and victorious conclusion to see that justice is carried out.

"Four—The Supreme Commander is determined that every effort shall be made to trace the authors of any atrocities committed against members of Forces under his command. Steps to this end are already being taken. The guilty will be brought to swift justice."

Gnr. J. D. O'Brien Meets Pope Pius

In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. O'Brien, Woolseley St., Gnr. ohn D. O'Brien, with an Anti-Aircraft Regiment somewhere in Italy, tells of a visit to Rome, and a meeting with the Pope.

"I went to Rome yesterday", the young soldier writes, "and along with many others in the army, had an audience with the Pope. He spoke a few words to us, and gave us his blessing. I had to travel more than 100 miles to get there, but it was worth while. I saw St. Peter's church here, and it is certainly a beautiful building. It is very large, with many pillars and altars. The tomb of St. Peter is surrounded by many gold ornaments, and the inside of the entire church is made of marble. I was in the Sistine Chapel also, and I saw many famous paintings there.

I am glad I went to Rome, and the Pope looks just like his pictures," he said.

Gnr. O'Brien enlisted in August, 1942, and after training in Brampton and Petawawa, went overseas at Christmas 1942. Previous to enlisting, he worked in Weston, Ont., but was born and brought up in Peterborough, and is well known through his employment at Chown's Hardware here. He is now serving with the British Eighth Army, in Italy. A brother, Able Seaman E. O'Brien is in the R.C.N., serving on a corvette in the Pacific area.

L/Cpl. A. E. Baxter, of Dunnville, on the exploits of Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent in Italy.

While on traffic control duty, Baxter saw the lanky C.P. writer many times. "Munro was always at the wheel of a long four-wheeled Italian car with Canadian Press written on the side, and he would drive it anywhere," said Baxter.

Munro was transferred from the Italian front to cover the invasion of Europe.

Baxter, who served with a special Canadian unit carrying out division patrol, saw action in both the Sicilian and Italian campaigns. He was wounded at Potenza on September 24 of last year, and was confined to hospital at Algiers. After recovery he again saw duty in Italy but later was transferred back to Canada as a result of his injuries.

Many of the returning soldiers gave varying accounts of their experiences with the robot bombs while in England. One of the men brought a fragment of a bomb back as a souvenier.

Glad of an opportunity to get back to Canada to see his family, but anxious to go back to duty overseas, Gnr. S. A. Burnerbeer, of Cataraqui, Ont., a conducting orderly, made a beeline for his favorite Princess street restaurant here. Although it was two o'clock in the morning with very few people on the street he was thrilled with the sight of the main street which he had not seen for nearly five years.

Madoc Boy Arrives

Cpl. J. J. Badgley, of Madoc, who with Black was the only other hospitalization case to return from overseas, said he was hit in the leg by a piece of grenade while coming back from a "nice quiet night patrol" north of Ortona.

Cpl. Badgley, who was in France in the spring of 1940, said that the Canadian equipment was much better than that of the Germans in Italy.

Rousing military marches greeted the train as it pulled in to the Outer station, and many friends and relatives, previously notified that their loved ones were returning, were on hand to welcome them home. Bandmaster W. Jesse led the No. 3A District Depot band in several selections.

Cigarettes and wallets were distributed to the returning soldiers by war service organzations and city officials.

"It certainly is a grand welcome," commented one returned soldier, "and the boys appreciate it."

ever, recorded the capture of Les Granges and Gonfreville, four miles north of the town.

Break Deadlock.

St. Lo — Late information this morning said the Americans had pushed west from La Barre de Semilly, breaking the deadlock there, but did not give the exact distance of the advance. This one pincer was closing on the town while a half-mile advance north-west of St. Lo down the Vire River through Creterville, placed another American column less than three miles from St. Lo in this direction.

There were no advances in the Caen sector of the front, and latest reports indicated British forces had withdrawn from Hill 112 north of Esquay, scene of bitter battles within the last few days.

Behind the battle-lines, Frenchmen and their invading Allies yesterday observed Bastille Day — French national holiday commemorating the fall of the Bastille in Paris during the French revolution—in many liberated towns and villages.

The German radio said today Allied ground troops are using a new type of grenade, described as "a parachute flare-bomb" fired by a grenade-thrower.

Use Firecrackers

A front report said German forces are setting off fire-crackers as nerve weapons. Lieut. Nick Shapis of Perth Amboy, N.J., said he found some fire-crackers stamped "made in Japan." The fireworks have slow-burning fuses of different lengths and explode at intervals with a sound resembling the crack of a sniper's rifle.

The capture of Lessay, Periers and St. Lo, now under American siege, would free the narrow bottleneck of the Cherbourg Peninsula and give the Allies greater freedom of movement behind their own lines. All these towns are connected by a lateral highway.

While the Germans undoubtedly will defend Periers and Lessay on a house-to-house basis, there appears little doubt that these defences will be only rearguard actions, coupled with a similar stand along the River Ay which now is flooded.

The next main German stand in the western part of the front is expected to come on the high ground north of a line from St. Lo to Coutances to maintain a hold where the terrain rises sharply.

As they retreat, the Germans are blowing up bridges and laying mine fields and ambushes.

The advance south of the Plessis was the fastest since the fall of Cherbourg. After the Americans took gorges at the base of the swamp the Germans apparently beat a hasty retreat.

Public Life Is Beckoning Younger Men

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 15 — (CP) — The House of Commons ran a weary hand through its greying hair this week and worried about getting too old.

This anxiety was expressed by Arthur Slaght (L—Parry Sound), who is 67, when the members discussed taxation changes they desired that which would make it possible for a man to be elected to parliament without feeling that he would have too little left from his $4,000 sessional indemnity to support his family and himself.

"As one of the older members of the House who in years, at least, although I hope not in all respects must be reckoned among the older men," Mr. Slaght said he recognized that it was becoming more and more the young man's day in public life. Younger men were being elected in the United Kingdom and in Australia and New Zealand.

"In the parliaments of those two commonwealths, as far as years recorded on the calendar are concerned, the average is a greater number of younger members than in the Canadian House," he said.

Subsequently, a check of the ages of the first 50 Canadian members of the Commons listed in the parliamentary guide indicated the average age was more than 50 years.

The ages of party leaders follow: Prime Minister Mackenzie King, 69; Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, 47; M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, 55; J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit House Leader, 54; Maxime Raymond, Bloc Populaire Leader, 60.

Leader: Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South), who has a strong voice and a vigorous turn of phase in the House, has taught a male Sunday School class for years in his home town of Preston, Ont. He has had as many as 86 in his class. About 45 of his boys now are serving overseas and cigarets go to them regularly from the class. About 25 more are in the army in Canada. The member goes home every week-end and seldom misses a class.

R. S. V. P.: A. W. Neill (Ind—Commox—Alberni) told of the applicant for a pension who was critically ill. Steps were taken to hasten payment of the Pension and he said the first cheque arrived with a letter which asked:

"We know you are very ill. If you are dead when you get this cheque it must be sent back at once."

sian armies moved westward with growing momentum.

(The BBC, in a French-language broadcast to Europe recorded by United States government monitors, declared the Germans had started to dismount installations in the fortress port of Konigsberg, seacoast capital of East Prussia.)

Meanwhile, Gen. Ivan Bagramian drove a deep tank wedge into Lithuania, threatening to cut off the Latvian seaport of Riga and Estonia from the south.

Russian armored columns slashing through the open country between Wilno and Dauravpils reached places 38 miles east of Panevezys in North Central Lithuania and 81 miles from Siauliai.

The Red Army units advanced 23 miles along a route that may lead eventually to the Baltic Sea and the port of Memel.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's 3rd White Russian Army, advancing toward Kaunas, widened its front before the city and made for the railway 18 miles away—the line that connects Germany and East Prussia with Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Main Rail Line

This is one of the most dangerous thrusts for the Germans of the whole current campaign, for while the railway is not the only line left out of Latvia and Estonia, it is a main line over which virtually military traffic moves.

The Germans were reported battling desperately to hold back the Russians from this escape route.

The Moscow communique said the Red Army, advancing westward along a line less than 20 miles from East Prussia, had broken the German Niemen River Line southeast of Grodno, and was closing within seven miles of that strong point. Capture of Verstelishki (Wiergieliszki), seven miles east, and Zhidomlya, eight miles southeast was announced.

Russian troops, in a fierce engagement, crossed to the west bank of the Niemen, the communique added.

Zholsi, only 20 miles southeast of Kaunas, fell to Soviet forces, as did Wolykowysk, 55 miles east of Bialystok, and Skidel, less than 20 miles from Grodno. Opochka, railway station 24 miles east of the Latvian border, was taken.

(A German broadcast last night quoting a high command statement said Opochka was a key point in one of the "barrier systems" holding back the Russian advance.)

A supplement to the Soviet communique said at least 2,500 Germans were killed and 800 captured in the Opochka sector.

Fatally Wounded Sidney Youngs Manned Machine Guns To Very Last

"Well, Mom, tomorrow is July 2nd. That makes about four birthdays for me in the Army," wrote Signaller Gerald Schwier, R.C.A., July 1 from somewhere in France to his mother, Mrs. Percy Schwier, 499 Albert street. "I am still alive, and able to eat, sleep and duck.

It was really tough about Sid. (Sidney Youngs of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, a casualty of the June fighting on the continent). I heard the story from some of the men who were close to him. They said he knew he was done for, so he grabbed a couple of machine guns and fired until he cashed in. They said if any one ever deserved to be mentioned in despatches it should be him."

Sidney Youngs was a cousin of the writer, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Youngs, recently moved to Toronto.

"I am up the line at present. If you climb a tree you can see the enemy. But, it is peaceful here, our shells going over our heads one way, and Jerry's coming the other. Don't worry about me. It doesn't get you anywhere. I am more than grateful for all you are doing for me. I understand about the cig problem and boxes but you are doing fine.

flank to smash the defence line around the city, the Highland Light Infantry stormed and captured Buron in the most savage action in the Canadian sector.

These Western Ontario troops had to fight through a network of German trenches All morning and into the afternoon the fight raged in front of Buron until the German positions were wiped out one by one in close combat.

The triumph of this Highland regiment over the fiercely resisting troops of the 12th SS. Division was a magnificent achievement.

On the right of the H.L.I., the Glengarrians attacked the neighboring village of Gruchy and also fought their way through a maze of German trenches until the last defending Germans had been killed or wounded.

The Glens continued to the Chateau St. Louet, just east of Authie, and cleared this area, too, in more close-in fighting. The Sherbrooke Fusiliers, in Sherman tanks, supported these attacks.

Fire Wipes Out Church School Shops

ALFRED, Ont., July 15 —(CP)—A $200,000 fire here early this morning destroyed the shops of St. Joseph's Industrial School for delinquent boys and a church and for a time threatened this little farming community, half way between Ottawa and Montreal.

Believed to have originated in old wiring, the blaze raced through the two-storey brick and wood shops shortly after midnight and showers of embers scattered menacingly over the village and into the open window of the handsome St. Victor Roman Catholic Church, built in 1825.

No one was injured and the damage was partly covered by insurance. Six of the Christian Brothers—who conduct the school in co-operation with the Ontario Government—were asleep on the second storey of the shop building but they made their way to safety.

The main school building—like the whole village which circles the church group—were threatened for a time and the 126 boys, ranging in age from 10 to 16 years and coming from various parts of eastern Ontario, made an orderly exit.

Bucket Brigade

Fire brigades, answering emergency calls just before the telephone line was cut by flames, came from nearby Hawkesbury and the air stations at St. Eugene and Pendleton which also sent squads of airmen. When the fire was at its height the town's 200,000 gallon reservoir went dry and villagers wetted down their houses by forming bucket brigades. However there was no wind and only the momentum of the flames to carry the embers.

Brothers and villagers managed to save some of the machinery from the shops and the ornate altar, pulpit and some pews from the church. The flames were still licking the burnt out shell of the church at 7.30 a.m. today.

Brother Jerome, superintendent of the school, emphasized that none of the boys in the school was responsible for the fire. They were all in the custody of the Brothers from 4 p.m. yesterday, he said.

He also said that a celebration in honor of the boys who have passed their high school entrance examinations was to have been held tomorrow but this would probably be postponed.

"The loss to the old shop building while serious enough for us," said Brother Jerome, "is nothing compared to the loss of our fine church which is only two thirds covered by insurance."

Success and Failures Followed Israel's Course

BY NEWMANN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 16 is Judges 21-37 the Golden Text being Proverbs 14-34. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.")

YOU REMEMBER in our last lesson the children of Israel promised to worship only their own God who had brought them out of slavery in Egypt and guided them through 40 years of wandering.

When they conquered the promised land, they were told to annihilate or drive out utterly the peoples who inhabited those lands, but they did not do so.

"And an angel of the Lord came up from Gilgal to Bochim and said, I made you to go up out of Egypt. and have brought you unto the land which I sware unto your fathers, and I said, I will never break My covenant with you.

"And ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land; ye shall throw down their altars; but ye have not obeyed my voice; why have ye done this?

"Wherefore I also said I will not drive them out from before you, but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you."

Israelites Weep and Sacrifice

Thus reminded of the Lord's commands, the peolpe of Israel wept and sacrificed unto the Lord. As long as Joshua was living, and the generation (about 30 years) after him, they kept their promise, but after they had buried him in "the border of his inheritance in the mount of Ephraim on the north side of the hill of Gaash," and the next generation had also gone, they "did evil in the sight of the Lord, and served Baalim.

"And they forsook the Lord God of their fathers, which had brought them out of the land of Egypt and followed other gods of the people that were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the Lord to anger." Thus it was that the people among whom the Israelites lived were made a thorn in their side, as the Lord had said.

"And the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and he sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies.

"Whithersoever they went the hand of the Lord was against them for evil, as the Lord had said . . . and they were greatly distressed."

"Nevertheless the Lord raised up judges, which delivered them out of the hand of these that spoiled them."

They were not left quite defenseless even in their disloyalty, you see. But they would not listen to the judges, but ran after other gods and did not obey the commandments of the Lord.

Lord Raises Up Judges

Even in the next generation, the Lord relented when His people's groans from oppression reached His ears, and he "raised them up judges" who, with the Lord's help delivered them out of their troubles. But when that particular judge was dead, these ungrateful Israelites returned to their evil ways, "and corrupted themselves more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they ceased not from their own doings, nor from their stubborn way."

The anger of the Lord was hot against Israel because of this, and He declared that henceforth "He would not drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

"That through them I may prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the Lord to walk therein as their fathers did keep it, or not."

The nations that the Lord allowed to remain in the lands which he had given to the Israelites were five lords of the Philistines, the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites.

The children of Israel lived among these people, and they did not heed the Lord's wishes, but they took the daughters of these peoples to be their wives and gave their daughters to the sons, and served the heathen gods. Thus did they evil in the sight of the Lord and were a reproach to their people.

The First Witness Bearer

One of the two, which heard John speak and followed Jesus, was Andre, Simon Peter's brother. — St. John 1, 40.

With what pleasure you read a character sketch of some prominent leader of to-day; you want to know something of his character and his strong points. For the same reason it is helpful for a Christian to know something of the character of an Apostle who did his best work in bringing his brother Simon to Jesus.

Andrew and his brother Simon were fishermen, living in the town of Bethsaida on the Lake of Galilee. This lake was noted for its splendid fishing, giving livelihood to great numbers of people. The lake was several hundred feet below the sea level, surrounded by high hills and deep gullies, down which winds swept with hurricane force, churning the lake. Only first-class fishermen could live on that lake. They were men hardy, virile, and courageous with the independence of mind which characterized the sailor.

We know that at least seven of the Apostles were fishermen. They had days of hard work and at times they were becalmed on the lake. They had time to think. The deep things of Christ fell into good soil and brought forth much fruit.

Andrew, as a devout Jew, attended the synagogue worship at Bethsaida. The professional Rabbi's teaching was dry as dust. The choicest spirits of that day felt the need of something more virile and bracing. Then arose John the Baptist, whose stern teaching attracted just such men. Andrew was baptized by John in the Jordan and became one of his personal disciples, atttracted by his strong personality.

One day Andrew with another disciple was with John the Forerunner. Suddenly a young Man appeared. John the Baptist was deeply moved and with a strong voice cried: "Behold, the Lamb of God." Immediately the two disciples left John and followed the Stranger. They showed their independence of mind. He invited them to spend the night with Him. They listened, they asked questions, they looked into the Face of the fairest of men. Their souls claved to Him. Their hearts burned within them as He spake of the things concerning the Kingdom of God.

Next day, Andrew, full of his discovery of "the Hope of Israel," sought his brother Simon, crying: "We have found the Messiah, the Christ," and brought him to Jesus. Andrew, the first called of the Apostles, is the first home missionary. He cannot keep the Good News to himself. We see his spirit of generosity.

Months later we find him making a practical statement: "There is a lad here which hath five barley loaves and two small fishes, but what are they among so many?" But he brought the lad to the Lord Jesus. Do you think that lad ever forgot that experience? He came face to face with the greatest of Teachers, even the Son of God, the Saviour of men.

Towards the end of Our Lord's ministry on earth a small band of Greeks, gentile converts, desire to "see Jesus." Philip, a strong nationalist, does not like the idea. He takes counsel of Andrew, one of the inner circle. They "tell Jesus." They are astonished at the deep emotion of the Master, Who utters the profound truth: "Verily, verily I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit." They were to learn the meaning later.

Tradition tells us that Andrew went abroad to preach Christ, was crucified at Patrae in Achaia, dying a lingering death. He rejoiced that he was found worthy to suffer shame for the Lord's sake.

I, IF I BE LIFTED UP, WILL DRAW ALL MEN UNTO ME.

New Minister Is Inducted

WARKWORTH, July 14 (ENS)— Rev. J. O. Ralston, M.A., Campbellford moderator of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church inducted on Wednesday evening, Rev. C. A. Mullin, B.A., as minister of St. Andrew's Church.

Rev. John Davey, BA., Hastings gave an interesting and inspiring address, the subject of which was "The Infallibility of the Bible" and his text was Psalm 72:8 He shall have dominion also from sea to sea and from the river unto the ends of the earth. From this he pointed out the responsibilities of the minister, the congregation and the church. The address to the minister given by Rev. L. M. Sharpe, Lakefield was based on St. Pauls words to Timothy "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightfuly dividing the word of truth'."

Rev. E. MacKay of Cobourg in his address to the congregation pointed out the necessity for co-operation with their minister. This was essential to carry out successfully the work of the church.

Other ministers present who welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Mullin were Rev. George Rowland. B.D., Port Hope, Rev. D. A. McKenzie, Cobourg. Rev. H. G. Lester of St. Paul's Church and Rev. R. L. Casement of the Free Methodist Church

During the service a duet by Misses Norma and Helen Potter and an anthem: "The Lord is my Shepherd" were rendered.

At the close of the service which was well attended, lunch was served in the Sunday School rooms and a social hour enjoyed.

Leading Christian Layman Is Coming to Peterborough

R. G. LeTourneau, dynamic American businessman who is chairman of the International Christian Business Men's Committee, will be in Peterborough on Sunday. He will speak at George Street United Church at 11 o'clock. Mr. LeTourneau's visit is sponsored by the local branch of the CBMC. Accompanying him will be Mrs. Dorothy M. Strathearn, gifted lyric soprano soloist, who will sing at the service.

Often referred to as "America's Leading Christian Layman" Mr. LeTourneau is a remarkable man who has had a remarkable career. Now a prominent manufacturerr and inventor, whose unique modern earthmoving machines have revolutionized the building of highways, and airports, this realistic and practical Christian is an outstanding leader in his unselfish, contribution of time and money to God's work.

In 11 years, a small garage operated by this "one-tool" mechanic has grown to a large, five factory corporation doing a yearly business of over twenty million dilars and employing about 8,000 people. A designer of heavy machinery, Mr. LeTourneau also has to his credit more than 50 basic patents. The reasons and details behind his phenomenal success story he relates when he speaks.

A whole-hearted practicer of what he preaches, Mr. LeTourneau completely dedicates his personal time and money to God. In constant demand as a speaker, he will often address as many as ten audiences a week, flying over 200,000 miles a year in his own plane to meet his engagements. In mechanic's language, and with unpolished but forceful manner, he has told great audiences from coast to coast what God can and will do with a yielded life. Colorful illustrations of faith and God's influence in his own picturesque life make him one of the most interesting speakers of the day.

LONDON — (CP) — Sgt. Van Volkenburg, Kempville, Ont., and Sgt. Lawrence Galley, Peterborough, Ont., came to England at the same time and were posted with the same unit. They crossed to France in the same landing craft. Then they lost sight of each other. Now they are wounded and in the same hospital in beds next to each other.

EXPENSIVE CREAM JUGS

LONDON — (CP) —Six small silver cream jugs, made in London between 1759-1768 brought $816 at an auction. They were designed in the shape of cows.

Mr. LeTourneau is President of the Company bearing his name known all over the Continent as the leading manufacturers of earth moving machinery a company that employs about 800 persons and doing a yearly business of 20 million dollars. He is not only a successful business man but it is no exaggeration to classify him as "America's leading Christian Layman" he has brought realism and Practical Christian Living to the people of America. Humbly in an unpolished but forceful manner he has told great audiences from coast to coast what God can do and will do with a yielded life.

Through the "LeTourneau Foundation" he has put many thousands of Gods dollars to prayerful and fruitful use. He is in great demand as a speaker and often speaks as many as ten times a week, flying over 200,000 miles a year in his own plane to meet his engagements.

Religion in Primary Schools

TORONTO, July 15.— The new course in religious education will be confined to the primary schools in Ontario for the present, and the secondary schools will not have the course until the beginning of the fall term next year, Premier George Drew said yesterday. Notification to this effect has gone to the Boards of Education in Ontario from Dr. J. G. Althouse, Chief Director of Education.

"The present arrangement regarding religious education will be continued in the secondary schools until we are able to put the new course into operation," the Premier saiad. "Religious education will be given in the primary schools, starting with the fall term this year."

Asked as to the reason why the religious course of study has been delayed for secondary schools, the Premier said that the introduction of religious study involved very extensive consideration and liscussion with the various denominational groups concerned, as well as considerable time for the preparation of material.

"One of the main problems is the difficulty of getting textbooks," the Premier said. "It is almost impossible to get textbooks for the secondary schools. The problem is not nearly as great in the primary schools."

Men Will Need God's Care In Reconstruction Work

A plea that men turn their minds to a Power greater than themselves in their efforts to reconstruct the world after the war was the theme of a brief address delivered by Rev. A. J. Arthur, acting minister of St. Luke's Anglican Church, before the Kiwanis Club Friday. Mr. Arthur, speaking on the subject of "Lessons of Experience", devoted his talk to a comparison of the unlimited hopes entertained by all men for the inevitable progress of civilization at the end of the Victorian Age, and the dashing of those hopes in the actual history of events of the past 30 years.

"The world," said Rev. Arthur, "counted too much on its own wisdom and abilities in those days in solving the problems of progress and social betterment, and in attempting to plan for an era of endless peace.

It relied not enough upon God. We need a greater power than ourselves for our wisdom is not sufficient of itself to bring about a golden age."

The speaker, who came to Peterborough in January to fill the post left vacant by the sudden death of Rev. George Bousfield, was introduced to the club by Milf Hardill, and the vote of thanks was moved by Harold Rehill.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Successes and Failures of Israel

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Judges 2:1—3:7

An angel of the Lord came to the children of Israel and chided them for their disobedience to their God, and the people wept with sorrow for their sins.

After Joshua and the next generation had gone, the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord and worshipped Baalim, forsaking their own God.

The anger of the Lord was roused against His people, and He delivered them into the hands of the spoilers, but yet He raised up judges to help them.

As the Israelites dwelt among the Canaanites and others, they worshiped their gods and married into these peoples.

A Wise Withdrawal

The contemplated course in Religious Education will not be introduced in Ontario schools during the 1944-45 school year. We think that the Minister of Education has acted wisely in withdrawing from a position which was full of danger. The idea of such a course was a good one, and we expect that Premier Drew will see that everything is ready for its introduction into the curriculum in 1945-46, but it was not practical to prepare a course, a textbook to serve as a guide to the course, and a group of teachers trained to give the course, in three or four months.

The objections to haste in such a matter were many, and this paper has mentioned several of them from time to time. The most important is this: a course in Religious Education must be a full-fledged course, and not merely another nuisance in the school curriculum. There is no point in taking up an hour or two each week in order to give children a smattering of religious knowledge: there are too many smattering courses as it is. And a course in Religious Education which is to provide any real study of the Bible as wisdom and literature and history needs the most careful preparation and the most thorough criticism before it is introduced into the schools at all. To prepare such a course in a year would be a very large task; to prepare it in three months or so is quite impossible.

Some sections of the press declared themselves uncritically in favour of a course of Religious Education; other newspapers declared themselves most critically against it, stressing the desirability of keeping sectarianism out of our educational system. The Examiner took a middle course. We declared ourselves in favour of religious instruction in the schools if it involved genuine study of the Bible and the history surrounding it. Such instruction is just as acceptable and just as educational to a Jewish child, or the child of agnostic parents, as it is to the child from a Christian home. But we expressed our opposition to anything in the nature of a smattering course—a mere nod toward Christianity without any real value or seriousness about it. If Premier Drew had continued with his original plan to introduce Religious Education into the schools this September, we fear that just such a smattering might have been the result.

In this matter it is wise to hasten slowly. Let us have Religious Education in 1945-46, and let us have it properly prepared, and taught by properly trained teachers.

Scaffolding

Is there any more delightful summer occupation than watching other people work? A steel scaffolding is being put up outside the Post Office, and we have a box seat for the performance; we have been watching it most of the day, to the great neglect of our own duties.

The old-fashioned scaffold was a heavy affair of poles and ropes, hard to put up and take down, but very serviceable and strong; such scaffolds stood against the walls of the great cathedrals of the Middle Ages for fifty years at a time, perfectly safe as long as the ropes were kept in good condition. The modern scaffold is a light and beautiful affair, a mechanism of spider-web delicacy which can be put up in a day, and torn down even more rapidly. We had never seen one being put up before, and when a heap of steel frames like giant bedsteads arrived outside the Post Office we wondered how they could ever be converted into a scaffold. But the workmen arrived, set about the job, and as we look out of the window the scaffolding at the top of the tower is being given its finishing touches.

The scaffold, like the wheel, is one of those simple, everyday contrivances which give infinite satisfaction when we contemplate them afresh; they represent such remarkable triumphs of man over difficulties. A scaffold is not much of a wonder, you may say, compared to a score of machines which may be seen in our local factories. That is true, but a scaffold is an essential, basic thing; without such simple devices we could have no machines and no buildings. A scaffold was just as necessary to build the Tower of Babel as it was to build the most recent skyscraper, and we are sure that the citizens of Babylon craned their necks to watch that postdeluvian scaffold just as eagerly as the citizens of Peterborough strain upward to see what is going on outside the Post Office.

Diabolical Fun Arcade

Have you ever visited a Fun Arcade? There you step on a weighing machine and a boxing-glove hits you on the nose; you look through a telescope and lamp-black comes off on your eye; you light a cigar and it explodes in your face; you smell a flower and it squirts water on you; you sit in a chair and it dumps you into a pit of sawdust. The Nazis, it appears, are turning France into a diabolical Fun Arcade as they retreat from Normandy; sulphuric acid is concealed in the liquid-soap bottles; bars of soap are likely to explode when dipped in water; flashlights, marked Made In America, are highly explosive bombs, and pieces of candy contain thermite which bursts into flame when chewed. The whole thing is as mad as if the Nazis had compelled the Marx Brothers to design a nuisance campaign for them.

The Germans are a highly intelligent race. They have made great contributions to the art, and science and scholarship of the world. But when they fight a war—and particularly when they begin to lose—they seem to go crazy. Think of all the ingenuity which is wasted in making exploding soap and incendiary toffee! These booby traps may kill a dozen men, all told, but they waste hours of time in manufacture. They are not military weapons and they have not the destructive power of the robot bombs. They are simply the devilish contrivances of ugly, childish people who are prepared to go to any lengths to play a dirty trick.

The Allies have done some silly things in this war. Our paper-bombing of Germany in 1939 was one of them. But our silliness has always been the silliness of stupidity or ignorance—never the silliness of maniacal malignancy. The silliness of normal human beings makes the gods smile; the silliness of the Germans makes them weep. Exploding fudge! This is what the Master Race sinks to when its mastery is seriously questioned.

Bearers of Bad News

In wartime it is one of the heaviest and most unpleasant duties of the clergy to be bearers of bad news. In this city all telegrams carrying the news that servicemen are dead or seriously injured go to the Rev. F. W. Craik or the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe; these gentlemen then relay the news to whatever clergyman counts the bereaved family among his congregation, and he carries the message; if the people to whom bad news must go have no church affiliation either Mr. Craik or Mr. Sutcliffe makes the necessary visit.

This duty involves a painful responsibility. It is part of the work of a clergyman to give what comfort he can to people who have suffered loss, but in time of war the strain of such tasks is greatly increased. In the past fortnight this paper has reported as casualties more than thirty young men from this district; as the fighting in Western Europe grows fiercer the numbers will increase. Every family must be told its bad news; some will accept it with stoicism; others will be less able to restrain their grief. The bearer of the news must necessarily suffer with them to some degree and such suffering takes its toll. This is one of the ways in which the clergy are playing their part on the home front, and one which commands the sympathy and respect of the whole community. If anyone doubts it, let him ask himself how many messages of pain and grief he would be willing to carry in the course of a day's work? Some local clergy have faced this heavy task four times in a single afternoon.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If the handwriting on the wall is not yet dry, Hitler must be getting it on the back of his coat.

Ottawa is having its usual summer discussion about garbage disposal. Why not put the garbage and a flock of goats on the parliamentary lawn and let nature take its course?

Referring to girls who go about with their midriffs bare, the St. Thomas Times-Journal screws itself up to the pitch where 'brazen' is the only word which expresses its feelings. We haven't seen any brazen ones, but we have seen several who were very pleasantly bronzed.

Diary Of A House-Painter

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Passed the day out-of-doors, as I always do whenever possible, and wondered why I did not enjoy myself as much as I usually do. Alas, it became clear at about five o'clock that I had a recurrence of the queer internal ailment which bothered me some time ago, and which the doctor had warned me might turn up again in a fortnight. At last there was nothing for it but to go to bed, where I developed what I took to be a raging temperature—something around 104—but my thermometer stubbornly refused to register anything higher than 99. At last I fell asleep, and dreamed that I was being chased, smothered, bayonetted, and pushed over precipices all night long. Following instructions, I had nothing to eat, which gave me a sense of being persecuted.

◊ ◊ ◊

MONDAY: The doctor visited me this morning, and did all the things which doctors do when they suspect trouble with an appendix. For years the medical professional has been hankering after my appendix, and for years I have foiled them. Frankly, I doubt if I have an appendix, for if I had, the doctors would have ruptured it years ago with their punching and poking....I am essentially a trusting and somewhat superstitious person. The moment a doctor comes into my room, I feel much better, and if he tells me that there is nothing wrong with me I am automatically cured. It all depends on the strength of the doctor's personality. Once, years ago, a doctor told me that I had a bad heart. At once I found great trouble in climbing stairs, and suffered from spasms. Then another doctor told me that my heart was all right, but as he was an insignificant little fellow I paid no attention to him. My heart condition did not clear up until a third doctor—a man of strong personality—told me that my heart was as sound as a bell, but that I ought to be very careful of my stomach. If he had told me that I was far gone with leprosy I think that I would have left one of my legs right there in his consulting-room.

TUESDAY: The time of the year has come when the inadequacy of my hose shows itself in the texture of my lawn. While it was still possible to do so I bought 50 feet, (all I could get) of good rubber hose, and for a distance of about 75 feet in all directions from my water-tap I have a beautiful green lawn all summer; but I cannot buy any more hose, and outside the magic circle my lawn becomes parched and sere, and at last takes on the appearance and texture of Shredded Wheat, but without its delicious taste. I admire beautiful lawns even more than flower-beds, but I do not admire them so much that I am ready to carry water in a bucket to the outlying portions of my garden.... My hedge, over which a few gardening friends shook their heads doubtfully, is coming on very well and should make a really handsome show in about three years. I am very fond of hedges and I know of nothing which lends such dignity and grace to a garden as a yew-hedge; they are not often seen in Canada, because they take about 50 years to grown to a respectable size, and gardens of 50 years growth are rare here. But in England I have seen yew hedges of 200 years growth, so strong that a man could lie flat on them without bending a bough.

◊ ◊ ◊

WEDNESDAY: A hot, hot day which I would have enjoyed if I did not still feel weak from my bout of influenza. Toyed with the idea of going to see a film about vampires, in order to make my blood run cold, but rejected it and worked instead. My typewriter, which is stiff and awkward in winter, runs smoothly—indeed almost glibly—in summer. I wonder if I should use a lighter typewriter oil in winter and a somewhat heavier one in summer? No one has ever told me anything about the proper lubrication of typewriters, and I think that the oil companies are neglecting a splendid field for new trade. "Change Your Oil Every 50,000 Words" might be a useful slogan to begin with ....Bought some ice cream on my way home. It is one of the great blessings of hot weather. Like champagne, ice cream never completely loses its festive quality, however often we may have it. Children do not think that a party is a real celebration unless they have ice cream, and if they have it they do not greatly care what else is served to them....I am particularly fond of ice cream's anaemic sister, water-ice, but as I lack an electric refrigerator I cannot make it. When the war is over—but enough about that.

◊ ◊ ◊

THURSDAY: Bruce Hutchison, I see, hotly denies the charge which someone has made that Canadians have no sense of humour. Canada, says he, invented the story about the little boy who got his head stuck in a chamber-pot and had to be taken to a tinsmith to get it off. I wonder what makes him think so. I have a book which quotes that story, at great length, from an English work published in the 1860's and I have seen it in at least one American collection....But Hutchison may be right about our national sense of humour, for when once we take up a joke we never let it go. Old, crippled jokes which have worn themselves out in the Barren Lands and the outermost stretches of the Antipodes come to Canada at last, sure that they will have a happy home here for at least a century, and will raise a laugh from affectionate familiarity, if for no other reason. 'Not Original, But Faithful To Death' is our motto in matters of humour. We like a joke to go off in our faces, like an exploding cigar, and then we can laugh heartily and get back to glum platitudes again. The characteristic is particularly noticeable in Parliament.

◊ ◊ ◊

FRIDAY: The collywobble with which I began my week still lingers in the form of exhaustion and heaviness of heart. I feel perpetually as though I had given three blood transfusions. If the sensation does not go away soon I shall become a poor white, and all my affairs will topple to ruin....Contemplated the beauty of new potatoes this evening. One of the good moments of the gourmet's year is that when the old, soggy grayish potato of winter is banished, and the firm tasty little firstlings of the potato crop appear on the table. This year we have eaten aged and discouraged potatoes for longer than usual, as I understand that we are using up the Canadian crop. The new potatoes taste all the better for the long wait....As I have a little painting to do, I went in search of paint today, and found that only a few colours were to be had. What a lot of queer things war affects; I would not have thought that the raw red colouring material which makes red paint would have been needed to overthrow the Fascists, but apparently it is so. What do we use it for? Do our men lob lumps of red chalk at the Germans, in token of derision, and solidarity with the Russian troops?

◊ ◊ ◊

SATURDAY: Did some painting this afternoon; this is one household chore which I really do well. I admit that I have no skill fixing doors which stick, or repairing the cords of electric irons, or opening choked sewers, but I can paint anything, and make a better job of it than most of the greenhorns who are to be found working for professional decorators these days; "No Bubbles Marchbanks" I am called in amateur painting circles. Ability as a house-painter and a passion for musical comedy are two characteristics which I share with Adolf Hitler—the only two, I believe....What is more, I can paint without drinking milk; most professional housepainters seem to live entirely on milk, and I believe that they regard it as a potent charm against painter's colic. I once painted a whole building (a two-storey henhouse) without consuming any liquid beyond a glass or two of water. But last time I had professional decorators in my house they left 18 milk bottles in it. They were especially fond of chocolate milk and every now and then, in hot weather, a bubble in my paintwork breaks and emits a long-imprisoned belch of chocolate.

Shorts At Long Branch

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

WE await with interest the reaction of the women of Long Branch, N.J., to the imperious edict recently announced by the commissioner of public safety in that city. This gentleman professes himself wearied at the sight of 200-pound 40-year-old women trying to make themselves "pin-up" girls. As a consequence, all women over 16 are barred from appearing on the streets clad in shorts, swimming costumes or bathing robes.

This is going a bit too far. We sympathize with the outraged aesthetic sensibilities of the commissioner, but our sympathies are even more actively aroused by the plight of the thwarted women of Long Branch. If a woman feels like wearing shorts, in this day and age, let her wear them. They may make her feel better, and certainly there's a lot to be said for the costume in this weather. The fact that some women may look like Oriental wrestlers when so clad is beside the point.

The Long Branch incident is not the first of its kind this year. Up in Hull the chief of police banned shorts from the street, and The Brantford Expositor was moved to remark that he threatened the women with stern repression, or some such phrase. This, of course, led a few of our more ribald contemporaries to query whether it was a matter of stern repression or just length that the chief objected to, but apparently it turned out that the objection was simply to the display of feminine legs.

Something like this may be behind the incident at Long Branch. If it is, we sincerely hope the women revolt. We had hoped, with thousands of news photographs to support that hope, that Mrs. Grundy was long since dead and buried deep down. Any attempt to resurrect this garbage-minded old lady should be met with the strongest opposition.

We reiterate: let the women wear what they want, within the bounds of decency. Shorts are accepted apparel almost everywhere today; why bar them from the streets? And as far as aesthetic sensibilities are concerned, we are willing to wager the Long Branch commissioner a tidy sum that the vast majority of women may be trusted to avoid unbecoming costumes as they would a pot of poison.

Baseball As Viewed By The British

(MONTGOMERYSHIRE COUNTY TIMES)

A LARGE crowd of spectators, who on Monday availed themselves of the chance of witnessing the American national game of baseball, no doubt went out of something more than a mere compliment to the teams of visiting U.S.A. soldiers who gave the exhibition.

How was baseball played and what was there about it that appeared to put American crowds in a more frenzied state of excitement than was ever seen manifested in the most lively of our crowds of football "fans?" That was the question the vast majority of spectators appeared to be asking before play started. Afterwards the question appeared easy to answer.

The lure of baseball evidently does not depend solely on the skill required of the players as pitchers, strikers, catchers and so on, but in the high technique which is displayed in the vocal art of encouraging your own side and disconcerting your opponents. A lively wit no less than a good voice are essential. Never has Maesydre Recreation Ground echoed to more lively badinage and barracking. Was one watching a game or visiting a fun-fair? Baseball is a decidedly interesting game to listen to!

One often hears arguments in favour of brighter cricket. One cannot, however, quite see the exponents of our sedate summer game showing the versatility displayed in the vocal technique exhibited by our U.S. baseball enthusiasts. Nor do I think would the spectators fall for it.

Parlez-vous Francais

A recent issue of "The Stars and Stripes," aimed at American troops in France or those soon to go there, gives in lively American vernacular much excellent advice on casual social and political advice on casual social and political relations with the French. Beware of posing as saviours of France. Why discuss French domestic politics at all. Remember that very few French girls emulate Mademoiselle from Armentieres. Those who do will be easily recognized by the usual signs, not to say high signs. Don't make passes at nice girls, in other words. The French, above all people, are subtle and sentimental in such matters. And so on and so forth.

As for learning to speak French: "Even if you can't speak a word....you will before long. French isn't too hard to learn." Bravo for that advice, also! The laborious scholar will often lag behind the learner with a lively imagination, quick sympathy and a good ear, who audaciously aided by a petit verre or two of Calvados, perhaps—tosses aside accidence and syntax and high-dives into conversation. The French admire boldness and alacrity and, amid peals of laughter, will aid the unpretentious pupil, shunning the man who has burdened his mind with the conversation book and the French grammar. Throw away such crutches and substitute gayety, friendliness, and gestures and facial expression. A vocabulary and the rudiments of grammar will arrive painlessly and in due course. Moreover, they will be buoyant with the living speech of the French, ornamented with poetic argot and idiotismes. Zut alors! Allez! Roulez! Cast aside base pride and pedantry and you will thus make friends with the French and learn to influence them.—N.Y. Herald Tribune.

Russia and the World

Russian policy in Europe will display the qualities of stability and moderation which are most certain to win British confidence in proportion as Russia in her turn feels confidence not only in the good will, but in the vigor and effectiveness, of British policy. Whatever may remain obscure about the attitude of Russia as she faces the world today—at a moment when even the glories of military victory cannot lift from the horizon dark clouds of anxiety for the future of Europe—two things are open to no shadow of doubt: first, that Russia has no desire to return to the isolation of the past; secondly, that she can be most surely and fully won for co-operation in policies which are themselves constructively conceived and vigorously pursued. The principal danger to future concord in Europe is not that Russia seeks to pursue there a policy incompatible with that of Great Britain or of the United States, but that the moment of victory may arrive without any serious attempt by any of the three Powers to formulate and agree upon constructive long term projects.—London Times.

THE BIRDS ARE OKAY

As if everybody working in the War Department Building in Washington didn't have enough on his mind already, a mother bird has nested in one of the ventilating units. Near the switch that regulates this device is a large, official-looking sign: "Do not turn on this machine. A mother bird has come in through the vent and has build a nest in the part over the radiator. This has been observed from the next wing, room 2365. Do not remove this warning." The little birds are getting along fine, but the War Department people sometimes find it a bit stuffy.—The New Yorker.

WHERE THE GERMAN FAILS

How much longer will the war in Europe last? How much longer will the German soldier be able to take it? The war will be decided by the quality of the fighting man. Scrutiny of the German soldier's moral endurance permits of only one answer: the war has already entered its closing phase.

Pictures of the German soldier of World War II show two kinds of face. From the outbreak of the war until the Fall of 1941, his face was that of a beaming, athletic, closely-shaven youth. Later photographs show him as a haggard, worn-out man with hollow, bewildered eyes. His expression betrays more than mere physical exhaustion.

The fiascoes of the German Army are a peculiar phenomenon. It succumbs in protracted wars, but its defeats are dramatic failures of a first-rate army after it has given a tremendous military performance. The fighting manner of the German soldier is this: in the beginning he fights brilliantly, but a hundred yards before his goal he falters. He is still able to endure a long war, mainly in defence. But after a brief spell of agony, suddenly he collapses. The war morale of the German soldier lags far behind his military fitness. With his qualities he can win battles, but he cannot win the war.—Lerner in Redbook Magazine.

A Bible Message

Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon. And, behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil. But he answered her not meet to take the children's bread, and to him, saying, Send her away; for she crieth after us. But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

Then came she and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me. But he answered and said, It is not meet ot take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs. And she said, Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that every hour.

And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there. And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them: insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel. (Matt. 15: 21-31.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A dear old lady received a letter from her son, who was a priest, saying that he was coming to stay the week-end, and that he was bringing two acolytes with him.

She replied that she would be delighted to have her son with her, but sternly forbade the acolytes, as even a dog running about the house upset her.

The insurance agent went to an office for an interview, and was surprised to be shown into a room where two clients of his own firm were involved in a noisy brawl. One held a £25,000 policy, the other a £15,000 policy. The first brandished a knife, the second had a drawn revolver.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," said the agent, with deep feeling, "can't this trouble be patched up?"

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP). — We've always heard of beginner's luck, but for hitting the jackpot with a bang you can't beat Yet Yew's successful attempt at Calgary's Victoria Park. The Chinese from Gibbons, Alta., strolled into a Calgary race track for the first time on Wednesday and walked out with a tidy $3,388.05, as sole winner of the biggest daily double ever notched up on Prairie tracks.

He owes it all to system, and what an infallible system: It was simply a matter of taking eight tickets on his hunch horse of the first race, and then when he was successful there, Yet Yew merely spread his tickets on every nag in the second race so he couldn't possibly lose.

Non-homing pigeons:

The Meaford, Ont., Racing Homer Club ran into disaster in a homing pigeon race from nearby Lancaster. None of the birds showed up in the first three days after they were released, and only three had been accounted for earlier this week.

Pigeon fanciers blame the heavy forest fires raging in Quebec and dense fogs along the St. Lawrence for befuddling the birds, many of which had made flights of 500 miles or more previously.

Beans and Brown:

There's one North Bay, Ont., pup who is lucky to be still leading a dog's life. During a spot of sharpshooting by female members of the Archery Club, the pup wormed his way through the baled hay the target was mounted on and gazed at the arrows whizzing by his ears. Apparently all that saved him was some uneven marksmanship...... Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan guest quips about this year's all-star or "dream game" between the American and National Leagues: "A more fitting name, so far as the junior circuit was concerned, would have been the nightmare game"....If Dean Griffing is right Regina Roughriders will be riding the Prairie circuits again this fall semester. Dean told Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning that he has 10 Regina footballers on hand now, and expects to have a dozen more when the season rolls around..... What might be classed almost as a minor phenomena is on display about Lake Erie. The trotting races at New Hamburg near Buffalo are outdrawing the Fore Erie saddle races. Perhaps it's because the trotters are doing their stuff under the floodlights.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

There should be a record gallery at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club tomorrow when the classiest field of shot-makers to show their stuff in Peterborough will compete in the Kawartha Lakes championship tourney, sponsored by the Kinsmen's Club. Entries in the professional division who play 36 holes tomorrow include all the leading pro golfers in Eastern Canada with the famous Bobby Cruikshank from Richmond City, Va., representing United States professionals in the big event. Bobby Gray of Toronto who won the title last season seems to be installed as favorite to repeat the feat but he will have all his shots under control for the opposition is going to be plenty tough. The professionals started out this afternoon with 18 holes, medal play and the final round should be completed late Sunday afternoon. In addition to the professional struggle there will be an amateur competition as well Sunday and Phil Farley of Toronto who won the event last year will defend his title against a big field of players. Altogether it looks like the big day of the golfing season at Kawartha tomorrow and a real crowd should be on hand to see the stars perform.

An enthusiastic golfer for over half a century, Robert Henderson, well known member of the Oshawa Golf Club, this week exhibited a golf ball over 40 years old to fellow employees at The Times-Gazette, the Oshawa paper tells us. The ball, which bears the familiar Spalding trade mark, was made before the modern ball with a rubber core and wound with rubber was placed on the market. He explained that its makeup was much similar to that of the solid rubber platen knobs on typewriters and that it lacked the resilience of present-day balls. He recalled that this type of ball could not be driven over 120 yards but that in those days the holes were not as long as they are today. Delving back into the history of golf, Mr. Henderson said that some of the first golf balls were made of cow or bull hide, sewn like a baseball. Chicken feathers with the quill removed were boiled and stuffed into an opening in the cover. When the feathers dried the ball could be driven about a hundred yards. The present Haslett type of ball was introduced about 1900. This type still is used and consists of wound strands of live rubber with a harder rubber cover.

Another Big Game

There will be a treat for softball fans at Riverside Park this evening when the fast Victory Aircraft team will battle the local Plazas in an exhibition battle that should provide plenty of thrills. The Victory team is made up of a bunch of experienced softballers, fast in the field and with plenty of power at the plate and the Plazas will have to come through with one of their better games if they hope to take a fall out of the strong visitors. The battle will get under way at 6.30 o'clock and should attract a real crowd. Plazas got a bad game out of their systems when they were smothered 17 to 11 by the Switchgear Thursday night but they hope to redeem themselves by a smooth performance against this softball machine from the Victory plant. The Malton team will be at full strength for this clash and the Peterborough outfit also expect to have their regulars all out so that it should be a lively game all the way. Fans are asked to remember that the game gets under way at 6.30 o'clock, half an hour earlier than the time to begin City League fixtures.

* * * * * *

With the battle for first place in the City Softball League ended by Switchgear's victory over Plazas interest will now shift to the struggle for fourth position. There are three games left to play and the question of whether the St. Peter's or the U.E.W. teams will enter the playoff series will be decided in those battles. On Monday night the struggle will get under way when Soldiers and U.E.W. will clash. Next night U.E.W. and St. Peter's tie into each other and Wednesday night the Soldiers and Saints are slated to play off their tie. With so much at stake in Monday night's game U.E.W. will have their strongest team in line and will probably bring Haddie Eakins down from Lindsay. If they do the speedball stuff of the same Eakins is likely to cause the Military Training Centre team plenty of trouble. It should be an exciting struggle all the way. Revoir, gunning for his fifth straight win, after getting a tie his last time out will likely do the throwing for the Soldiers.

A Huge Success

The benefit ball game at Riverside Park last night between Toronto Tip Tops and the local City League All Stars was a big success financially and artistically. The visitors outscored the Petes 6 to 3, with Cam Ecclestone doing the tossing for the homesters but the result did not prevent the huge crowd from enjoying the exhibition. Tip Tops brought a full squad and showed all their players in action before the game was over and the classy work of the visitors made a big hit. The fans got a real kick out of the pitching of big Susie Turner and his colorful antics on the diamond. Incidentally the pitching end of the battle was the outstanding feature, especially the control shown by the three Tip Top hurlers who performed. Ecclestone, pitching for the Petes did not give a base on balls and Turner and Dowie who split the tossing chore for the visitors walked but one batter each. The entire gate receipts went to the Kinsmen fund for the Tip Tops came down to Peterborough at their own expense, the City Softball League supplied the umpires and other officials and the balls used, Sergt Puffer and several of the city police furnished their services for free and Plazas loaned their sweaters to the All-Stars Tip Tops who made a lot of friends here last season added to the number last night and it is to be hoped that they will be back again. They put on a real exhibtiion, brought all their regulars and made the game a real success from all angles.

Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald wants to know who called women the weaker sex and throws some light on the point of his question with the following comment: "Players in the All-American Professional League, firmly entrenchring girls' softball in the middle west, can take it as well as dish it out attractively. Audrey Kissel, St. Louis miss who runs the bases for Minneapolis with pigtails flying, had an injury requiring two stitches when she added seven more in the other leg as the result of being spiked. She pleaded with Manager "Blubber" Jonnard to permit her to play the next day. A fracture put Delores Kloswoski's ankle in a cast. Collecting autographs on the plaster cast might have been an interesting diversion for some, but not for this Detroit lassie. Hobbling around on crutches she answered Milwaukee fans' questions about how long she'd be out of action with the hopeful half-time allotment the doctor indicated. Old ball players managing the girl clubs have one big advantage. They carry their own hand laundries. Several of Marty McManus' Kenosha Comets look after his shirts on the road. They can cook, too."

Stella Walsh, Now 33, Continues to Rule Over Continent's Top Women Track and Field Stars

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian

Like old man river, Stella Walasiewicz continues to run right along.

Fifteen years ago the Polish-born Cleveland girl, frequently termed the "world's fastest woman," was breaking sprinting records as she piled up victory after victory in athletic meets.

Today, Stella Walsh (that's her shortened American name) continues to hold sway as queen of the amateurs.

In the women's U.S. national A.A.U. championship, just concluded at Harrisburg, Pa., Stella walked off with top honors and three titles, repeating similar performances of last year and the year before and the year before that and so on back to the Olympic, in which Stella ran as a member of the Polish team.

Wins Three Events

In the recent A.A.U. events, Stella, now 33, won the 100 meters, set a new national A.A.U. 200-meter mark in winning that sprint and also took first place in the broad jump.

An all-around athletic great, Stella holds many records, some official and other unofficial.

As accepted by the International Amateur Athletic body, up to February, 1938, Stella holds the world marks for the 220 yards, 24.3s; the 60-meter run, 7.3s, and the 200 meter, 23.6s.

As for American track and field marks, accepted by the A.A.U., Stella holds the records for the 40-yard run, 50-yards; 80-meters, 100-yards; 200-meters, 220-yards and the running broad jump. Her American record for the broad jump is 19 feet 4.8 inches. In addition, she holds other records with relay teams, set when she was a member of the New York Central Railroad athletic club, many years ago.

Matter of Condition

Stella's ability to maintain her speed after these many years probable is a remarkable knack at maintaining condition.

The fleet-footed Polish girl keeps in condition by participating in sports the year 'round, playing with a baseball team in the summer and a basketball team in the winter. And Stella is a star in both of those sports, too.

Born in central Poland in 1911, Stella was brought to the United States at the age of 10.

She spent many of her after-school hours playing baseball with the boys in the schoolyard. She frequently beat them in running to base and also at picnics.

When she was 15 she won her first medal. She entered a high school "Olympics" in Cleveland and ran the 50 yards in 6 seconds flat to break a record.

Won in '32

She continued her career as a runner after taking a position as a filing clerk for the New York Central railroad. She won the Wanamaker Cup for "outstanding performance of the year in athletics" in 1929. In 1930 she went to Prague, Czechoslovakia, and set three world marks in the women's Olympiad.

In the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles, she decided to run for Poland after first preparing to take out U.S. citizenship and run for the U.S. She won the 100-meter dash.

Later she returned to Poland and went to school there. Returning to Cleveland two years later she entered Notre Dame high school. She went to Japan in 1934 and set several more records in Tokio.

In the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, Stella ran second to Helen Stephens in the 200-meter dash. Stella again was representing Poland.

Big Bass Caught In Kawarthas

Elmer Harran's 5½-pound black bass has flushed out of the sunny waters of the Kawartha rivals that have been laying claim to headline mention.

Herb Bradley reported a 6¾-pounder from the Mississauga River last Sunday, and H. G. Weir of the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, sends word that H. Mandelthord of Cleveland, O., matched that Brobdingagian bass with its equal from Stoney Lake.

"Mr. Mandelthord, a guest at this hotel, caught a 6¾-pounder, black, big mouth, July 12. After the rain subsided he went out on Stoney Lake for some fishing, and nailed this big one almost immediately. He said "it struck like a lunge." Incidentally, we are keeping a record of the largest (by weight) muskie, pickerel and bass caught as we award a trophy to each of the winners.

To date, Mr. Maneithord is leading the bass section. Mr. G. Tosenbaum of Kalamazoo, Mich. has a 15-pound muskie to his credit and Mrs. Szell of Toronto an 8¾-pound pickerel."

Walters Defeats Cooper For 15th Win

BY JOE REICSHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Bucky Walters, ace pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, has added a flock of new laurels to his already-imposing string.

Last night Walters won his eighth consecutive night game in defeating Mort Cooper and the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals 3-0. It was his ninth win under the arc-lights in 10 starts this season to rank him as the King of Night Pitchers.

The shutout was his fifth of the year, tops for pitchers in the majors and his 34th in his career, which also makes him the shutout king of all hurlers in the big leagues.

In addition, Bucky became the first major league hurler to notch 15 victories, which puts him in line to become the first pitcher to win 30 games since Dizzy Dean of the Cards achieved that total in 1934. The Reds have completed exactly half their 1944 schedule.

In another battle of aces, the New York Yankees beat all-star Tex Hughson, 4-0, to enable the Yanks to wrest second place from the Red Sox by a single percentage point.

The Philadelphia Athletics upset the Washington Senators twice by an identical 4-3 score to knock the Nats out of the first division, and pull themselves out of the American League cellar.

Blanks White Sox

Southpaw Frank Overmire blanked the Chicago White Sox with two scratch hits to give Detroit a 2-0 victory. The defeat was the White Sox' seventh in their last eight games and dropped them into last place.

Rookie Steve Gromek pitched and batted the Cleveland Indians to a 14-inning 3-2 victory over the League-leading St. Louis Browns. Gromek gave up eight hits and singled in Ray Mack with the winning run in the 14th.

Pittsburgh out-homered the Chicago Cubs four to one, but the Cubs outscored the Pirates, 11-5, ending the Bucs' five game winning streak. Tommy O'Brien hit two homers for the Pirates.

Ace Adams relieved starter Harry Feldman for the Giants in the ninth and shut off a Philly uprising to insure the New Yorkers of a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia.

Worthy Boy, winner of one heat in the 1943 Hambletonian, made his first appearance of the grand circuit season at North Randal, O., yesterday but was unable to finish better than second to Speed King in both heats of the Greyhound Free-for-all Trot. Long Song stepped the fastest mile of the day, 2.04 in the 2.12 trot which she won in two of three heats. Curly Smart copped the Cuyahoga 2.25 pace, although dropping the second heat to Morate.

John Mafsch, the Chicago contractor whose Free For All and Errard are expected to be favorites for the $62,175 Arlington Futurity to-day, has won upwards of $350,000 in futurities alone during the past two years, including firsts with Occupation, Occupy and Jezrahel.

Pittsburg Pirates announced yesterday National League Club owners had agreed a home-run ball going through the rusty right-field screen at Forbes Field would count as a double in future. The ruling followed a protest of a game with St. Louis June 25 when Virgil Davis, Pirate catcher, drove the pill through the dilapidated wiring for a homer. The screen cannot be replaced until after the war.

31 Boats Race

The 37th annual MacKinac race of 331 miles from Chicago to MacKinac Island, Mich., gets under way today with 31 yachts. The record for the course is 31 hours and 14 minutes, established in 1911 by the celebrated boat Amorita.

Frank Crossetti, former shortstop of the New York Yankees, yesterday notified President Ed Berrow he was leaving his shipyard job in California and would report to the Club in St. Louis next Tuesday. His return to the game is expected to boost the Club's prospects for a fourth straight American League pennant.

In a return engagement at 1,500 metres at the Stockholm stadium last night Arne Andersson turned the tables against his rival countryman, Gunder Haegg, by winning in the slow time of 3:48.4. A week before at Gothenburg, Haegg defeated Andersson in the world record time of 3:43.

Lou Novikoff, rightfielder of the Chicago Cubs, was removed to the hospital yesterday after complaining of severe abdominal pains and was expected to be out of the game for several days.

After feuding with manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians, Jim Bagby, pitching act of the team, yesterday was turned down for army service at Fort McPherson, Ga., and announced he had no immediate baseball plans although he might return to the Cleveland Club.

Newark Bears Climbing Fast

By The Associated Press

The Newark Bears are coming fast in the International League. Only a few weeks ago the Bears were deep in the second division. Now they boast a .500 mark, having captured 13 of 14 games and their last six in a row.

This surge has put the Bears only four games away from first place. Their latest victory was a 13-9 trouncing of the league-leading Jersey City Giants last night. Cliff Melton, recently optioned by the New York Giants, started for Jersey City, but was knocked out in the first inning.

Syracuse snapped a six-game losing streak by beating Baltimore, 13-3 behind six-hit pitching by Bob Katz, a Cincinnati Red hopeful.

Toronto nosed out Rochester, 4-3, scoring the winning run in the ninth on a walk to Jim Tyack, a sacrifice and a single by Johnny Zontini.

Buffalo piled up an early 8-2 lead, then weathered Montreal's late rallies to pull out a 9-7 victory.

Toronto Team Wins 6-3 Over All-Stars

The classy Toronto Tip Tops, behind smooth pitching by big Susie Turner and young Murray Dowie, defeated the Peterborough All-Stars with Cam Ecclestone of Tip Tops on the rubber, 6 to 3, before a huge crowd at Riverside Park Friday evening in a benefit game for the Kinsmen's charities.

Thanks largely to a timely triple by Mike Conroy of St. Peter's who played left field for the homesters, the Petes scored three runs in the second inning off the towering Turner and held the lead until Tip Tops finally tied it up in the seventh.

The Toronto club shot in front with a single marker in the eighth and made it sure with a two-run rally in the ninth.

Turner pitched five innings, struck out nine and allowed three hits, and young Dowie who took over in the sixth blanked the Petes for the rest of the battle, yielding only two blows. Turner featured speed and Dowie, who got credit for the win, had a very effective change of pace that had the Petes guessing.

Against his team mates Cam Ecclestone came up with very effective pitching, in spite of the fact that his support wavered a bit in the clutches. Ecclestone set down seven of the Tip Tops on strikes and several of the hits registered against him were scratchy. Eddie Starr handled his offerings smartly behind the bat.

The feature fielding play of the game was contributed by Joe Blewett who ran from deep centre field in behind short to take a high fly from Jackson's bat on the dead run.

Tip Tops Score First

Tip Tops broke in front in the forst innings when Eckler ripped a single to right, went to second on McKinnon's sacrifice, to third on an error by Tucker and home when Ab Box flied to Blewett in centre.

The Petes wiped out that slender margin in the third. With one away Ecclestone slammed a single through short and advanced on a wild pitch. McKinnon missed the third strike on Anderson and the batter went all the way to second on the miscue. Mike Conroy tripled over Pete Glen's head in left, scoring Ecclestone and Anderson and ran home himself when Bob fumbled Blewett's roller.

That was all the scoring until the fifth when Frank Stukus opened with a double past third. Heys flied to Murduff in right and Hastings struck out. Turned doubled to right to score Stukus but was out trying to go to third on the play.

Tip Tops tied it up in the seventh when Pete Glen opened with a triple to left centre and went home when Tucker missed Cranham's tap to short.

The Winning Run

An error paved the way for the winning run in the eighth. Eckler singled over second. Titanic hit to Hawks and everybody was safe when Heal dropped the throw to second. Dowie rolled to Condon, the runners advancing. Blewett made a sensational catch of a high short fly, running a country mile to make the grab. Glen however cracked a hit off Ecclestone's shins to score Eckler, after which Cranham struck out.

Tip Tops made sure of it in the ninth when they scored their last two runs on Heys' triple to left centre, an error by Condon, and singles by Eckler and Dowie.

The Petes only had one real chance to score after Dowie took over and that was in the seventh when Hawks opened with a walk and Ecclestone pushed a double over first base. The young Tip Top pitcher stopped that threat however by whiffing Heal and Conroy and tossing out Mowry, leaving the runners stranded.

Western General Has Rapid Rise

Five years of war transformed Bertram Meryl Hoffmeister from the sales manager of a Vancouver lumber firm—soldiering on the side—to a major-general commanding a division of the Canadian Corps which cracked the Gustav and Hitler lines in Italy and opened the way for the fall of Rome.

At 37, he became the only Canadian general in the Mediterranean theatre not of the permanent force. The tall, handsome commander was a captain in the Non-Permanent Active Militia when war broke and went overseas with rank early in in the war.

The men in the slit-trenches and on the S.P. guns call him "the soldier's general." They like him for his easy smile and his confidence-breeding habit of popping in where the fighting is thickest to help in direction of operations—or just to say "hello." They like him too, for wearing a black beret or balmoral (a tribute to his old Highland unit) instead of the usual red-banded cap of the general officer.

At Agira in Sicility as lieutenant-colonel commanding his old regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, a Vancouver unit, he showed what was described as "inspired leadership" and won the D.S.O. He was awarded a bar to the decoration in March, 1944, following the bitter battles of the Moro River in Italy.

Vancouver-born, Gen. Hoffmeister was education in public and high schools there. He joined the Seaforths and was commissioned lieutenant in 1927.

MAJ. GEN. HOFFMEISTER

A captain when the Seaforths went overseas, he became a lieutenant colonel commanding his regiment in 1942, taking it to Sicily after long training in England.

He commanded the Seaforths through the Sicilian operation, leading them in grim battles at Leonforte, Nissoria and Agira. In November, 1943, it was announced that he had been promoted acting brigadier, taking command of an infantry brigade.

Then in May, 1944, it was disclosed that he had been appointed to the acting rank of major-general and given command of a division, succeeding Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. (Tommy) Burnsof Westmount, Que., who became Corps Commander in Italy.

His wife, Mrs. Ambera Donaldo Hoffmeister, and a daughter, Margot Aldyne, reside in Vancouver.

Archbishop's Son Leads Daring Sortie

TORONTO, July 14 (CP) — The Telegram today carried a dispatch from Caen from its war correspondent, Allan Kent, in which he related how 42 men from an Ontario Regiment carried out a patrol in the Bretteville-Sur-Oden area and how all 42 returned to safty despite a German barrage described as "almost unprecedented."

Only one of the 42 was injured, Kent said.

The patrol was led by Lieut. David Owen of Toronto, son of Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of All Canada. Kent related the group had to cross a river which separated the German and Canadian lines to carry out its assignment.

British Paratroops Join Maqui Units

LISBON, July 15—(CP-Reuter)—Reports here say British paratroops are being dropped every night on a landing field in the Landes Department on the Bay of Biscay coast north of Bayonne.

These troops, fully equipped with machine guns, are said to be drafted to various Maquis units now rapidly being organized into an army as effective and well disciplined as Marshal Tito's Yugoslav army.

CONNAUGHT MILITARY CAMP, July 15—(Special to The Examiner).—Upwards of 1,400 officers and men, members of unbrigaded units of the Reserve Army in Military District No. 3, have completed the first of two weeks under canvas at this military centre. The units, under the general command of Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., are undergoing intensive training in the field, on the rifle ranges and in lecture halls.

Carrying on their essential military role of training hundreds of men of pre-enlistment age for future service with the Active Army, the units are showing keen interest in their work. The syllabus of training, which covers many subjects, keeps all ranks busy from early morning until late afternoon. From a training point of view the camp is described as "the best yet" and there has been unanimous approval of the messing and catering arrangements.

Units attending camp come from several parts of the district. They are the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. J. Major Crisis

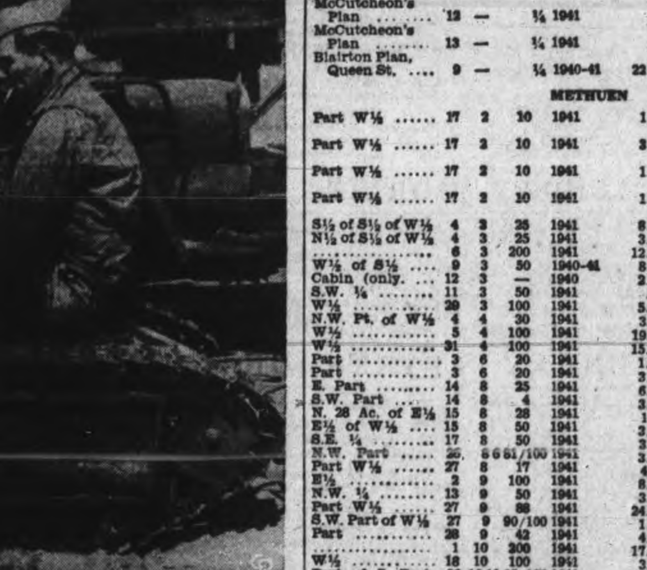
LONDON, July 15:—(CP).—Belief that a "major crisis" may be developing in Germany was expressed by a Swiss military commentator today in a broadcast over the Swiss radio. "Confidence is dwindling and nervousness is growing in the German camp," the commentator said. "Hitler's headquarters moving steadily west, Rundstedt's dismissal, a new paroxysm reached in the persecution of the Jews — these are typical elements of a major crisis."



"DOODLEBUG" MAKES GOOD TOY — Once a deadly land-torpedo that ran around on a Normandy beachhead under remote Nazi control, this captured "doodlebug" was tamed to carry a Seabee rider who wouldn't swap it for anything short of Coney Island. Hundreds were picked off by our riflemen. The captured ones were run around by the boys till batteries gave out.

14 Casualties Are Reported In Peterborough Within 24 Hours

Fourteen casualties, three killed and eleven wounded or missing, were telegraphed to Peterborough homes Friday bringing sadness to the whole community in the further realization of the price that was paid for the capture of the old Norman city of Caen by an Allied force of which Canadians were the spearhead.

An informative sequel to this action was received in a cabled story from France today definitely announcing that the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, which enlisted a large number of its recruits in Peterborough four years ago were in the heat of the fighting that broke the Hun's powerful position around Grouchy, a hamlet neighbor of the historic Norman city of Caen.

An exception to the Friday casualties from France was the report that Flight Lieutenant T. H. O. (Bud) Hallihan son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hallihan, Perry street, was missing in R.C.A.F. operations. This is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Hallihan missing in action with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Caen becomes another battle name of sacrifice and courage and the price of freedom to be forever associated with the indomitable hearts of Peterborough men some of whom already lay beneath the soil of France in eternal sleep with their elders who fell in the last war at Vimy and Courcellette, Paschendaele, Arras and many other places of memory along the roads the Huns were driven back to the Rhine.

Friday, July 14.—Bastile Day,—will be remembered with those April days in 1915 when Peterborough was stunned by the long long casualty lists which reflected fierce fighting around Ypres about April 20-21.

Ypres, Langemarck, Gevinchy, the Somme, Bourlon Woods, Amiens and Arras, these and other landmarks of France that are forever part of Canada since those years of 1914-18 and now Caen in Normandy and new names in the march up the Italian "boot".

L-CPL. E. A. G. BELL
(Killed)

Lance Corporal E. A. G. Bell, 34, of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, which enlisted heavily in the Peterborough district was killed in action in France on July 8, as officially announced to his wife Friday at her home, 420 Park street.

Enlisting in Peterborough in June, 1940, he went overseas with his regiment three years ago this month, beginning the long period strenuous training and patient waiting for the invasion that came in June with Canadians pointing the advances in some sectors from the day of seizing the Norman beachhead.

L-Cpl. Bell was born in Calgary, but had lived for years in the northern part of Otonabee, near the rifle ranges off the old Norwood road.

He is survived by his wife, the former May Lauchlan; his mother, Mrs. E. Bell, Peterborough RR. 7, two sisters, Jessie and Margaret, and one brother William Bell at home.

Friends who have learned of the death of Lance-Corporal Bell expressed regret in the loss of a fine personality and character which they had esteemed in the life of this Peterborough soldier which was part of the price paid for the Allied advance beyond Caen.

Camp Staff Foots Bill Let Boy Stay

A boy from the Children's Shelter who had spent a week at the 'Y' Camp for boys at Clear Lake had come to the end of his week's vacation, and he had enjoyed himself so much and continuously that he was extremely reluctant about leaving the place.

In fact he was all for staying another week. Turning one's back on such a grand spot didn't make any sense to this small boy who had not reached the stage of experience and living which distinguishes the "cans" from the "can't". Two of the boys on the camp council, Jack Matthews and Bill Lech, mentioned the boy's longing to remain for a while, and they suggested that the staff chip in and pay for another week's board. Everybody agreed, and the boy from the Shelter got an extended holiday largely because he did not understand the limitations of things.

Health Of Children Is Uppermost In Minds Of Committee Planning Memorial Centre

Whatever the location finally decided upon for the Peterborough Memorial Health Centre, one thought is uppermost in the minds of the general committee, that this centre is being erected to assure future generations of reaching maturity with sound bodies and minds.

Supervised sports for boys and girls cannot help but build them up physically and mentally and will show direct benefits to the community in later years. It has been proven time and again, that in cities where supervised play for the youngsters is in vogue, that hospitals have fewer young patients, and that there is a definite decrease in juvenile delinquency.

Joseph Lee, a wealthy Bostonian spent fortunes in establishing the National Youth Movement in the United States, and his son, Joseph Lee, Jr., is carrying on this grand work. Boston has more public playgrounds per capita than any city in the United States. Boston is a healthy city and juvenile delinquemy is at a minimum. When, in September, citizens of Peterborough are approached for donations toward the erection of the Memorial Health Centre, they should bear these facts in mind.

They will be helping fulfill a long needed want in their city.

All profits accruing from the operation of the Artificial Ice Arena will be spent on the improvement and extension of playgrounds for the children.

They will be building this Health Centre for the health of the children and their children's children.

Box At Empress Brings $20 For War Victims

When one penny box produces $20.00 at one collection, that is something to sit up and take notice about, for very seldom do such munificent things occur in this one field of endeavour on behalf of the victims of bomb attacks over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Added to this, when it happens to come from one of the most frequently collected receptables displayed among some 35 places of business in the city, it should readily be appreciated how outstanding the box located at the Empress has performed on behalf of this very worthy cause, which has largely been due to the interest of one person who places the equivalent of one British shilling in the box every day, making it just as severe a duty as anything that pertains to his daily life.

By this means, the contributions from this one source must have gone well over the $300.00 mark in the three and a half years it has been making its appeal, let alone the additions that have come from other sources, which its mute appeal has made on behalf of the objects it seeks to serve.

It was on May 31 that the last collection was recorded from this one box, so today's acknowledgment of $20.00 has only been a little over six weeks in accumulating to that amount, a fine example of what a steady day by day interest can do on behalf of anything that may be in the interests of something really worthwhile.

Fond memories of those who have passed beyond the joys and sorrows of this mortal life are truly made all the richer by doing something to benefit a stricken people in their name, it makes one feel a lot happier, that in spite of the ability of the lost and loved one to do some good in person in these days of cruel bloodshed, bringing in its train so much sorrow and affliction, their memory may be kept green by others doing this on their behalf.

Today a contribution is recorded "In memory of Wee Lionel", it having came to the secretary's desk through the mails, so the note enclosed with the gift will be filed away with other vouchers for safe keeping to await the annual audit held at the end of the year.

Over Half Next Donation

The fund now has the sum of $1,155.00 in the bank to its credit, and since it takes $2,240 00 to make a usual donation of £500 possible, it can readily be seen that more than half of that amount has been accumulated since the last donation of a similar amount was cabled to the Lord Mayor of London on June 27.

When one realizes the huge casualties during the past month, and the fact that approximately 100,000 people have again been evacuated from London alone, there is every reason to feel that there is at the moment a greater prevailing need, which people in this safe part of the globe have a real opportunity for serving by making what to them is only a very minor sacrifice compared to that suffered by those in the near zone of hostilities.

66 Air Cadets Given Trial Flight

The 164th Peterborough Squadron, Air Cadets, 66 strong arrived home on Friday night's early C. P. R. train from Brantford where for the past nine days in the case of the rank and file and 13 days in the case of the officers they have been in training at the R. C. A. F. No. 5, Service Training School.

The annual camp is reported as a great success. The cadets were housed in the R.C.A.F. barracks and received training from the school staff, lived the barrack life, drilled with the R.C.A.F. and had a turn in the air as well. These 'flips' were the biggest feature of the whole camp in the opinion of most of the boys.

A field day was another big event and the squadron succeeded in defeating the officers in a softball game.

The officers who made the trip were Flight Lieutenant Ward Smith in command and Flying Officers Wm. Hamilton, Robt. Sager and Ken. Currie,

FOR EXOTIC MERMAIDS—Rubber caps for mermaids are not easy to find, and even if one finds one, it doesn't do a good protective job. Most swimmers have made up their minds to take a coiffure ducking followed by a sunbath, and hope the picture they make will not be too revolting. To their rescue comes the Dache hairnet, which can camouflage dank tresses beautifully, especially if flowers are poked into its meshes to elaborate the camouflage.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Chicken is a delightful summer dish and can be served in so many different ways that not one bit of the chicken need be wasted. Below are several ways of preparing the chicken.

Planked Chicken.

To large broilers, ¼ cup fat, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon lemon juce, 1 teaspoon minced onion, salt and pepper, 1 pint of mushrooms, 1 quart seasoned mashed potatoes. Make a savory fat by rubbing the minced parsley, green pepper and onions with the fat. Flavor with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Split the broilers, sprinkle with salt and pepper and put in a pan. Pour over them a little melted fat and bake them (400 degrees F.) until nearly done. Prepare a plank of proper size, grease it, garnish with a border of potatoes, forced through pastry bag and tube, place the chickens in centre of plank, arrange around it mushrooms and spread over the chickens. Place the plank in a very hot oven (500 degrees F.) to brown the potato border and to give the chicken the final cooking. Planked dishes are served on the plank. They may be elaborately garnished with stuffed tomatoes, green peppers, and fancy shaped vegetables.

Savory Chicken.

¼ cup fat, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 chopped carrot, 1 slice turnip, ¼ cup flour, 1 cup water, 1½ cups strained tomatoes, salt, pepper, paprika, 1 chicken, salt pork fat, 1 cup button mushrooms, 2 tablespoons chopped olives. Make a savory sauce by melting the fat and cooking in it chopped onion, carrot and turnip cut in small pieces. Stir in flour, and add gradually, boiling water and tomato, previously stewed and strained. Season with salt, pepper and paprika. Cut up chicken, dredge with flour, and saute in salt pork fat. Remove from the pan, place in a saucepan, and cover with the savory sauce. Cook until the chicken is tender. At the last moment add mushrooms and olives. Arrange the pieces of chicken in the centre of platter and pour the sauce around them, garnishing with triangles of toast and stuffed olives.

Lemon Wafers.

One cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 3 egs, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, and flour. Cream butter, add sugar, then well beaten eggs and lemon juice. Stir in only enough flour to make as soft a dough as can be rolled. Roll very thin and shape with a cutter. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. or 375 degrees F. for 10 to 12 minutes.

ENGAGEMENT TIME FOR THOUGHT

Most Divorces Could Be Prevented If Couples Checked Each Other's Characters

A young man asks: "Just what should an engagement mean to a young couple who have promised to marry each other?" Well, in my opinion, the chief thing it should mean to them is that their engagement has given them a little interlude in which to search their own hearts and try to find out whether the thing they think is love is the genuine article, all wool and a yard wide and that will stand the hard wear of every-day use, or whether it is just a yard of pink chiffon that will go into rags and tatters before the honeymoon is over.

And the next thing they should do is to put in the months of waiting during an engagement in trying to find out what sort of a life companion the party of the other part will make. Does Mary know the answer to any of the big riddles of life? Can she talk any language except baby talk? Does she pout when she can't have her own way? Can she cook and run a budget? Will she be the sort of a wife who will be a helpmate, or a dead weight on her husband?

And what about John? Has he any line of conversation that can interest an intelligent woman after he quits telling her what a world-beater she is? Is he critical and fault-finding? Does he have to be handled with gloves to keep him from going into a grouch? Does he have a Yale lock on his pocketbook to which no wife will ever find the combination?

Couple Take Option On Each Other

An engagement should be regarded a just an option that a couple take on each other, not as a binding contract like marriage. Often a young couple promise in good faith to marry each other, yet when the time comes for them to fulfill their vows they know they are bringing lifelong misery on themselves by doing it. Often a boy who starts out to seek his fortune asks a girl to wait for him and promises to come back and marry her, and when he returns for the wedding he knows that she is no fit mate for the man he has become, and that she would be happier if she had married the butcher whom her engagement to him kept her from marrying.

An engagement should not last so long that it gets stale and a couple lose all desire for each other. In all such cases the engagement should be broken and the wedding called off, even if they are on the very steps of the church. Nor does an engagement give a couple the right to boss each other and regulate each other's lives. That is a priviiege they pay for with a marriage license.

An engagement is not an alibi for a liaison. Ethically and socially and conventionally an engaged couple are bound by the same restrictions in their relationship to each other as any other decent man and woman. It is no excuse to say that they intend to marry. Perhaps they will. Perhaps they won't. But when you smirch marriage something fine and holy goes out of it that you can never get back again.

About ninety per cent. of the divorces could be prevented if engaged couples would investigate each other's characters as carefully as they would the title of a house they expected to buy.

Miss M. McCarthy Wed at Douro

St. Joseph's Church, Douro, was the setting for a pretty wedding when Margaret Madelyn Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sullivan, Douro, became the bride of Robert William Leahy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Leahy, Douro, Rev. J. J. McCarthy officiated, and mass was served by Leo Leahy, brother of the groom, and Gerard Sullivan, brother of the bride, both students at the St. Augustine Seminary, Toronto. Mrs. Victor Kennedy was at the organ, and Miss Margaret Sullivan, aunt of the bride, sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length white embossed satin, with fitted bodice, finished at the back and front with tiny self-covered buttons, sweetheart neckline, leg-o'-mutton sleeves, and full skirt, gathered at the waist. Her finger-tip veil of white net fell in soft folds from a halo of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Carmel Leahy attended the bride, in orchid taffeta, with matching hat, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Kevin Leahy, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Clare Condon and Bernard Sullivan.

Receiving with the bridal couple at the reception, held at the bride's home, was the bride's mother, in a two-piece dress of flowered crepe, and wearing a white rose corsage. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore grey flowered crepe, and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip by motor, the bride chose a two-piece dress of Minuet blue sheer, with lace trimming, white accessories, and carried a dark brown coat. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Leahy will live on the groom's farm in Douro.

First Potato Bugs, The Dunkin Act Even Early Closing Topical Subjects Of Telford Poems

By HARRY THEOBALD

"Don't draw out longer days of irksome toil,
Watching like night-owls for the dregs of spoil.
Let shorter hours serve to increase your treasure,
Allow your neighbors and yourself some pleasure."

Nothing in the recent and generally effectual advocacy of the early closing of retail stores was more sharply pointed than this verse from the compositions of William Telford, former of Smith Township and later resident of Peterborough, quoted from his book of authorship published in 1887, entitled "Poems of William Telford."

More than fifty-seven years ago "early closing" was a phrase heard with little practical attention up and down George street. At least it was a hope and an ideal especially of the clerks and perhaps of some of the proprietors who yearned for a day of agreement and bylaw that would fashion the business of selling within a more attractive pattern of hours of work, leaving some reasonable surplus of time for leisure. As an ideal of business "early closing" was for a long time slow in reaching assent and eventual compulsion of statute, and its present extensions and improvements have been accomplished only within the last five years of war by the constraining effects of restricted and controlled supplies and scarcity of labor.

Presumably more than sixty years ago William Telford wrote his observations and also his advice in rhyme:

"Masters agreed, forsooth, their word was given,
That each and all would close their store at seven;
Some blush not their promises to ignore,
Late into darkness keep an open door.
The path of honor they will not pursue;
They draw the line, but avarice breaks through.
Their word or promise seems to them but small,
To catch one dollar soon engulfs them all.

'Tis closing hour—oh, yes, and past it far,
But still one shoe store keeps its door ajar;
The salesman stands with smiles and cunning eye,
To suit the thoughtless that comes late to buy."

Mr. Telford wrote ten verses under the title, "A Hint to the Late Closers," and with tongue in cheek and eye closed to the offending shoe store, he added this stanza:

"N.B.—Defaulters' names you will not get,
At present I have none;
But any man this shoe does fit
Can quietly put it on."

Childhood Days

The Telford appeal to merchants who tarried late behind their counters is typical of a numerous section of the one hundred and seventy-one titles published in his book of poems. Most of the subjects about which he wrote were common topical ideas stirring in his mind from his observations in the community life of Peterborough even seventy - five years ago. Some others recalled his youth and childhood days in Scotland, occasionally dipping into satire on the changes of fashion and the contrasting refinement in the ways of life in his own long span of years from boyhood to old age. His kindly nature, his sturdy faith and benign philosophy impart to many of his verses a quality of sentiment that reflects an attractive personality and spirit, amiable among his fellows, interested in all the affairs and friends around him, scorning cant and anything suggestive of hypocrisy, a true son of Scotland and lover of his ain folk, but also a worthy citizen of Canada convinced of a destiny in greatness developing from the labors of its pioneers.

A Humble Muse

The Telford muse was a simple and constant familiar, pedestrian in the common highways and the assembling places of people, even in the daily routine of work in town and country. He had a natural and fluent gift of rhyme, that was content with the every day level of life, conscious of its limitations at the base of Parnassus and of exclusion from its heights. Awareness of exceptional ability in rhyme came to him early in youth, but his innate honesty and modesty kept his aspirations within easy range of flight above the daily scene.

This clear aspect of himself is disclosed in the last poem in the book, entitled "The End," and in its third verse:

"If I had soared on fancy's wing
Till thoughts and brain were dazed,
Leaving the reader wrapped in mist,
Why, some would called me crazed."

And the final verse:

"Let mercy with your verdict blend,
Don't view each fault severely,
Show sympathy, while I remain,
Yours truly and sincerely."

Scorned By Critics

Contributing verse to the several newspapers back in the seventies seems to have been more frequent effusions than in this more harassed and more sophisticated day. Will Telford wrote "A Simple Advice" (A few words to the poetic critic) with the following introduction which suggests that the amateur poets were sometimes enfilades from the heights.

"Week after week, in each of the Peterborough papers, we can see the name and production of many in and around Peterborough, generally styled 'local bards.' I know of none that assumes the name or fame of any great poet; but as their Maker has endowed them with a small share of poetical talent, then, I say, they ought to be permitted, as is their duty, to improve and use it. Within the last two months, in the columns of the local papers, a critic has made an attempt to seal he doom of all those 'doggerels,' as he terms them, myself included. He even goes the length of censuring the local papers for publishing such mean, low uncultured stuff, as proceeds from their pens.

"I have waited patiently, knowing that some of them could wield an abler pen than I in proper defense, but as all remain silent, the respect for my own name prompted me to attempt a few 'doggerel' lines in reply to his satirical strain. I leave them to the good judgment of the readers, and patiently await their decision."

So, Mr. Telford poured forth seventeen verses of protest, reproof and considerable justification which were presumably published in a day of soft-hearted editors whose endurance was equal to their available columned space. One of them was a "phooey" verse to the aforementioned critic:

"Not all the bombast flowing though your head,
Nor critic pen, I do as little dread;
My inborn talents, mean, obscure and few,
I shall use them, yes, in spite of you."

A Farm Incident

The topics of the Telford verse indicate that the Bard of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society was much about town. At least he was neither aloof nor seclusive, and he intended his lines for immediate circulation and perhaps edification at times. And then a change of mood and experience would inspire his poem, "To a Little Bird" (lines composed in the field upon a little bird flying off her nest where I was cutting thistles).

In the act of cutting a tall thistle on his Smith farm, Mr. Telford flushed a bird from its nest of five young ones. That little episode of his farming called forth a poem of forty lines, closing as follows:

"It grieves me that so near I drew—
The Bard feels for a bird like you.
I leave the spot without command,
The thistle for your good shall stand,
To shield you when the sun shines bright
Until your little brood takes flight."

The next poem in the Telford book is entitled "New Year's Morning Meditation," in which the writer relates that he awakened on the first day of January, kindled the fire, wondering if the new day would disclose a change of scene. Nature showed nothing to the eye that transformation of time had taken place. When he went to the barn the chickens and cattle and horses greeted him impatiently as if they knew he was later than usual in bringing them their morning rations. The first day of a new year meant nothing to them.

Bemused by the incoming of the new year, Mr. Telford went about his chores pondering the flight of time.

"Joyful this day in health and strength I stand,
While life's best blessings to my view appear,
Wife, family, friends, go round and shake the hand
Wish compliments appropriate to the year."

And further on:

"Just fifty years I have seen return,
Is this my last? 'Tis God alone that knows;
My lamp of life, perhaps, may cease to burn
Before this year has reached its final close.

The blooming youth, the sage with hoary head,
From highest ranks down to the meanest slave,
Many shall slumber with the silent dead,
And sleep this year out in the lonely grave.

Yes, I have seen this New Year ushered in;
Many shall fall before its months are past.
May you and I each New Year's day begin
With this same thought, perhaps it is our last."

The Dunkin Act

Peterborough voted on a "temperance measure" called the Dunkin Act, and Mr. Telford was aroused by an incident of its promoters that he wrote twelve verses on "The Dunkin Men and Their Banner" with this prefatory explanation ("On the day of polling a banner was stretched across George street with the motto, 'Vote for Christ or Satan'.")

One of the verses bitterly condemns the extravagance of that alternative . . . .

"Vote Yea for Christ. Shame, Dunkinite, on you;
Your candidate you never loved or knew.
If you had sat one moment at His feet
That motto ne'er would have disgraced the street."

Two other verses express the Telford temper:

"So say the hot-heads of the Dunkin stamp,
With shining glasses—Captains of the camp.
Would that they loved their candidate more dear,
Then self-presumption would not shine so clear."

And the last verse:

"Too many Yeas is but a show, I doubt,
If back doors and their cellars could speak out.
If none but those which spirituous drinks eschew
Are good, I fear the number will be few."

First Potato Bugs

Only the oldest residents of the district can remember the first appearance of the potato bug, the Colorado beetle. Mr. Telford penned a poem in lighter vein, entitled "My First Encounter With Potato Bugs."

"I went to my potato patch
To see how they were growing,
For I had heard some Yankee pest
Destructive work was showing.

I stood and gazed with staring eyes
My brow with anger lowering,
The old bugs sat with gold striped back,
The nice green leaves devouring."

He had heard about the Paris green treatment, and went down to Bertram's hardware store in Peterborough for a supply, sprinkled his patch with the poison, and next day examined the results.

"Laugh at the dead-forsooth I did,
'Tis needless of denying,
There thousands lay upon the ground,
Some sick, some dead, some dying."

Ralston Pays Tribute To Units From M.D. 3 In Italy And France At Connaught Military Dinner

CONNAUGHT MILITARY CAMP, July 15 (Special to The Examiner)—Glowing tribute to the achievements in Italy and Normandy of units from Military District No. 3 was paid by the Minister of National Defence, the Hon. J. L. Ralston, during a mess dinner held here by the Commandant, staff and officers commanding unbrigaded Reserve Army formations. The Minister was the guest of honor at the dinner, which was also attended by Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, O.B.E., officer commanding M.D. 3, and Brigadier K. M. Perry, representing the Director General of the Reserve Army.

Referring to the units by name, the Minister said that "their achievements have been such as to make every one of us proud." He paid special tribute to the outstanding examples set by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Picton, the Midland Regiment of Millbrook, and the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. He also complimented the services rendered by the 1st Battalion, Brockville Rifles.

"These are all very fine battalions," Col Ralston said," and I must extend congratulations to them and to the district from which they come. What they have already accomplished, and undoubtedly will yet accomplish, will stand out as among the great achievements of the Canadian Army in this present war."

Colonel Ralston charged officers commanding district reserve battalions to carry on their splendid work in training men of pre-enlistment age for service in the Active Army. He said that the role of the Reserve Army is still an important one and is in every way fulfilling the obligations associated with it. The Reserve Army, he added, is still regarded as a very essential part of the Canadian Army organization.

Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., camp commandant and officer command the 33rd (R) Brigade Group, presided over the dinner.

Joy Oil Company Beats War Charges

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP). — Charges under the Defence of Canada Regulations against Mrs. Margaret Austin and the Joy Oil Company were dismissed yesterday by Magistrate J. L. Pritchard.

The charges were made in connection with an advertisement in the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Montreal Gazette over the Joy Oil Company's name entitled, "An Appeal to Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King to Stop the Gas Black Market."

The charge referred to a section of the regulations that prohibited "spreading reports or making statements or utterances intended or likely to be prejudicial to the safety of the state of the efficient prosecution of the war." Magistrate Pritchard's judgment said that the Crown had failed to show that the defendant was insincere in statements made in the advertisement.

A similar charge to that on which Mrs. Austin was tried was laid against Charles Austin at the close of the trial. It was adjourned to September 6, he being allowed bail of $3,000 on his personal surety.

THANK YOU ! MR. AND MRS. CANADA

—for Helping to Make Possible the Saving of 568,000,000 gallons of Fighting Gasoline and Fuel Oil

- BUT WE STILL NEED YOUR HELP

As partners in an effective wartime program of gasoline and fuel oil conservation, the people of Canada may feel both satisfaction and pride. By their adoption of voluntary conservation in 1941 and by their subsequent acceptance of gasoline rationing and fuel oil control, they have been instrumental in the saving of more than 568 million gallons of these vital war commodities!

This very considerable reduction of gas and oil consumption in Canada has helped the United Nation's war effort in two ways. It has meant more gasoline for actual fighting purposes—and it has released many ocean-going oil tankers for service to the battle zones. 203 long and perilous tanker trips would have been needed to ship that 568 million gallons of gasoline and oil to our shores.

However, in spite of all we Canadians have done to save gas and fuel oil—there is no occasion for complacency or relaxation. The war, today, is making greater and greater demands upon the crude oil and transportation facilities of this hemisphere. Stocks in Canada are far below normal.

As recently as June 20, 1944, the Minister of Munitions and Supply made the following statements: "Our position in the matter of petroleum fuels is not improving, and this in spite of the best efforts we have been able to make toward conservation. . . . This is not a time for other than the most essential driving. . . . Let me repeat: Every barrel of petroleum products we can do without means that much more for the theatres of war and the transportation to get the material there.

"Careful planning has provided gasoline available to the public in quantities sufficient to honour all coupons which have been issued." Every measure has been taken to prevent gasoline misuse. But we are not yet out of the woods. The conservation of gasoline and fuel oil is still a critical matter. To use these products needlessly, wastefully, frivolously, is to rob our fighting men, to risk prolongation of the war, to gamble with our chances of speedy Victory.

LESS CIVILIAN GAS MEANS MORE "FIGHTING GAS" FOR THE FORCES

NO. 3 OF A SERIES OF ANNOUNCEMENTS ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF MUNITIONS AND SUPPLY, HONOURABLE C. D. HOWE, MINISTER

Answering YOUR QUESTIONS about the GASOLINE SHORTAGE

Why is there not more civilian gas? . . . Because the war demands are so colossal, we are getting all we can justifiably ask for. Further, we have to continually review our gasoline position in order to assure our Allies that we are not asking for crude oil and transportation beyond our needs. Are gasoline inventories below normal? . . . Yes, inventories as of March 31, 1944, were 35,000,000 gallons less than at the commencement of rationing, at which time the stocks on hand were uncomfortably low. Don't squander your year's ration.

Mining News

Total amount paid in dividends by Canadian mining companies in the first half of this year, while showing a decline from the total for the same period of 1943, but quite small in comparison with loss in gold production which has resulted from Government restrictions, labor shortages and other hindrances resulting from the war.

Sum of $36,589,747 is estimated to have been paid in dividends in the first six months of this year by the mining companies, which compares with $41,056,457 in the like period of last year. Very few of the gold mines have been able to maintain their dividend rates, the big majority having to reduce their payments in accordance with their earnings. On the other hand, only a few companies have had to pass up dividends altogether, and in these instances the mines were small producers.

L. W. Reed, mine manager at Rebair Gold Mines, reports that the No. 1 hole was completed at 60 feet in banded hematite. Holes 2 and 3 are now in hematite iron formation. Casing is being driven in the No. 4 hole.

First drill hole at Burgess Kirkland Mines is now drilled at a depth of 270 feet after having passed through a quartz porphyry section from 175 to 186 feet. This section was mineralized with fine sulphides. The property adjoins Belrosa Mines, under development by Macassa.

Butter Ration To Be Cut During August

OTTAWA, July 15 — (CP). — The Prices Board announced to-day a temporary reduction in the butter ration next month by postponement until August 10 of butter coupons 72 and 73, which otherwise would have become valid on August 3. Butter obtained July 20 with coupons 70 and 71 thus must last consumers for three weeks.

The coupons are good for eight ounces of butter each. In May, the Board announced a temporary reduction in the June butter ration by similarly postponing the valid date of a coupon.

The announcement said Coupons 74 and 75 will be valid August 24. A reduction has been made in the quotas to hotels, restaurants, and other quota users catering to the transient public.

Action was taken by the Board after the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that butter supplies in Canada on July 1 were down nearly 5,000,000 pounds from stocks on hand at July 1, 1943.

Production of creamery buttter in Canada so far this year shows a decline of slightly more than 5 per cent, while butter consumption in Canada has increased approximately 16 per cent for the same period.

In the period January to June, inclusive, output of creamery butter in Canada aggregated 135,193,324 pounds, compared with 142,395,447 pounds in the first half of 1943, a decline of 5.1 per cent.

Creamery butter output in June was 45,531,104 pounds, a reduction of 2.2 per cent as compared with output of 46,550,623 pounds in June, 1943, and the Board said recent dry weather in some of the "best producing areas" in Ontario and Quebec has caused deterioration of dairy pastures which is affecting current production.

K. H. Olive, administrator of dairy products, said increased consumption of fluid milk and the high output of cheese to fill Canada's contract with the United Kingdom affected butter production.

"Temporary postponement of the butter coupons is in line with the Board's previously stated policy of postponing coupons from time to time when necessary to build up reserves for the low production period of fall and winter," said Mr. Olive.

Visitors' Day Is Featured By W.I.

TRENT RIVER, July 15.—(ENS). —Mrs. Robt. Carnrite was hostess on Thursday to the Trent River Women's Institute, when "visitors' day" was featured. Mrs. W. Glenn, president, was in charge of the meeting. The roll was answered by each member introducing her guest.

A letter of acknowledgment of cigarettes received, was read from Keith Lewis, who has been overseas for the past two years.

The communications included a detailed outline of a historical research program from the district convener. It was decided in October the roll call would be answered by a written contribution and the Tweedsmuir village history book would be started.

Several cards were reported sent to the bereaved and sick.

During the business period a community picnic was discussed and was later turned down owing to everyone being so busy. The program included community singing; reading by Mrs. H. Mann; a 'plant' contest by Mrs. Glenn, which was won by Mrs. E. Little, and a reading by Mrs. E. Little.

A special feature on the program was the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Robt. McNeeley, a valued and faithful member ever since the organization of the Institute in November, 1929, whose birthday happened to fall on the meeting day. Mrs. McNeely, although taken by complete surprise, expressed her appreciation and with the singing of the National Anthem the meeting was dismissed. Lunch was served.

Personals.

Mrs. Jack Fisher and daughter Marlene, of Toronto, are visiting with Mrs. Fisher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis.

Born—At Mrs. Cumming's nursing home, Havelock, on July 13th, to Lieut. and Mrs. Douglas Dart (nee Margaret Brown), a son.

Quebec Soldiers Robbed Of Vote

OTTAWA, July 15.—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the Commons yesterday that Quebec's decision to give a vote only to Quebec soldiers serving in that province was a Provincial and not a Federal matter.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, had repeated a question he asked earlier in the week by inquiring whether the three defence ministers had taken any action in the matter.

Both Defence Minister Ralston and Navy Minister Macdonald said it was a Provincial mattetr.

Mr. Graydon said that as the defence ministers were the only spokesmen for the soldiers "surely they could draw the attention of the Quebec government to the fact that Quebec soldiers serving outside the province are being disfranchised."

Mr. King replied: "It is completely a matter for the province."

Determine Sex Of Chicks Simple Task

TORONTO, July 15 — Removing one uncertainty from the poultry business is the unusual job of Kay Nicholson of Exeter, one of 24 chick sexers in Ontario. After nine years on the job, she is so expert that she can determine the sex of 1,200 day-old chicks an hour—which is 10,000 a day.

Up until 10 years ago, she explained yesterday while attending the second annual poultry conference here, nobody in North America knew how to find out the sex of most day-old chicks, who are inclined to look distressingly alike. This was hard on poultrymen who ordered batches of male chicks to ra[ise] for meat markets, or who want[ed] female chicks for the egg market. Until chick sexing was developed in Japan and brought to America, hatcheries couldn't always be sure what they were sending out.

Can Tell by Sight

Now downy chicks, not much bigger than egg-size, and so light that 100 chicks and their box weigh only 13 pounds, can each be labelled inside seconds by sharp-eyed, deft-fingered chick sexers.

Some breeds are easy to sex by sight, says Miss Nicholson. "For instance, Barred Rock chicks have spots on their heads. Of course, both male and female have the spots, but in one case they're larger than the other." Barred Rocks can also be distinguished according to pigmentation on the legs—the female's are darker. Another distinction which sounds pretty minute [to] the layman is in wing feathering of hybrids. "Pullets have more feathers," she explained.

Dark-haired, vivacious Miss Nicholson works practically all day and all night during hatching season—from early in January until about July 1. Starting from Chatham, where she lives during hatching season, she pays two visits every week to 21 hatcheries in the district.

Wears "Sexing Glasses"

"The hatcheries know almost to the hour when the chicks will be ready," she said. "So I have to plan my schedule accordingly." Her only equipment is a car to get her there, and a pair of "sexing glasses," similar to jeweler's spectacles, to sharpen up her vision.

She thinks her work is very in[teresting]; and even after seeing 10,000 chicks a day six months of the year, she can still get enthusiastic about them. Speaking of Easter shop-window displays of chicks, she said: "They're so darling I just can't resist them!"

Duplessis Says Quebec Needs Education

MONTREAL, July 15 — (CP) — Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader, at a Victoriaville rally last night, said that the Aug. 8 Quebec general elections will be the most important in the province's history, while speaking at Hull Premier Godbout said that without proper education Quebec would not be able to keep apace with the rest of the country.

Mr. Duplessis said that the present Liberal administration in Quebec had abandoned provincial rights since it was voted in power in 1939. He added that Quebec voters will have to decide Aug. 8 whether they want to go on living in a province of which they would no longer be masters.

He cited as what he termed a typical case of cession and violation of provincial rights the written permission given by Mr. Godbout to the Federal government of establishing a Federal unemployment insurance plan.

Speaking of what proper education can do for French-Canadians, Mr. Godbout said "we are a majority in Quebec, but we are a minority in the Dominion and we will not be able to keep pace with other peoples in the country without education."

He added that his government had specialized in the field of education and was desirous of providing the people of Quebec with the best of education. With well-educated citizens in all parts of the province, Quebec would grow to be the leading province in the Dominion.

At Quebec, the Union Des Electeurs (Quebec Social Credit) announced that Rene Chaloult was not supported by that party which will place a candidate in Quebec constituency to run against Mr. Chaloult, Nationalist, who was member of the last Quebec Legislature for Lotbiniere. Tuesday night, Mr. Chaloult said he would have the support of J. E. Gregoire, vice-president of the Social Credit Association of Canada, in the election.

Herr Goebbels Tries New Angle

By The Canadian Press

An article by German propaganda Minister Goebbels declaring that Germany and her enemies both "want peace and calm" has been interpreted by the United States and Britain to soften their demands for unconditional surrender."

The article appeared in this week's issue of the German magazine Das Reich. As broadcast in summary by the Berlin radio in English, the article apceared to be another form of Nazi propaganda against Bolshevism and a new attempt to drive a wedge between the British-American Allies and the Soviet Union.

In this acount, recorded by The Associated Press, Goebbels was quoted directly as saying, "all want peace and calm except Bolshevism, which wants continued unrest and chaos."

Meanwhile a Madrid dispatch said Das Chwarze Korps, organ of the Nazi S. S. declared recently that "there is no use kidding ouselves. This phase of the war now beginning has grimmer meaning than all the phase that have gone before."

This article was headlined "It's Life or Death" and contained such statements: "There is no more mercy left in the world."

The broadcast of the Das Reich article said in paraphrase of Goebbels:

"The peace-time ideals of other nations, he continued could easily have been attained without war so far as Germany is concerned. In fact they would have been put into practice in Germany by now if her enemies had not prevented her from doing so . . ."

London Exodus Exceeds Days Of Blitz

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, July 15—(CP)—London's women and children, warned that there may be no speedy end to the flying bomb menace and that worse may come, are evacuating the capital in greater numbers than during the blitz period of 1940 and 1941.

By this week-end more than 169,000 evacuees will have left the London area and evacuation is expected to continue for another week. From September, 1940, to March, 1941, the total of women and children sent from the capital was just 169,000.

This mass exodus has created problems in reception areas, where billeting officers are hard pressed to find room for the newcomers. This is especially so in the southwest, where the lifting of the travel ban brought an influx of visitors seeking permanent residence or holiday quarters.

Problem Created

The Government grant to persons who accept official evacuees is small compared with the normal charges for visitors and an official in the town clerk's department of Torquay said: "It is not surprising that people hesitate to accept evacuees at a small rate instead of visitors at three or four guineas (about $15 to $20 a week."

Similar problems have arisen in the northwest and public opinion has been stirred by the exorbitant prices some tenants are asking. Every London newspaper today featured the story of 200 out of 400 mothers and children from one section of London who arrived in Chester Tuesday and who still have to be billeted. Officials announced today that they would use compulsory powers.

One London civil defense worker who wrote to Blackpool, Northwest coastal resort, for accommdation for his wife and children, was offered two bedrooms for £10 a week, with a three-month lease and £110 in advance demanded.

Five London mothers and their children returned home last night from Hoole, near Chester. They had slept on mattresses on the floor of a parish church hall with only two wash bowls among them, no hot water, and only two towels for 25 families.

They were told that householders were refusing to take evacuees and that mothers with their children were certainly not acecpted. Two expectant mothers were refused accommodation when they mentioned their condition.

Conditions Vary.

These incidents are not isolated, but neither are they typical of all areas. Seven hundred children went to Wigan and were welcomed with open hearts by every one from the orking girls in their clogs to the Mayoress with her gold chain of office. One letter from Kettering, Northamptonshire, said that the reception there "could not have been more wonderful."

Meanwhile, back in London, the families who remained are carrying on as they did in the blitz days. The capital's second deep shelter has been opened and thousands of persons sleep there free from harm and noise.

Government ministries are cooperating in keeping life normal, and lessons learned in 1940 and 1941 have been of immense help in making this possible. Rest centres have had far fewer persons to handle than during the blitz, and homes have already been found for 85 per cent of those bombed out.

The June casualty figures, covering a period from June 15, were 1,935 civilians killed and 5,906 injured and detained in hospital. United Kingdom civilian casualties during the blitz period of 1940-41, were considerably higher. The peak month was September, 1940, with 6,976 killed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SHOOTING THE WORKS

SOME OF the principal fireworks of bridge are touched off by bids which indicate to the opponents an entirely different kind of hand from what the bidder actually has. When the spot for them is carefully picked, they can mislead the other side into disaster. Seldom do they pay, howeved, unless the bidder has some escape from trouble in case he fools his partner worse than the opponents.

(Dealer: South. East-West-vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 NT
3 ♠	Dbl	4 ♣	Dbl
4 ♠	Dbl

It is easy to see how South took a terrific pasting in that contract. He was set five tricks, giving his opponents a score of 900, much more than they could get in any other way.

East was one of the most brilliant performers in New York's Inter - Club league, J. Harlin O'Connell. His 2-No Trumps bid was nothing like as risky as it seemed. He could tell that his partner had some kind of pretty fair holding in the spades which South had bid. When North called 2-Clubs, he indicated a lack of fit with the major suit, so that Mr. O'Connell knew his partner had the suit in definitely stoppable shape.

His bid, as he could see in advance, would make South think that the spade honors of the opposition were at his right, whereas actually they were at his left, where they could do the most damage. South fell for the ruse like a ton of bricks.

Fund Organized For Norwegians

With George Sorenson, well known Peterborough business man as chairman, and H. N. Pettersen, C.G.E. Plant Engineering Department, as secretary, a Peterborough branch of the Nowegian War Fund Association has recently been formed.

The executive of the Peterborough Branch is made up of His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, honorary chairman; George Sorenson, chairman; H. N. Pettersen, secretary; C. S. Cummer, manager Bank of Montreal, treasurer; the directors are, Charles Lacheur, Postmaster, Alderman James Dutton and Dave Price, C.G.E. Works News Editor.

When these men were approached by Mr. Pettersen, they all agreed that Norwegian citizens had been overlooked, as far as Peterborough and District were concerned, and agreed to help in any way they could to send much-needed aid to these unfortunate people.

Both Mr. Sorenson an Mr. Pettersen have members of their families still in Norway, and it was a recent letter Mr. Pettersen received from his sister in Sweden, which prompted him to act. She informed him that his mother had died, and if help wasn't forthcoming soon, many more older people and children would perish for lack of nourishment. Mr. Sorenson hasn't heard from his brother for three years.

(Any donations to this Fund may be made at the Bank of Montreal, where an official receipt of the Association will be issued.

Change Courses To Suit Soldiers

TORONTO, July 15—(CP)—University courses will have to be "specially adapted" to serve the needs of thousands of men and women returning from active service to a college education, Dr. Sidney E. Smith, newly-appointed principal of University College and executive assistant to the president of the University of Toronto, said last night.

"It will be the severest test that Canadian universities have ever had," said the former president of the University of Manitoba.

"We must re-examine our offerings," said Dr. Smith, "for, if the universities adhere to the letters and regulations formulated for 'teen-aged youngsters, they will not serve adequately men and women (from the armed forces) matured by experience."

"Universities should try to look at every individual case, to equate, if possible, any specialized training received n the armed forces with credit in university work. . . . On the other hand, I don't think universities should give too liberal credit by virture of military service."

Woman Defends Murder Suspect

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP) — After several remands the preliminary hearing of a charge of murder against Allan Baldwin and William J. O'Sullivan proceeded in Police Court to-day. The charge arises out of the slaying of Robert Canning, a guard in the Don Jail on June 10.

A Violent Wife

PLYMOUTH, Mass., July 15.—(AP).—An unidentified man—one of hundreds angling for mackerel from the state pier—had to be fished out himself when his wife gave him a lusty shove into the ocean. IT HAS POWER TO SPARE

RUGGED FORD VEHICLES, built strong and tough by Canadian workmen, have borne the brunt of many hard-fought battles. That amazing piece of engineering — the Ford V-8 Engine — is today supplying a goodly share of the horsepower so essential in waging modern warfare.

The Ford V-8 Engine drags guns into forward positions. It hustles troops from one part of the front to another. It lugs up ammunition, food, motor fuel; transports refugees and prisoners of war.

In the harvest field it is just as efficient, dependable and economical of fuel and oil as on the battlefield. Today it plays a prominent part in producing the nation's food and transporting it to market.

Whether it is being used to power an army truck, a universal carrier, or an artillery tractor on the war front, or the truck engaged in essential transport here in Canada, the Ford V-8 Engine is a power plant that is dependable and trouble-free. On the battlefield or the harvest field it has power to spare.

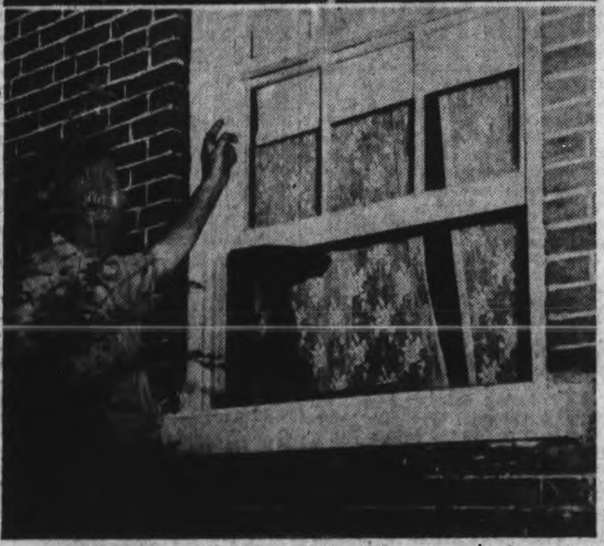
4-YEAR-OLD BOY FOUND DEAD IN WOODS



BELIEVED STRANGLED—Norman Lamb, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lamb of Cavan township, was found dead in the woods of his father's farm on Sunday afternoon, and a fifteen-year-old ward of the Bowmanville Boys' School is being held in Cobourg by the police. The small boy is believed to have been strangled to death. The Lamb home is shown at the Top Left, while beneath it B. D. Fee, who resides near Ida, and is the grandfather of the dead child, points to the window through which the youth, after returning from the Lamb home, gained entrance into the house of Mr. Lee where he is employed. He took a rifle and box of cartridges before escaping to Peterborough where he gave himself up to the police. The Lamb child is shown at the Right.

City Police Arrest Youth Of 15

Cavan Township Boy Is Believed To Have Been Strangled

By FRED CRAIG.

Norman Lamb, four years old and the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lamb, Lot 8, Concession 7, Cavan, was found dead Sunday afternoon at the edge of a bush at the rear of the Lamb farm and police believed that the young boy was strangled. The Lamb home is six miles west of Fraserville.

A fifteen-year-old farm laborer, a ward of the Bowmanville Boys' School, who worked on the farm of the dead boy's grandfather, B. D. Fee, near Ida, and who had been playing with young Lamb earlier in the afternoon, was missing. Police started a hunt for him as soon as they were notified of the fatality.

The search which had been carried on along every road in the Cavan district and involved half a dozen provincial officers and Commissioner Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police, who was holidaying in Bethany and took part in the hunt Sunday night, came to an end at 11.29 when the lad sought by the police came into the Peterborough police station.

"I want to give myself up," he said to Constable Andre Dalton who was on desk duty.

"You're the man?" questioned the officer and the lad replied "Yes."

At midnight the boy was taken to the office of the provincial police in the court house for questioning by Provincial Constables Price Morris of Peterborough and W. H. McBrien of Bowmanville in whose territory the fatality had taken place.

The boy, whose home was originally in Hamilton, had been employed on the Fee farm for a year and had an excellent record there for good conduct.

"I would have trusted him with anything," Mr. Fee said to the Examiner Sunday evening. "He had never given us the least trouble since he had been here."

Play Together

The Fees had gone to the home of their daughter and son-in-law for Sunday dinner and had taken the young farm laborer with them. After dinner the boy and little Norman Lamb played together in the lane outside the farmhouse. It was not until nearly 4 o'clock it was noticed that they had disappeared.

Fee set out to look for the two boys, walking across the fields south of the house, after noticing their tracks. He had gone 700 or 800 yards when he came across the body of little Norman Lamb lying face downward on the ground near the edge of the bush and close to a large puddle. The boy was dead and the older lad was nowhere in sight. The

Failed To Hear Order

Somewhere in England, July 17 (AP)

THREE conscientious American sailors failed to hear an order to abandon the doomed American destroyer Glennon off France, and when they finally were rescued had 600 pounds of steam up for an attempt to take the ship out of danger.

They are Water Tender William Venable, 42, Water Tender Francis Dauber, 33, and Fireman John Valkanberg, 22. The Glennon, one of the three American destroyers announced as lost in the Normandy invasion, was damaged by an explosion while patrolling off the Normandy beaches. Her propellors dropped into shallow water, anchoring her, and the ship had to be abandoned.

Curtin Predicts New Offensive Against Japs

CANBERRA, Australia, July 17 — (CP)—Prime Minister Curtin told parliament today that though a transfer of main British efforts must await Germany's defeat, large and powerful forces would become available this year in the war against Japan.

He told the new session of parliament that when the full weight of British and American land and air forces was brought to bear the Japs would be as decisively beaten as Hitler.

Curtin, recently a visiter to the United States and to London, asserted there was a minimum and a maximum fighting strength beyond which Australia could not go and that it was a balance between these limits which the government was seeking.

Australia, he said, will make a fighting contribution until the enemy is completely defeated but there are economic leeways in Australia's economic life which "we should commence to overtake."

Manpower Allocation

"The strength of our fighting services," he continued, "which has been the subject of mutual understanding with our Allies, would enable more but not an unlimited manpower to be allocated to economic services. The extent of Australian production to be allocated for export also is part of that understanding. This matter is affected by the total nature of the Australian war effort and transport capacity."

Tanks And Infantry Smash Into Village Of Noyers; Rommel Uses Five Divisions

Caught Off Balance By British Thrust
Rommel Seeks To Bolster Lines
Americans Push Nearer Town Of St. Lo

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 17 — (AP). — British tanks and infantry stormed into the village of Noyers today and engaged in hand-to-hand fighting in the streets as Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army attacked on a nine-mile front southwest of Caen. Caught off balance by the British thrust which began Saturday night, Marshal Erwin Rommel threw five divisions into the battle and one of the biggest contests since the invasion of Normandy promised to develop as Dempsey sought to broaden his springboard salient for a major offensive out of the Normandy peninsula.

Canadian troops were not involved in this fighting, Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported. He said, however, that Ontario troops advanced a few hundred yards on their sector to occupy another hill between the Odon and Orne Rivers.

7th Day Of Assault.

To the west, American troops attacked St. Lo for the seventh straight day, groping through early morning mists in a siege operation which field dispatches said was grinding down diminishing German resistance. The Americans pushed forward about 400 yards and stood within 1¼ miles of the town on both the east and northwest.

Lessay, the Germans' western anchor across the Cherbourg peninsula, apparently was the Americans' for the taking any time they choose. Field dispatches said patrols had entered the north side of the town after crossing the flooded Ay River without meeting anything more than moderate opposition.

In the centre, the Americans pointed a deadly spearhead at the road between Periers and St. Lo, capturing Remilly-Sur-Lozon after crossing the Lozon River, and driving southward toward Le Mesnil Vigot on the highway. Le Mesnil Vigot is two miles beyond Remilly.

Haida was in charge of her veteran skipper, Capt. H. G. de Wolf, D.S.O., of Bedford, N.S., while Cmdr. B. Jones, D.S.O., R.N., commanded the Tartar.

Convoy Of Four Ships.

An enemy convoy of four ships—two of them merchant vessels towing a battle practice target, and two armed trawlers, was intercepted at about 3 a.m. The sea was glassy calm.

Engaging immediately, the Allied destroyers were met by shells which appeared to be of three-inch calibre. The enemy also fired tracer, some of it passing low over the Haida.

Within a few minutes the gunners of the three Allied ships had the range and smashing salvoes were hitting home. A reddish flash was observed on one trawler as a broadside from the Tartar struck it amidships and the enemy burst into flames.

The Haida's gunners settled down and were hitting hard too. One enemy ship was a difficult target as she was pointing almost directly toward us, but one of our shells crashed into her bows just above the water line and must have gone through the entire length of the ship.

Swinging our guns on to the largest of the enemy ships, a merchant of about 2,000 tons, we gave her everything we had and checked hit after hit. One salvo almost took the stern off another crashed amidships and she rolled on her beam ends with the funnel hanging precariously and looking as though about to fall off.

Tragic Spectacle

Under the clear illumination of our star shells the enemy ships presented a tragic spectacle. All three were stopped and afire. One of them which looked like a small tanker belched a dense cloud of black smoke as she heeled over at a dangerous angle.

The Germans were still game. One ship, with her heavier armor silenced, fired a steady stream of tracers but the effort was not effective.

750 US Heavy Bombers Blow up Bridges

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 17—(AP).—Up to 750 U.S. heavy bombers attacked a dozen river bridges leading to the Normandy front, the Belfort railroad yards in eastern France, and a flying bomb supply dump near Rheims today in one of the largest scale support attacks by four-engined aircraft during the invasion. Up to 500 fighters escorted the bombers. Radio Berlin said the Reich itself was under attack for the fifth time in a week. It was one of the rare days since invasion that clear skies have permitted full use of overpowering Allied air power. Belfort is near Switzerland and 215 miles southwest of Paris. Rheims is 75 miles northeast of the capital and closer to the Calais coast where the robot platforms hurl buzz bombs at London.

The daylight thrusts were preceded by a two-ply night assault upon the continent in which a strong force of Britain-based R.A.F. Mosquitoes blasted a German Synthetic Oil Plant at Homberg, in the Ruhr, while Italy-based heavy bombers attacked an oil refinery at Smerderovo near Belgrade Yugoslavia.

The night attacks were part of a calculated campaign to cut vital fuel supplies on which Adolf Hitler's war machine depends.

20 Planes Lost

The Mosquito attack on the Ruhr was carried out without loss. Allied headquarters in Italy announced loss of 20 planes in sweeping operations which included a medium bomber attack yesterday on military targets in the Vienna area, raids on objectives in Yugoslavia and southern France and assaults upon German communications in

Seek To Amend Election Act

OTTAWA, July 17.—(CP).— The government to-day introduced in the Commons a new amendment to its bill amending the Election Act. As amended the bill would enable Japanese who were entitled to vote in a general election in 1938 to vote in the next election, but would bar those who could not vote at that time—date of the present Elections Act.

In effect this would mean that some 300 Japanese who were outside British Columbia at that time would retain their franchise.

The 4,000 Japanese who were then residents of British Columbia and who now reside in other provinces, as well as the Japanese still in British Columbia, would not have a vote.

War Bulletins

LONDON—Four small and swift British merchant ships cracked the German blockade of Sweden repeatedly during the winter with voyages through the narrow, heavily mined Skagerrak and Kattegat to the little port of Lysekil, it was disclosed today. The ships flicked the "Red Duster" of the Merchant Navy in Nazi faces through the long winter nights and lost only one ship. They carried cargo too bulky for air, plus a few passengers. Each crew had about 20 men.

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS — The 2nd British Army fought blazing engagements in the streets of two villages and captured two others as Gen. Dempsey threw forward strong forces on a nine-mile front southwest of Caen in a drive aimed at bursting out of the Normany Peninsula, headquarters announced today.

LONDON—The German communique announced today the killing of 460 "Terrorists" in fighting in Southern France. Gen. Eisenhower warned the Germans Saturday that French Patriots were members of the army of the interior and that instances of failure to accord them military treatment would be prosecuted.

Red Army Stops Troop Transfer

LONDON, July 17 — (CP) — The Red Army has prevented the German High Command from transferring large forces in the east to the Normandy battlefront, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said today.

"If Hitler's command were in a position to do so it would tranfer big forces to France from the Soviet front," said the article, circulated by the Soviet Embassy in London. "This has been prevented by the Red Army.

"The Allied Command is fully in a position to bring about a complete rout of German forces in northern France. The coming weeks more than favor the widest offensive operations.

"With the operations energetically carried out, i.e., by bringing the main forces of the Allies into action opportunely, the Germans must inevitably be brought to catastrophe in France, which will speed the general defeat of Hitlerite Germany."

Prime Minister King Cancelled Broadcast

OTTAWA, July 17.—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today in the Commons confirmed the cancellation of arrangements to broadcast a speech on Aug. 7 on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his leadership of the Liberal party.

Answering a question placed on the order paper by Frederic Dorino (Ind. - Charlevoix - Saguenay), Mr. King said the broadcast was arranged, as was the dinner in his honor, without his knowledge and before the provincial election in Quebec was announced.

He said he felt the motives of himself and the party would be "misunderstood" if the broadcast was held and asked the committee in charge to cancel the arrangements. He also felt that at this stage of the war he should b ethe last to do anything to cause political controversy.

Mr. King also said he had learned through the press that Liberal members and Senators proposed to make him a presentation. He had asked that no presentation be made.

Germany Is Directly Threatened As Red Army Pushes Past Grodno

By HENRY P. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, July 17 —(AP)— Red Army troops pushed forward today along a broad front stretching from the Baltics to the Pripet marshes after capturing the German-held fortress city of Grodno, described by Premier Stalin as "covering the approach to East Prussia."

Grodno, which the Germans announced earlier they had evacuated is only 45 miles from the East Prussian border. With its fall the Germans have no natural barrier between them and their homeland, to which it appeared the fighting soon would be carried.

The Germans fell back at Grodno to the west bank of the Niemen river, which parallels the East Prussian border in that sector. Field dispatches said a new Russian crossing of the Niemen was made during the Grodno battle. The river has been crossed by the Russians farther north in the Alytus sector, where the Red army, pushing west of Wilno, has driven within 50 miles of East Prussia.

The Russians have consolidated a bridgehead on the west bank of the Niemen, taking more than 40 positions across the stream in the Alytus sector, front dispatches said.

(Martin Hallensleben, military expert for the German News Agency D.N.B., suggested in a Berlin broadcast the Red Army might be cntering a trap in its lightning offensive that threatened to isolate German troops in the Baltic.

(Hallensleben, admitting it was poor strategy to hold in the north while giving up "comparatively extensive areas" in the middle of the line, asserted "there will be reasons for allowing the Russians to come so close. It will be safe to count on a number of surprises.")

10 Miles From Kaunas.

The Moscow communique disclosed Russian troops were within 10 miles of Kaunas, former capital of Lithuania, with the capture of Dorsunishki on the southeast. It reported the capture of more than 340 cities and towns extending from the eastern border of Latvia southwest through the big bulge into Lithuania, through Grodno and to the eastern approaches of Bialystok and Brest Litovsk.

The Russians captured Mstibovo, 45 miles east of Bialystok, bastion on the Wilno-Warsaw railroad line, and a series of towns to the northeast.

Pushing towards Brest Litovsk, Red Army troops captured Berez-Kartushkaya, 60 miles northeast, and were about the same distance away in a push westward along the railroad from Pinsk.

(A special broadcast by the Moscow radio heard in London told the Germans "the game is up." It said 100,000 Germans were taken prisoner and 50 divisions, possibly 500,000 men, were annihilated on the eastern front.

("The Germans squealed at our declaration that we were making straight for Berlin, but these were no empty words," the broadcast said.)

Not A "One-Man Show"

Perfect Company Action Says Latest V.C. Winner

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 17.—(CP Cable).—Ask Maj. Jack Mahoney of New Westminster, B.C., Canada's newest winner of the Victoria Cross, about the award and he will tell all about his men—"a wonderful lot."

"To hear people talk, you'd think it was a one-man show," said Maj. Mahoney, who won the Empire's highest gallantry award for refusing to relinquish a vital bridgehead on the Melfa River after he was wounded three times.

Contending the action was no "one-man show," Maj. Mahony declared "it was a perfect company action. Every man, officer, N.C.O. and other rank knew his job and did it despite everything the enemy tried."

This was the reaction of the former employee of the Vancouver Province when asked about the award as he attended a dinner given Saturday night by his regiment, the Westminster Regiment (Motor) of New Westminster, B.C.

"We were well trained and confident," he said. "The thought came to me time and time again during the show, 'What a wonderful lot they are.' Lord, no it wasn't just me."

"Take Douglas (Lieut. R. R. Douglas of New Westminster), who, if any man did, made the action possible. Did you know that in addition to giving the platoon terrific leadership he knocked out one self-propelled gun and personally accounted for three machine-gun positions, one after the other—just like that? Yes, he's just one of the fellows who won the battle."

When Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister of Vancouver, a Canadian divisional commander, principal guest at the dinner, asked Maj. Mahoney "how are you bearing up under it?" the new V.C. assured him that he thought he was not doing "too badly."

Senior officers of the Canadian corps here attended the dinner which was given in a tented encampment "somewhere in Italy."

Maj. Mahony asked that his parents in New Westminster, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mahony, be advised that he was "O.K."

15,500 Japs Killed In India Invasion

KANDY, Ceylon, July 17.—(CP).—Headquarters today raised by 4,500 the total of Japanese killed in the India fighting since the enemy first was met there, bringing the new toll to 15,500.

The 4,500 additional dead Japanese were credited to the British 33rd Corps, which first engaged the enemy in India on April 4. Previously it had been announced the British 4th Corps had killed 11,000 of the enemy since March 4.

Headquarters reported that 40 Jeeps were captured in pursuit of the enemy southeast of Skhrul, but where the Japanese obtained the machines was not explained.

8th Crosses Arno

ROME—British 8th Army troops stormed today across the Arno River which flows through Florence, putting behind them a considerable barrier before the German Gothic line across Italy. The Arno is a natural moat 400 feet wide at places and was believed to have been fortified on the north bank during the German retreat from Rome. It flows in deep gorges through captured Arezzo, Florence, and Pisa where it meets the sea.

$645,000 Top Income In US

Newcomer Heads United States Treasury List

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP).—A newcomer, Sidney R. Fleisher, took first place to-day with $645,000 in the first edition of the U.S. treasury's 1942 list of corporation compensation to individuals for person services.

The report lists gross receipts in salaries, commissions, bonuses or other compensation, before the payment of federal and state income taxes, which reduce materially the net amounts received.

Fleisher, in New York, described himself as a moving picture negotiator for the Dramatist Guild, selling screen rights for plays. He replaces, at least temporarily, movie magnate L. B. Mayer, at the head of the list.

Mayer was not included in the litst. Treasury officials explained, however, that supplementary lists are issued annually.

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, took second place. He received a salary of $180,000 and a bonus of $367,724 for a tqotal of $537,724, the same as for the preceding year.

Thomas J. Watson, head of International Business Machines Corp. received $100,000 in salary and $326,548 in other compensations for a total of $425,548. This was enough to give him third ranking.

The movie players occupied a considerable portion of the 51page report.

Claudette Colbert goth $360,000 from Paramounnt Pictures compared with $260,000 a year earlier.

This put her out in front of the other reporting film players. Fred MacMurray received $347,333 for his year's efforts for Paramount.

Business Man Pleads Love Of Jesus

"To be a Christian is to be on fire with love of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour, and with love for our fellow men," said Robert G. LeTourneau, United States industrialist, and chairman of the Christian Business Men's International, speaking at the Sunday morning service at George Street United Church under the auspices of the Christian Business Men's Committee of Peterborough.

The LeTourneau profession of faith to a congregation, including members of George Street United and Murray Street Baptist worshipping together, that filled the church, was a peculiarly unconventional telling of the "old, old story" by a layman with obviously deep sincerity and conviction. Implicity it offered a refutation of the cynicism that religion and business "do not mix."

Other than his laymanship and his earnest and grateful testimony, the LeTourneau message was embraced in the great commandment that thou shalt Love the Lord, thy God with thy whole heart and thy whole mind . . and thy neighbor as thy itself, with the possible exception of his stirring emphasis on the qualification of constancy in his phrase seven days in the week".

And this ideal love of God must be unselfish and unseeking, with the implication of a very old and familiar promise other things will be added thereto.

Enjoys Work

Mr. LeTourneau said that it was a great pleasure to go around trying to express and show the Lord to people, and thereby, also, to thank Him for all the wonderful things He has done for me. He has blessed my business in ways that I don't understand. All I know is that when I tried to serve Him things began to happen, they are still happening, and it is a great happiness for me to be able to bear testimony of those things of God which I have discovered. What we need as Christian laymen is to be conscious of the grace of God, to be filled with His grace, to be on fire for God and to work for Him and our fellowmen seven days in the week."

Crossing the border into Canada, Mr. LeTourneau said he was greatly impressed by the cordial relations between the two neighboring peoples a few formal questions asked as to his identity and where he was going things like that, and he was on Canadian soil. "And it seemed to me that this world would be vastly different if its nations lived in the same friendly relations as Canada and the United States. It would be a different story from what we know today. And then I thought it would be a still more wonderful world if we all had the same relations with God,—full of trust and confidence in God If we were saying from our hearts "I believe you want to help me, God; now what can I do for you."

That note of intimacy ran more or less all through the speaker's manner of address, virtually a sermon on the fundamental of Christianity.

Love Keynote

"I don't feel that Christianity is so much a code of morals and creed of doctrine. I think Christianity is nothing more than falling in love with Jesus. And if we love Him it is because we want to love Him, and not because we have to. There are battles to be fought for Jesus, and He is looking for soldiers. We have to go all out for God, because He loves us and needs us and wants to do things for us. Frankly I expect to go to Heaven. I believe that I am going to be with Him, and live and reign with Him for all eternity. God is loving us, and all we have to do is to love Him back."

In an address to a large group of his employees on one occasion Mr. LeTourneau spoke of Christianity, but said he was not trying to cram religion down any man's throat. If he showed impartiality in that respect, he told them, he would not be setting a good Christian example. But, one time he was discussing with some foremen the idea of Christian young men in the business because he thought they would possess something vital and keen and desirable One of the bosses interrupted with the question "Just what is a Christian?"

Must Love God

"I wanted the answer to that man, and I prayed to God to give it to me. You don't have to get on your knees to pray. You can pray running if you have to. Well, in a flash this thought came to me, and I shot it back: "A Christian is one who is trying to love our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ", and I thought of the young lawyer who asked Jesus what was required of him to be saved, and the answer was that he had to love God with all his heart and his strength and mind, all, not part, that, I answered, was Christianity, rather than forms and ceremonies."

God puts a great power in our hands if we will only learn to know it and to use it, for His honor and glory. And let us remember that it is what we can do for God, what we can give Him, not what we can get out of Him."

Mr. Le Tourneau recalled that on going home one evening he was slightly surprised to find three or four young couples in the kitchen with his wife, and as an off hand greeting he said "Well, what's the argument?". One of them answered "We were just talking about how you can be certain when you are in love."

His reply was: "When you are thinking all the time how much can I do for this one I love, not what can I get, then you can feel sure that is true love."

Business Men in Charge

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Church opened the service and then transferred its details to the Christian Business Men. Frank Stevens, chairman of the local committee, and Wilfrid Shiner also of this city and Mr. Nelson of the Le Tourneau organization, New York, and Dr. Clappison of Toronto, participated with Mrs. Dorothy Strathearn of New York who sang two hymns "The Stranger of Galilee" and "I'd Rather Have Jesus."

Mr. LeTourneau of Vicksburg, Mo., spoke at Oshawa Saturday night, and spent Sunday afternoon with his party at Bobcaygeon, returning to Oshawa in the evening to continue his itinerary of speaking engagements by long flights in the United States including this week Mississippi, Colorado and Georgia.

As a contracting road builder he undertook to make certain machinery for his own needs and with such effective results other road construction men became interested ordered machines for themselves, and since then Mr. LeTourneau transferred his activities entirely to the manufacture of road building equipment, bull-dozers and all the rest of the heavy impliments.

British 8th Army Prepares For Drive On Florence

ROME, July 17—(CP).—The British 8th Army was fanning out north and west of fallen Arezzo, key communications centre 37 miles southeast of Florence, as German defence difficulties grew and losses mounted, Allied headquarters said today. Canadian armor was taking part in the advance through difficult hill country past the historic provincial capital, peace-time population of which was 63,000.

Meantime American units of the Allied 5th Army moved on Livorno after capturing the dominating height of Monte Maggiore and pushing op up the Italian west coast to the edge of Montenero, only four miles from the heart of the big port.

Simultaneously other American forces slammed forward in the Era valley to within 5½ miles of the Arno River in a broad flanking movement well east of Livorno and Pisa.

The newest gains brought the 5th Army up against strong German defensive positions and fierce fighting raged all along the front, with the enemy launching sharp counter-attacks.

An official announcement said French troops of the 5th Army, which were credited with capturing Poggibonsi Thursday, had driven back one heavy counter-attack and were holding to their positions.

It was the first indication from an Allied source that the Germans still were fighting for possession of Poggibonsi, although the Nazis twice had claimed recapture of the road junction town since it first was entered by the French on Bastille Day.

The heaviest German counter-thrust came in the Era valley at Camannoli, the point of the deepest American penetration. Under cover of night the Nazis struck with a considerable force, rolling the Doughboys back a "few hundred yards," a spokesman said.

Later in the night the Americans lashed out again with equal fury and retook the lost ground.

German tanks which had been withdrawn from active fighting in many sectors recently were thrown back into this battle.

The Nazi also used tanks on the slopes of Monte Maggiore, but failed to halt the conquest of that high ground from which Livorni's port is in easy gun range.

Lorenzana, 11 miles from the coast, fell to other 5th Army troops who pushed on with a half-mile of Crispina, 12 miles east and a little north of Livorno. Usigliano, 14 miles due east of Livorno, was taken. It was found heavily mined and booby-trapped.

On the 8th Army front both eastern and western Canada tank units lunged forward yesterday in pursuit of paratroopers of the Herman Goering Division who had pinned them down in rocky hill country for nearly two weeks prior to the fall of Arezzo, Doug How, Canadian Press War Correspondent cabled.

body was fully clothed except for the shoes which were lying near by.

Marks on the face of the Lamb boy gave some indication that death might have been due to strangulation.

Fee gave the alarm and the police and Coroner Dr. Diamond of Port Hope were notified. Provincial Constables Pollard of Port Hope and L. A. McClure and Price Morris of Peterborough and Provincial Officers Melton and Taylor of Lindsay and W. H. McBrien of Bowmanville were all engaged either in investigating the fatality itself or the search for the missing farm laborer.

The latter was seen shortly after 4 o'clock passing through Cavan and later when Constable L. A. McClure and Fee arrived at the latter's home it was found that the house had been broken into and that the boy's suit coat, a pair of his boots and a .22 calibre rifle, along with a quantity of ammunition, had been taken.

Later Provincial Constable Price Morris while searching along the 13th concession road in Cavan township found the stolen rifle hanging from a mail-box.

The boy after giving himself up told city police that he had walked into town, after visiting the Fee home, travelling on Highway 28 and reaching Peterborough shortly after 6:30 o'clock. He said that he had eaten in a restauant and walked around a while before deciding to surrender to the police.

No ammunition was found on him and he explained that by saying that he had fired it all off and then had abandoned the rifle.

While the boy was in Peterborough provincial police were patrolling all the roads in the vicinity, checking cars and buses while the police along Highway 2 were also on the lookout for the fugitive.

Performs An Autopsy

In order to ascertain the cause of the Lamb boy's death Dr. J. B. McKay of Belleville performed an autopsy this morning at Port Hope but the authorities refused to make public the findings until an inquest is held.

The death of their only child under such tragic circumstances has been a great shock to Mr. and Mrs. Lamb. The boy was a bright, handsome, cheerful little fellow and a general favorite around the district, neighbors said.

"I can't understand it," Mr. Fee the grandfather, said last night at his home. "The boy had been down with us a number of times before to the Lamb house and Norman had been often up here with his parents. The two of them always played together and seemed to get along so well with each other."

After being interviewed for considerable time at the court house, the young suspect was taken to Cobourg early this morning by Provincial Constables W. H. McBrien and Price Morris.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, in Cobourg said no charge would be laid against the youth until an autopsy had been received from Dr. J. B. McKay of Belleville.

(At Toronto, Deputy Attorney-General Snyder said the boy would first apear before a Juvenile Court Judge but that in the meantime Dr. C. S. Tennant, Provincial Department of Health expert, was conducting a mental examination of the youth).

The British 2nd Army pointed its its sector southwest of Caen in a driv eto iron out the enemy wedge between Noyers and Allied-held Caumont. A maximum gain of nearly three miles had been made since the jump-off.

The western thrust was down the road toward Villers-Bocage, which British forces captured in the first to yield.

Revert to Original Plan

This broad flanking moving against Caen failed early in the invasion. A later frontal attack in which Canadian troops participated took Caen itself, but a subsequent close flanking attack southwest of Caen to drive the Germans ou tof the southern suburbs of Caen last week made little headway. Now the British forces were reverting to their original plan.

Dispatches from the front said action flamed all the way from the fork of the Odon and Orne Rivers at the southwest edge of Caen, where the British were still holding a bloody triangle, to Noyers.

Significantly, enemy forces opposing the attack grew from four to five divisions overnight and Rommel committed carefully-hoarded air forces to the battle.

One of the brightest points in the picture for the Allies, however, was clear weather. One of the biggest days for Allied airmen since D-Day was in prospect.

(German accounts said the attack was backed by "heaviest artillery" from both land and se abatteries.)

On both sides of St. Lo, where the Germans are fighting fiercely the Americans pushed forward about 400 yards to within 1¼ miles of the town on both the east and northwest.

Heaviest Fighting.

The heaviest fighting on the whole front raged in the green valley between the Odon and Orne, where the British pushed forward yesterday in a sharp offensive which took Esquay, Garvus, Bougy and Tretteville. Rommel launched counter-attacks and late field dispatches said the Allies had been driven from Esquay, which now is in no man's land.

It was obvious Montgomery's latest push was designed to reach high-jump off spots from which to launch an offensive for storming the Orne, but Rommel, anxious to delay the main battle as long as possible, reacted violently with all his local reserves.

Most of the fighting is being carried on by infantrymen, since tanks are of little use in storming these key heights and heavily wooded areas.

The American 1st Army reported it was regrouping in all sectors except that of St. Lo, and that its advance was likely to be slowed for a few days. This perhaps accounted for the delay in taking Lessay, as patrols reported only minor German opposition and it was obvious the Nazis intend to give up the town without too great a struggle.

Clearing weather yesterday afternoon allowed Allied air forces to strike with growing strength, and fuel dumps and communicaions were attacked heavily.

Eastwood To Build Barn For $22,031

The $22,031 tender of the Eastwood Contsruction Company for the building of the 20-stall horse barn on the incinerator lot on Townsend Street was recommended to the Council by its Property Committee on Friday afternoon in a motion by Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Alderman Bradburn. Two other and higher bids were also received.

The permanent barn will be 90 feet by 40 feet, to house the horses used in the collection of garbage, and the proposed cost includes all details of equipment.

Peterborough Bus Lines require enlargement of their barn, owned by the city, on King Street. The company suggested erection of an addition of cement block construction costing $2,000, half of that amount to be paid by the company and half by the city. Ownership of the extension will also remain with the city. The offer was sent on to the Council bearing the committee's approval on the condition that the city's share of the expenditure should not exceed $1,000. The resolution was moved by Alderman Bradburn and seconded by Alderman Sands.

Alderman Swanston presided.

Enemy losses in the Mediterranean were put at 44 planes.

More than 1,000 Britain-based U. S. heavy bombers attacked Munich, Saarbrucken and other vital targets in Germany yesterday while medium bombers. Twelve of the heavy bombers and three fighters were lost to intense enemy flak.

Russian Yak-9 fighters struck industrial objectives in East Prussia, making the assault on the Reich a three-sided affair.

The German communique said Augsburg also was attacked yesterday.

Evidence that the steady hammering of Munich, shrine of the Nazi party and hub of five major rail lines, was bearing fruit in abundance was found in these unusual words in the German communique:

"Munich was attacked with major forces. In some places, considerable damage and losses were caused, especially in Munich on which the enemy in five days has made four large-scale raids under weather conditions adverse for German defence."

Canadian fighters were active over the French front last night. At least one enemy plane was reported shot down.

American medium bombers also swept over the German battle lines in Normandy early, hitting a fuel dump south of Rennes, severing a four-span 1,000-foot railroad bridge at Nantes and bombing two more bridges in the Argentan area, three German planes were downed in combat.

Thunderbolts dive-bombed an airfield near Boue, just east of Paris, a bridge 10 miles southeast of Chateau-Thierry.

The strategic air force did not name the specific targets hit in southern Germany yesterday because weather prevented an accurate assessment of damage.

Lieut. J. Raine Thanks Peterborough Police

A letter has been received by Acting Chief Constable John Thompson, thanking the local police department for the assistance they rendered in connection with the visit of H.M.C.S. Peterborough to Cobourg on June 4. The message was from Lieut. J. B. Raine, captain of the corvette.

Lieut. Raine wrote as follows:

"I much regret that the exigencies of the service prevented me from writing sooner as I had hoped to do.

"I do wish to thank you on behalf of myself, the oficers and men of H.M.C.S. Peterborough for the splendid work performed by your officers in connection with the visit of the ship to Cobourg.

"I realize that you spared your men from numerous duties in Peterborough to assist on that occasion. For a very long period and under most trying conditions helped to handle the large crowd gathered on the jetty with efficiency, courtesy and tact. Their cooperation with the civic officials and the officers of the ship was very much appreciated."

New Potatoes Selling At 60-75 Cents Peck

New potatoes had finally elbowed the remnant of last year's crop off the farm produce market Saturday, and were selling from 60 to 75 cents a peck. Herb Doig remarked that 60 cents satisfied him no matter what others were quoting. The price in several neighborhood stores this morning was 65 cents.

Norman Moncrief quoted 42 cents the quart box for red raspberries, and reported just a fair crop. Carrots and beets were two bunches for 15 cents and four bunches for 25 cents; string beans three quarts for 25 cents.

JOHN J. KENNEALLY

The funeral of the late John J. Kenneally was held from the family residence, 225 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, to St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning last, where solemn high mass was offered at 9:00 o'clock by Rev. J. T. Finn. Rev. K. Malane acted as deacon and Rev. F. A. Marrocco subdeacon. Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. K. Malane recited the burial prayers.

The huge number of spiritual and floral tributes expressed the sympathy of his many relatives and friends, and provided a stately setting at his home during the time his remains were resting there.

The late Mr. Kenneally, although 85 years of age, was very active, and took a deep interest in his home and garden. Store Destroyed By Fire; Damage $6,000

CAMPBELLFORD, July 17 (ENS) — Clouds of dense, black smoke, belching out of windows and doorways, featured the second big fire which Campbellford has had since the beginning of this year. The fire which broke out in Spencer's Book Store in the Linto Block, Sunday, completely destroyed the interior of that store and damaged adjoining premises to the amount of $6,000.

It is believed that the blaze broke out in the back of the Book Store in an apartment where the proprietress, Mrs. E. Jones lived, and the cause is unknown. The fire was first seen about 7 in the evening by F. Bennett, who immediately sent in the alarm.

The volunteer Fire Brigade, under Assistant Chief Alex MacDonald, played three streams of water on the buildings, and it was entirely due to their untiring efforts that other stores nearby were not demolished. In the early stages of the blaze proprietors of W. J. Callaghan's Men's store and Pullman's General store were ordered to remove the contents of their shops, but as the flame were brought under control this action was unnecessary.

The Linto Block on Front Street, was originally the old Windsor Hotel, which a few years ago was made over into stores. Little more than two months ago, a fire of similar proportions broke out in the A. D. Bennett Furniture store, and Campbellofrd citizens turned out to fight one of the worst fires in the history of the village.

The interior of Spencer's Book Store, which was destroyed, sustained damage roughly estimated at $2,500. An adjoining store, Cournyea's Barber shop, suffered mostly smoke and ater damage, amounting to $500, the Macoun Pool Room was badly damaged by smoke as was Pullman's General Store. The second floor of the block suffered smoke damage and the third floor was not harmed. In addition to the loss of her book shop, Mrs. Jones lost her household furnishings which she had in an apartment at the rear of the establishment.

William Elphick, has rooms on the third floor above Spencer's Book store and when the fire was discovered he was asleep in his home, where he lives alone. Ellis Jones, husband of the shop owner, remembered about him, and made his way through the dense smoke to the top floor. He wakened Mr. Elphick and led him down the back stairway to safety. His belongings were undamaged.

Ex-Convicts Are Used As Guards

WINNIPEG, July 17—(CP)—The Winnipeg Tribune, in a newspage story Saturday, said that three men with prison records had been assigned as probationary guards to Stoney Mountain Penitentiary by the Winnipeg office of National Selective Service early this year.

The Tribune said that the men had served penitentiary sentences at Kingston. Their prison records were disclosed after a check of fingerprints with Ottawa.

The first man applied in January. Asked if he had any prison experience, he replied: "Yes, several years." The other two men were taken on in February.

"Pal" of Convicts

The Tribune said that the first guard was found to be "the pal" of several convicts transferred from Kingston to Stony Mountain early in the year, and held responsible for disorders at Stony Mountain.

"At first he seemed to know his business, and his conduct appeared exemplary. It was soon noticed, however, that he appeared to be too friendly with the Kingston trouble-makers, and a close tab was kept on him.

"Then came a report that he had cashed several cheques with Stony Mountain merchants that bounced, and the wires were soon humming to have his record looked up.

Again Look for Guards

"The check came and his prison record, along with those of the others, was received by the warden. Now Stony Mountain is again looking for guards."

In a special despatch from Ottawa, the Tribune carried comment by Arthur MacNamara, Director of National Selective Service, who explained it was not always possible for Selective Service to be completely informed in respect to an individual's record. Sometimes a man changed his name or denied having a police record.

He said the records of the men had been discovered during their two-week probationary period.

Canadian Sherman Tank-Support Helped Highlanders At Caen

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 17 (CP Cable)—The first tank crews to enter the littered streets of Caen were those of an Eastern Canadian Regiment commanded by a Lieutenant-Colonel from Ottawa, who led his Shermans into the city in a scout car.

(The unit, while not identified in Stewart's dispatch, presumably was the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment, one of three Canadian Tank Battalions disclosed to have fought with the Canadian Third Division in France.)

The Shermans climbed onto the asphalt highway leading into Caen last Sunday afternoon after they had helped Canadian infantry in their violent battles through German village positions to the northwest the day before.

Some of these battles were as fierce as the fights which raged over the same ground the day after the Canadians landed in Normany as they advanced on the Carpiquet airfield and encountered heavy enemy resistance and then one roaring counter-attack after another.

This time the German youth of an SS. division had been beaten into the ground by terrific artillery concentrations in front of the Canadian advance and ere on the defensive. However, they still clung to every inch of their ground and fought even after the Shermans overran their intricate trench systems, machine-gunned them and fired point-blank at their positions with high-explosive shells.

The battleground, rolling yellow wheatfields that fall slowly eastward toward the base in which Caen sits in its ruins, as still scattered with the rusting hulks of the German tanks stopped in their tracks in that early Normandy battle.

Saturday, July 8.

The Shermans went into the fight last Saturday morning, July 8, suporting Ontario troops after artillery fire had poured into the German defence positions at Buron and Gruchy and the vilages themselves.

The tanks left their assembly area near the little village of Les Buissons, one squadron moving with the troops marching towards Gruchy and a second behind the infantry who fought the bloody battle of Buron.

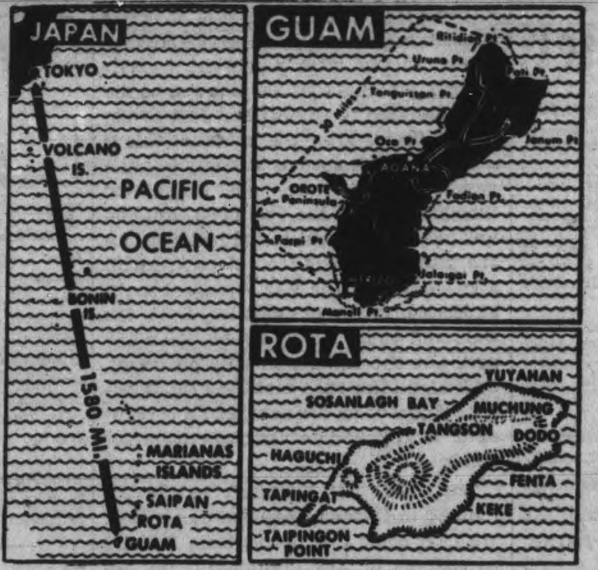
Around both villages the fights were what Lieut. David Spielman of Montreal called "slugging matches." The Germans occupied strong trench positions and were supported by heavy mortar and shell fire Tanks sitting further back also shelled the Canadians.

The Squadron supporting the Gruchy attack—whose Commander later suffered a broken back from shell blast while he stood by his tank after it had gone over a mile—helped to overcome the enemy defence by working around the western outskirts of the village and blasting the Germans from their flank and rear.

Skirted Ditches

The Squadron with the Buron Attack Force got around deep German anti-tank ditches behind which there were interlaced trenches occupied by the fanatical Adolf Hitler soldiers and fought south to the dominating ground without which the enemy could not hold the village.

There were no big engagements with enemy armor, which generally kept its distance. In its sweep to the west, the Squadron commanded by Maj. Sydney Radley-Walter of Limoilu, Que., helped Ontario infantry in their capture of the enemy occupied Chateau Saint Louet which the same tank Squadron had shelled and beaten up when the Carpiquet attack was put in by Canadian troops five days earlier, on July 3.



PRELUDE TO INVASION—In what may be a prelude to invasion, a U.S. Pacific fleet task force has been hammering enemy installations on the by-passed islands of Guam and Rota in the Marianas. Bombers from Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier task force have also attacked both islands, encountering moderate to intense anti-aircraft. The map at the Left shows Guam and Rota in relation to Japan and recently-captured Saipan. On the Right are closeups of both islands.

Japs Execute American Fliers

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—A Japanese broadcast directed to American forces in the Southwest Pacific and recorded by the United States federal communications commission today said several American airmen captured in the first Superfortress raid on Northern Kyushu last month had been executed.

The broadcast warned that "any Allied airmen who falls or bails out over Japan will be executed."

"This is the order of the day," it added.

The American airmen met with "the same fate which was meted out to raiders of Tokyo some two years ago," continued the broadcast.

F.C.C. monitors said the announcement was contained in a Japanese spokesman's "special talk" from the Singapore transmitter. Reception was poor and only a few excerpts in English were intelligible, the monitors said.

Mrs. Brown Is Hostess To Centenary W.A.

ROSENEATH, July 17—(ENS)—Mrs. Manassa Brown was hostess to members of Centenary United church W.A., when the regular meeting of the society was held on Thursday afternoon in her home. The hostess' daughter, Mrs. D. Timlin, president of the society, was in the chair. There was a display of lovely articles made and donated by the members and many were sold, adding a nice sum to the treasury.

It was decided to remember with gifts the following persons, first Milford Wellwood, a former resident of the community now in hospital in England suffering from war wounds; a resident of the community who is ill, and two newly-wed couples of the same community.

The society accepted ten pairs of pyjamas from the local Red Cross branch to distribute for sewing.

It was decided to hold an afternoon tea in August, when Mrs. R. White will be guest speaker and sister societies will be invited to attend.

Miss Hilda Arthur was in charge of a program consisting of numerous readings, a contest and a Biblical quiz. The pastor, Rev. R. White and Mrs. White were present, the former speaking briefly on the work of the W. A. and Mrs. White addressed the gathering briefly.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and the committee in charge served refreshments.

Dogs Lead Double Life Turn Killers By Night

PORT HOPE, July 17—(ENS).—Two apparently well-behaved dogs, but killers after dark, wiped out almost the entire flock of sheep owned by Edgar Nicholls, resident near Port Hope, during a raid last week. Mr. Nicholls, armed with a gun and flashlight, shot one of the animals, a police dog. The other dog was not shot, but it was learned that it was an Airedale.

The dogs were pets and led a peaceful existence by day only to turn into bloodthirsty killers by night.

Mr. Nicholls told the Examiner that in two nights ten sheep were killed and 21 were so badly mauled by the dogs that they had to be destroyed, leaving Mr. Nicholls only three or four sheep untouched.

Gold Stocks Are In Demand

By ALEX PRINGLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 17—(CP)—The current scramble for shares of the gold mining and development companies, unequalled in the last seven years or longer, has developed in the face of an unprecedented labor shortage and the heaviest taxation burden the industry has ever carried.

While there are obvious bearish factors, the bullish influences are much less apparent and brokers are far from agreement as to the cause of the advance, apart from the feeling that the war is hastening towards an end and that the labor problem then will quickly evaporte.

Buying of the gold stocks began to hit a livelier pace immediately following the invasion of Normandy June 6. Stocks were not overhanging the market in any considerable quantity and buyers were obliged to raise bids smartly. In the five weeks between June 5 and July 10 the exchange index of gold stock prices advanced 13.55 to 114.27, the highest level since February, 1940. It was one of the most rapid rains in a dozen years for a similar legnth of time. The advance was registered on steadily expanding volume of trade which in the first week of July reached the largest figures recorded in six years.

Prices Have Been UpWard

In the fall of 1942 signs began to multiply that the Axis powers were weakening and cautious accumulation of stocks began to creep into the market. The trend of prices has been upward since that date, punctuated only by occasion profit-taking set-backs. On July 10, 1944 the index reached 114.27, the highest mark for the last four years.

The strong buying splurge that developed soon after the Allied invasion of the continent has been attributed in some quarters to a report that the United States government was planning another advance in the price of gold. Also some buyers of stocks have convinced themselves that the proposed international fund to foster trade in the post-war years would establish the permanancy of gold as a monetary base and thereby increase the demand for gold.

More Money Available

The unprecedented quantity of money in circulation is mentioned as another stimulant to stock market action and other authorities call attention to the signs indicating a slow movement towards definite inflation, thus encouraging the buying of stocks as a hedge.

A local factor supporting the gold share boom has undoubtedly been the somewhat sensational reports coming out of the Yellowknife field in recent months about ore veins 50 feet wide and running a half-ounce of gold to the ton. New companies acquiring holdings in that area have been organized in dozens in recent weeks and they have been able to finance quite easily on public buying of their shares. The advance of the shares of Giant Yellowknife from around 35 cents to $10.75 within about a year provided first-class advertising for the companies that came along behind.

5 French Youths Hide From Nazi

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ST. SAUVEUR LE VICOMTE, July 17 — (AP) — Five French youths, who played Robinson Crusoe for four months, hiding in the woods to keep from being drafted by the Nazis for forced labor, have come out of hiding near here to help the Allies by guiding lost paratroopers and pointing out the German positions.

These brave, stubborn boys managed to keep alive in the wilderness by trapping small game. One of them told me his story.

He is a boy of 20 named Pierre.

"One night one of our leaders in the underground came to our farm and told mother—my father is dead—that the Germans would soon begin taking more of us to Germany to do their work," Pierre said. "One group of us decided we would rather run away and live in the woods than be shipped off to work for Hitler....

"We found an old woodcutter's abandoned cottage in the centre of the forest and we all slept there. It was February then and sometime we were cold. But it wasn't such a bad life.

"Germans came by several times and questioned us. But we convinced them we were cutting wood for German army use so they let us alone.

"Some of us were pretty homesick by the time we heard over the little radio in our hut that the invasion had begun....

"We met some American paratroopers lost in the woods and after spending the night with them, we showed them the way to small town where fifty other men in their outfit had set up headquarters....

"I told your officers all I knew about the German positions, and I also let them know where some Germans were in the woods at that moment. They fired mortars on them and killed three before the rest of the Germans ran away."

Paying Our Parliamentarians

Several months ago an editorial appeared in these columns suggesting that members of Parliament are underpaid; now, we are glad to see, the Opposition has spoken plainly on the subject. It is not easy for M.P.s to get up in the House and suggest that they ought to have more money; it looks as though they were trying to bilk the country of something to which they have no claim. But consider the matter closely: the sessional indemnity used to be $2,000 when House sittings lasted for two or three months; later, as the sessions lengthened, the sum was raised to $3,000 and then to $4,000, and there it has stuck. But the sessions nowadays may last six months or more, and during that time an M.P. must live in Ottawa — which is expensive—and keep up his home as well; he also has to travel, entertain and keep up the position to which he is elected. As things stand at present an M.P. cannot do this unless he has a substantial income from his business or profession, and as the country's business keeps him from his own affairs for more than half a year, he is not likely to make that income.

The result of this underpayment is obvious. We shall get men in Parliament who look upon the $4,000 a year as a godsend, and they will live on it all year; they will be men who could not make as much at any other sort of work. They will not be men of the type whom we want in our legislative assembly.

In short, we must stop making politics such a costly profession. We must pay our M.P.s on a suitable scale. At present the Member who gets $4,000 a year is required to hand $1,480 of it back in Income Tax, which is a curious thing. For the Member's $4,000 is officially called his 'indemnity'—that is to say, the sum which the country owes him for his expenses and his sacrifice of personal gain during the sitting of Parliament. It is characteristic of our present tax system that Canada pays a man a debt it owes him and then snatches more than a third of the money back again.

Public service is not a road to wealth, and upon the whole we pay our representatives, our civil service and our judiciary on a very modest scale—far less than either Great Britain or the United States. We should at least pay our members of Parliament enough to keep them from being out of pocket; if they are doing their job well they should be paid correspondingly.

The Legend About Finland

Every war destroys some legends and creates new ones. This war has effectively destroyed the legend about Finland which was so dear to English and American hearts. We looked upon Finland as a model country in most ways: she believed passionately in education and thrift; her people were distinguished for their excellent common sense and their cleanliness; Finland was democratic through and through, and it was her democracy which made her reject the Russian czars, and the Russian commissars. Now we have no reason to alter our ideas about Finnish education, thrift, good sense and cleanliness, and we may still admire Finland's masterly treatment of her greatest natural resource and her greatest export — the genius and the music of Jan Sibelius; but we must alter our ideas about Finnish democracy. Finland was apparently anything but democratic in her heart.

Erwin Lessner, writing in Harper's Magazine, says this: "Finland has been run for years by Fascists, militarists and conniving politicians, and now she must pay the price. Her people have been bled white for nothing". Nor must we believe that Finland was not engaged in this war except as a base for limited operations against Russia. It now comes out that German planes used Petsamo consistently as an air base from which to send attacks against the Allied shipping on its way to Murmansk. That is to say, British sailors and British ships were lost in great numbers because of active Finnish collaboration.

One of the most persistent legends about Finland is that she was one of the few countries to pay off her debt to the United States after the last war; this is a legend which appeals strongly to business men who have not acquainted themselves with the full facts. Finland was not a combatant in the last war, but she profited greatly from it as a transit area. But after the war Finland bought $9,000,000 worth of supplies from the U.S., and could have paid for it on the nail, but the Allies sold only on credit. So Finland has been making a small annual payment on her debt, and has reaped a totally undeserved reputation for doing so.

There will not be much hatred for Finland in Canada when the war is over. We have some fine people from Finland as citizens of this Dominion. But we must forget the legend of the republic which was a little gem of democracy, and realize that Finland had been going wrong for years before the war broke out.

Humiliation For Germany

Germany has heaped humiliation unstintingly upon the countries she has conquered; the Poles, the Danes, the Norwegians, the Czechs, the Yugoslavs, the Greeks, the French and the Italians have all been forced to drink the bitterest draught that the Germans could prepare. Now Germany is taking her first sips of that same cup of gall. She is in great danger and—perhaps worse, from a German point of view — she looks foolish.

East Prussia is in great danger, and there is little hope that the Nazis can stop the Russian advance in that quarter. The Russians are advancing steadily in Finland, and the Germans have been forced to occupy the Aaland Islands in the Gulf of Bothnia to protect their sea-routes there. Now that Normandy is ours Nazi troops are stranded in the Channel Islands, and have no hope of getting back to the mainland. Hitler, who always hated the thought of fighting on two fronts at once, is now doing what he can on three fronts which are so extensive that it might be more accurate to call them four. And the Nazi propagandists who used to talk about Fortress Europa have now begun to talk about Fortress Germania.

Lieutenant-General Kurt Dittmar, who speaks with authority, has warned the Germans that the enemy is at the gates, and that their sacred duty is now the protection of the soil of their homeland. Dittmar says that Germany is surrounded on three sides by forces greater than her own, and better equipped than her own. He even goes so far as to speak of errors by the German High Command. When Germany admits that her High Command is anything less than infallible, it is news indeed. But Dittmar tells the Germans that the High Command underestimated the Russian strength, and that the Russian leaders have made better disposition of their resources than the Germans. This is particularly significant when we consider it in connection with the recent removals of German commanders from important posts, and the unprecedented number of German commanders who have been captured in battle. The Germans who are fighting in Normandy protest that they are opposed by a strategy with which their leaders cannot cope. It looks as though the Nazi Party was doing its best to shift the blame for the coming defeat on the shoulders of the Army.

The fight now is for Fortress Germania. Perhaps it will not be so strong as the Nazis like to think. It is, after all, made up of the German people, and they were promised that war would never touch them. Broken promises sometimes contribute to defeat as substantially as enemy onslaughts.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Nowadays a man must be constantly on the alert if he hopes to remain unemployed.

We have no quarrel with people who play the piano by ear, but there is a nuisance in our neighbourhood who apparently plays with his feet.

A more complete weather information service will be available to Canadians after the war. Is one of our post-war aims to be better weather?

Parliament has discussed whether sons-in-law should be ranked as dependents for Income Tax purposes. Insurance companies rank sons-in-law as Acts of God.

We like the clarity of mind exhibited by the eleven-year-old girl who was asked on her geography examination to define a peninsula and a gulf. She wrote: "A peninsula is a piece of land with three sides of water; a gulf is three sides of land with one piece of water".

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THESE are called the "dog days" by holiday makers but for farmers they are the "drilling days" for efforts to keep up with the work in hot weather. Two good hay weeks helped and if you could manage, it was a fine time to kill weeds in a corn field. Cultivating corn or roots and giving the potato field a stirring takes time and if the small tractors of six and eight horsepower which have multiplied in Britain during the last few years, are sold at a price within reach of the small farmer, they will be in strong demand very shortly. There are so many jobs that need to be done quickly on a farm that speed counts, whether the weather be fair or catchy. We have to keep up with the procession, and when fuel for power becomes plentiful again it will be used.

The internal combustion engine is no longer a curiosity that may only go when in good humour. We saw the motor car grow out of a rebellious stage when it was not very dependable, and the tractor followed suit; what we now want is a cash price for these things. If the maker gets paid cash the price should be a fair one for if the manufacturer has not to be a money-lender he should be able to sell at a fair charge. Other facilities are now being made for farmers to borrow money to save their crops. This is among the important post-war problems.

THERE are going to be new features in farm machinery, one of which is the use of malleable, unbreakable glass. Gears may be enclosed in it so you can see the wheels go round, which I don't think as important as its use in the construction of a seed drill, with which you are sowing grain, grass seed and fertilizer. A glass side in these three hoppers would enable the operator to see if all three sowing parts were working and also if any of them required filling. If this glass can be used in the fertilizer box so that rust and other dirt can be avoided because of the cleanliness of the parts, it would bring comfort to the worker.

Cream separators would offer an opportunity to such material to promote the desired sanitation in the handling of milk and cream. Such uses of glass to displace iron and steel would be likely to benefit the world at large. This looks like a practical change though many of the promises now made for new products are likely to prove disappointing in their development.

THERE is a new insecticide being developed which it is said will destroy all the enemies of plant life. The first of the story sounds well but as it goes along the reader finds that it is a rather violent poison which only experts should use and even then its killing properties may be too effective. This is one difficulty in these times. Too many people announce that they have a cure-all and then admit it is "not perfected" yet. Research workers should not announce a "new discovery" until they know just what it will do and how useful, and how safe it is. That was true thirty or forty years ago, but it isn't now. Take Marquis Wheat. It was only given to the farmers when Dr. Saunders and Alexander MacKay were certain of what they had. Contrast this with rust-resistant wheat, of which we had a number announced but only Thatcher has been of great usefulness to wheat growers.

THE break in the dry weather last week, was very welcome to most farmers, and the 12th brought a good soaking for crops and paraders. We could have done with more rain in places and the Eastern part of the provinces has suffered some from earlier dry weather. The west has surprised many crop estimators this year. The fall and winter moisture was well below the average but summer rains have been exceptional. Peace River is short of moisture and crop only average, from Edmonton to Calgary it is excellent, and the Cardston, Lethbridge and Macleod districts are much above average. A few more showers and reasonably cool weather for filling and Alberta will give a great wheat harvest. Saskatchewan tells about the same story, only rather better and promises more than a normal yield, though some small sections not so good. Manitoba is reported as having a very fine crop. There is much to be thankful in such a condition at the very crux of the war.

IF I was seeding fall wheat on sod I would have it grazed quite bare before ploughing, particularly if it was alfalfa sod. If there is little green matter ploughed in the sod will decay quicker and furnish humus to improve the cropping qualities of the soil. A bare sod will pack better and make a firmer seed bed for the wheat. When fall ploughing for next spring's seeding, the fall and winter rains, also the frost will assist in rotting the green matter turned under, but for wheat to be seeded almost at once after ploughing, it is better not to turn in too much growth. If the field has been growing alfalfa the soil will have been supplied liberally with nitrogen from the lucern roots, and will have a close enough sod to make humus. I remember some years ago the success the late Thos. McMillan had with fall wheat after sweet clover, and he shaved the sweet clover off close to get it for his silo. There are times when it is good practice to turn down a clover crop with the plough but you require time for it to get soaked with rain and rot before it is asked to grow grain.

THE latest estimation of western crops show 18,900,000 acres of wheat, about two million over last year; with 11,565,000 acres of oats and 7,655,000 acres of barley, which would be a half million less acres of these two coarse grains than last year. There are about 2,160,000 acres in flax, and there will be about 19,700,000 acres summer fallowed. This is accounted for by the practice in dry districts, of cropping only every second year.

A TOMATO proof against rust and blight has been produced in the United States. The final cross to produce this immune specimen was with a small but hardy member of the tomato family found in the Andes Mountains in Peru. As both North and South America have contributed to the production of this new species, it has been named the Pan-American. The agricultural research men who have been working on this plant are not yet satisfied with it and probably something can be done to further improve its quality and flavor which are of the highest importance in a food product. The immunity from fungus and other diseases, which have worked havoc in tomato crops, has been quite well established.

THE HAUNTED SUPERMAN —By Thomas

To Entertain The Emperor

WHEN a Chinese buys his evening paper he doesn't always bother to read it right away. He doesn't have to. He already knows what's in the paper. For yesterday the editor posted on the bulletin board a brief statement of the important happenings of the day and thoughtfully added, "For comment on this amazing news read tomorrow's paper."

So to the Chinese the headlines of yesterday become the news stories of today, and the paper is meant to be read leisurely sometime tomorrow. To us nothing is so stale as yesterday's news, but to the Chinese news isn't ready for print until it is at least a day or so old.

The whys and wherefores of this had been brought home to me one day some five years ago when with Kung I made my first visit to a Chinese newspaper office. He was fairly bursting with the secret that a daughter of the House of Chen was to be married.

"It's what the Americans call a 'scoop'," he exclaimed to the editor. "I'm the ony one to know about it."

The editor raised a questioning eyebrow. "Doesn't the bride know? The bride's father and mother? All the family and all the relatives? And the man she is to marry?" And he added. "And now I know. When is the wedding to be?"

"Next month."

"Good. By that time all Chinatown will know. We shall wait until after the wedding before making an announcement. We must not be hasty—much may happen in a month. Suppose it is merely gossip. Should we speak of something to be, but which isn't yet, it might prove embarrassing if it didn't happen—both to the House of Chen and to me. Especially me! Word spoken can never be recalled. And the written word stands forever. If not truthful it will bounce back in my face and make it overly red. When the couple are safely married and everybody knows, then I shall write a poem in praise of matrimony and speak highly of the virtues of the newly wedded pair. Everybody's intelligence will be flattered, too. They will think they are smarter than I am. They will say, 'I knew about this long before he did.' That will please them. It is better to have news a day late than a day too soon." . . .

And that's the way it's been with the Chinese ever since they started the first newspaper in the world. This was during the Chou Dynasty (122 to 222 B.C.). The emperors in those days were curious about what was happening in the kingdom. So they sent out "reporters" twice a year to learn the facts. They called these men ju jen or postmen. In reality they were scholars and philosophers and attached to the court.

Now the emperor was the emperor and as such was entitled to respect and also to be entertained. It would be quite wrong to bore him with the recital of dry, dull facts. So upon their return to court these ju jen retired to their chambers and there in solitude and with great deliberation wrote for the emperor's entertainment poems, odes, essays, and short stories about current events.

Some of these poems are preserved today in a book which is one of the Five Classics of China, the "Shu King." Scholars have had many an academic debate about these poems. . . .

In any event, the primary purpose of the gatherers of news was to entertain the emperor. And since it became an established custom, to this day the Chinese feel that the first purpose of news must be entertainment, and as such a news story should be told by the writer with all the skill, subtlety, and philosophical implications possible.—From "Three Times I Bow," by Carl Glick.

E. L. James Defends War Reporting

(EDITOR AND PUBLISHER)

IN an answer to critics who berate the newspapers for their "pollyanna" coverage of the war, Edwin L. James, managing editor of the New York Times, defended the press, which, he declared, is often prevented from telling the full story because of censorship.

Mr. James's article, written for the Sunday Times of this week, took issue with three categories of critics whom he classifies as first, returning service men and relatives of men in ervice; second, persons who think it clever "to lambaste newspapers" and third, a category which he said may "be best described as verdant."

However, publishers and editors are most concerned with the first category, he declared, and for this reason, his defence is chiefly in response to these critics because "they have the best grounds and the best equipment for criticism."

Such critics, Mr. James describes as including the returning soldier from the Pacific who goes through the newspaper files to find that it was not told as he saw it; the aviator who comes back from England and reads glowing accounts of what our bombs did, with little about the dangers and hardships of his missions which are forever graven in his mind; the officer and doughboy back from Italy who may well think that the record of our advances could have been tempered with most emphasis on the hell he went through.

An examination of the complaints of these men, Mr. James points out, shows, first of all, "that they have not given consideration to the barriers which prevent newspapers from telling the full story."

"Many of the critics," he wrote, "have no realization of the effect of censorship. The military and naval censorship is, by and large, justified. But that is not the point; the point is that the censorship has a repressive effect on what appears in the newspapers. And this comes right to the issue that wise and necessary censorship often prevents correspondents from telling of setbacks and hardships of troops in action because the enemy would be very happy to have that information.

"If a ship is lost in action it cannot be told right away because the enemy might not know it no longer had to reckon with that ship. If an enemy ship is sunk, it can be told at once; if our ship is sunk it may not be told right away.

"Along with the effect of censorship must be taken the effect of official announcements and communiques. As a general proposition, the official statement is the first publishable news of a military or naval action. Being the first announcement it is the most newsy announcement and therefore gets the front page and the big headlines. Official announcements are habitually of a favorable trend."

On this point, Mr. James observes that whether or not such optimistic presentation is good practice, it is beyond the control of the newspapers. Yet it reacts on the press, for when the often-delayed correspondent's account follows the official announcement it does not get the play which the former received.

Mr. James concludes by citing examples of the double influence of censorship and official announcements on the true and full story of major battles and crisis in this war. In many instances, he declares, the real complete story, such as that of Pearl Harbor, was held under censorship rules in newspaper offices for months before permission was given to release it.

Mr. King as Private Citizen

We print on this page, from the Toronto Star, some comment on the lack of ceremony and ostentation which it noted in Mr. Mackenzie King's visit to Toronto the other day.

The fact is that there are in the world today few, if any, national leaders who enjoy the privacy which is Mr. King's. In Ottawa the reporters know his wishes and observe them. What Mr. King does as Mr. King, citizen, is conceded to be his own affair. Nobody camps on the doorstep of his home or outside his office to check on his visitors and to ask them what they talked about to the Prime Minister. Nobody follows him to his Kingsmere place and peeks through the fence to chronicle his rustic activities, if any. Mr. King walks about Ottawa in complete freedom, and nobody would think of accosting him out of either curiosity or personal interest. There is a sort of tacit understanding that the Prime Minister must not be bothered and Ottawa people know their manners.

That is, Mr. King draws a sharp line between his official life and his private life. What he says and does as Prime Minister is for the public; what he says and does as plain Mr. King is quite another matter. He takes the view that he is as much entitled to a decent privacy as any other citizen of Ottawa, and the newspapers, and the public, accept this as reasonable and right.—Ottawa Journal.

He swept the girl into his arms and planted a kiss upon her lips. Suddenly he drew back, a pained expression on his face.

"Oh, my dear," he complained, "will you please stop chewing gum while I'm kissing you?"

"I can't understand you," she said, peevishly. "The slightest little things annoy you."

GRANDMA'S LITTLE FEET

The girls and women of the 19th century were smaller in build than the moderns. They did not develop their feet by taking part in active sports, a simple game of croquet being the limit of their athletic efforts. Victorian women were also prone to wear tight shoes so as to make their feet look small, just in case they might be revealed by accident—or design.

There is a case on record of an Englishman being hanged for murdering his wife because he discovered after marriage that she had large feet and thick ankles. The all-male jury did not think he was justified in going that far on the ground, presumably, that he had taken her for better or for worse.

Happily, there is no danger of that happening to the modern bride.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

SLEEPLESS M.P.'S

Some M.P.'s have a personal grievance about the allocation of sleeping berths on long distance trains. The Parliamentary priority for sleepers is fairly high in the list.

M.P.'s who have their homes in their constituencies enjoy the proirity. But there are members representing, for example, constituencies near London who have their homes in Scotland or the North of England; they may have their businesses there, too. There is no priority for them.

So you might find two M.P.'s living in the same area and travelling by the same train, one in a sleeper, the other in the discomfort of a crowded carriage.

The bitterest pill for the M.P.'s who cannot get sleepers is the suggestion that members of the House of Lords can all get on the priority list between their homes and Westminster -London, Eng., Standard.

A Bible Message

I HAVE yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth. . . . A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.

Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father? . . :

Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me; and again, a little while, and ye shall see me? Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy. . . . And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you. . . .

These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father. . . . I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father. . . .

These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. (John 16:12, 13, 16, 17, 19, 20, 22, 25, 28; 17: 1-3.)

Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiated, and Mass was served by Vernon Grady, brother of the bride, and Oscar Chenier.

J. Armstrong was at the organ, and a choir of children from Saint Joseph's school, Otonabee, where the bride taught for the past year, sang during the Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length white embossed satin, with fitted bodice, finished at the back with tiny self covered buttons, sweetheart neckline, leg o' mutton sleeves, and full skirt gathered at the waist. Her finger-tip veil, of embroidered net, fell in sofe folds from a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies, with baby's breath, and fern. She wore the gift of the groom, a gold cross, set with diamonds and matching earrings.

She had three attendants, Miss Eleanor Grady, as maid of honor, wore a gown of turquoise blue taffeta, with matching cap, trimmed with yellow flowers. She wore yellow mittens, and carried a nosegay of lilies, yellow snapdargons and baby's breath. Miss Marie Grady, as bridesmaid, was in yellow taffeta, with matching cap, trimmed with mauve flowers. She wore mauve mittens, and carried a nosegay of red roses, pink snapdragons, and baby's breath. Miss Ann Hoey, as junior bridesmaid, was in heavenly blue taffeta and wore a pink flowered band in her hair. She carried a sosegay of red roses pink snapdragons and baby's breath.

Vincent Creighan was best man, and ushers were Sgt. G. F. Grady, brother of the bride, and Jerry O'Toole.

Receiving with the bridal couple at the reception, held at the bride's home, were the bride's mother, in sky blue crepe with white accessories, and the groom's mother, in mauve sheer crepe with white accessories.

For a wedding trip to the United States, the bride chose a shell pink crepe dress with blue accessories.

Warkworth Man Wed In Cobourg

COBOURG, July 17.—(ENS). — St. Peter's Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon when Muriel Annie Austen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Austen, Cobourg, became the bride of Maxwell Alexander Thain, son of Mrs. M. M. Thain and the late Mr. Thain, of Warkworth. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Deering. Soloist was Miss Olive Page, cousin of the bride, and Miss K. Warner presided at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocaded satin dress and princess halo with three-quarter length veil. Her flowers were pink roses and white baby's breath. She was attended by her sisters, Miss Eva Austen and Mrs. A. D. Houston, of Cobourg, who wore white silk jersey dresses with wide-brimmed hats and carried yellow roses. Mr. Keith Thain, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Lieut. Vernon Helson, of Kingston, and Mr. A. D. Houston, of Cobourg.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother with about 50 guests present. The bride's mother wore a powder blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother wore a rose sheer dress, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Out-of-town guests came from Kemptville, Kingston, Oshawa, Warkworth, Peterborough, Campbellford and Trenton.

The bride's travelling costume was a powder blue suit with white accessories. After a motor honeymoon they will live in Warkworth.

Second Soldier Picnic Held By Uptown Canteen

Perfect weather was enjoyed as 100 members of the local Training Training Centre were entertained at the Scout grounds just north of Nassau, at an afternoon and evening of fun and sports on Sunday. This picnic, the second held by the committee of the Uptown canteen, was made possible by the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, which was represented on the grounds by Johhny Madden.

Gordon Miller, former chairman of the Citizens' committee, and ardent supporter of the Uptown Centre, welcomed the guests. Following the supper, games and soft ball were organized. At 7 p.m. a whistle was heard. Every one came to a stand still for it was the occasion of taking in the colors, a picturesque scene, as the Cubs who were camping on the grounds, gathered around at the base of the pole, whilst the members of the armed forces and their ladies stood at the alert on all parts of the field, Aleka of the Pack brought the flag to its rest for the night. Camp fire was then held with the many winners receiving their reward for the efforts of the day.

Mrs. Deyman, who has worked at the Uptown for over three years, was convener of the supper and had for her assistants the members of the Canadian Legion ladies committee, The prizes were purchased by Miss Doris Royea and her committee, while Miss Lytle looked after the hostesses for the day. Members of the P.W.L.C. Band were among those present.

Mayor James Hamilton and Alderman Adam Sands were present and Honorary Commissioner J. T. Hornsby and Commissioner Wolff of the Peterborough Boy Scouts Association were both on hand to show the members of the City Council around the Scout grounds. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham of Sarnia who son, Capt. Cunningham, is at the Training Centre.

Capt. Irwin was responsible for the boys from the Training Centre and Ches Mowry with his committee looked after the arrangements for the whole day. Two members of the Legion forces, Mrs. Albert Mason and Mrs. George Stevens, had the task of recording the names of the winners of the races.

Several minor accidents, sprained ankles, sprained fingers and abrasions of hand, leg and thigh were treated by the Scout leaders.

The names of the winners of the various races were as follows:

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

WOMEN 30 SHY FROM MARRIAGE

Generally Self-sufficient, See Few Wives With Children Writing Songs About Matrimony.

◆ ◆ ◆

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widower of 40 with two little girls. I make a fairly good salary, but have no money saved. I have many women friends who seem to enjoy being with me, but when I speak of marriage it is all off. Why are women between 30 and 35 so averse to marrying? C.D.R.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: The reason that women between 30 and 35 years of age fight shy of matrimony and are not ready to jump into the arms of any good-looking and attractive man who asks them to marry him, is that they have arrived at the years of discretion and have begun to use their heads as well as their hearts.

Women Then Self-sufficient

The woman of that age has either inherited money, or else she is in some business by which she can make a comfortable living for herself. She is independent and self-sufficient. She has gotten over the sloppy sentimentality of her girlhood that made her think that love was the only thing in the world and that she had better be dead than not have a man hanging around.

Also, the woman between 30 and 35 has had time to look about her and see that many of her married friends have gotten divorces; that others fight like cats and dogs, and that most of her girlhood friends who have husbands and children are not writing any songs about them and have fewer clothes and look about 10 years older than she does. Therefore, she concludes that marriage is not an unmixed blessing and that a woman does well to look warily at the sort of bargain she is getting before she enters into a life partnership with any man.

That is why the poor widower with children is not regarded as a preferred matrimonial risk. And, in justice, you can't blame the women. Anyway you look at it the lot of the stepmother is a difficult one, and so it is no wonder that women are not eager to marry a man with children. In fact, a woman can give no greater proof of a selfless devotion than she does when she marries a man with incumbrances.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to a girl about my own age, 30. She is very fond of life, wants to go out all the time and dresses exceptionally well. She earns a good salary and has only herself to keep, but she is continually in debt, sometimes borrowing large sums of money from her male acquaintances. Do you think it is safe for me to marry this girl? FRANK

Wasteful Wife Keeps Man Slaving

ANSWER: I do not think that you could make a more unfortunate choice of a wife than this girl. To begin with, she is extravagant and a wasteful wife keeps a man's nose to the grindstone as long as he lives. No matter how much you make, she will always spend more and you will never be able to make enough to supply her demands.

Beware the extravagant woman, and beware above all, the woman who borrows money from men. She is a grafter or worse. She holds them up, knowing that men dislike to refuse a woman, and that few have the nerve to dun a woman for what she owes them. Of course, a woman in necessity may honestly and innocently borrow a few dollars from a man friend, but the woman who habitually borrows from men seldom expects to pay it back.

My advice to you is to escape from this lady while the going is good.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: How can I enlarge my vocabulary and acquire an easy flow of speech? I am always embarrassed for fear that my English is not good. I also have to grope for words. ANXIOUS.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: The poet Longfellow told Mary Anderson, the actress, that the best way to acquire a flexible vocabulary was to memorize a verse of poetry every day. There are also many word books that you can study with profit. You can make no more useful collection than in assembling a good vocabulary.

It is pitiful to think that with the thousands upon thousands of words which we may have for the taking, most of us are so poverty-stricken that we use only about 300 in our daily conversations.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

by Martha Logan

Chicken Salad

It's ideal for warm-weather meals and an economical way of using heavier birds

This is the time of year to purchase poultry, especially the heavier fowl. And this is the time of year, too, when your family will cheer for chicken salad. So get yourself a plump six-pound bird, ask for Swift's 'Golden West' fowl, and simmer it—cut up—in salted water, till it is tender. Cool the chicken in the broth, then remove it, wrap in waxed paper and place in refrigerator. Keep the broth for stock. Then, when you want to serve the family or visitors a meal that will have them almost embarrassing in their praise, follow the recipe in the panel!

Martha Logan

1 cup finely shredded Premium Bologna
½ cup diced celery
1 head lettuce shredded
1 tbsp. chopped sweet pickle

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Fourth position in the City League race should be decided in the next couple of nights, although it may be necessary to wait until Wednesday evening to name the last team to make a playoff berth. At present St. Peter's and the U.E.W. teams are tied and each have two games to play, so that the battle for the fourth playoff spot is still wide-open and there should be plenty of excitement before the issue is finally decided. The warfare gets under way tonight when U.E.W. and Soldiers battle at Riverside Park at 7 o'clock. Haddy Eakins, the speedball Lindsay pitcher, may be on the firing line for the Union outfit in this clash, while the Soldiers will use either Earl Revoir or Pete Procyk against U.E.W. Revoir has pitched five games in a row without being beaten, although he was in a tie in his last start and Soldiers may elect to have him sit this one out to get rested up for the playoffs. The Military Training Centre will probably be at full strength tonight with some of their absentees who have been away on furlough likely back in action. It should be a keen battle all the way.

* * * * * *

Tomorrow night St. Peter's and U.E.W. will hook up in a battle of battles because the loser will be behind the eight-ball so far as a playoff spot is concerned. Whether U.E.W. wins or loses tonight they will have to knock off Saints Tuesday night to have a chance, and so that fixture will have about everything to say about which club will meet Switchgear in one bracket of the semi-final round. St. Peter's will use either Gene Reynolds or Bill Moorhead against the Union with the latter calling on Mac McPherson, Don Isaac or Haddy Eakins. Both teams will field the best lineups they can dig up for that all important tussle, and the game should be one of the most exciting of the year. The two outfits played a tie game the last time they met, which indicates that they are fairly evenly matched. The battles tonight and tomorrow night should be keenly fought every foot of the way and should attract a real crowd both evenings. The league activities have got to the most interesting stage now with every tussle meaning something.

Starting The Playoffs

From City Softball League headquarters comes the announcement that the playoffs will get under way on Thursday of this week when the second place Plazas and the third place Soldiers will clash in the first game of one of the semi-final series. Switchgear will meet either U.E.W. or St. Peter's, whichever wins fourth place, in the other semi-final bracket. Each series will be a best three-of-five affair. A clash between Soldiers and Plazas is always full of the old tobasco, and now that the two are to hook up in the semi-finals fans will be expecting an exciting series. They have not forgotten the sensational struggle between the two clubs in the semi-finals last season when the Plazas, then playing as the 4th Battery, after dropping the first three games to the Soldiers came on and took the series by grabbing off four in a row. There are always fireworks when these clubs clash and the present series is likely to be a lively affair. Both clubs will be at full strength for the opening battle, hoping to get the jump on the opposition by grabbing off the first game in the series. Further announcements as to the remaining playoff dates will be made shortly. It is probable that Switchgear may clash with the fourth-place team in the first game of their semi-final series on Friday night.

* * * * * *

In the Girl's Softball League the Johnson Motors and Quakers furnish the competition at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight in a game that should get the week's program away to a lively start. Quakers, one of the new teams this season, have been coming along in great shape and the Outboard Marines had better watch their step or they may shore a few pins. Quakers, with Gertie Masters pitching, will be no easy picking for anybody's team from now on, and they will work their heads off tonight in an effort to head off the Johnson girls. The starting pitcher for the Outboards has not been announced as yet, but it will either be Helen Mark or Maxine Monson. It should be an interestin tussle all the way. The game is billed for 7 o'clock and should rate a good crowd.

A New Champion

Getting hotter as he went, Bobby Burns, pro of the Weston Golf Club, Toronto, won the Kawartha Lakes professional championship in the Kinsmen's tourney at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club over the week-end, leading a field of 18 well-known shot-makers with a par 213 for the 54 holes. Burns started out with a 72 in the 18-hole round on Saturday afternoon, two shots behind Dick Borthwick of Toronto, who blazed around the course for a one-below par 70. In the first 18 holes on Sunday the Weston crack came home in a par round of 71, and in the afternoon he knocked one off that fine score to negotiate the Kawartha course in 70. Bill Kerr of Cedar Brae took second money with 218, five behind Burns and five above par. In third place was Jack Litler of the Cataraqui Club, last year's Ontario open champion, with 219, and Dick Borthwick, who set the pace Saturday, had to be satisfied with fourth spot. Bobby Gray, the defending champion, was far down the list, and the American crack, Bobby Cruikshank, never got his shots working. There was a new amateur champion installed, too, the title going to Nick Wisnock of the Burlington Club, Hamilton, who came through with two fine rounds of 75 to lead the amateur field. Phil Farley, who won the title last year, did not defend his honors. The tourney was a huge success in every detail and the attendance Sunday was gratifying to the Kinsmen.

* * * * * *

Probably the biggest piece of news from the baseball front over the week-end was the fact that the Brooklyn Dodgers finally brought their loosing streak to a close after it had rolled up the imposing total of 15 straight defeats. The Bums started off a double-header with Boston Braves Sunday as if they were going to keep right on losing. Jim Tobin beat them in the first game with the Braves collecting five runs in the opening innings to make the task easy, but in the second fixture the Boston defence came apart at the seams and the Dodgers could hardly help winning when they scored seven times in the second inning. Another unusual feature yesterday saw Harry Brecheen, St. Louis left-hander and the league's leading pitcher up to yesterday, drop his second game of the season when he made a balk and thus sent in the winning run in a game which the Cincinnati Reds won 3 to 2. In the American League the Washington Senators won a double-header for the first time this year when they knocked off the Philadelphia A's 4 to 3 and 8 to 4. Dizzy Trout, who wasn't given his chance in the All-Star game, won his second game since that contest in the last half of a double-header with the Chicago White Sox to give the Tigers an even break on the day's doings.

Sporting Chile Con Carne: Harry Eckler, Leo Deadey and Pete Glen, who were here with Tip Tops Friday night, starred for the same club in a hardball game Saturday which their team won 14 to 5 over Baers.... Don. McCarthy, who used to pitch for Hastings and has been starring with the R.C.A.F. team in Ottawa, is home on furlough....The Victory Aircraft teams which performed here Saturday had at least the satisfaction of knowing that they unloaded the most colorful set of uniforms that Peterborough fans have glimpsed. In the case of the men's team the uniforms were all that the outfit had in the way of color....Hamilton Co-Ops stopped Welland's winning streak Saturday after they had won 15 games in a row. The Ambitious City outfit walloped Welland 5 to 3 and beat Magil, star canal town pitcher, at that. Over 40,000 fans, the season's largest crowd, saw the Chicago Cubs divide a double bill with the Pittsburg Pirates at Chicago yesterday....They saw some of the choicest pitching of the year, too, for one run each was all the clubs could produce. Wyse bested Rip Sewell 1 to 0 in the first game and Pittsburg took the second by the same score when Max Butcher held the Cubs to two hits.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

The world champion trotting stallion, Volo Song, apparently came to the end of his brilliant racing career yesterday when he fractured the ankle bone in his left foreleg while running first in a free for all trot at Alkhorn, Wis. Trainer Harry Fitzpatrick said the four-year-old 1943 winner of the Hambletonian trotting classic, would probably be retired to stud.

Adolph Kiefer, world's backstroke swimming champion, was really going yesterday as he clipped 4.4 seconds off the United States record of 3.61.8 for the 300-metre distance. Kiefer was competing in the Tarboro, N.C. open swimming meet.

Washington Senators, whose 1944 American League pennant hopes have been largely built on flashy Cuban performers, suffered a bad jolt yesterday when Uncle Sam ruled that four of the Latin stars must either register for the draft or quit the U.S.A. Outfielder Roberto Ortiz, Third Baseman Gilberto Torres and Catcher Fermin Guerra indicated they would return home to serve in the Cuban Army if tagged for military duty, while Infielder Pedro Gomez said he would remain and register for armed service.

Hartford Laurels of the Eastern League equalled a major league record for runs in a single inning yesterday when they rammed home 18 in the fourth frame while smothering the Wilkes-Barre Barons by 28-3. The record was established in 1883 by Chicago Cubs of the National League.

Bob Burns, Weston, Ont., professional, won the third annual Kawartha Lakes invitation golf tournament at Peterborough Sunday with a 54-hole score of 213—five strokes better than his nearest competitor, Bill Kerr of Cedarbrae, Ont. He succeeds Bob Gray of Toronto, the defending champion, who tied for ninth place with W. Spittal of Peterborough, each with 229. In eighth place was Griff Owen, Kirkland Lake, Ont., with 228.

Bill Voiselle, New York Giants' fine young rookie pitcher, has been given a good deal of publicity as the majors' hard-luck moundsman of 1944, but veteran Thornton (Lefty) Lee of the Chicago White Sox, consistently one of baseball's most unfortunate hurlers, will be fighting for the honor again this year. The Sox recently went through four consecutive games without getting him a run.

Tigers Get Boy 18

DETROIT, July 17—(AP)—Detroit Tigers announced yesterday the signing of Dick Dresser, 18-year-old third baseman who recently completed a season with Detroit Northwestern High School. He will join the squad today and will remain with the Tigers until called for military service.

Whipper Ready For Panther Battle

Whipper Billy Watson, British Empire champion, who meets John Katan at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night in a return bout has been doing a little quiet chuckling over Katan's boasts about his plans to flatten the Whip. "I would have wound up last week's bout in a hurry if Dunlop had not interfered," says Watson who promises to give Katan a wrestling lesson tomorrow night. Dunlop is also on the card battling the formidable Earl McCready in the semi-final, and it should be a honey; while Joe Maich and Joe Christie tangle in the preliminary.

Bob Burns, Weston Pro Captures Golf Tournament

Smiling Bob Burns, long-armed, lanky, bespectacled Western pro, walked away with top honors Sunday in the third annual Kawartha Lakes Invitation Golf Tournament, scoring 72-71-70-213, a full five strokes ahead of his closest competitor. Tangled in a three-way tie with Bill Kerr of Cedar Brae and Kawartha's own Lex Robson at the end of the first round Saturday afternoon and trailing Dick Borthwick of Oakdale by two strokes, Burns went ahead shooting steady, masterful golf in the 36 holes of play Sunday, while his competitors gradually fell by the wayside. Leading Borthwick by one stroke at the end of 36, holes, the Weston pro's lead was never thereafter disputed, and an even par he carded on the fifth nine left little doubt in anyone's mind as to the eventual winner.

A concluding round of 76 dropped Borthwick, who long looked like a serious contender for major honors, from the top ranks and he finished with a 220 and in fourth position. It was Bill Kerr, in the running from start to finish, who came through with a 72-74-72-218 to stand second to Burns and one stroke ahead of Jack Littler, Cataraqui Kingston, whose 73-72-72-219, was in turn one better than Borthwick.

Lex Robson Fifth

Finishing fifth, Lex Robson carded 72-74-76-222; and Art Hulbert, Thorn Hill, after getting off to a poor start, turned in Sunday morning one of the three sub-par rounds of the entire tournament and by scoring 78-70-76 managed to take sixth position. Bobby Cruickshank, famous American pro, was 76-74-76-226 and held seventh position.

Conspicuously absent from a place among the leaders that many prior to the tournament thought assured him, was long-hitting Bob Gray, former Scarboro pro and defending champion of the Kawartha crown. An opening round of 71 to all intents and purposes practically eliminated him from a chance to win top money, and though his game improved thereafter he never showed a spark of the spectacular form that carried him to victory last year with a total of 218 Concluding rounds of 74-74 gave him a final 229, a stroke behind Griff Owen of Kirkland Lake and tied with Willie Spittal, Peterborough Club pro, in ninth position.

Other scores in the professional field were Geore Kellgy, Galt, 233; Gord Watson, R.C.A.F., Trenton, 233; Ben Norris, former Kawartha pro 242; Archie Grimsditch, Credit Valley, 243; Ken Adwick, R.A.F., Picton, 247; Paul Penna, Pine Point, 257; Bill Little, Belleville, 257. Hugh Borthwick carded 79-80 for 36 holes but did not turn in a score for the final, round having been disqualified when amateur Bill Ezinichi played his ball on the sixth hole of the final round.

Scores of 70 turned in alike by Borthwick, Burns, and Hulbert were the lowest of the competition, and proved again, if more proof were needed, that Kawartha is not an easy course, even for professionals. In recent weeks, several players taking part in the weekend golf in the city have scored practice rounds in the 60's on other courses while preparing for this tournament and those which are to follow it, but no phenomenal rounds of this type were in evidence at Kawartha.

The gallery attraction of the Sunday rounds when the two were teamed together were Bobby Cruikshank and Lex Robson, and Cruickshank though playing far from his customary outstanding style, was followed with great interest by many spectators from the beginning of the tournament There were many on hand to watch the play on Sunday, the whole tournament was happily blessed with warm, sunny weather, and it was stated that the Kinsmen Club, sponsoring the event on behalf of Milk for Britain, stood to benefit extremely well from the tournament.

112 Amateurs

In a field of 112 amateur players from both the city clubs, from Toronto and points as far away as Montreal and New York, Nick Wisnock of the Burlington Club, Hamilton, turned in an outstanding performance and won the championship of the amateur division. Carding 75-75—150, his score both for 18 and 36 holes was the lowest of any of the simon pure competitors. Phil Farley, winner in the amateur division last year, was not present to defend his title.

Prize-winning scores of the amateur play on Sunday were as follows:

Browns Capture Twin Bill Increase Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

The St. Louis Brown, en route home from their second road trip, are still perched at the top of the standings, giving every indication they are the team to beat for the American Leaue flag. They wound up their stay abroad by capturing both games of a double header from Cleveland Indians, 8-7 and 2-1, with both games going 12 innings.

The double win increased the Browns' first place lead over New York Yankees to two full games. Second Baseman Don Gutteridge featured in both victories. He scored the winning runs in 12th innings of each game, tallying in the opener on George McQuinn's single, and scoring in the nightcap, when Milt Byrnes followed his lead-off triple with a long fly.

Yanks Win 7 to 1

Four home runs by Don Savage, Johnny Lindell, George Stirnweiss and Herschel Martin gave the Yankess a 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the opener of a scheduled twin bill. The second game was rained out.

Dizzy Trout won his second game in four days and his 12th of the season as Detroit and Chicago White Sox divided their double header, the White Sox winning the first 7-2 and the Tigers taking the second 7-3.

Chicago Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates exchanged 1-0 shutouts, with Hank Wyse of the Cubs gaining the nod over Truett (Rip) Sewell in the opener, and Max Butcher of the Pirates shading Claude Passeau in the second, before a crowd of 40,920.

The league leading St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds split their double header, the Cards winning the opener 4-2 and the Reds annexing the nightcap, 3-2, on Harry Brecheen's walk in the eighth inning, allowing Eddie Miller to score the deciding run.

Senators Win Two

Washington won two games from the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-4 and 4-3, with Milo Candini and Mickey Haefner gaining the decisions.

Brooklyn ended its biggest losing streak in history by winning the second game 8-5 from the Boston Braves, after having dropped its 15th straight in losing the opener, 8-4. Curt Davis gained the distinction of ending the Dodgers' slump with a route-going seven-hit performance.

New York Giants dropped the first game to the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-2 and were leading 6-3 after eight innings of the nightcap, when the game was halted by the Pennsylvania curfew law. The game will be continued at later date.

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP). — First thing we know they'll be setting truant officers after the soccer referees in Toronto. The refs have been ordered to submit to an examination by the Toronto and District Football Association, but the officials are downright certain they won't have any part of such an unconstitutional procedure.

Proposal to have the refs examined came after the squabble over game fees a few weeks ago. The football heads jacked up the fees, and then decided they should make certain they were getting their money's worth. But the refs, some of whom passed their tests cum laude in Auld Scotland, object to such a procedure, which they term "humiliating."

So the arbiters will remain away from the examining room, and await results. Only time will tell whether they will be flunked out or if the truant officer will be called on.

Incidentally:

Time hasn't dulled Henry Martell's touch on the drivers and putters. Martell who reached the semi-finals in the last Canadian amateur tourney, braved an Edmonton rainstorm the other day to shoot a 3-under par 68 in a qualifying round of a city tournament....Bill Wilkes, who used to flail the shillelagh with Mount Dennis and Orillia box lacrosse teams, is playing a whale of a game this year with New Westminster Salmonbellies.....Bas O'Meara, sports editor of the Montreal Star, has just celebrated his 25th anniversary in the editor's chair. Little Giants Down Into 3rd Place

By The Associated Press

Baltimore Orioles swept a doubleheader from Jersey City yesterday, 9-3 and 10-1, tumbling the Little Giants to third place and themselves moving up to second. Sam Lowry, twirled a neat five-hitter in the first game as his mates racked up 11 hits off Jerseys' Ken Brondell and Frank Rosso.

The nightcap saw Red Embree pitching six hit ball as the Birds bunched thier 10 runs in three innings. Five home runs featured the bill, four of them for Baltimore.

Montreal Royals swept two from Rochester, 3-1 and 4-2, to entrench themselves more solidly at the top of the International League race and record their third straight win.

With the Royals' defence completing four double plays behind him, Tom Sunkel went the route in the opener. Red Corriden helped him with a homer in the sixth. John Travis, pitching shutout ball for the first six innings, won the second game as Ed Stevens struck his ninth homer of the year.

Newark Bears split with Buffalo, 10-9 and 9-5, after they had run their winning streak to seven straight by winning the first game.

The Herd came back in the second to comb four Newark flingers for 13 hits, two of which were circuit clouts by Otto Denning and Frank Heller.

Al Jarlettt won his 10th game as Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Syracuse in the first of two, 5-1. The Leafs lost the second as Al Lakeman stepped to the plate with two out and the bases loaded in the last half of the seventh, and singled in the winning run, 5-4.

Plazas Smother Victory Boys Girls' Team Wins

Peterborough teams broke even with Victory Aircraft clubs in two games at Riverside Park Saturday in aid of the British War Victims' Fund.

Victory girls managed to defeat the local Aircraft team 9 to 6 in the afternoon game but Plazas of the local City League smothered the Victory men's club 15 to 1 in the evening fixture.

In the girls' game the visitors bunched hits with several costly Aircraft errors to pile up their nine runs. Norma Strickland, who pitched for the Peterborough girls, fanned no fewer than 11 of the Victory team but in between the strikeouts they managed to slap together enough hits with runners in scoring position to take the verdict.

Olive Martin, a pony-sized blonde right-hander, pitched the first six innings for the visitors and yielded ten hits.

Elsie Smadello, a slow-ball left-handed pitcher, finished the game and blanked the local Aircrafters in the last three innings allowing only two hits uring her tenure of the hill top.

Elsie Smadello started the Victory run-getting in the second inning when she led off with a triple. A passed ball, a base on balls to Elsie Port and Marg. Batley's muff of a fly to centre sent two runs in.

A Big Inning

The winners came back with four runs in the third getting them all with two out. With one away Irene Robertson was safe on an error. Mildred Wright struck out, but Olive Martin, Elsie Smadello and Elsie Port singled in a row and a couple of wild pitches helped to send a quartette of runs in.

Aircrafters got them back in their half. With one away Annette De-Carlo singled to right and Norma Strickland dropped a single into left. Eleanor Craig rapped a triple to centre scoring two and ran in herself on Marg. Selkirk's single to left. Audrey Patterson forced Marg. Selkirk at second but advanced on a passed ball and scored on Emma Roberts' single to left.

That made it 6 to 4 but Victory added two more in the fifth on a safe bunt by Irene Robertson and singles by Mildred Wright and Elsie Port, to run the total to 8 to 4.

In their half Aircraft got one back when Audrey Patterson scored, and that was all the scoring until the eighth when Victory secured their last run on a single by Jean Elliott and Rose Care's triple to left.

The Peterborough girls closed the gap with a run in the ninth, Emma Roberts scoring after being handed a walk.

Outclass Visitors

Plazas played about their best ball of the season in the evening game to slaughter Victory men's team, a Senior B outfit, by 16 to 1.

The local City League club fielded smartly, got effective pitching from Terry Woods and Frank Stokoe and crashed through the delivery of two Toronto pitchers for 15 hits.

Victory showed nothing except the flashiest red and brown uniforms of the season. They were stopped cold by the Plaza pitchers, fielded sloppily themselves and their two twirlers were nothing that resembled a mystery.

Terry Woods blanked the visitors for the first six innings, allowing only three hits and Frank Stokoe, who finished the game, yielded but one scratch blow and shouldn't have been scored on. The solitary Victory run was a gift.

Mickey Cochrane pitched the first four innings for the Victory team and yielded six hits and as many runs while Mitchell who finished the game was touched up for nine blows and nine markers.

Eddie Starr led the attack with four hits in five trips to the plate and Jim Ellis drove in four runs with a triple and double. Bill Jones at shortstop for the Plazas had the best fielding play when he went into short left and made a sparkling catch of a near Texas Leaguer.

Enough In First

Plazas got more than enough runs to win in the first inning. Heal walked but was forced by Jones, Pryde also walked and the two advanced on Blewett's infield out. Starr singled to left, scoring Jones and Ellis tripled to deep right sending in Pryde and Starr.

The winners added three more in the fourth on a pass to Heal, singles by Jones and Pryde, a pass to Blewett and Starr's double to centre.

Plazas had a merry-go-round in the sixth on passes to Kingdon, Jones and Blewett, singles by Burton, Starr and Maloney and two errors, to score five runs, and they wound up the scoring in the eighth with four more on singles by Heal and Blewett, a double by Ellis, a pass to Burton and a couple of costly misplays.

Victory got their only run in the seventh off Frank Stokoe. With one out Underwood walked. Baxter flied out to Burton. Folkes scratched a hit, Underwood going to third. Starr threw low to second when Folkes went down on a short wild pitch and Underwood scored on the play after which Scofield fanned.

The teams:

Victory Aircraft—Folkes 3b, Scofield 1b, c, Falkingham cf, Phillips 1b, ss, Cochrane p, Mitchell p, Bradley 2b, c, Spagnola ss, 2b, Underwood lf, Baxter rf.

NAZIS TEACH CIVILIANS—The picture of three civilians at rifle practice on a target range in some unidentified town square in Germany is captioned with an enemy boast that millions of civilians are being trained to shoot. Storm troopers are in charge of the training, says the enemy, and ranges are everywhere. Evidently there's doubt of Nazi "invincibility."

Bouchard Continues Fight Defies Quebec Isolationists

MONTREAL, July 17.—The fight against subversive organizations will be continued despite violent personal attacks and villifications so long as there are secret activities on the part of those "of my compatriots who think the ideal existence for French-Canadians is to isolate themselves in one corner of the American Continent, there to live the life the world lived in the Middle Ages," Senator T. D. Bouchard today stated in a signed editorial in his weekly newspaper Le Clarion of St. Hyacinthe.

"After 40 years of political activity in my Province," said the Senator, who lost the $18,000-a-year Quebec Hydro chairmanship for his atack on the Order of Jacques Cartier, "don't imagine that I did not expect what happened to me when I decided to denounce the secret menaces which have grown up in our Province and in the French part of Ontario in the past few years, and which lately have menaced the unity of Canada."

Deluged With Letters

Senator Bouchard remarked that following on his speech in the Senate, in which he accused the Jacques Cartier Order of promoting schemes to set up a French Catholic and Corporative State in Canada, he had received thousands of letters from all parts of Canada and from the United States

Most were letters of approval and encouragement, he said, begging him to continue on the statesmanlike course on which they had started. A few, however, were rabidly critical, he remarked. Of these, most particularly the vulgar, injurous ones, were anonymous, while a few others were signed with names that he had discovered to be fictitious.

The consensus of intelligent, informed opinion urged him to continue, the Senator said, and confirmed his intention to do so.

He had been attacked, he pointed out, for falsehood and as a traitor to his race and to his religion.

"I should like to know," the Senator asked, "what were the terms of my speech (to the Senate) which are capable of such an interpretation? I have attacked certain people, and certain secret societies and certain subversive ideas. Yet the partisans of subversion appeared to think themselves 'the Church, the race and the religion.' It is high time," he continued, "that in this Province a distinction is made between institutions and their members, between the Church and those who administer it. I have every respect for authority, and during my long career I have ample proof of that."

In matters where only personal opinion was involved, however, Senator Bouchard maintained the right to differ from authority, he said. That he conceived to be the duty of any true citizen.

"On subjects of strict dogma, it is necessary to conform to the directions of the head of the Church," he insisted, "but I do not admit that on questions of the form of our governmental institutions or of our economic laws we must submit to the directives of those whom accidental circumstances have put at the head of our religious institutions."

The Senator freely granted the right of such religious leaders to have and to give their personal opinions on all public questions, but he admitted to a preference for those priests who considered it a matter of duty to abstain from participation in political and economic subjects. He pointed out in this connection that this attitude had been adopted by many French Bishops.

Senator Bouchard declared that he had said it before, but he would repeat: "I was born, I remain, and I shall die a Catholic." At the same time the Senator said he always had, and always would reserve to himself the right to differ in opinion on those subjects not essentially religious, and to publicly proclaim that difference.

"At the moment when I see that the influence of persons who wish to cover themselves with the cloak of religion is to sabotage our political institutions and to lead us more or less to the verge of civil war in this Province, it is my duty as a Canadian of French origin to warn of this danger."

Senator Bouchard said he realized the personal dangers implicit in his position, but was optimistic of the future. The tempest that had risen against him would subside, he believed. He had survived others of the same nature, he said. In time, he believed that "French-Canadians will come to admit that I was one of their best friends; they will recognize me as a good compatriot and realize that what I suffered in injury and persecution was for their sake."

Stories Conflict About Accident

A direct conflict of evidence arose in a careless driving charge against John T. McGowan, Mark street, driver for the Hamilton-Peterborough Freight Lines, heard before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and arising out of an accident in which the semi-trailer combination driven by McGowan was involved.

The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge, and his employer, William Addyman, acted in his behalf while Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure prosecuted.

James Austin Moore, a farmer living south of Fraserville on Highway 28, swore that he was driving his car west on that highway and had just gone over the water trough hill on the night of the accident. He said that his car was on its own side of the road, several feet north of the white centre line when the big transport driven by McGowan collided with the side of his car, damaging it considerably. Moore swore that he did not see the truck again after the accident, stating that it had gone over the hill and disappeared after the accident. Five or ten minutes later he said McGowan had come back on foot to the scene.

Wheel Broken Off.

Constable C. J. McGillen of the city police said that there was debris and broken glass on the north side of the centre line when he investigated. There were gouge marks also where a wheel had been broken off the Moore car.

McGowan swore that Moore's car was the last of a line of three or four he met on the hill that night and that he himself was driving with his left wheels at least a foot south of the centre line. He declared that Moore's automobile had run into his machine which had a load of 10½ tons on board.

He also declared that he had stopped his truck 20 or 30 feet from the scene of the accident and gone back to see what had happened.

The truck driver explained that the fact that the debris and glass was found on the north side of the road might have been because the light car had bounced back in that direction after hitting the big transport.

At this stage the court adjourned for luncheon.

7 More Caen Casualties Reported Over Week-End In Peterborough

How heavy the fighting has been in and around Caen, where the attack was spearheaded by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders two weeks ago, is emphasized by the growing casualty lists in Peterborough each day. In the period from Friday morning until Saturday noon of last week, 14 men were listed as wounded, missing or killed, and up till noon today seven more telegrams have carried sad news to Peterborough homes.

RFMN RAY McLAREN (Killed).

The death in action on July 8 of another Peterborough soldier, Rfmn Ray McLaren, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McLaren, 200 Antrim Street, was reported to-day. Before the war he sailed as a seaman on Great Lakes boats beteen Sarnia and Port McNichol and had worked [illegible] in the Sudbury mines. [illegible] and he transferred from the Forestry Corps to an anti-aircraft unit, and later, when the need for large ack-ack establishments was no longer so urgent, joined an infantry unit to which he was attached at the time of invasion.

A year ago Rfmn. McLaren spent some time in hospital as the result of a motorcycle accident, and his last letter to his family was written from a hospital where he was recovering from laryngitis.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a brother Menzie, Peterborough school teacher, and by two sisters, Mrs. H. D. Burns (Isabel) of Toronto and Mrs. R. J. Giesler (Frances) of Ottawa.

Frank Crowe, Italy, Pte. E. Crowe, previously wounded in the Italy fighting, now serving with the U.S. Paratroopers' Corps, and Pte. Teresa Crowe, C.W.A.C., Kingston.

Child Rescued From Canal

Quick action on the part of George Goodfellow, Bonaccord street, saved three-year-old Billy Monaghan, 231 Armour road, from drowning this morning, after the child had fallen into more than four feet of water in the Trent Canal.

The boy had been playing, along with his brothers, Tommy, aged 6, and Frank, aged 5, on the edge of the canal, and fell into the water after climbing out on a beam under the Armour road bridge. Tommy ran home, and told his mother, Mrs. D. Monahan, that Billy "fell into the canal."

"I was so frightened I couldn't even cry," Mrs. Monahan told the Examiner. "I ran down to the canal, screaming and shouting, and it seemed there wasn't anyone within miles to come and help me. Two cars went by, and although I screamed and waved my arms, they just drove by," she said. "If it hadn't been for Mr. Goodfellow, and Mr. Hollings, Billy wouldn't be alive now."

F. Hollings, Rogers street, helped pull the child from the water, and administered artificial respiration before firemen arrived.

Mr. Goodfellow described his part in the rescuing, as "just plain luck."

"I was working on the construction of a house on James street, and we had to make a phone call. I didn't know there was a phone right next door, so Perce Graham and I started off toward the canal to find a phone. It was then we heard Mrs. Monahan screaming. I saw the boy in the water, standing on his head in the weeds," Mr. Goodfellow said.

Without removing his clothes, Mr. Goodfellow jumped in, and brought the youngster to the bank. Mr. Hollings, Roger street, administered first aid and artificial respiration, and the boy regained consciousness in several minutes.

"I learned what I know about artificial respiration from books," said Mr. Hollings, "but I was glad I knew even a little after the boy was brought from the water."

Firemen, who responded to the call shortly after 9 a.m., wrapped the boy in coats, and took him home, after giving him further first aid treatment.

Perce Graham, Birdsall R.R. 1, said it was a flash of pure coincidence that Goodfellow and be happened to be there. 'Another minute, and the boy would have been beyond aid," he said. "I thought the child was dead when we got there, and without a doubt, Mr. Goodfellow's speedy work in lifting the child from the water, saved his life."

Dr. A. R. Kelly, M.O.H. attended the child, and although a bad cold appears to have set in, will probably be none the worse for his narrow escape in a few days.

Qu' Appelle Sailor Has Brush With Nazis

L/SA. W. J. Roode, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Roode, 247 Westcott street, of "H.M.C.S. Qu' Appelle," in a letter to his parents dated July 8 from overseas, briefly mentions a brush with Germans ships which was reported in the regular news channels recently.

"No doubt you have read the reports in papers at home. It was published over here, and this is a quotation: 'H.M.C.S. Qu' Appelle, Commander McKillop, R.N., with other destroyers intercepted four armed enemy trawlers off Brest yesterday and in the action lasting over an hour three of the enemy were set afire. It is believed they sank. The remaining enemy trawler escaped into Brest. Some damage and a few casualties were sustained by our ships.'

That will give you an idea of what happened, so that if you hear rumors you will know the score. I'm O.K. and there is nothing to worry about. I received the parcel and it was swell. Right now we have a box of marshmallows on the mess table."

Two Men Remanded On Driving Charges

Bishop Blesses Honor Roll

Following the 10:30 o'clock Mass, Sunday, His Excellency Most Rev. J. R. MacDonald, D.D., blessed the parish Honor Roll of St. Peter's Cathedral, following which, the National Anthem was sung. Bishop MacDonald was assisted by Rev. J. T. Finn, rector, Rev. F. K. Malane and Rev. F. A. Marrocco.

The Honor Roll contains the names of 309 persons, all enlisted for overseas service from the Cathedral parish: Navy 50, Army 187, Air Force 72.

The officers and members of the Catholic Women's League, under Mrs. P. J. Burke, war convener, compiled the list. The Honor Roll is a work of art printed and decorated by the Sisters of the Precious Blood, City. It is placed at the Cathedral entrance as a tribute to the loyalty and patriotism of the overseas parishioners of the Cathedral parish.

After the blessing of the Honor Roll, Lt.-Col. Rev. R. C. McGillivray, assistant chief Catholic Chaplain of the Canadian forces addressed the congregation briefly speaking of the Christian virtue of patriotism as the greatest of those virtues in so far as it exemplified to the highest degree the Christian virtue of charity. He said the Honor Roll was placed at the entrance of the Cathedral to recall to everybody passing it the Christian duty of everyone in a special manner to pray for our armed forces, for their spiritual and physical welfare, and for the success of their cause in a lasting peace through victory.

Personal Gifts Respond To Mayor's Appeal

These are particularly hazardous days to be living in anywhere along the southeastern portion or at the heart of Empire in the British Isles, due to the latest type of devilish destruction being hurled from the shores of France and Belgium, by an enemy who has now lost the final vestiges of even the lowest type of humanitarian feeling, in what is hoped is the final phase of his approaching doom at the hands of those whom he sought to conquer and enslave.

That the menace is a one of major proportions can be seen, when official figures of some ten days or so ago told over 10,000 casualties in less than a month's time, of which nearly one-third were killed outright, and this is further enhanced by the fact that over a quarter of a million people have made application to be evacuated from London alone, of which over 150,000 had already left for more safer places of residence at the time this was being written.

A few days ago this column on behalf of these sufferers from enemy bomb attacks in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, made a special appeal at the instance of His Worship Mayor Hamilton, joined by other citizens on behalf of those so stricken, as leading the way to what is hoped would be a widespread personal interest in a similar practical way by a much larger number of sympathetic residents of this city and district.

That this appeal was not in vain may be seen from the fact that another entire list of personal contributions is again listed today, which it is hoped will lead to further similar effort on the part of a large number of residents of both the city and district.

Among these, the one recorded under "W.T." receipt No. 3730 came from a citizen in the vicinity of Millbrook, who gave it directly to His Worship the Mayor, and others signified that they also were making this response directly to the appeal made at that time.

Meeting the secretary of the fund on the street, the donor whose contribution has for almost twenty times appeared under the initials "J.D.," expressed considerable concern over the latest type of destruction being used by an unscrupulous enemy in attacking the civilian life of Britain, and put these worthy thoughts into practical deeds, by stepping up the usual donation made of former occasions from $2.00 to the $5.00 mark.

Making the rounds of the market on Saturday morning, the secretary of the fund had not even time to pass the time of day with Herb Doig, before a gift was in hand towards the fund, and in scanning the list, one can also note that the lady whose contribution has appeared a large number of times under the acknowledgment of "E.M.F.," also makes an appearance at this time.

The smallest of contributions can each and every one do their part in this great humanitarian work and will be most welcome indeed, so it is hoped that a further and enlarged interest will again make it possible in a few days to have another day of personals in response to this special appeal headed by His Worship the Mayor.

IN MEMORIAM

LATCHFORD—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Herbert Latchford who passed away, July 16th, 1939.
Fond were the ties that are broken
Dear was the Dad who is gone.
In memory we shall ever keep him
As long as the years roll on.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

BRICK—In lasting memory of my son Gnr. Hector Brick, who died six months ago today in Italy.
I cannot say, I will not say
That he is dead.—he is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you O you who the wildest yearn,
For the old time step and the glad return
Think of him faring on, as dear.
In the love of there as the love of here;
Think of him still all the same, I say.
He is not dead—he is just away.
—Sadly missed by Mother.

Mining News

Yellowknife is still in the grip of the most vigorous staking rush ever experienced by this Far North outpost of civilization, according to G. A. McCartney, prospector, who has just returned to Toronto after spending several weeks in the district Mr. McCartney staked the Norvoc, or north, group of claims acquired by Tiffany Yellowknife, and was also instrumental in obtaining the second group for this company and two groups for Bravo Yellowknife.

Undertake Drilling.

At a directors' meeting last week Managing Director T. W. Dean of Carricona Gold Mines as authorized to arrange a diamond-drilling contract immediately to further explore the favorable surface results which have been obtained on the company's Red Lake property in the last couple of months. The ground lies as hort distance east of Madsen Lake.

First drilling will likely be undertaken on the No. 1 showing, on which most work has been done, and which has been opened for a length of 350 feet. After eliminating free gold, channel samples from this showing ran $9.80 per ton across a width of six feet. Mr. Dean reports plentiful free gold in this showing, with a high-grade streak running through it for some distance. It is still open to the west, the last two trenches revealing the same conditions as those exposed in the 350 feet so far opened.

Profit of $112,296.

Macassa Mines estimates net profit for the second quarter of this year at $112,296, equal to 4.19 cents per share, bringing net for the first six months to $232,115 or 8.66 cents per share. In the first half of last year net as $329,635, or 12.3 cents per share.

Output from January to June totalled $721,101, after deducting mint charges, from the milling of 44,330 tons of ore, averaging recovery being $16.26. A year ago output was $903,469 from 54,215 tons for an average of $16.66. Operating costs equalled $8.09 per ton milled, against $7.12.

President J. J. Byrne of Northland Mines reports well-mineralized section showing chalcopyrite and galena was cut in hole S24 from 385 to 440 feet. Numerous quartz stringers were contained in the section.

Production at Silbak Premier Mines for the month of June amounted to $54,316 from thetreatment of 5,673 tons of ore. Net smelter returns for the first six months of the year totalled $360,070, against $446,154 in the like period of last year.

Lt. Jack Laffey Sinks 3 Barges

HEADQUARTERS, 13th AAF, SOUTH PACIFIC — First Lieutenant Jack Laffey, former R. A. F. pilot from Chicago, now flying for the 13th AAF Fighter Command's "Black Spider" night fighter squadron, recently saw action with the Navy PT's in the barge hunt along a Japanese held coast line in the South Pacific.

Lieutenant Laffey had been having trouble locating certain camoflaged Japanese targets from the air and had secured permission to go on a mission with the night fighters of the sea . . . the PT's . . . so he could get a better impression of the targets he was to strike.

Lieutenant Laffey's PT sank three Jap barges. Telling about the action later, the flying night fighter related; "We were cruising close in to the shore when we spotted a Jap barge coming out of the mouth of a small river.

"Our PT closed and the gunners opened up with canon and machine gun fire. Within a minute that barge caught fire and stopped dead in the water. The Jap gunners never had a chance to fire a shot.

"A short time later two more barges were spotted. This time, though, the Japs were so close to shore that they had the support of shore battteries. Our gunners had their hands full.

"While flares and tracers lit up the battle area, the PT made five runs on the barges in the face of machine gun and twenty millimeter fire. One of the barges was beached and the other sunk with the loss of 30-40 Japs.

"Those mosquito boat gunners are good. Despite the way that PT bucked around, they shot those barges to pieces with no wasted effort. The sky is where I belong, though. All during the action I scrambled from one side of the bridge to the other trying to duck the return fire. I was sure pining around for my armored cockpit.

Lieutenant Laffey's wife, the former Carrol M. Dixon of Montreal, Canada, and his month old daughter Sharyanne Michele. and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Martin C. Laffey, all reside at 1503 Bryn Mawr Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Laffey, originally from Peterborough, together with the infant daughter are now visiting friends at 9 Chamberlain street, Peterborough. Lt. Laffey received his wings with the R.C.A.F., serving with the R.A.F. in England for a year and a half.

There are three additional Laffey boys in the armed forces. Flight Officer Martin T. Laffey, a glider pilot took part in the invasion of Sicily and Italy and at one time flew supplies to beleagured Malta; Frank P. Laffey is an aviation cadet stationed at Lakeland, Florida; and Private Robert J. Laffey is stationed in Australia with an ordnance company.

In civil life Lieutenant Jack Leffey was employed by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Saginaw, Michigan.

Great Changes Found In 20 Years Absence

Peterborough presents many changes in its physical appearance to Rev. R. Wilkinson of Keokuk, Iowa, after an absence of twenty years. He is speaking at the Nazarene Gospel Service, 213 Charlotte street three nights, Monday to Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Wilkinson recalled that he was employed here with a canoe factory, and spent years in lay preaching in this community. He conducted a successful tent meeting on Rutherford avenue twenty years ago, and for seven years preached to the Indians at Curve Lake and Hiawatha. He was born near Omemee and has spent 37 years in preaching in Canada and the United States.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

To become a good cook requires more than following a recipe. This is frequently illustrated when several women, living in the same community and using the same recipe, obtain widely different results. It is the reason so many cooks say, "I had good luck with my cake today," or "I had bad luck with my bread yesterday." Happily, luck causes neither the success, nor the failure of a product. To have real success with your cooking, you need good ingredients, a good recipe and must use no more nor less than your recipe calls for. Today we will give you a few recipes that are well worth trying. Be sure and follow them carefully.

Carmel or Burnt Sugar Cake

½ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup of water, or milk, 2½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 to 2 tablespoons caramel syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream the shortening until very soft. Add sugar gradually, keeping the mixture foamy by vigorous manipulation. Beat the eggs till very light and add to the sugar mixture. Add vanilla and caramel and beat well. Mix and sift the remaining dry ingredients and add to the first mixture, alternating with the liquid. Beat only enough to mix ingredients thoroughly. Bake as a loaf or layer in a moderate oven (loaf 360 degrees to 375 degrees F., 45 to 60 minutes); for a layer cake 375 degrees F., 20 minutes. Use either white boiled frosting or a caramel frosting on top and between layers.

Carmel Syrup—Into a smooth frying pan put one cup of sugar. Place over a slow fire. When it begins to melt, shake the pan occasionally and when it begins to smoke, add one cup of boiling water. Let it boil until a heavy syrup is formed.

Carmel Frosting — 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup water, 2 egg whites, 1 teaspoon vanilla or ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Make a syrup of the sugar and water, and cook to the soft ball stage. Remove from the fire and cool while the egg whites are beaten. Then pour the syrup in a thin stream on the stiff egg whites, beating the mixture constantly until thick enough to spread. Add flavoring. Chopped nuts may be stirred into the frosting just before spreading.

Fruit Charlotte

Line cups with triangular pieces of sponge cake and chocolate cake, alternating. Fill the centre with slices of orange and peach (or any fruits that are in season). Chill, turn out on a serving plate and surround with whipped cream and slices of the fruit used. Put a spoonful of whipped cream on top and serve very cold.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 18

JUDGING by a complex array of planetary indications, this should be a day of much action, with sudden change and probably drastic moves, in order to grasp major opportunities for success and happiness. Yet in all the flurry and possible commotion, there is need for serious and sober thought, with well organized plans and programs. Progressive, and bold creative work should not be withheld or subdued, but just reasonably and sensibly tempered to certain intriguing or tricky situations. In this reputation, credit or peace of mind may be at stake. With proper management there might be a joyous or romantic climax.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and progressive year in which sudden moves, quick grasp of perplexing situations may be sustained by due reflection and analysis, with aggressive action once the mind is made up and the opportunities properly appraised. An undercurrent of subtlety and craft, may affect standing, reputation. Cherished personal factors may demand keen insight and reasonable management of affairs. Romance, happiness, perhaps cultural, artistic or spiritual ideals may be in the balance, calling for far vision.

A child born on this day should be energetic, blessed with many ideals as well as creative talents and skills, with a sensitive and critical disposition. A romantic happy and intriguing life, with many subtleties may be in its grasp.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PROTECT YOUR TRUMPS

A DANGEROUS trump suit—with only four in your hand opposite three in the dummy—may require every protection against a possible holding of four in the hand of one defender. A standard safety play for use in such a situation includes refusal to ruff a trick in the long-trump hand, discarding instead, and then waiting for a later lead of the same suit, which can be ruffed with the short holding. That makes it possible for the declarer then to play four rounds of trumps instead of only three.

North: ♠ A Q 7 4 ♥ K J 10 ♦ 7 6 3 ♣ K 8 5
West: ♠ J 8 6 3 ♥ 5 3 ♦ K Q J 5 ♣ 9 6 2
East: ♠ K 10 9 ♥ 7 6 4 2 ♦ A 10 9 8 ♣ J 7
South: ♠ 5 2 ♥ A Q 9 8 ♦ 4 2 ♣ A Q 10 4 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♥	Pass	3♣	Pass
4♣	Pass	4♥

That was neat bidding. South knew North had exactly three hearts for him, as with four he would have supported them as soon as he heard the suit named, instead of indicating club preference, and with only two he would not have supported hearts on his next turn. So South had a choice between trying for game at 11 tricks in clubs, with a safely-fitting suit, and at 10 tricks in hearts with a risky suit. He chose the lower contract, with the more dangerous trump suit.

West took his diamond K and J and led the 5 to the A, South promptly ruffing with the heart 8. Staking all on an even division of the missing six trumps, he scored the heart K, A and Q. When West discarded a club, he knew he was sunk. He began to play clubs then, with the K and A, but then East ruffed the Q with the heart 7, led to the diamond Q to set the contract, and West returned the spade 3. The Q finesse was tried and failed, and South also lost another spade trick, being set three.

To make his contract, all he had to do was let the defenders hold the third diamond trick, discarding a spade on it. Then dummy could have ruffed the fourth lead of the suit, and he could have dropped the trumps in four rounds, losing all told nothing but the first three tricks.

Canada Provides Immense Food Supplies

OTTAWA, July 17—(CP)—An immense new Canadian contribution to the food supplies of the United Kingdom was announced yesterday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who said Canada would ship a minimum 100,000,000 pounds of beef in 1944 and 1945 and as much additional supplies as were surplus in the Dominion.

Already Canada is supplying the United Kingdom with food under two-year bacon, cheese and egg contracts. Mr. Gardiner estimated the beef shipments—which will be the equivalent of 250,000 cattle—might hae a total value of $30,000,000.

Prices established under the contract will mean a constant floor throughout the year for procurers' sale of cattle.

Red and blue brand beef will be bought for export to an agreed quantity by the Canadian Meat Board on the basis of 25 cents below their respective ceilings as established for zones throughout Canada under Prices Board regulations. If further supplies are offered, they will be bought at a rate of 50 cents below the ceiling.

Lower quality beef will be bought at esablished rates at points further under the ceiling.

The Minister said 53,000,000 pounds of beef already have been shipped under the agreement, although the contract has just been signed. Shipments made since late last fall are being counted in the total.

He said that the export shipments would not be sufficient to require a resumption of meat rationing in the Dominion. Canada now has 10,000,000 cattle, and former shipments to the United States on the basis of about 200,000 head annually were suspended in 1942.

Top shipments of cattle to the United Kingdom in pre-war years amounted to about 40,000 head.

Ontario House Helps Poultrymen

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister Kennedy today told a poultrymen's convention here that the provincial government is planning to maintain a Farm Products Selling Organization through Ontario House at London, England, after the war.

He said such a move would assist the poultry industry in the post-war period. It would help them retain present markets and obtain new ones.

European countries ravaged by the Germans and denuded of their livestock and poultry would give Ontario farmers large markets for at least two years after the war. The government, he said, was aware of the importance of obtaining for Ontario farmers as large a share as possible of the post-war European markets and would do everything possible to assist in selling products of Ontario.

Col. Kennedy said this year's egg production in Ontario would be valued at close to $70,000,000, "greater than any other single farm product."

Bethany W.I. Addressed Mrs. G. Shields

BETHANY, July 17—(ENS)—Mrs. T. W. Reynolds was hostess for the July meeting of the local Women's Institute. Mrs. Garnet Shields a former District President and her daughter Miss June Shields were guests of the evening from Mount Pleasant.

Miss H. Staples was in the chair, with Mrs. L. Jackson at the piano, and a short sing song was enjoyed

The Roll Call was answered by 15 ladies giving an item of interest in every day life.

A cup and saucer souvenier from the Society had been given to Mrs. Lenard McNeil who was moving from the village. A box of fruit had also been sent to Mrs. Ana Thorndyke who has been very ill.

The secretary read letters from Pte. Jack Palmer now overseas thanking the ladies for a box received, also a letter from Miss Clark, Toronto telling of where the money for Jam for Britain was placed and expecting the local Society would meet personally.

Mrs. Price reported for war work and said more wool had been received. Mrs. W. A. Thorndyke sent her report regarding quilts. Mrs. Veale offered to have the next quilting on her lawn if the weather continued warm, otherwise it would be held in the Hall on the 3rd Thursday July 20.

MAYBE you have a neighbour who doesn't know what it's all about when it comes to raising cucumbers. Or perhaps he hasn't a knack with roses. So you tell him what spray to get, or you give him a little lesson in pruning. And next thing you know he says: "I'm certainly sold on that advice you gave me."

And that's how progress comes about. A fellow comes along who knows more than you do about life insurance, for instance, and first thing you know you see a way to protect yourself and your wife and the kiddies, a plan you might never have thought of, yet it seems easy once you start.

If there were no salesmen, hundreds of thousands of people now insured would be without the security they enjoy. So many people put off till tomorrow what they should do today—so many neglect provision for the future. That is why the helpful neighbours who sell life insurance have become such great instruments in the promotion of thrift.

1,000 Bombers And Fighters Raid Robot Trial Station

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 18—(AP).—An American air armada of more than 1,000 heavy bombers and fighters thundered into eastern Germany this morning and blasted the German Air Force's experimental stations at Peenemunde and Zinnowitz, where the rocket bombs were developed. Other parts of the Reich were attacked by American bombers from Italy, the Germans reported, and simultaneously other Allied bombers and fighters by the hundreds swarmed out from England, scouring the Germans' Normandy battlefront in the greatest display of aerial might since D-Day.

500 Heavy Bombers.

The force which roared out from Britain—above intermittent, incoming, single rocket bombs—and hit the bomb laboratories was composed of upward of 500 heavy bombers and a similar number of fighters.

Peenemunde and Zinnowitz are on the Baltic coast northeast of the airplane manufacturing city of Anklam, which American bombers previously had visited. Peenemunde was hit last year by the R.A.F. in a raid which was part of the aerial counter-blows officially credited with delaying the Nazi rocket bomb campaign for six months.

Some of the Allied heavy bombers, the Germans declared, penetrated to the vicinity of Berlin itself, which was hit during the night by the R.A.F.'s fleet Mosquitoes, carrying two-ton blockbusters.

Nazi broadcasts reported violent aerial battles raging over Bavaria, western Prussia and the Danzig area.

In the forefront of the daylight air armada were large numbers of American medium bombers and British and Canadian forces locked in battle on the eastern flank of the Normandy front. Rocket-firing Typhoons at the same time attacked

Germans Released Killer

Mysterious Doctor Disappears After 100 Murders

MADRID, July 18 —(AP)— The Paris correspondent of a Spanish paper has reported that the mysterious Parisian doctor who long has been sought for more than 100 murders was actually held by the Germans for six months on a passport falsification charge and finally released for "lack of evidence."

The doctor, whose murderous activities were disclosed last March, continued them after the Germans released him, the Spanish correspondent said. The account did not state the period when he was imprisoned or explain how the thorough German police could have investigated him without uncovering the murders.

This was taken in Madrid as tending to support a theory, brought by refugees from Paris, that the Germans learned about the murders long before they were made public, and released the killer to continue his work, provided he chose victims the Germans wanted to have out of the way.

Paris papers previously have quoted the doctor's brother, who once was questioned in the case, as saying there were "at least 60" bodies buried in a lime pit at the doctor's Paris villa, and that others were dumped into the Seine or buried in the nearby Bois de Boulogne.

At least 50 of these victims, according to refugees, were wealthy Parisians who went to the doctor's home with luggage and vast sums of cash representing all their convertible possessions after having whispered to friends that they were making arrangements to escape from France. Their "escape" was death in the villa, while the killer kept their millions of francs.

When the killings finally came to light, the doctor vanished. If he actually did know a secret way out of France, he must have used it himself, for police throughout the continent have found no trace of him.

Russian Army Massing For Knock Out

Mighty Offensive Ready To Roll Against Nazi Armies

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, July 18.—(AP).—There is every reason to believe in Moscow to-day that the Red Army is ready to hurl the greataest offensive in Russia's three years of war against the staggering Germans—an offensive which may throw the whole front into violent activity from the far north to the south.

(Wording of the dispatch through censorship suggested that Red armies south of the Pripet marshes in old Poland may indeed have struck toward the great European rail centre of Lwow, as the Germans have reported for four days. Other Russian army groups may have lunged toward the Galati Gap in Romania between the Carpathians and the Danube).

Situation Desperate.

With their backs against the East Prussian border, besides giving ground swiftly in the middle Baltics and between Brest Litovsk and Bialystok in the direction of Warsaw and the river Bug, the Germans are in their most desperate situation of the war.

Unmistakable signs pointed to a great new undertakig by Premier Marshal Stalin, and his general staff.

The Suwalki triangle country which the Germans formally attacked to East Prussia, now is feeling the weight of Russian long-range artillery northeast of Grodno, and other Red army troops have advanced west and south of that newly-captured strong hold, front dispatches said.

"The borders of East Prussia are just ahead," wrote Izvestia's correspondent.

This same dispatch said Soviet forces had gained a foothold on the western bank of the Sviloch River, which runs into the Nieman south of Grodno, in a big advance between Lunnol and Bialystock toward the southern border of East Prussia, 55

Allied Armies 30 Miles From Florence

BY NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 18 — (AP) — Dogged advances in three sectors of the trans-peninsular Italian front increased the Allied menace today to Germans in the great inland art centre of Florence and the ports of Ancona and Livorno.

British and South African Infantry and tanks which established a bridgehead on the wide and deeply gorged Arno River yesterday advanced to a point south of Cincelli, six miles northwest of Arezzo and about 30 airline miles from Florence.

Rough Country

On the mountainous Tuscany front to the west other Allied troops were within 20-odd miles of Florence but intervening terrain elsewhere promised slow progress.

Poles near the Adriatic advanced up to three miles on Ancona and won Monte Bogo and another height from which an eight-mile drive northward would trap the important port.

American Infantry, within light artillery range of Livorno, third ranking Italian port sought to ease Allied supply problems, rolled back continued German counter-attacks and cut through enemy defences at Ponsacco, road junction in the Era valley three miles south of the Arno River. At that point they were 18 miles east and slightly north of the prized port, headquarters announced.

Driving the Germans from the last hills on the southern edges of the Arno Valley in thir sector, the Americans stood at the edge of the broad Arno plain over which a final clean-up drive against both Livorno and Pisa could be mounted.

An official source reported virtually all bridges across the Arno on the Allied 5th Army front blown up by the enemy or by American bombs. He added that the river is fordable in many places and the Germans have put up pontoon bridges for withdrawal.

In the immediate coastal sector, other Americans are slowly hemming in Livorno from the south and southeast.

Poggibonsi, which the French captured July 14 and have held continuously, despite many sharp counter-attacks, remained a scene of heavy fighting. A headquarters officer said the French still were in firm positions after repulsing two more nght attacks.

Port Chicago Depot Is Wrecked

Dead Are Estimated From 350 To 600 1,000 Are Injured

PORT CHICAGO, Calif., July 18 (AP)—As many as 350 men may have died in the thundering explosion of two ammunition ships at a United States Navy munitions dock here.

That estimate today of last night's tragedy was based on the Navy's official statement that at least 200 to 250 Navy men were missing and presumed lost, and on a combined civilian crew list of about 130 men for the two ships, feared lost.

The vessels shattered into bits by the dual explosions, were identified by the Navy as the S.S. Quinault Victory of the United States Lines, a Victory ship, and the S.S. E. A. Bryan, operated by the Oliver J. Olson Lines.

Every House Wrecked

Almost every house in the little town of Port Chicago—a village of 1,500—was wrecked. The blast was felt 50 miles away.

Loss of the ships, the munitions and property damage will run into many millions of lollars.

The Bryan was literally shredded by a mighty explosion at 10.19 p.m. Only second later the larger Victory ship blew up and the earth quaked to the thunder in the heavens.

One man, a mile away, saw "a mile-high skyrocket" of red and white flame leap into the clouds.

Two small coast guard boats were sunk by the explosions. Wreckage swept over Suisun Bay, which branches east from San Francisco Bay.

The 12th naval district in San Francisco revised an earlier statement to say that both ships exuloded instead of one, and said that two small coast guard vessels were sunk in the explosion-rolled waters of Suisun Bay, which branches east from San Frisco Bay.

250 Navy Personnel

The death toll estimate ranged upward from the Navy's official statement that "at least 200 to 250 navy personnel and nine officers" were missing and presumed lost. This figure did not account for civilian seamen aboard the dstroyed ships. Two other other small ships were destroyed.

Previously a Navy Lieutenant-Commander has estimated the dead at 650. Sheriff J. R. Thornton figured the toll at 300 dead and the injured at 1,000.

An accurate count could not be made until after a daylight search of the devastated area.

Second Vessel Damaged

In addition to the ammunition ship which blew up and sank with some 70 men aboard, a second ammunition vessel was badly damaged and four small boats were destroyed.

The dead and injured were chiefly navy personnel attached to the Port Chicago Depot, some 35 miles from

Germans Have Shot 33 More Fliers

LONDON, July 18—(CP)—German captors have shot 33 more Allied fliers, Sir James Grigg, War Secretary, told the House of Commons today.

Sir James announcement came almost a month after Foreign Secretary Eden announced that 50, including six Canadians, had been shot after a mass escape from Stalagluft III.

There was no immediate indication whether other than British airmen were involved in the shooting announced today.

The War Secretary said in 27 cases the men were alleged to have been shot while attempting escape.

Disclosure of the new killings was made in a written reply to a question by Col. H. W. Burton, Conservative, Sudbury.

It was not immediately disclosed whether the killings took place in the same camp.

The War Secretary said the strongest protests had been made through the protecting power and account of the killings was being kept for action by the War Criminals Commission when the war is over.

No Word At Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 18—(CP).—Available external affairs and R.C.A.F. sources said today they had received no word of the shooting of 33 more Allied fliers by German captors and added that this might mean no Canadians were included in the death toll.

"I have received no word myself," said an external affairs official. "This does not necessarily mean that no Canadians were among the dead; it might be taken that there are none."

Meanwhile, an R.C.A.F. public relations officer said no word of the shooting had reached Air Force intelligence.

Canadian Boats Battle German Trawlers

Written for The Canadian Press by SUB.-LT. WES HICKS, R.C.N.V.R.

A UNITED KINGDOM PORT, July 18 (CP)—Germany's armed trawlers will be wary next time of His Majesty's destroyers. Because in an engagement just concluded we have pounded three into submission off Brest and a fourth escaped into Brest.

(Peterborough boys believed to be aboard the destroyer H.M.C.S. Qu' Appelle are Tel. Chum Gillespie, AB Ray McGee, L-S. W. J. Roode and Robert Honour).

From where I was standing on the bridge as we headed for this port in one of the destroyers I could see the last of the German ships burning astern of us. Bright flames licked around her and it seems as though her stern were crumbling off.

The casualties in our ship were slight. H.M.C.S. "Qu' Appedde," the senior ship of the group, returned to port independently.

Canadian Group

For six weeks, since two days before D-Day, this Canadian destroyer group has been helping protect inner Channel supply lines against U-boat attacks. This was the first time it had seen action, the first time Canadian ships, as a group, have gone after enemy surface craft and walloped them.

Late at night we closed up to action stations and started in to the eastward towards France. . . .

Suddenly star shells hung under the overcast sky. There, on our starboard bow, 3,000 yards away, were two dark shapes.

Ahead of us, Qu'Appelle opened fire, and then the night went insane. Star shells wavered and hung; over us like weird green lantersn. Red, orange and yellow oerlikon and pom-pom shells traced patterns against the dark sky. Our heavy guns slammed like great steel doors.

Draft Sailors For The Army

LONDON, July 18—(CP)—The War Cabinet has authorized the army to draft substantial numbers of Royal Navy personnel to replenish invasion-depleted land units, it was announced today.

The first requisitions will be made upon shore naval stations and warships undergoing long repairs. The men will lose their naval identity and be absorbed into the ground forces.

Naval circles said navy casualties have been relatively light and that the navy is so well manned there are men to spare.

The Daily Mail commented that "as the bulk of the naval ratings are men who volunteered for the service the decision is not likely to be a highly popular one" but added that "it is calculated that when the Royal Navy takes its full place in the line of battle against Japan sufficient recruits will have been drawn to fill the gaps."

Deep Anxiety Being Caused The Mikado

LONDON, July 18 — (AP) — Premier Hideki Tojo, recounting the loss of Saipan, declared today "the real war is yet to be fought" and appealed to the Japanese to "set the mind of his imperial majesty at rest."

Tojo confessed himself "moved by great trepidation by the thought that deep anxiety has been caused" the Mikado.

This broadcast followed upon an imperial headquarters announced that all Japanese resistance on Saipan had come to an end; that the entire garrison of the once-powerful Japanese base had been wiped out, and that among those slain were Vice-Admiral Chuichi Nagumo, Supreme Commander in the Saipan Area, and his two chief aides, Lt.-Gen. Yoshitsugo Saito and Rear Admiral Takahisa Tsujimura. Nagumo's death previously had been reported by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

German Counter-Attacks Fail As British 2nd Army Strengthens Hold On Noyers

Backed By Rocket-Firing Typhoons British Troops Taking Sting Out Of Germans In the Odon Valley

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 18 — (CP). — British forces strengthened their hold on the broadened Odon salient southwest of Caen today, while Americans to the west drove into St. Lo through crumpled German opposition north and east of the strategic highway hub. Don Whitehead, Associated Press war correspondent, reported the Germans at St. Lo were "in retreat" and Reuter dispatch said "St. Lo, which burned all last night from fires touched off by American artillery, now is being evacuated by the Germans."

A Berlin broadcast said the British attack to the east had spread east of the Orne River near Caen, supported by intense artillery fire and air bombardment.

By nightfall the Americans had won firm control of the town and the enemy had been forced into a withdrawal up to two miles deep along the eastern two-thirds of the 48-mile American front.

The Germans pulled back abruptly and the doughboys charged into the prize bastion — from which roads radiate through Normandy like spokes from a wheel—against light opposition.

The last German has been driven out of the town, a staff officer at headquarters of the American 1st Army announced.

A Reuter dispatch, meanwhile, said "St. Lo, which burned all last night from fires touched off by American artillery, now is being evacuated by the Germans."

Front reports from the British Caen sector said the Germans had halted their counter-jabs seeking a weak spot in the British defences.

Bitter Fighting In Streets.

A swaying battle with neither side giving ground was still raging in the streets of Noyers, shell-scarred village on the main Villers Bocage-Caen road, headquarters said. All around Caen the toughest Panzer men in the west were striving to halt General Dempsey's advance.

There was no question of fighting against second-class troops now, headquarters indicated. In every storm centre of the second front Allied troops were grappling with some of the best in the German army.

The enemy withdrawal at St. Lo appeared to extend at least into the eastern edge of the rubbled town, middle Nazi anchor in Normandy, and indications were the Germans did not plan a house-to-house stand for St. Lo, front reports said.

The eastern suburb of Ste. Croix was captured in the new advance upon St. Lo, Supreme Headquarters announced tonight.

Other doughboys pounded to within 200 yards of the road leading westward to Periers, raking it with artillery fire and closely enveloping St. Lo.

Biggest Battle Since D-Day.

The heaviest battle since the landings in Normandy was taking place in the Caen sector where the British troops, striking out in several directions, shoved forward down the road to Villers-Bocage and by-pased Evrecy, which Headquarters said had been abandoned by both sides because it is in low territory.

(The German radio reported that the fighting around Caen had steadily increased in violence and scope during the past 24 hours.)

A field dispatch from Canadian Press war correspondent Ross Munro yesterday reported Canadian artillery was supporting the

R.C.A.F. Officers To Visit Pacific Theatre

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP). — Air Vice-Marshal L. F. Stevenson is leading a party of R.C.A.F. officers to the Pacific war theatre "to acquire information which would be of use to the R.C.A.F. should it be called upon to operate under climatic conditions with which it is not familiar," it was announced here to-day at Air Force Headquarters.

Yesterday it was reliably learned that Air Minister Power was preparing an announcement which might disclose a new role for the Canadian Air Force in the Pacific theatre, but to-day's brief and guarded announcement disclosed little information.

The announcement said:

"Several officers under the command of Air Vice-Marshal L. F. Stevenson are leaving to report to R.A.F. Headquarters, South-east Asia, to carry out a survey of the tropical conditions under which air forces operate in that theatre of war. The object is to acquire information which would be of use to the R.C.A.F. should it be called upon to operate under climatic conditions with which it is not familiar."

It has been reliably learned that one purpose of the mission will be to make preparations for the establishment of Canadian squadrons in that area and also possibly to

New Housing Legislation

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said to-day in the Commons it was the Government's intention to bring down new housing legislation at the present session.

Mr. King spoke in reply to Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) who asked whether the Government proposed to carry out the intention announced by the Prime Minister on April 24 to bring down legislation which included a floor for farm prices, amendment to the Civil Service Superannuation Act, war service gratuities, export credits and amendments to the Chinese Immigration Act.

Mr. King said Mr. Knowles would receive "due notice" of measures the Government was to bring down.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, asked that resolutions providing for new legislation be introduced as quickly as posible to enable the measures to be studied. Mr. King said ministers had been delayed by the necessity of attending the committee meetings.

Plan World Security Talks

Britain, Russia, China To Meet In Washington

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) — Representatives of Britain, Russia and China will gather here within three weeks for the first general international talks in a quarter of a century on how to organise the world for Peace.

The United States has prepared a fairly comprehensive plan to submit at the meetings calling for creation of a United Nations assembly of all Allied countries and a council of the big four powers plus three or four other countries including representatives of the small nations.

Britain and Russia likewise are expected to come in with plans of their own similar to the American plan in many main respects.

That the talks will begin "probably early in August" was announced last night by State Secretary Cordell Hull after he received final acceptances from Russia as well as Britain and China. He had invited them, as signers of the declaration of Moscow last fall, to meet here at their earliest possible convenience to explore means of creating a world security organization.

One question to be clarified is whether the other countries feel that it would be desirable to make a start on setting up the Agency before the war ends.

Another is whether the other countries desire to go further than the United States government in delegating final authority to the International Body, particularly the proposed United Nations council

Youth Of 15 Charged With Murder

Charge Is Laid In Connection With Boy's Death

COBOURG, July 18. — (ENS). — Charge of murder was read Monday afternoon against Frank Davey, of Hamilton, the 15-year-old training school boy who is being held here in connection with the death of four-year-old Norman Lamb, of Ida. The charge was laid after Dr. J. B. McKay, Belleville pathologist, had conducted an autopsy on the Lamb boy at Port Hope on Monday afternoon and after Dr. C. S. Tennat, provincial depart of health expert, had given the training school boy a mental examination in Port Hope jail.

Police and Crown Attorney Harry Deyman conferred on Monday afternoon, and around 5.30 p.m. a charge of murder was read against the juvenile at Cobourg jail, before a justice of the peace, who remanded him in custody until 10.30 a.m. Wednesday.

The findings of the pathologist and alienist were not revealed, but it was evident that they were positive enough to warrant the charge of murder, which was laid by Provincial Constable Alex MacLeod, of Cobourg.

According to police, Lamb and the accused were together at the Lamb farm on Sunday afternoon where the accused, along with Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Fee, of Fraserville, on whose farm he works, were guests for Sunday dinner. The two boys disappeared late in the afternoon. Mr. Fee went to look for them, followed their tracks about a quarter of a mile to a woods, and there found the body of young Lamb. The other boy was nowhere to be found, and a search was organized after police had been notified.

Monday morning Provincial Constables Price Morris and W. McBrien brought Davey to Cobourg where he was locked up in the county jail. Inspector Charles Gurnet of the C.I.B., Toronto, questioned the boy in the provincial police office later during the morning, but the nature of the interrogation was not revealed.

The youth will appear before Judge J. C. M. German on Wednesday morning at which time the judge will rule whether he will be tried in the ordinary criminal court or in juvenile court. In either event it will be just for a remand.

AFTER THE FALL OF CAEN—Lieut.-Gen. J. T. Crocker, a corps commander, is shown here speaking with natives of Caen, after British and Canadian troops had seized the port city, only 120 miles from Paris, on July 9th.

British drive but Canadian infantry is not directly involved.

Ontario troops advanced a few hundred yards to occupy a hill between the Odon and Orne Rivers, Munro said. Canadian forces are believed engaged near the apex of the triangle formed by the confluence of the two rivers south of Caen.

Planes of the Allied Air Forces piled up 3,000 additional flights in the half-day of good flying weather yesterday, and this morning huge fleets of bombers and fighters thundered continuously across the Channel in what looked like the biggest battle support effort since D-Day. The weather gave the air forces the chance to provide Gen. Montgomery with the support needed for a wholesale attack.

The British pushed forward once more in the Caen sector at dawn after a night in which the Allies' artillery barrage continued to thunder. The long-awaited summer weather arrived and huge clouds of dust rose as tanks and big guns wheeled into battle.

Nazi Lines Crumble.

The British drive down the road to Villers-Bocage, 15 miles southwest of Caen, battered the crumbling Nazi lines in the Vendes and Noyers sector and then to the high ground about half a mile southeast of Evrecy. Tanks and crack infantry units of both sides wove in and out of billowing clouds of dust. Other furious battles raged all the way along the Orne River to Caen itself.

In the eastern end of the American sector around St. Lo, infantry advanced in house-to-house fighting through the suburb of Ste. Croix, and pushed deeper into St. Lo at heavy cost.

St. Lo, a town of more than 10,000 population, was only heaps of rubble as a result of air attacks and artillery bombardment and American infantrymen had to push forward a yard at a time in Cassino style to get from street to street. They were being opposed by German paratroopers.

Nazi Salient In Danger

West of St. Lo the Americans pushed 1,000 yards south along the Vire River during the past 24 hours. The German salient due north of the town appeared in grave danger of being completely cut by the American adance because there were no bridges across the Vire from the town north to the American positions on the west bank of the river.

U.S. Army engineers closed the Vire River locks backing water up over all the German escape roads from St. Lo except one. This turned the tables on the Germans, who earlier in the campaign had inundated the Vire River Valley and held up the Americans around Carentan.

Headquarters said the Allies had gained ground from Lessay to Noyers. There were no later reports, however, on specific progress at Lessay, the coastal anchor of the German line, which previously had been reported ready to fall to the Americans. Its capture would require the Germans to fall back at least 12 miles to Coutances.

A high-ranking British officer told Charles Lynch, Reuter War Correspondent, that a sudden jump in the number of prisoners taken by British units in the Evrecy area indicated an inferior type of soldier in the German infantry divisions in that sector.

Those opposing the new offensive resemble coastal troops rather than SS. units, Lynch reported in a dispatch last night. About a third of the several hundred prisoners taken within 36 hours were Poles, Russians and Czechs who had been drafted into the German army.

Villages Captured.

With a score of villages in their hands on the western side of the Nieman on their bridgehead west of Grodno, the Russians were driving toward Eydtkuhnen, border city of East Prussia proper 45 miles away.

Isvestia announced that Gen. G. F. Zakharov's 2nd White Russian Army, the one which forced the Sviloch crossing, had advanced more than 300 miles and freed upwards of 7,500 populated places within the last three weeks.

Another startling spectre faced the Germans today as the Red Army developed a wedge between Bialystok and Brest Litvosk in a drive that put the Soviets only 120 miles east of Warsaw.

This wedge is just 40 miles from the Bug River. The Russians may drive straight ahead toward Warsaw, turn to the north and outflank Bialystok from the southwest, turn south and outflank Brest Litvosk from the northwest—or do all three.

New Russian Drive

LONDON, July 18 — (AP) — The German radio announced today a new major Russian attack in the Kowel area headed northwestward toward Brest Litovsk—already imminently menaced by Red Army troops driving from the east and northeast.

Fierce fighting flared all along the Tarnopol-Luck-Kowel Front, Berlin said. German broadcasts began reporting Russian thrusts in that area four days ago. Moscow has remained silent.

The Soviet Communique today, however, reported that a Red Army column, striking west toward Warsaw in gains of up to 40 miles, had overrun the crossroads town of Vydomlya 16 miles north of Brest Litvosk.

A German broadcast also reported fierce fighting on the Finnish front with the Russians attacking Finnish positions at Vyuosalim, northeast of Lake Ladoga and in the Pitkaeranta sector, the radio report declaring more than 2,000 Russians had been killed.

A D.N.B. broadcast dispatch said about 100 Soviet aircraft raided the Nazi-held town and harbor of Kirkenes, about 100 miles west of Murmansk.

Lindsay Team Ties Omemee

OMEMEE, July 18—(ENS)—Lindsay Knights of Columbus defeated Omemee Creamery 6-4 in a town league game Monday night, which turned out to be a pitcher's duel. Bridgen started on the mound for K. of C., but was nicked for three runs in the first inning, having walked the first two men. Brooks flied to right, but McQuade hit a three-bagger. Lucas, called in to take Brigden's place, soon put a stop to the O's scoring spree by striking out the next two batters.

Lucas was in rare form throughout the game, striking out twelve and allowing eight hits. He helped win his own game by hitting a double with the bases loaded, scoring three runs and coming in himself when Weir failed to recover the ball after it had hit some parked cars. Brigden for K. of C. also stretched a double into a circuit clout when McQuade in centre field for Omemee missed a line drive.

Stephenson pitched a beautiful game for Omemee, striking out seven, allowing only three hits, and issuing three free passes.

For K. of C. Brigden, Arthurs and Lucas got one hit each, and for Omemee Parsons with three hits and Crawford with two and a walk led the batting. McQuade, Williamson and Stephenson each got a hit for the Creamery.

The win for Knights of Columbus advanced them into a tie with Omemee for second place, each team having won six games. Lindsay Live Wires still hold first place in the league.

Line ups:

Knights of Columbus—O'Leary, c; Brigden, p and lf; Ashmore, 1b; Williams, 2b; Hennessey, 3b; Gleason, ss; Arthurs, cf; Shine, rf; Lucas, p.

Omemee Creamery—Crawford, 2b; Williamson, 1b; Parsons, 3b; Brooks, c; McQuade, cf; Weir, lf; R. Deyell, J. Deyell, ss; Stephenson, p.

Score by innings:

Knights of Columbus	000 060 x	6
Omemee Creamery	300 010 0	4

Keith Bradley, Omemee's short stop, was unable to play last night and will not be playing for some time, as he is at present in Nicholls Hospital, Peterbough, where he has undergone an operation.

San Francisco on an arm of San Francisco Bay.

No civilian dead had been found, Sheriff James N. Long of Contra Costa county reported, although 150 civilians had been injured, principally from flying debris, broken glass and the falling walls of houses.

Town Is Wrecked.

The explosion, at 10:19 p.m. P. D.T., was felt within a radius of at least 50 miles. It wrecked the town of Port Chicago, hich has a wartime boom population of about 1,000, destroyed communications and power facilities and broke the windows 20 and 30 miles away.

One man a mile away was blown 100 feet.

The explosion, of undetermined origin, showered parts of the ship's superstructure at least a mile. One 300-pound piece of steel fell in the main street of Port Chicago, one mile from the naval depot.

For a time Port Chicago was a confused, chaotic scene of dying and other injured crying in the darkness. Fire swept parts of the town, and water mains were broken.

Medical aid was rushed from the neighboring communities and the Mare Island Navy Yard, 14 miles away. The Red Cross rushed in cots and blood plasma. Port Chicago was ordered evacuated. The injured were rushed to the jammed hospitals at Martinez, 10 miles distant, in Army trucks, ambulances, taxicabs, and civilian autos pressed into service.

Hospital attendants lost count of the injured, so fast were they brought in.

The Navy said two small coastguard boats, a crash boat and a fire barge were destroyed, with four men missing.

Additional Hazard.

Live ammunition floating in the oil-slicked waters presented an additional hazard in the port area. Navy craft stood by as picket boats to keep water traffic away.

A Navy guard was thrown around the disaster area shortly after the blast. Two regiments of soldiers were brought in from San Francisco to place a cordon about the area and serve as special police.

Many of the civilians evacuated were dispatched in Army vehicles to Camp Stoneman, 10 miles away. Others went to Martinez.

Naval intelligence officers studying the cause of the explosion were joined early to-day by the Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, but there was no indication that their probe was anything but routine for such a disaster.

Many of the killed and injured were believed to be sailors living in barracks near the shiploading area and the 150 to 200 sailors loading the cargo of explosives at the time.

200 Houses Ruined.

Most of Port Chicago's homes were knocked aswey on thier foundations. The Red Cross said 150 to 200 houses were made uninhabitable, and plans were being made to feed 1,000 to 1,500 persons in Martinez because of lack of cooking gas.

Glass and debris littered the Port Chicago streets as the injured made their way in the dark to emergency Red Cross centres shortly after the explosion.

Men, women and children walked about the main section aimlessly, most of them wearing bloody bandages, until they were evacuated by the military.

The steps of one Red Cross emergency hospital were red with blood.

John Miller, area co-ordinator for the office of civilian defence, said 200 civilian wounded had been counted so far. These included 50 seriously hurt.

K. E. Knapp of Hayward, a railroad man atop a box car one mile from the blast, saiad he saw what looked like a 'mile-high skyrocket—red and white."

"Then came a terrific blast and it seemed like star shells were filling the air. Small pieces of metal from the exploded ship began falling all around."

Most of the residents of Port Chicago and Martinez said they felt the explosion heralded a Japanese air attack on the naval installation.

Jesse Anderson, office manager of the Port Chicago naval ammunition depot, said two ships were involved in the terrific blast, which set up reverberations like that of an earthquake for many miles. Anderson said each ship had a crew of 50 to 70 men aboard.

Negro Sailors Working.

In addition two divisions of negro sailors were working on the dock loading ammunition. Each division would have, he said, some 150 to 170 men in them. These figures total a minimum of 400.

"When they went down there to get them," Anderson added, "they only brought two back alive."

Seaman S. B. Scott, of Washington, D.C., treated for blast injuries, estimated 600 men were killed. He told newsmen:

"Suddenly an explosion tore part of the barracks. It wrecked the administration building and the camp was wrecked.

"It happened all of a sudden. We were taken completely by surprise and the next thing I knew there were a lot of fellows lying around, moaning and crying."

Sheriff J. R. Thornton of Solano county estimated the injured at 1,000.

Witnesses said the blast sent a huge bolt of flame far into the clear night sky, and then came a concussion so powerful it was felt at San Jose, 50 miles away at the other end of San Francisco Bay.

Many San Franciscans thought they had felt an earthquake. The University of California seismograph recorded the shock as of moderate intensity.

So terrific was the impact of the explosion that not only were nearby buildings flatttened but a railroad building a mile fromt he source of the blast was shattered.

Not a solid pane of glass remained within several miles.

It was the second day of full-scale Allied aerial operations, made possible by an improvement in the weather which has prevented the Allies from capitalizing fully on their air supremacy a greater part of the time since D-Day.

Canadian Spitfire pilots on offensive patrols around Caen shot down eight enemy planes in daylight yesterday.

Some Canadian airmen took part in an R.A.F. medium-bomber attack on an enemy fuel-dump at Alencon, 40 miles south of Caen. The dump was damaged considerably, returning fliers said, but so accurate was the bombing that nearby Red Cross buildings were unharmed.

Canadian bombers laid mines in enemy waters last night, while R.C. A.F. Mosquitoes took part in intruder patrols, downing one enemy aircraft.

Two Canadian planes were missing from all operations.

Grey smoke poured from the two ships. Sparks flew as direct hits were scored on them.

And then we were past. We came about then and went in again, and again the mad game was resumed. This time our port guns engaged the enemy who was still firing strongly. Then we were past the enemy and enveloped in silence.

Fire Was Weakening.

We turned again and went in. The Germans were still hammering at us, although they had undergone mangling punishment. When we completed that run, the opposing fire was weakening. For the fourth time we came about and tore into the Germans. They were smoking hulks now and one was burning astern. A plume of water rose as the forward enemy skip took a heavy shell just at the water line. She began to burn with a sullen read glow. When we completed that run, all enemy fire had ceased.

Almost immediately, the sky ahead of us was illuminated with star shells and again the ships leading us opened fire on a new target. Our guns joined the chorus. Hits could be seen crashing into this lone German ship.

Suddenly she began to glow as flames licked at her. In the light caused by the flames, some of her crew could be seen leaping into the seas.

Repeatedly she was hit. Three direct hits tore her bridge away. In a few minutes, all opposing fire ceased. We broke off the action then, 55 minutes after the first shot had been fired.

Guam Battered By Battleships

PEARL HARBOR, July 18—(AP)—Bombarded by America's biggest battleships and ripped by the most intensive rocket attack ever loosed on a Pacific island, Japanese-held Guam appeared to-day to be at the threshold of significant developments.

Opposed only by ineffective shore batteries, the battleships trained their guns, along with the guns of cruisers and destroyers an enemy defences on Saturday. The next day carrier planes went after anti-aircraft batteries and barracks with rockets and fire bombs.

These developments carried the defence-levelling attacks on Guam through 13 uninterrupted days. The assault opened on July 4, four days before the invasion forces completed the conquest of Saipan, 125 miles to the north-east in the same Marianas chain, an integral part of Japan's inner defence ring.

The Japanese air force on Guam apparently has been wiped out and the slight losses listed for the Americans seem to indicate ground defences are being smothered. Admiral Nimitz said the enemy shore batteries caused no damage to the warships on Saturday.

The carrier planes also attacked an airfield, barracks and a bridge on Rota, an island between Guam and Saipan.

SAD LAD—Sgt. R. D. "Muscles" Hadwyn, 31 Albert street, Lindsay, enlisted in the RCAF when he was just 15 years old. That was two years ago. Today he is back in Canada, a fuzzy-cheeked veteran with one Messerschmitt confirmed and one Focke-Wulf probable to his credit. Startled RCAF officials caught up with him just after D-Day and hustled him back to Canada, where he must remain until he reaches 18 years of age. With 18 operational trips against German targets and others in Occupied Europe as a backlog of experience, Sgt. Hadwyn will serve as a gunnery instructor. He said he was given the nickname "Muscles" for the same reason that big men are called "Tiny"—he hasn't got any.

Hecklers Stop Premier Godbout

MONTREAL July 18.—(CP). — group of hecklers—about one-third of the 800 people who attended an open-5air meeting at Lauzon, Que. last night, prevented Premier Godbout from making a scheduled election campaign address in the Levis county town. Singing "O, Canada," and shouting, "what about Guenette," the crowd out-voiced the Premier whenever he attempted to speak.

(The cries of "what about Guenette" referred to Georges Gunette who was shot and killed by Royal Canadian Mounted Police who were seeking him on a charge of attacking a police officer.)

Maurice Duplessis, leader of the Union Nationale party, and Andre Laurendeau, Bloc Populaire leader, had no speaking engagements last night.

Mr. Godbout attended a meeting in support of J. H. Francoeur, Liberal candidate for Levis constituency in the Aug. 8 Quebec general election, but Mr. Francoeur also was forced to cancel his talk as a result of the heckling.

Mayor Alphonse Allaire of Lauzon asked the crowd to permit the Premier to speak, but his request was not heeded.

During a lull in the noise, Mr. Godbout said he knew those "now making trouble do not represent the real heart of Levis constituency." He added he would not judge the people by those who interrupted him and he had "no hard feelings."

Canadian "Medic" Rescues U.S. Pilot

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, July 18.—(AP).—Lieut. Neil D. Stanley, 27, Bethesda, Md., who suffered a broken leg when he was shot down over a marshy no-man's land near Caen in Normandy, was rescued by two heroic Canadian "medics" and a French civilian who braved almost an hour of intense German fire to drag him through knee-deep slime to safety.

In all the excitement the names of Canadians, one an officer and the other a sergeant, were not learned, but they will be identified and recommended for the highest honors.

Stanley bailed out at 2,000 feet and landed between the lines in two feet of water of the Orne river estuary. German machine gun bullets began splattering all around.

The Canadian sergeant kept shouting encouragement as he splashed toward him, disdainful of the gunfire.

"I thought he was crazy when he kept coming on, after I yelled to him not to expose himself, but he just came on, laughing," Stanley related. "That guy sure had plenty of guts."

As the "medic" advanced, he held high and plainly visible overhead the first aid pouch, with a red cross a foot in diameter, but Stanley declared this only drew increased fire from the enemy. After reaching him, he started helping him out. As they reached the shelters of a mud bank, the officer and a Frenchman who had popped out of nowhere, came to help.

The two Canadians and the Frenchman formed a human chain to pull him across the last stretch of shallow water.

HOW YOU AND YOUR FAMILY CAN

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Send for The Budget Calendar, a simple budget method that really works—then join the Budgeteers

IT'S UP TO US—the ones left behind—to keep the home front strong. How? One of the important things we can all do is to budget our spending for Victory—plan our spending so that our dollars will do more for us and for our country.

Make your dollars do more

There's so much every pay cheque must do these days! Part of your dollars—through war savings, taxes and contributions—are needed to back up our fighters. With the dollars that are left you have the job of keeping your family in fighting trim on the home front—healthy and active in the battle of production. That job takes careful planning, doesn't it? Wouldn't you welcome the help of a new plan that makes budgeting easy and simple—a plan that family after family tells us "really works."

How this plan helps

We will gladly send you a free copy of The Budget Calendar. This is a budget method first published as a service to our customers. But now that so many families have found the Calendar helpful in solving their wartime money problems we have decided to make it available to everyone who requests a copy. The Budget Calendar is totally different from most other budget methods. You don't start out with a fixed spending pattern and try to fit your way of living to it. Instead, you take the expenses you now have and figure out the best way to meet them with the money you have to spend. That's so much simpler—and it takes so little bookkeeping!

New method sent free

After you see the Calendar you will probably want to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. They are always welcome to ask for individual help with their problems. Special recognition is given to all Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting.

Here at Household Finance, largest and oldest Small Loans company in Canada, we have seen over and over how careful planning can help families to keep outgo in line with income. That's why we hope more and more families will budget their spending in these difficult times. Don't you want us to send you a copy of the Budget Calendar? You will not be annoyed with loan advertising of any kind.

Man Hangs Himself In His Farm Stable

BEWDLEY, July 18 — (ENS) — William Atkins, 57-year-old bachelor who has rented and worked the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Wilf. Beatty one mile northwest of this place for the past three years, was found dead hanging by a halter shank in the stable of the farm Monday afternoon.

Discovery of the body was made by two small daughters of the Beattys', Mae and Rita, who went to the barn to get some hay for their pet rabbit. Mr. and Mrs. Beatty were not on the farm at the time. Coroner Doctor Diamond as well as police was called to the scene.

Under this arrangement with the Beattys', Mr. Atkins occupied part of the house and worked the farm himself. Family Allowances To Cost Canada $200 Millions Yearly

OTTAWA, July 18.—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the Commons yesterday that the proposed payment of family allowances by the Federal government would call for an outlay of approximately $200,000,000 annually.

Mr. King revealed the estimated cost of the proposed plan before the Commons passed a resolution to the bill that would authorize payment of the allowances as from July 1, 1945. The bill itself was introduced and given first reading.

The bill would call for a gross outlay of approximately $250,000,000 a year, Mr. King said. However, the amount recoverable by reason of cancellation of income tax exemptions for dependent children would be between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

At the request of Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, members will be given several days to study the family allowances bill before debating it on second reading.

Mr. Graydon said no party could claim a monopoly on determination to give the nation's children a square deal and the fullest opportunity. Pending study of the details of the bill he reserved a statement of his party's position.

He said the party's policy called for meeting the health and welfare needs of the people and advocated social justice and equality of opportunity.

CANADA UNLIMITED ON THE SEVEN SEAS

● The Second World War found Canada with a small Merchant Marine and an almost insignificant Navy. Today the White Ensign of the R.C.N. and the Red Ensign of the Merchant Navy of Canada fly proudly over the Seven Seas. Today Canada is one of the leading shipbuilding and shipping countries of the entire world.

To say we're proud and humble about it all is like saying, "We love Canada".

* * *

After Victory, the Red Duster of Canada's Merchant Marine will continue to fly the Seven Seas. Canada's ships will ply the world lanes of Commerce. They'll be "Canada" going out to all the world. They'll have "Canada" in their holds. They'll have "Canada" at their helms.

Those, steely-eyed, calmly-determined men, who let go depth charges where the oil slicks showed, who dropped out of convoy in the middle of the wolf-pack with engine trouble and a cargo of TNT—those same men will be delivering the goods for Canada in Peace . . . a Canada whose riches will pour out in the form of growing world exports; a Canada Unlimited, whose resources will contribute to the happiness and prosperity of this world-trading, world-leading nation.

Let us do our share towards making this perfect reality, by buying and holding more and more Victory Bonds, War Savings Certificates, and War Savings Stamps. They guarantee our Freedom of the Seas; they are our preferred stock in "Canada Unlimited".

Home Life In Russia

The press has been paying a good deal of attention to the news that the U.S.S.R. has tightened its divorce laws to the point where it is about as hard to get a divorce in Russia as it is in Canada or Great Britain; a few years ago a divorce in Russia was a formality as quickly arranged as a marriage. Canadian commentators have seen in this a move on the part of Russia to restore the home and the family to the place which they have occupied in western civilization for two thousand years or more, and they have interpreted this as a recognition by Russia of the superiority of our ideal of the home to their ideal of revolutionary freedom of the individual.

• • •

We do not think that the matter is quite so easily explained. Russia, for a time, barred religion, home life, private profit and a number of other things which we esteem from its confines. But we cannot understand why this was done unless we realize that religion (as represented by the Orthodox Church) was a fraud upon the Russian people, that home life under the Czars was unsavoury and stultifying to the majority of Russian people, and that private profit in pre-revolutionary Russia meant merciless exploitation of the majority of the people. After the Revolution these things were banished, and now they are returning to Russia in very different guise. Religion has now been divorced from the state and can no longer be used as an instrument of oppression. Private profit is controlled and cannot be practised on a scale where it reduces millions of human beings to serfdom. And the home has a better chance of being a really happy and enlightened place.

• • •

Russia has been harshly criticised in the past for taking children away from their parents and bringing them up in state nurseries. But the reason for such action was explained to Nancy Astor by Stalin himself: Russian peasants who had been enfranchised by the Revolution had not the education nor the knowledge of child-care to bring up the kind of citizens which the U.S.S.R. wanted; therefore the state took over the duty of bringing up children and employed trained people to do so. As many of the fighters in the Red Army must have been brought up from infancy by the Russian state we cannot argue that lack of home life had robbed them of patriotism or courage. Home life, as it was lived by Russian peasants and their children before the Revolution, had little about it that was edifying. For a child to grow up satisfactorily it needs wise care and love; there was no guarantee that it would get either from its parents, so the state took over the responsibility and seems to have discharged it well.

• • •

Now it looks as though the Russians thought that their nursery children were capable of forming homes which will last, and of bringing up their children to be healthy and happy; therefore divorce is being discouraged. It is a fact, too, that Russia has lost millions of men in the war, and wants population, and in countries where divorce is too easy families do not flourish. Russia has also restricted her policy of legalized abortion, although she has not abandoned it altogether, nor her program of eugenics. Eugenics has been called 'the science of being well-born'; the Russians are eager to improve their racial stock by scientific methods of birth control.

• • •

Without a doubt the Russians who took part in the revolution talked a lot of nonsense about freedom from religion and home ties and made claims for their system which it was unable to support. But in discussing what Russia has done and is doing we must consider the magnitude of her problem: she is making a modern state out of a medieval state, and she is trying to do it as quickly and as efficiently as she can. Of course she is bound to make some mistakes. Not everything medieval is therefore bad, and Russia has had to retrace her steps in certain matters. But upon the whole her achievements have been among the wonders of the twentieth century. If Russia had not taken children from their parents, and had permitted the Church to retain its sinister hold on the people, it would have taken two centuries to do what she has done in two decades. Now the Church has been purified, and the family re-established on lines in which poverty and mental degradation do not distort natural affection.

Daintiness And The CBC

Like all broadcasting corporations, the CBC is very dainty about the language which it permits on the airwaves; this is admirable. up to a point, for it would not do for the air to be filled with profanity or obscenity; but daintiness can be carried to the point where it becomes mere silliness. Our contemporary the Brantford Expositor, which has a sharp ear for such matters, takes the CBC to task for talking about "a tinker's hoot", instead of a "tinker's dam". Obviously the CBC thought that the expression was "a tinker's damn", and could not bring itself to profane the air with an expression so heinous. Actually a tinker's dam is a clay dam used to hold solder against a joint; once used, it is worthless.

But even if the tinker's dam had been a real damn, would it not have been better to speak of it than to mince matters with "a tinker's hoot?" This expression reminds us of the excruciating propriety of those people who cannot bear to speak of the Devil at full length, and who call him "the Dee". "Oh, the Dee!" they cry, in pious merriment when they run into the platform-rocker in the dark. A plague take them and their damnable 'Dee'!

This matter brings up another to which we have made frequent reference. The CBC is very dainty about profanity; it achieves unbelievable heights of middle-class refinement in such matters, but it does not care much about the English language as a whole, and allows speech and usage which are downright careless and frequently illiterate in its broadcasts. Perhaps it needs more highly literate persons on its staff and fewer salesmen; we cannot say. But we think it silly and offensive to quibble mistakenly about a tinker's dam, when every day expressions are used over the air which make the true lover of language dredge his vocabulary for new and gaudier oaths.

A Canadian Flag

The argument as to whether or not Canada should have a distinctive flag is one which goes on from year to year, sometimes smouldering, sometimes blazing, but always alight. Strong claims have been put forward for recognition of the Red Ensign, which bears a small Union Jack in its upper right-hand corner, and the arms of the Dominion in its lower right-hand corner; as this is the flag under which our troops are now fighting in Normandy the claim takes on added dignity. After all, it is the honours which come to it in battle which give a flag its special associations, and if our forces are distinguishing themselves under the Red Ensign that flag has strong claims on our affection.

We believe, however (although we have not been able to verify this statement and are therefore open to correction) that during the First Great War the Red Ensign was not widely used, and that some of the engagements in which Canadian troops won great distinction were fought under the Union Jack, as the official flag of Canada. If this is so some of the men who fought in that war might feel justifiable grievance if the Red Ensign were declared to be the only true and correct Canadian Flag.

The point which we wish to make is this: if we mean to change our flag from the Union Jack to something more distinctively Canadian, we had better do so as soon as possible, for men who have fought in Canadian Armies will not appreciate confusion in the matter. The Union Jack is an old and glorious flag to which Canada brings new glory; the Red Ensign is our own, and it leaves no doubt as to where our allegiance lies. The choice seems to us to lie between the two, for we do not imagine that many Canadians are interested in a flag of entirely new design, which has no link with our past or that of the Mother Country.

Full Circle At Bretton Woods

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

IN the summer of 1933 President Roosevelt sent his private messenger, Raymond Moley, to London in a fast warship. Mr. Moley's instructions were to sink the World Economic Conference, which he did with dispatch. Mr. Roosevelt, newly in office and surrounded by New Dealers and Pump Primers, had decided that the United States could not afford to tie its currency to any international standard, but must be free to manipulate and devaluate it as seemed wise.

In the summer of 1944, Mr. Roosevelt's present messenger, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, is at Bretton Woods, New Hampshire, persuading the nations to do the very thing which the United States refused to do eleven years ago. The thinking of the Roosevelt administration has completed a full circle.

But now that the United States is ready to stabilize money and to base its future on a recovery of world trade, the possibility of a new paradox arises. Whereas it was the United States in 1933 which refused to stabilize so that it could pursue its own internal economic experiments freely, while the other nations were seeking stabilization, today some of the other nations are determined that stabilization shall not interfere with their experiments.

Herein lies the crux of the problem of Bretton Woods. If currencies are to be stabilized the nations cannot pursue internal policies which make stabilization impossible. Even though an international pool is set up to lend currencies to weak nations it cannot indefinitely support the currency of a nation which is engaged in unsound internal policies. Nor is there much long-run use in stabilizing currencies if international trade is to be dammed up by nations seeking to secure prosperity by self-containment and uneconomic home industry; for the whole purpose of stabilization, as of money itself, is to expand trade.

The simple question before the Bretton Woods Conference, therefore, is whether the nations are ready to stake their future on world commerce, world co-operation and competitive world prices or whether they will undermine these hopes by advocating stabilization and yet following policies at home that destroy stabilization.

As keen an observer as Mr. Walter Lippmann contends that the stabilization agreement will be whittled down to a mere plan for the exchange of economic information, that most of the nations will not bind themselves to follow the policies of trade necessary to stabilization, that they will subordinate international trade to their own local economic experiments just as the United States did eleven years ago.

The next few weeks will show whether these fears are right. Meanwhile Mr. Roosevelt has left no doubt of his conversion from his theories of 1933, for in a message to the monetary conference he said:

"Commerce is the life blood of a free society. We must see to it that the arteries which carry that blood stream are not clogged again, as they have been in the past, by artificial barriers, created through senseless economic rivalries. . . . Only through a dynamic and soundly expanding world economy can the standards of individual nations be advanced to levels which will permit a full realization of our hopes for the future."

Mr. Morgenthau, the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, delivered a powerful attack on the standard arguments of protectionists:

"There is a tragic fallacy in the notion that any country is liable to lose its customers by promoting greater production and higher living standards among them. Good customers are prosperous customers. . . . Prosperity, like peace, is indivisible. We cannot afford to have it scattered here or there among the fortunate or to enjoy it at the expense of others. Poverty, wherever it exists, is menacing to us and undermines the well-being of each of us. It can no more be localized than war but spreads and saps the economic strength of all the more favored areas of the earth."

Mr. Morgenthau warned the conference against unilateral action by any nation to solve problems that can only be solved by collective action. No nation, he said, could prosper alone. But the stabilization of currencies was only one necessary measure in world recovery, and "must be supplemented by many other measures to remove impediments to world trade."

◇ ◇ ◇

Whether the United States Congress after the next election—perhaps a Republican Congress—will endorse Mr. Roosevelt's programme of world economic co-operation, whether the other nations can accept it and still proceed with plans like the proposed deficit financing of the new British White Paper, the Bretton Woods Conference cannot know. But it is working to give the world currency stabilization and an international lending authority if the world has the intelligence to accept and use them.

Leicester Square

I AM glad to see there is a scheme (to be accurate, three schemes) for making Leicester Square respectable—I mean materially; morally is another question. At present, with the railings gone, what was once a pleasant bit of greenery in the midst of cinemas is a lamentable acre or so of trampled earth. Leicester Fields, as it used to be, has a great place in London history, both during and after the days of duelling. All sorts of interesting people—Hogarth, Joshua Reynolds, Isaac Newton, Dr. Burney and his daughter Fanny, John Hunter,—lived there or thereabouts. And it was in Leicester Square that the Geograper-Royal, James Wyld, who was also for sixteen years a Liberal member of Parliament, exhibited his "Great Globe," 60 feet high and lighted with gas (stars outside, physical features of the earth inside), from 1851 to 1862 for the geographical edification of the populace. Clearly Leicester Square must be put straight, and on lines in keeping with the modernization of the buildings round it—though in fact it is at present a good deal of an amalgam of fairly old and modern; there are great possibilities in it.—Janus in London Spectator.

Didn't Like Profit?

A successful business man was giving an address on "Commercial Acumen" to a class of students In speaking of his career, he mentioned a certain company that had been wound up on account of its shady practices.

"Of course," he said, "as soon as I realized there were possibilities of dishonest profit being made, I got out of it."

"How much?" asked a student.

HOLDING BACK THE GUILLOTINE —By Goldberg

The War And The Peace

(NEW YORK TIMES)

INEXORABLY and with growing momentum the tide of Allied power continues to rise to its flood, destroying the foundations of German might and shaking the whole Nazi structure which Hitler built on it. In the east, where the Russian armies are smashing all German resistance in blitzkrieg fashion, this tide is already beginning to lap at the borders of the Reich itself, and threatens to spill over them soon onto German soil. In the west the Allied armies are now breaking out from their narrow bridgehead from that larger offensive which is the purpose of the whole invasion. In the south the last German defense line in Italy is coming under the fire of Allied guns. And from the skies greater Allied air armadas than ever before continue to destroy the German war industries and to rip apart the German communication lines.

So difficult has the German situation become that both the Nazi leaders and the German Army Command have been compelled to drop all pretense that they are still masters of the situation and to admit that it is no longer a question of conquering the world but of fending away from Germany itself the avenging forces of an outraged world. But while preparing the German public for necessary readjustments of the fronts, which may involve wholesale withdrawals from conquered lands, the Nazi chieftains are likewise continuing their sly bids for a compromise peace that would permit them to renew the war at a later time. They threaten, on the one hand, to drown the whole European Continent in blood, and point to their flying bombs as mere tokens of later terrors they plan to unleash; and they sing soft and low to the western Allies that there is no need for continuing the war, since all they are trying to do is to save European civilization from "Asiatic bolshevism." To these sham peace bids the United Nations have already given their answer in the ultimatum for unconditional surrender.

Yet for the United Nations this war is first of all a struggle for peace. Not a peace that is merely a preparation for new war, but an enduring peace that will guarantee their freedom and security. So far as the United States is concerned, this peace has a double aspect, one of which lies in the international field, the other in the field of domestic politics. Both are interdependent and both are of decisive importance not only to the United States but to the world. For on the manner in which the issue of the peace is settled in both fields will depend American participation in and support of the peace settlement, and this participation and support will in turn determine the durability of the peace.

In the domestic field, the issue of the peace has been brought to the fore most urgently by the Presidential campaign in which both the Republican and Democratic parties have been compelled to formulate their foreign policies for the approval of the nation. The Republican party has already done so, the Democratic party will do so in convention this week. But whatever their differences in nuances, it is already clear that both parties are substantially in agreement upon the larger outlines of the peace they will support, and that these outlines call for full and responsible American participation and cooperation in a just and democratic peace settlement based on the previous United Nations pronouncements, from the Atlantic Charter to the Declarations of Moscow and Teheran. They will support such a peace because it, and it alone, is in accord with the deepest convictions and ideals of the American people.

But while American opinion is substantially united on this point it will remain united only if the international aspect fo the peace meets the same test. This test, already agreed to by all the United Nations in their pledges, is rapidly approaching in practice as the Allied armies begin the liberation of Nazi-conquered lands—as the Allied armies penetrate into France, and soon into Belgium and the Netherlands, and as the Russian armies drive into Poland, Finland and the Baltic States. The American people still have an open mind as to the best way to handle the problem of the aggressor nations, but they have definite convictions regarding the rights of the victims of aggression. And while nothing that happens in the political field could ever affect their determination to wage war to final victory in full and loyal cooperation with all the enemies of their enemies, any violation of these rights could seriously affect their attitude toward the peace. It could split their present unity and thereby imperil their adhesion to the peace settlement itself.

The domestic issue and the foreign issue are inseparable. As the war in Europe draws closer to its climax it is clear that the character of the forthcoming settlement will affect the strength of the American determination to participate in the organization of peace and that the strength of this determination will in turn help to shape the settlement that lies ahead.

In Defense of Women's Rights

(TORONTO GLOBE AND MAIL)

WOMEN rivet, drive trucks, fly planes, ignore their franchise, sit in Parliament, smoke and refuse to wash dishes. The chains have been completely torn. Women are as frees as men, even unto standing on street cars.

From now on it is no longer a question of getting women's rights, but defending them against all comers who would infringe on them. That is often the way. No sooner is some great principle won than somebody starts to whittle away a bit here, a piece there.

All believers in equal rights for women—the single standard—and who share with the Privy Council the opinion that women should be eligible for appointment to the Senate because they are "persons," should now organize. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of women.

The editor of the Midland Free Press-Herald wrote in his journal that "beach costumes are not for the main streets of our towns!" He is opposed to women wearing shorts and 'kerchiefs where they will! He says women are more immodest than men! That "when a woman, either she be young and slim, or middle-aged and billowy, essays to walk down the main street clad only in shorts and a 'kerchief, she should be stopped by the police and told to go and put some clothes on!"

Not only is the editor's view on attack on the right of freedom for women to wear as many or as few clothes as they wish, but he shows a lamentable lack of discrimination in his taste. There might be some question of calling out the police when some types of women walk down the street, or even walk on the beach, in shorts and 'kerchiefs, but not for all.

Let us put it this way: If Marlene Dietrich, Rita Hayworth, Betty Grable, Hedy Lemarr and Lana Tturner walked along King Street and up York in shorts and 'kerchiefs would it be becoming of us to complain and put in a quick call for Police Chief Draper? Of course not. If Marlene, Rita, Betty, Hedy and Lana want to walk past our windows in shorts and 'kerchiefs who are we to object! Have women no rights? Have men all the privileges of keeping cool?

Now we don't know what the editor of the Free Press-Herald wears. It may be long underwear or red flannels. And if he does, who is there to object, certainly not us. In fact, we would any time defend the right of Miss Grable and Miss Hayworth and, if you will, Miss Alice Faye to wear shorts and 'kerchief when and as they wish; just as much as the editor of the Midland weekly would spill his inkpots for the right to put on his long combinations.

We have seen no philipics by the Midland editor against those pink thingamagigs that women wear. We don't know what they are called. But those we have seen, in shop windows, are pink, and are not long, nor are they short, but reach down to about "here."

We warn the Free Press-Herald editor that he is in for trouble. Not only for his attack on the true rights of women, but for this sentence of his in the same editorial: "There is a place for nudity, but it is in the privacy of the home bedroom, not on the main street." We warn the editor that should be find his newspaper office picketed by the makers of women's pyjamas and nightgowns, with placards accusing him of trying to ruin two important industries, he has only himself to thank.

As for ourselves, we are on the side of freedom.

CHURCHILL AND LLOYD GEORGE ON D-DAY

Mr. Churchill paused and dropped his voice. "I have also to annnounce to the House. . . ." So, in the conversational way which accords so well with the feeling and manner of the House of Commons, the news was told. The whistle of astonishment at the size of the armada was sincere. So was the grunt of satisfaction when Mr. Churchill spoke of the advices he had had that everything had been going to plan. His speech over, he went across to Mr. Lloyd George, who was then walking out on the arm of Mr. Clement Davies. At first Mr. Lloyd George did not notice who was taking his other arm. When he did, his handshake was as good to see as it must have been to have. Visitors who heard the statement included General Montgomery's brother, Captain the Rev. C. R. Montgomery, former vicar of St. John's Egremont, who had come to lunch with an M.P. and just happened to have hit on D-Day.—"Liverpool Daily Post.

A Bible Message

BE thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth. . . .

I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds. (Ps. 57: 5, 9, 10.)

Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face.

Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. (Ps. 89: 14, 15.)

O praise the Lord, all ye nations: praise him, all ye people. For his merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the Lord endureth for ever. Praise ye the Lord. (Ps. 117: 1, 2.)

Letter To The Editor

DISPUTES EDITORIAL

The Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—The article entitled "The White Feather Resolution," which appeared in The Examiner of the 11th of July, 1944, may be of academic interest to some of your readers. Your inference therein, "Lord Mottistone must have been educated by his sisters' governess," will not be palatable to many men of the Canadian Cavalry Corps of World War One, who with ample reason hold their one-time commander, Major General John Edward Bernard Seely, P.C., C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., a former British Secretary of State for War, and now Baron Mottistone, in the highest regard.

If Lord Mottistone's long career of valiant and useful service follows from his having been educated by his sisters' governess, then surely the outcome is high commendation in this instance for that type of tuition.

Lord Mottistone actually received his early education at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, but gathered a wider experience during his holding of many important governmental and other positions.

The average citizen of Canada, Britain or the U.S.A. would not be greatly influenced or perturbed by such a resolution from the membership of the Oxford Union. Membership, thereof, as your article confirms, does not necessarily imply the hallmark of common sense. It should not be overlooked, however, that Mussolini is not overly endowed with horse sense, of this the lapse of time does provide indisputable evidence, and it may be that he did give the "Resolution" an appraisal beyond its warrant.

Lord Mottistone definitely must have felt full justification for his statement, and, as he is a barrister, could recognize and value evidence, and further, and, this you would not deny, he had and has access to information, possibly beyond your range, to draw upon.

I am impelled to accept the viewpoint that Lord Mottistone stated fact when he gave fellow members of the House of Lords his opinion of the incident.

Yours truly,
T. T. RODGER.

Dafoe-Seeney Vows Pledged

HAVELOCK, July 18 (ENS) — The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Seeney, Ottawa street, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when their only daughter, Wilma Muriel, was united in marriage to Donald Harry, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dafoe of Belmont, with Rev. S. A. Kemp officiating. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of pink and white streamers and white bells, with baskets of hydrangeas, regal lillies and delphiniums at each side.

The bride wore a street-length dress of shell pink sheer with long sleeves, a white hat and veil and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. She was attended by Miss Betty Bradley of Ottawa, wearing a turquoise crepe dress with a matching hat and white accessories, and a corsage of Premier roses. The best man was Mr. Ray Patterson, Havelock, brother-in-law of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home, with a luncheon at the grill-room of Davey's Cafe. The bride's mother received wearing a gown of black flowered silk crepe, white accessories and a corsage of Butterfly roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a royal blue flowered crepe gown with white accessories and a corsage of Butterfly roses. Later, the bride and groom left for a trip to Northern Ontario.

For travelling the bride wore an orchid alpaca suit with a corsage of rosebuds. Upon their return they will reside at Havelock. The bride chose the exact date and hour for her wedding as her parents chose 34 years ago, and also her grandparents the late Mr. and Mrs. John Seeney, married 64 years ago. Prior to her marriage, the bride was presented with a silver casserole and silver butterdish by the employees of the Office Staff of National Defence, Ottawa.

Women MD's May Be Used In Normandy

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Mriter

WITH A CANADIAN GENERAL HOSPITAL IN ENGLAND, July 17—(CP). — Canada may send some of the first FMO's— women army doctors — across to serve in Normandy.

With a Canadian General Hospital that has already done a considerable amount of moving about England since its arrival in May are three Canadian women medical officers, as well as a bacteriologist. All four want to go overseas.

Meanwhile, in this large unit, they are privileged women. When the nursing sisters eat in their own mess, the four who wear khaki instead of blue use the spacious medical officers' mess and have other rights sacred previously only to the men of the Medical Corps.

"The fact that the Army has accepted women doctors on equal terms should be a big help to the future of women in the medical profession," Maj. Violet Rae commented as she bent over a microscope in the hospital's pathology lab.

Major Rae, who can claim Hamilton, Ont., Toronto, and Calgary as past homes, is in charge of the lab and under her the bio-chemical testing is carried out, blood tests are made as well as tissue examinations and the occasional post-mortem.

"A lab in a military hospital is never dull," said the kindly, attractive woman doctor.

Variety of Work.

"We don't see many patients, but we have a wide variety of work."

Major Rae majored in pathology at the University of Toronto after she completed her medical training at the University of Alberta in Edmonton. Later, she worked in the lab. at the Mountain Sanitorium, Hamilton, Ont.

Working with the major was Lt. Jean Arnot who before her marriage to Capt. Fred Arnot of the Dental Corps, was Jean Bonnell of Victoria. Being one of the first women bacteriologists from Canada to serve overseas gave Mrs. Arnot a chance to see her husband for the first time in more than a year. Mrs. Arnot was getting ready to move with her hospital unit, but she would be followed in the lab. by Lieut Mary Gibson of Vancouver, who also attended U.B.C. at the same time.

The fact that Capt. Deborah Hannay of Kitchener, Ont., was skilled in internal medicine gave her a chance to come to England to carry on her job and see her husband, Capt. John Hannay, after a long separation. She is on the general medical staff. She received her degree at the University of Toronto and later did post-graduate work in England.

Capt. Shirley Fleming of Toronto is the anaesthetist here and spends most of her time in the operating rooms. She is also a graduate of the University of Toronto.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As the tomato season is upon us and nearly everyone likes tomatoes, I am going to give you a few out-of-the-ordinary recipes for doing them up. Try each one. You will like them all and be glad you tried them.

Tomato Preserves.

One pound small yellow tomatoes, 1 lemon, 3 pounds sugar. Select the small yellow tomatoes that are about the size of small plums. Pour boiling water over them and cover tightly for two minutes. Then drain quickly and cover with cold water. This will loosen the skins. Peel the tomatoes, being careful not to break them. If any are found with the skins still unloosened, treat them again with the boiling water. Place the sugar and tomatoes in a crock and let stand over night. Drain off the juice and boil rapidly until it threads. Add the tomatoes and the thinly sliced lemon. Cook until clear and thick. Seal in hot jars.

Green Tomato Preserves.

Eight pounds green tomatoes, 6 pounds sugar, 1 tablespoon preserved ginger, 6 lemons.

Wash the tomatoes, remove any dark parts around the stems and weigh them. Cover them with boiling water. Let stand five minutes, drain and slice them into a preserving kettle, placing a layer of sliced lemons, then the sugar with the ginger sprinkled over it. Let the mixture stand over night. Drain and boil the syrup for ten minutes. Skim and add tomatoes. Cook rapidly until it is clear. Bottle in hot jars and seal.

Pepper Haste.

One large cabbage, 6 onions, 9 green peppers, ½ cup salt, ½ cup white mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 2 pounds white sugar, vinegar.

Chop cabbage, onions and peppers rather fine. Stir in salt and let stand over night. In the morning drain well and to the mixture add spices and sugar and cover with vinegar. Set on the stove until sugar is melted, but do not boil. Seal tightly and keep in cool place.

Raspberry and Currant Jam.

One pound red raspberries, ¼ cup currant juice, ¾ pound sugar.

Mash the fruit, add the currant juice and bring to the boiling point stirring well from the bottom. Add the sugar and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Pack in hot jars and seal.

Narrow legs, front pleats, a new longer length for these gray flannel shorts. Cool but sun-burn thwarting cotton pullover in solid color.

BOYISH PANTS AND SHIRT—Waders and hikers, whether they stalk the seashore or the country paths, couldn't look smarter or be more at ease while they are at it, if they copy this pretty girl. Her pullover is plain color cotton, although those who prefer Basque stripes can choose them instead.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, July 19.

MATTERS OF both public and private concern remain in a favorable state waiting progress and development along lines already thought out and set in motion by clever insight into intriguing situations. They may probably best be handled by novel or scientific, unorthodox or extraordinary processes or tactics. Originality and ingenunity might possibly be born of intuitive flashes or of a flair for inventive genius. Dare to tackle alluring opportunities by such idealistic or dramatic moves and close contracts or agreements on these progressive policies. Make dreams come true.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are probably on the eve of a year of possibly unique or novel progress along lines of exceptional genius, originality, inspired or idealistic lines. Adventures and accomplishments should be out of the commonplace with highlights of the dramatic, breathtaking and spectacular. Originality, innovation and the speculative should be insisted in the making of contracts and agreements. Spiritual, intuitive or inspired values should be allowed, as therein may be anchored the greatest achievements, gratifications and rewards.

A child born on this day should be endowed with unique, novel, even spectacular genius, although deep thinking, logical and dependable. Personal or spiritual blessings may also crown its life.

WAR CHANGES MARRIED COUPLES

John and Mary Will Find It Harder To Adjust Themselves Than When First Wed

A correspondent asks: "After the war will men and women be better husbands and wives than they were before?"

It is anybody's guess. Not even a prophet knows the answer. Doubtless some will be made better, more considerate and unselfish husbands and wives, while others will emerge from their experiences even more grouchy and disagreeable to live with. But human nature being what it is, the great majority of them will be the same old husbands and wives that they have always been. It is only in Polyanna novels that people change their spots and domestic devils turn into household angels.

War Will Change Couples

But while no one can foretell just what effect the war will have on husbands and wives, it is bound to change them in many ways. When Johnny comes marching home, he won't be the same man that he was when he went away, and neither will Mary be the same woman as the one he left behind him. They will be strangers who will have to get acquainted all over again, and it will be far harder for them to adjust themselves to each other than it was when they were a bridal couple, because they are older and less adaptable and because each has developed characteristics with which the other does not know how to deal.

The soldier, walking his dreary sentry beat at night, or crouching in his foxhole with death hovering near, dreams of his girl wife, young and pretty and gay and light-hearted, and, no matter how much he loves her, it is a shock when he comes home to her and finds her a sobered, mature woman who has lost her playful, kittenish ways and who looks older than she is.

The wife cheers herself through her lonely, anxious waiting by picturing her husband as the slim, handsome, gallant lad, with a laugh in his eyes and a jest on his lips, who left for the Front. She will not let herself think of him as maimed or disfigured, or as broken by disease or shattered nerves. Yet these things will happen.

Patience, Sympathy Needed Upon Reunion

So I think it is going to be a much harder job to be a good husband and a good wife after the war than it was before. It is going to take a lot of love and patience and sympathy and understanding and philosophy to enable married couples to get back into the old routine. For many a man who his wife thought was as housebroken as Fido has reverted to the wild. Many a plodder has gotten the wanderlust and cannot settle down to supporting his family. And may a man who used to be the sunshine of the home will be its storm-center.

And the same changes have taken place in women. The clinging-vine wife, the baby-doll wife, the Patient Griselda wife are as extinct as the Dodo. The domestic wife and the good cook wife are passing. With these men knew how to deal, but with the new type wife that the war has evolved he is practically helpless. For how can he lay down the law to the woman who makes more money than he does and is a better man than he is?

So to be a good husband or a good wife after the war is going to take some doing.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP). — Joe McCarthy, who had so much trouble finding adequate replacements for his Yankee infield this year, once was second baseman in a Louisville infield that played 232 consecutive games without substitution. The string was broken June 24, 1917, when Johnny Corriden, now a Dodger coach, missed a couple of games.

Making a Long Story.

When Putt Powell, Amarillo (Tex.) Globe sports editor, and Howard Lynch, High school grid coach, reached the short second hole of the local club recently, Putt magnanimously offered: "Coach, if you make a hole-in-one, I'll give you a big writeup."...Lynch whacked away with his No. 7 iron and remarked, "there you are."....Probably he made that ace with a putt and a prayer.

PTE. MARK KENNEDY

A vow of merciless warfare against German snipers has been taken by Pte. Mark Kennedy, who is serving in France with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. You see, they killed his buddy.

Pte. Kennedy, who is the son of Dan Kennedy, Ennismore, writes that he has been very lucky so far. He has had a few close calls, but says they go with the battle.

"I used to hear the old soldiers talk about France. I am here now and know quite a bit already. We are off to a good start to winding this thing up as soon as possible. I landed with the second wave of boats about one and a half hours after the first wave. Things were pretty well cleaned up in that section by the time we arrived. There are only a few snipers left. We will show them no mercy."

On the day they killed his pal, Pte. Fred Drummond, of Peterborough, was injured while fighting a hundred yards from Pte. Kennedy. The soldier said that he had not seen many Jerries yet, but had seen what they had done, which was plenty.

"We have one good thing, and that's lots of planes and with them the best pilots in the world. It is great to see an air fight, but the Germans don't think so. I saw three of their planes shot down in 15 minutes."

This letter arrived in Peterborough less than a week ago, and up to that time Pte. Kennedy had not been injured.

"You see the Germans have been quite some time in this country, and it makes us a little careful. The people are pretty poorly dressed and the children are lucky if they have shoes to wear. They think it is great when we give them a candy. They can't buy shoes, soap or things like that, as the Germans have cleaned out nearly everything. But mind you, the Germans weren't as hard on them as everyone seems ot think, although it would be no picnic living under Nazi domination.

"I came over to France on D-Day, so saw most of what went on. We were not in the first landing and things weren't too bad when we came in. This part of France we are in is a lot like Canada. The weather was fine at first, but has been raining a lot lately. We have some big guns over here, and when the naval firing power is brought into play, it shakes everything for miles.

"I am back on despatch riding, and it is my job to take messages up to our outfits in the front lines. Doing this job, I am glad I learned my map reading. We have to stick to the roads most of the time because of mines. These Germans are very clever people as far as war goes."

W.O. SYDNEY ATKINSON

Warrant Officer Sydney Atkinson, of Roseneath, has almost completed his first tour of operations with the Tiger Squadron overseas. He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Atkinson (nee Ada Payne). W.O. Atkinson will be 21 in August and has been overseas since April, 1943.

Forget Style

There isn't anything more monotonous than an inactive shift on an ack-ack site, but a troop in one ack-ack unit know it isn't as prosaic as it appears.

The battery commanded by Major J. E. Builder, Hamilton, was recently complimented on what was termed one of the finest barrages ever seen. It was near Ceprano and the battery was covering the bivouac area of a squadron of Engineers and an Army Service Corps detachment. Along about ten o'clock at night a dozen or so Stukas dropped in.

As Gnr. Roy Beach, Cobourg, and Bill Daughen, Toronto, can testify, there was a lot of lead tossed around and, considering the Sappers had parked a couple of loads of high explosives practically next door, monotony didn't trouble the lads.

One gun alone threw 165 rounds into the air quicker than Sgt. Frank Pearse, Cobourg, could count them. Two Jerry planes were definite "kills" and one was a "probable." After it was all over, troop personnel looked as if they had just participated in a bath parade, rather than an active shoot. You don't worry about being properly dressed when Jerry comes to call.

Sgt. H. Pierce, of Cobourg, also with an ack-ack unit, recalls another period of intense battery activity when "D" troop billets weren't so healthy. A shell tore the corner off one bed completely, but left the occupant undisturbed for all of the half second it took him to answer reveille.

Another story from Italy, outlining the activities of these units, says that firing 120 rounds a minute a troop can put up a really intense barrage, as illustrated when the regiment on convoy came under a determined Stuka attack. In three to five minutes, the gunners hurled 2,990 rounds skyward in a display that accounted for at least two of the attackers.

Soldiers On Guard

"The French people are not too bad, but we don't have much to do with them or trust them very far," writes L.-Cpl. Thomas Bunker, who is serving with the 3rd Division in France.

Bright Reports Slightly Off

One of the pastimes enjoyed by Canadian soldiers in France is reading stories of the campaign in English papers, about themselves, which never happen, writes L.-Cpl. Emerald Post, who was wounded July 8, according to word received last week. The following information is pieced together from letters covering the period of June 21 to July 6.

"We are still going in a little further each day. I saw in an English paper that we had been relieved—and that was over a week ago. But so far any of us have failed to see any relief. We don't need it for a while yet, though it has been tough enough at times. I see Duffy Miller quite a lot. He lives on Maude street and is fine.

"We are doing very nicely on the eating over here. We have had new potatoes, carrots and green peas. Boy, were they good! Also had my first fresh eggs in years and chicken. Couldn't get any of that stuff in England, but there seems to be plenty of it in this part of the country. They just whistled a few shells over here a minute ago and you should see us scramble for the old hole. It's only a drop in the bucket though. Nobody bothers much now unless they light extra close.

"It has been fairly quiet lately, but Don Ross (a chum) and I have been out on a few night patrols and have had quite a time. They are a touchy bit of business, but a man gets used to it. We don't trust any of the people, though the country is not half bad. I hate to think of the French people coming back to their homes in these towns, as they are all completely ruined."

L.-Cpl. Post is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Post, Romaine street, and his wife lives on Donegal street.

The Examiner is anxious to publish letters from boys telling of their experiences in France. Families receiving such mail are asked to loan the letters to the paper where good care will be taken of them.

Girl Lost Arm Teasing Bear

NEW YORK, July 18—(AP)—The right arm of Miss Catherine Searles, 24, of Rahway, N.J., was bitten off Monday by Soc, a male polar bear at the Central Park Zoo, after, police said, the animal had been awakened in its cage at 2 a.m.

The girl, daughter of Henry Malcolm Searles, zinc manufacturer, was taken to Roosevelt Hospital for emergency surgery and was reported in a critical condition.

Police said Miss Searles with another woman and two men went to the zoo early today.

They stopped in front of the open-air cage in which "Soc" and a female polar bear, "Con," were asleep.

Police gave this version of the subsequent events:

The men whistled and shouted to wake up the bears, and then Cpl. Edward Cheney, of Manchester, Conn., waved his garrison cap through the bars. "Soc" swiped at the cap, striking it from the soldier's hand. With a branch broken from a tree nearby, the men retrieved the cap.

Miss Searles then waved her handkerchief at "Soc." The bear struck at it, his claw caught her hand and then he sank his teeth into her arm above the elbow.

Cheney and William Chick of Boston pushed lighted matches in the animal's face. When this failed they held a lighted newspaper at his snout. "Soc" released his grip.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

U.E.W., who threw away an opportunity to gain ground on St. Peter's last night in the battle for the fourth play-off position in the City League race because they failed to take care of a weakened Soldier team, and were finally beaten 9 to 8 in 10 innings, have their last chance tonight when they meet St. Peter's, their rivals, for fourth place. The Union outfit have to win this one or they are definitely out and the Saints will be definitely in. They expect to have Haddie Eakins down from Lindsay for this crucial engagement, and they are counting on the fireball offerings of the Scugog twirler to keep them in the race. St. Peter's, with an opportunity to make a playoff berth tonight by disposing of their chief opposition, will have their strongest possible team in the field, with either Gene Reynolds or Bill Moorhead doing the gunning for them. It should be a real battle, for U.E.W., after their sad effort last night, are due to come back with one of their better games in this all-important clash. The game gets away at 7 o'clock and promises to be hard fought all the way down the line.

* * * * * *

The Soldier board of strategy got all crossed up in the ninth inning of last night's game with U.E.W., and as a result there was an unusual mixup. They decided to have Tomlinson bat for Joe Dunkerley, and so far that was good strategy for the pinch-hitter came through with a hit that helped to send in the tieing run. But Tomlinson wanted a runner and U.E.W. consented. And whom do you think the Soldiers elected to do the running? Nobody else but Junkin, the next man in the batting list. So when the play on Tomlinson's hit ended there was Junkin on third when he was supposed to come up to the plate to hit. Soldiers asked for the privilege of substituting another substitute runner for the substitute runner. This time, however, U.E.W. refused to grant the request. The net result was the Military Training Centre team had to take Junkin out of the game and put Siegal in to hit for him. They won the ball game eventually, but that surely takes the dumbest-play-of-the-season award.

Westclockers Back

After a two weeks' holiday the Westclox girls' teams come back to the softball wars this week, and they will both be seen in action. The Westclox Seconds, otherwise the Baby Bens, will meet the Johnson Motors team tonight at the Bowl and will have their strongest battle array in line in the hope of giving the Outboard Marines a real argument for the honors. Helen Mark will likely do the throwing for Johnson Motors, while the Westclox Seconds choice has not been announced. Tomorrow night it will be the turn of the Westclox seniors, otherwise the Big Bens, who will also meet the Johnson Motors. The Westclockers have not had a game for nearly three weeks, since they were nosed out by Aircraft, but they are hopeful that the holiday layoff will not interfere with their playing, and that they will be able to hit their stride in their first appearance since the vacation period started. Both these games should be interesting and attract a real crowd.

Peterborough fans are going to get an opportunity on Saturday evening to see the well-known Oshawa Colts, this year playing senior B ball, perform at Riverside Park. They are coming to meet Manager Murph Chambers' Switchgear club, occupants of 1st place in the City League race, in an exhibition game that should be a treat. The ability of the Colts is an old story to Peterborough fans. The Oshawa outfit have a hard-hitting, fast-fielding team, and above all they have a two-man pitching staff that is strictly from class. Old Preem Whiteley, fogging his fast one through with as much smoke as ever, and Dean McLaughlin, with his baffling drop and puzzling change of pace, are a pair of aces, and backed by the fast-travelling Colts, they would be tough for any club to knock off. Switchgear hope to provide plenty of opposition for the classy visitors and to make Saturday's game a treat for the local followers of the game. There should be a real crowd for the Colts have never put on a disappointing show here, and they are going stronger than ever right now.

Doing All Right

That $14,700 which Sam Byrd is reported to have earned so far this season, is a few grand more than the same individual ever took down as a Yankee outfielder, and with some more months to cut in on other enticing purses, Samuel might reach the $20,000 bracket for twelve months' work, says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. Byrd appears to be a much better golfer than he was a baseball player, and under such conditions, it's only fair that his link compensation be higher than his diamond earnings. Of course, there's another side to the case, and maybe after all living expenses have been deducted, Sam will not find the golf take in excess of the ball playoff. Without any accurate information, this operator would guess the Yank contracts to Byrd were about $8,000, and there's a possibility that they may have been a thousand under this figure. However, his expenses were cared for when he was on the road, and he had a six-month layoff to improve the ball salary. In direct contrast, as a golfer, he must pay his way every playing day and also dig into the home tresury for travelling money. But as he was just a run of the mine ball player, he would have been drawing minor league pay much longer than major stipend, and the way he has responded to the ancient game, proves that his shift from the summer pastime was plenty wise.

According to Vern De Geer, Jack Littler, Kingston pro., who finished second in Kawartha Lakes tourney here Sunday, is showing some great golf these days. Writes the G. and M. sports editor: "A year ago in June dark-haired Jack Littler from Kingston's Catarqui Golf Club galloped the second 18-hole lap of the Ontario Open in 70 blows, two below Royal York's par 72, and landed his second important links title in 19 seasons. Littler put together rounds of 76 and 70 for 146 that gave him the Open title by a margin of two strokes over his old pal, Bob Burns of Weston. Sunday at Peterborough, Jack needed pars at the 17th and 18th to finish runner-up to Bob Burns in the 54-hole Kawartha Open, but ran into a pair of fives that landed him in third place, one stroke behind Bill Kerr of Cedar Brae. Yesterday afternoon Littler prepared for the defense of his Open title today, by bagging a hole-in-one at the 200-yard eighth at Royal York. The Kingston pro played the sixth, seventh and eighth holes in seven strokes. He had a birdie two at the par three sixth, a birdie four at the long seventh and then banged home his ace at the par three with his mighty spoon. He finished out his practice round with 71, one under par.

Sporting Chile Con Carne: Of the 17 runs scored in last night's game between Soldiers and U.E.W. only five were earned. . . . The Union got three that were untainted and the winners two. . . . That tells the kind of game it was. . . . Outboard Marines have a busy week in the Girls' Softball League. . . . They play Westclox seconds tonight, the Westclox seniors Wednesday, Peterborough Lock Thursday and Aircraft on Friday. . . . After that they go on holidays, and the girls will probably feel that after this week's activity they will have earned one. . . . If St. Peter's defeat U.E.W. tonight they will have grabbed off fourth place, and the game between the Saints and Soldiers billed for Wednesday night will not have to be played. . . . If the Saints lose tonight they will still have a chance to tie the Union by beating Soldiers Wednesday. . . . The first game in the City League playoffs will be staged Thursday night when Soldiers and Plazas meet in the semi-final series, a best three-of-five affair.

Saints In Lead Of Senior O.L.A.

TORONTO, July 18—St. Catharines gained the leadership of the Senior O.L.A. with a 9-6 win over Toronto Lakeshores at Mimico last night. It was a hectic contest with 18 penalties being imposed.

Both teams were evenly matched until the final period when two quick goals by Bobby Thorpe and Moore settled the issue. Thorpe led the winners with four goals while Joe Murphy, Gord Gair and Howes had two each for Lakeshores. Syd Wright, Whitaker, McDonald and Moore were standouts for St. Catharines while Murphy, Love, Lee and Howes starred for the losers.

A Real Battle

In addition to the return grudge bout between Whipper Billy Watson and Fingers John Katan on the Tunney wrestling card tonight — and that feature should be a thriller from start to finish —there is another battle that should have the customers on the edge of their seats. That is the semi-final between Earl McCready and Al Bunny Dunlop. The latter has been causing plenty of trouble on recent cards and the customers hope to see him humiliated by the Moose. Joe Christie and Joe Maich are matched in the other bout.

The Illinois Athletic Commission has sanctioned an Aug. 7 bout for "the world's duration heavyweight championship" between New Jersey's Lee Savold and Joe Baksi. Baksi, recently rated by the National Boxing Association as the leading "outstanding boxer" behind champion Joe Louis and challengers Billy Conn and Jimmy Bivvins, trimmed Savold in their last meeting on May 27. Savold, however, defeated the Kulpmont, Pa., clouter in their first 1944 encounter.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

And the schedule games roll merrilly along. While we did not have time to see much of what was going on (Irvine Moldaver kept us too busy) we judge by the scores that were handed in that there was some mighty fine bowling, and some very close finishes. The Downey-Freeman game was good as was the Hendry-Jeffries, the, Moldaver-Martin, the Routley-Payne and the Clegg-Renaud.

Tom McMillan increased his lead in Group No. 1 and now is well out in front. In Group No. 2 there is no change as the thee top teams each won their games.

In the ladies' section Mrs. J. Arnold, by winning from Mrs. L. Yeotes, is now tied with Mrs. W. Hepburn—15 points each.

It promses to be a nce day for the tournament on Wednesday, but we are lacking in entries. Up till late Monday night we had only 10 local rinks entered. We know that there are many ladies who would like to play if they were only asked. How about it men?

Brintons Whip Quakers 15-5, Take Early Lead

Brintons, aided by some hard-hitting, trimmed Quaker Oats 15-5, in a fast-played Ladies' Softball League game Monday evening at Ashburnham Bowl.

Quakers' five runs were pushed across in the last half of the ninth, after a series of breaks paved the way for a rally.

Costly errors and sloppy fielding by Quakers helped Brintons pile up five runs in the first. With neither team scoring in the second or third, Brintons gained another four counters in the fourth, and went on to turn in two more runs in the sixth. Three more runs registered in the seventh, and another, made completely on errors, in the ninth, packaged up Brintons' total for the evening.

The Porridge team up to bat in the ninth, still had no runs to its credit. The first batter was safe on an error, and went to second on a high throw to first. Up next, June McGregor belted a hefty one into deep centre that slipped through the Brinton centre-fielder and brought both runners home. The third walked, the fourth popped to the left fielder, and the next gained first on an error. With one away, the sixth Quaker worker struck a fly to short stop. Gertie Masters, up next, hit one into centre, scoring two. Carlotta Laing then smacked out one which was muffed by three Brinton girls, all anxious to claim the fly themselves. The three let the ball go. G. Masters scored and with two away, C. Laing was caught between second and third.

Gertie Masters pitched for Quakers, fanned one and walked none. Doris Walker and Phyllis Corrigan shared twirling honors for Brintons, and between the two struck out two and walked two.

On the Quaker side of the ledger, Irene Gandy did some neat work on second base, with Betty McIvor working on the short-stop post.

1943 Champs Are Easy For Tigers

BY JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Toss out the Detroit Tigers and you find the New York Yankees way out front in the American League and the leading St. Louis Browns scrapping to stay in the First Division.

The Tigers rest in a fifth place tie and have made only occasional spurts toward the head of the class but they have been "cousins" to the Brownies while casting the evil eye on the McCarthy clan.

As Luke Sewell's men and the New Yorkers, the 1-2 clubs of the junior loop, open an important four-game series tonight in St. Louis after an open date in both big leagues, the Brownies' two game edge can be credited to the Tigers and their pitching team of Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout.

In 14 starts against the leaders, Detroit has won only three but they have found the 1943 champs a natural, beating them seven of 11.

Chicago also has been rough on the Yanks but easy for St. Louis and a positive pushover for the Boston Red Sox who go into tonight's game with a record of 10 straight victories over Chicago.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Jimmy Wilde, one of the greatest "little men" the fight game has known, outpointed Pal Moore in a furious 20-round bout at London 25 years ago to-night to retain flyweight supremacy. The champion overcame a big lead with a great two-fisted display in late rounds to gain a unanimous verdict.

For getting into "an argument that was none of his business," John Rizzio, rookie Pittsburg Pirate outfielder, was fined $25 by President Ford Frick of the National League six years ago today. Rizzio had rushed off the bench to protest a called strike again Jim Tobin and was banished by Umpire Larry Goetz.

Big Leaguers Returning To Ball Clubs

NEW YORK, July 18 — (AP).—War plants, farms and the services are returning to baseball such standout major leaguers as Frank Crosetti of the Yankees, Lou Finney of the Red Sox, Harlond Clift of the Senators, and Dick Wakefield of Tigers, who to-day hold the balance of power in the tight American League penant chase.

As the majors enjoyed a fourth successive Monday open date before resuming intersectional competition to-day, the American race was still wide open with St. Louis, New York and Boston in the front ro, but none of the others outdistanced.

Luke Sewell's Brownies, with only 22 more road dates and a two-game lead held the advantage of finishing at home as the schedule sends all Eastern teams into the West in the final two weeks of the season. The Browns and Yanks, who might be fighting it out, wind up campaign in St. Louis October 1.

Browns Stay Brown.

Although Chet Laabs and Mike Chartak rejoined the club, the Browns continued to bank on the lineup that kept them on top most of the season. Crosetti, just released from a San Francisco shipyard, was expected to take his place in the New York infield as soon as he tells Joe McCarthy he's ready, but whether he'll replace Mike Milesevich at short or play third was still undecided. Outfielder Herschel Martin had given the team a big lift since he was acquired from Milwaukee.

Boston's pitching troubles still held back the club despite its hitting power. Joe Cronin picked up Red Barrett, a capable relief man from Columbus, but still leaned heavily on Tex Hughson. Lou Finney gave the Sox even more power at the plate when he took over first base after his crops had been harvested at his Alabama farm.

Clift returned to Washington just in time. Three of the four remaining Cubans, including Third Baseman Gil Torres turned in their uniforms and headed for home, but Ossie Bluege had Clift to take over the hot corner. Although the veteran reported only a week ago and had been bothered by sore shoulder he was able to step out of retirement into the lineup. Outfielder Joe Vosnik was lured back to the Nats from Minneapolis and Catcher Al Evans was discharged from the Navy.

Sparks Detroit Hopes

When the Iowa Pre-Flight School "detached" Wakefield, the slugger joined Detroit immediately and started to wear out the opposing pitchers. Although he may not be available for long, the $52,000 dandy has sparked the Tigers flag hopes.

War plants yielded Roy Mack and Buddy Rosar to Cleveland on a port-time basis, and Connie Mack dug into the minors to replace the Athletic weak spots. Bill McGhee, purchased from Little Rock, hit so hard subbing at first base for Dick Siebert that the veteran went to the outfield when he returned. Joe Burns from Indianapolis took over the second base job and Larry Rosenthal, acquired from the Yanks by way of Newark, went to the outfield.

Soldiers Eke Out 9-8 Win From U.E.W. IN Loose Game

U.E.W.'s chances to make a play-of position slipped back a bit last night when the Union team was beaten 9 to 8 by Soldiers in about the loosest tussle of the whole season.

The winners, who had to come from behind three times, finally took the verdict in the last of the tenth when a double by Ossie Anderson drove in the winning run, with two out.

Both teams played weird ball in the field, U.E.W. making nine misplays and the Soldiers erring 11 times, and the pitchers, Don Isaac for the Union and Earl Revoir for the Military Training Centre, were in hot water all night.

It was an especially tough game for young Isaac to lose for he held the winners to seven hits and flailed a homer with two on that might have won the verdict for him had it not been for the costly boots of his team mates. Revoir, too, got little help and the runs scored by both teams were for the most part decidedly cheap.

In the midst of the sloppy defensive work there were a few fielding gems at that. Isaac for U.E.W. started a doubleplay when he snared a vicious drive from Revoir's bat. Quigley pulled a screamer from Cavanagh down to reel off another twin killing and Murduff had a diving catch of a fly to short centre. Anderson started a fast double play for the winners and Chambers went over behind first to make a nice catch.

Soldiers were short a number of their regulars with Morgan, Mortimer, McIlveen and Herrick all absent.

U.E.W. scored two in the first on a pass to Quigley, Murduff's double, an error by Beattie and Harding's sacrifice bunt, but Soldiers got those back in the second on Dunkerley's single, an error by Quigley, an infield out and Harding's low throw home.

Pitcher Gets Homer

Beattie's safe bunt and a couple of errors gave the winners a run in the third but U.E.W. went out in front in the fourth when Doughty singled, Griffin got a life on Anderson's fumble and Isaac drove a long homer over Joe Dunkerley's head in left to score three runs.

Two more U.E.W. errors and a fielder's choice gave the Soldiers another marker in the sixth to make it 5 to 4 and they scored the tieing run in the seventh on a three-base error by Girard who made a bad toss to first trying to nip Cavanagh off that base and the runner went all the way home.

Once again U.E.W. went ahead in the eighth when Harding led off with a single over third and Doughty tripled to centre to score Harding and go home himself when the throw got away from Junkin.

A walk to Junkin and an error after Chambers' single to left gave Soldiers a marker in their half and they tied it up in the last of the ninth. With one away Cavanagh dropped a single into right. Procyk flied to centre. Tomlinson, batting for Dunkerley, singled to centre, and when the throw-in got away, Cavanagh scored with the run that tied it up.

U.E.W. got a soft run in the first of the tenth when Doughty, first up was safe on Anderson's error, and made the circuit on a couple of wild pegs.

That made it 8 to 7, but Soldiers pulled the game out of the fire in their half. Chambers opened with a double over third but Isaac fanned Paris and Revoir and looked to be out of the woods. However Beattie walked. A passed ball let Chambers score the tieing run and then Anderson broke up the game with his double to right centre.

Newark Bears Down Syracuse

By The Associated Press

When a hot pitcher and a hot ball club team up, the result is almost always a victory. Which is what happened last night when Floyd Bevens, by defeating Syracuse, 10-2, for his seventh straight win, pitched the Newark Bears to their 15th triumph in their last 17 starts.

Bevens, however, pulled a muscle in his back and may be lost to the Bears for several days. This would hurt the Bears, currently the hottest club in the International League.

The Bears' 14-hit attack was highlighted by Steve Kuk's inside-the-park home run, as Newark raked starter George Woodend and three relief hurlers.

Rochester salvaged the last of a four game series from Montreal when they defeated the League leaders, 7-5. The Royals had the game under control until the eighth, when four hits coupled with two errors by Barney Koch formed the basis for a five run Red Wing rally.

Ireland's Thrush May Quit Stage For Boxing Again

BELFAST, July 17—(CP)—Handsome Jack Doyle, Ireland's tenor boxer, is doing more singing than boxing these days.

He's playing the vaudeville houses in Northern Ireland and Eire with his pretty little Arizona-Mexican wife, Movita, and claims he's serious about improving his voice. Right now he's still an undeveloped tenor without much stage personality, but the crowds here like him.

Jack hasn't fought for nearly a year, and isn't particularly anxious as long as the show business holds up.

"I don't like to fight anyway," says Jack. "What I like is the mazuma. When I need some cash I'll have a fight or two."

Although he says he's only 30 now, big Jack started fighting about 12 years ago. Back in 1933 he met Jack Peterson for the British heavyweight tilt but was disqualified for hitting low. That cost him six month's suspension from the ring.

Jack Dempsey got interested in Doyle's right hand and the 235-pound Irishman went to the United States, making it clear that he expected to pick up about two and a half million dollars fighting and making movies. He did get himself fame in Hollywood, mostly through his romantic problem.

In between times he was back in Britain, where he got himself another disqualification for hitting Alf Robinson when the latter was down.

King Levinsky

King Levinsky came to London and Doyle beat him at Wembley Stadium April 27, 1937. A plan for him to fight Tommy Farr fell through. In the second round of a fight with Eddie Phillips in 1938 Doyle tumbled from the ring and was counted out. When he tried a comeback the following year Phillips knocked him out in the first round. His money ran low and he began to appear on the stage. On at least one occasion he was booed. In a Dublin ring June 12, 1932, Chris Cole, also an Irishman, stopped the tenor with quick rights and lefts to the face in the first round.

Two months later Doyle was back again, and this time he had more fight in him. Butcher Howell of Cork put him down twice but he got up and kayoed the Butcher in the third round.

His manager says Doyle may do more fighting when his current stage tour is finished. He says Doyle might even fight for the British Empire heavyweight title. Little Movita, a veteran of stage and film, outshines her husband on the stage. But the crowds yell for Jack to sing the old Irish songs, and sometimes he obliges after he has given them an operatic air.

Movita says she would like to entertain the troops, but the ban on travel from Ireland has kept here here. If she eventually succeeds, Jack may find himself back in the ring looking for the "masuma."

TORONTO, July 18 — (CP). — The fast tempo of modern life on the baseball diamond is bewildering to the uninitiated who harks back to pre-war days when the professional ranks were as hard to crash as a very posh bootlegger's establishment. Now it's getting so some of the teams look like High School squads.

Extensive experience isn't required of the would-be matriculate either, as long as they can take a cut at the ball and wing the pellet around the field. Latest example of this rags-to-riches theory is 18-year-old Reg Clarkson of Vancouver.

Reg played his first baseball only last summer, but he caught on so fast Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast loop signed him for a tryout next spring. Scout Bob Brown of Rainiers reported Clarkson was still green, but he can hit and throw and is fast, so he stands a good chance of sticking with the Seattlites.

Incidentally:

The claiming war at West Coast race tracks has become so spirited that an owner never knows from one day to the next what his stable will consist of. Things reached such a pass, Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell reports, that Ritchie Munro entered Bill G., and seven claims were filed by rival horse owners before they discovered Munro had entered the stable goat and mascot as a joke....Man the first-aid kit, Jean Pusie is back in the lacrosse brawls with Valleyfield in the Quebec League. New City Hall Sites Are To Be Discussed

Preliminary action on two Peterborough post-war undertakings, erection of a new city hall and completion with possible enlargement of the sewage disposal plant, was contemplated in steps of approach by the city council Monday night.

W. R. L. Blackwell, architect, is being requested to attend a meeting of the council in committee Tuesday evening, July 25, to begin definite discussions of the site of the city hall, gift to the city by the will of the late W. G. Morrow.

And a motion by Aldermen Bradburn and Dutton proposed to City Engineer Parsons that he examine the existing plans of the sewage disposal plant in respect to more recent improvements in methods of disposal, generally to revise them in the light of modern practice and report to the council.

As the council concluded its routine business half an hour earlier than usual, Mayor Hamilton again broached the subject of the necessity of getting plans under way for post-war construction and employment on the several works which were recognized as necessities. As to a new city hall, progress should be made now on the decision of a location as a means of assisting the architect in drafting plans for the structure.

Alderman Dutton said he had two choices, the present site at Simcoe and Water streets as one, and the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, west of the postal-customs building for which the federal government had purchased the land required.

Alderman Glover favored the Simcoe-Water streets location, because it was central and also because it precluded the buying of another site.

"The late Mr. Morrow was a business man," said Alderman Glover, "and I believe he would have liked to see us build a modern office building for the convenience of the public and also of the staff who will work there in the years to come."

"Where would you put the market?" Mayor Hamilton asked.

"Alderman Glover: "Down on our own property on the west side of George street, opposite the wharf. A market is used only one day a week and we are getting in revenue from it only $150 a month."

Mayor Hamilton replied that in his opinion a market should be a central place, and should be confined to the ground floor. "We can't judge the market on its business of the last few years. Farmers haven't time to bring their produce into the city. They haven't enough help, but I feel that a market can be an important feature of our city, and I am afraid that as it is we have been driving trade away from here that would be a real benefit to Peterborough."

Alderman Dutton commented that with plans for additional highways, radiating in all directions, Peterborough would have the opportunity of becoming a greater marketing and business centre than it ever had been, and that a promising future was a definite promise. "There is no other place nearer than Oshawa that can be regarded as an important marketing centre as I visualize in the future. The present market hall upstairs is a farce. When we had a tent outside, after the fire that closed the market hall for some of one summer, we saw how much that ground floor accommodation was appreciated by farmers."

Alderman Bradburn questioned the suggestion by Alderman Glover of the George street site between Townsend and Rink streets. He said he believed that it should be more central, and mentioned the property owned by the federal government at the north-east corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. People included their market purchases with their shopping, Alderman Bradburn said, and if they had to go away down George street for farm produce they were not likely to go back again uptown to do any shopping.

Alderman Glover remarked that the south George street property was becoming more central all the time.

As to the city hall proposal for George and Aylmer streets, Alderman Sullivan said that civic and government buildings tended to depreciate their areas as business sections. That was a general experience elsewhere, and he did not consider it fair to present property owners on Charlotte street a federal building and civic building in that area. In fact Alderman Sullivan added that it might not be too late to ask the Dominion government to get some other property for their customs-postal building.

Mayor Hamilton said it was altogether unlikely that the Dominion government would reconsider their investment at Charlotte and Louis streets.

That was the trend of the discussion tentatively moving toward a site, and the subject was left open for more definite consideration next week.

City Council Names McIntyre Inspector Of Buildings

Malcolm McIntyre was appointed building inspector on a part time basis at a salary of $1,200 by the city council last night on the recommendation of a special committee composed of Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Swanston and Sullivan. His duties begin on July 24.

Alderman Swanston, presenting the committee report, said that the position had been advertised, and a number of applications were received.

Mr. McIntyre, a former alderman with long experience in the civic service, is engaged "to see that the requirements of the building bylaw are carried out."

Although the projected barn for housing of the horses used in the collection of garbage was not included in the work discussed by the committee with Mr. McIntyre, it was decided to ask him to assume the inspection supervision in co-operation with City Engineer Parsons.

"We can't get a better man to do it," Alderman Herbert Bradburn remarked, "and I think that probably he will do it if we ask him."

Mr. McIntyre is a practical building contractor, and has had extensive inspection experience including the enlargement of the Collegiate Institute when the Vocational School wing and other departments were added to it.

May Begin Today

The appointment of Mr. McIntyre was moved by Alderman Swanston and seconded by Alderman Sullivan, and was unanimously supported.

The property committee's recommendation of the acceptance of the Eastwood Construction Company's tender of $22,031 for the horse barn on the incinerator property, Townsend street, was accepted by the council.

Alderman Swanston, chairman, said he had consulted members of the City Trust Commission, and had been informed that they were agreeable to providing the funds for this work. The Commission has already passed a resolution to that effect.

"There have been some questions as to why we are building a horse barn," Alderman Swanston stated. "The property committee considered this matter carefully, and obtained information from Mr. Bradley, who is in charge of garbage collection in Toronto. We also enquired about delivery costs from Alderman Dutton and Ovens and others. What we were told was that for distances of one to two miles, on this kind of work, the horse-drawn vehicles were the more economical. Those distances are about what we have to cover, and we concluded that horses were preferable for garbage collection at least for our time, any way."

Alderman Swanston said he expected the Eastwood Construction Company to begin the work on their contract probably Tuesday afternoon. He also suggested to the council that some thought should be given to building a second consuming unit at the incinerator, as provided for in the original plans.

Addition To Incinerator

"Since the incinerator was built a large section of North Monaghan decided to come in with us, and to handle the extra garbage that will be collected from those several areas we will have to make some arrangement, either increase the staff and put on another shift or put in an extra burning unit. The incinerator is now being operated pretty close to its capacity, but the North Monaghan collections will add that much more to the burners we have in use."

Alderman Swanston mentioned the recent expression of satisfaction with the collection of garbage under civic administration as reported from the Local Council of Women to the Examiner.

And Mayor Hamilton added: "I am afraid it is costing us some money, but it is working out very well."

Destroyer Huron Chases Trawlers

A BRITISH PORT, July 18—(CP Cable)—Paced by her top-scoring sister destroyer, Haida, H.M.C.S. Huron, commanded by Cmdr. H. S. Rayner, D.S.C., R.C.N., of Grimsby, Ont., put her battle record up one notch by teaming up with H.M.S. Tartar and taking on five enemy trawlers recently off St. Malo harbour.

The action took place a few days before the British Tartar teamed with the Canadian Haida and a Polish destroyer Saturday to sink two enemy craft and fire a third off Lorient.

The Huron, a busy craft since she arrived in the Channel as third member of the team made up originally of the Haida, the Athabaskan and herself, sighted the enemy ships close to the shore and immediately opened fire.

The small force of trawlers offered no opposition and retired in disorder under cover of a smoke screen to hide among some coastal islands. But the Tartar reported both she and the Huron scored repeated hits as they chased the fleeing enemy until heavy shore batteries made the water unhealthy.

Shrapnel splinters splattered the Huron during the case and two crewmen were slightly wounded.

Tories Oppose Powers Given Minister

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — Making steady progress despite occasional sharp wordy tilts on controversial issues, the Commons today entered its second day of prolonged sittings with morning, afternoon and evening meetings.

Yesterday it passed Senate amendments to the Flections Act with an additional amendment passed a bill to provide for salaries of the new minister of reconstruction and veterans affairs to be appointed soon; gave first reading to the Family Allowances Bill and plodded through amendments to the Aeronautics and Transport Acts in Committee of the Whole.

On the aeronautics measure, which received third reading, Progressive Conservative members resumed their earlier opposition to what they claimed was the vesting of too much power in the Minister responsible for the administration of the Act. At present this Minister is Munitions Minister Howe, but normally it is the Minister of Transport.

Amendments Beaten

Three Progressive Conservative amendments, all designed to limit the Minister's power, were defeated with Mr. Howe saying the authority was necessary for efficient operation.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) presented and argued in favor of an amendment to eliminate the power given the Minister to approve or disapprove the grant of licences for Air Line operation when issued by the proposed Air Transport Board.

The House rejected the Amendment by a vote of 43-15, after M. Howe said granting of licences involved more often matters of policy than matters of law and in such matters the control should rest with a minister who was responsible to parliament.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver South) said he wanted to have appeals for decisions of the Board made to the Governor-in-Council instead of to the Minister as provided in the Bill. The Amendment was defeated, 43-22, after he was supported by two Liberal members of Calgary East and Manley Edwards of Calgary West.

Later Mr. Green moved another Amendment which would have given authority for any air carrier whose licence had been suspended to appeal to the Governor-In-Council, rather than to the Minister. It was defeated, 35-17.

Mr. Howe accepted a suggestion made earlier in the Debate by Mr. Diefenbaker and moved an Amendment providing that an appeal might be taken from the Air Transport Board to the Supreme Court of Canada on a question of jurisdiction or of law, or both, upon leave being granted by a judge of this court.

During discussion of the Bill, Mr. Howe said he felt young men would be ill-advised if when they returned from overseas they sought to buy used military aircraft to start Commercial Air Services.

He said it was government policy to sell used aircraft when they were no longer needed and this was being done. But it would be "unwise" for returned airmen to buy such aircraft. They would be wiser to buy suitable commercial type aircraft built for the particular purpose.

140,000 Men In Canada On Active List

OTTAWA, July 18 —(CP)— Approximately 140,000 men who enlisted in the Canadian army for active service now are in Canada, Defence Minister Ralston said Monday in a tabled reply to a question from John Diefenbaker (P.C.—Lake Centre).

Col. Ralston said that probably 50,000 or more "are or can be made available as reinforcements for overseas service." Another 50,000, he said, are of an age or military category which prevented them serving overseas, although some might be sent for special duty.

He added that there were 24,000 men who, while "not definitely unsuitably" for overseas service are in age groups, medical categories or ranks "such that only a limited number of them can be absorbed within establishments of the overseas army."

He said that 10,000 men were employed on the staffs of administrative, training and servicing units in Canada and 8,500 of them were members of the Veterans' Guard.

Col. Ralston said that "as many as possible" of the 10,000 staff men were being withdrawn for overseas service, "but some will no doubt have to be retained permanently in Canada because their duties fit general service volunteers or because of special knowledge and experience which makes it difficult to obtain suitable replacements."

Oil Company Refuses To Discuss Removal Of Ashburnham Tanks

A letter from R. A. Burns, British-American Oil Company sales manager for Central Ontario, was interpreted by the council Monday night as refusal to discuss removal of their tanks from the central part of Ashburnham as promised by their representative last February.

The company through their spokesman at that time gave a definite undertaking to come to Peterborough, Alderman Glover recalled last night, and Alderman Dutton described their letters as merely evading the issue which they created.

"Well, it looks as if they are not going to accede to our recent requests," Mayor Hamilton commented.

The council has been asking the company to do what they said they would do, discuss with Ashburnham residents the gasoline tank problem.

Few Fatalities

Mr. Burns affirmed that in thirty-eight years there had not been a gas tank fatality across Canada. Eyebrows were lifted at that assertion, and something was said about a Belleville incident, but memories could not definitely place an exception to the Burns claim.

"Ridiculous," was the Dutton comment, "if it had not been for the good work of our firemen there is no knowing what might have happened the night of the British-American fire."

City Solicitor Huycke told the council "You can't put them out of there any way, if they don't want to go. They were there before your bylaw was passed. You might try to expropriate the property if you wished to go that far."

Alderman Bradburn: "Well, they'll get a lot of adverse publicity around Peterborough."

Alderman Sullivan: "They disregard public opinion."

The Burns letter was sent on the finance committee.

Alderman Urges Projects Review

Alderman Jack Sullivan is frankly trying to persuade the chairmen of council committees that, if they would review their affairs at least once a month, that closer contact would be maintained with projects under way or approved, and especially as to whether anything has been begun in some instances.

He reported Monday night that the fire and light committee of which he is chairman had been discussing the alternatives of increased fire protection to conform with the necessities and rights of the incoming suburbanites of North Monaghan.

Whether to enlarge the central fire hall and concentrate all equipment there or build an auxiliary station in the south end, was the choice, Alderman Sullivan said, and difference of opinion had arisen in committee. The chairman said that at conventions he had heard fire chiefs express their preference for the central station plan partly because it provided for more direct supervision of staff. And it was less expensive.

Make More Space.

The committee has also had trees removed from the east side of Aylmer street, opposite the Fire Hall, to "provide "elbow room" for apparatus turning out of the hall in going to fires, and some alteration on the curb was to be made by the Board of Works.

"And the City Trust is going to try to get the exterior of the fire hall painted in the next two months. The firemen look after the interior themselves with the paint we buy," Alderman Sullivan said, and added that some time had been spent on enquiry of a pension plan and a report might be completed for an early meeting of the council.

Men's Wear Merchants Urged To Advertise

Men's wear merchants were urged by Warren K. Cook, chairman, National Council of Clothing Manufacturers, to do more and better newspaper advertising at a meeting of the Ontario Retail Men's Wear Association in Toronto recently.

"I believe the advertising of men's stores in Canada is about the worst in the world," said Mr. Cook. "I think it will be necessary for you to spend more money in better advertising. It's amazing and deplorable how little newspaper advertising is done by men's wear merchants in Canada.

"Intensive planning in buying, selling and advertising will be necessary if you are to get your share of the consumer's dollar in the future," he warned the men's wear merchants.

Missing Man Found On Keene Road

John Peck, elderly inmate of the House of Providence, who wandered away from that institution Sunday morning was found today by Acting Chief John Thompson and Officer John Stevenson of the city police department on the Keene Road, a mile south of Highway 7.

Peck made his way east on Highway 7 and on Sunday and Monday nights was given shelter at the farm home of Alex. Graham, Otonabee. A telephone message received by the police department this morning stated that the missing man was at the Graham home, but when the officers investigated they learned that he had left there an hour before, travelling south on the Keene Road.

A few minutes afterward they found the man sitting under a tree in front of a school house and brought him back to the House of Providence.

8,000-Bag Yield Of Milkweed Harvest Hope

Eight thousand bags of milkweed pods from the natural growth in Peterborough county is an expected harvest that is being assigned as an objective to the boys and girls who are going to be asked to make this special effort as a means of supplying a substitute for kapok required in the manufacture of life-saving equipment for Allied sailors and airmen.

Essentially this is a patriotic appeal to the school age generation, but they will also be paid twenty cents a bag as compensation for their work in helping to surmount the emergent scarcity of material resulting from the continuing control by the Japanese of the kapok plantations in Java.

This information scanning prospects for September was given to the Examiner today by Dr. H. A. Senn, Ottawa, of the federal Department of Agriculture, completing a dual purpose survey of district farms, and incidentally fields, Monday and Tuesday in quest of milkweed.

Hunting Recruits

Dr. Senn was introduced both in the milkweed experiment in the seeding last year a group of farm lots in the hope of obtaining this season a supply of milkweed leaves for use in the making of synthetic rubber in this country, and also in the plan of recruiting boys and girls to pick milkweed pods this autumn. He was accompanied by Dr. E. M. Harrison of Michigan State Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich., and Dr. B. B. Robinson of the fibre crop division of the United States Department of Agriculture Washington, and Frank C. Paterson, county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The visitors from the United States were particularly interested in the milkweed cultivation experiment, but thy are likewise looking to Canada for an abundant supply of pods of milkweed floss this season as a satisfactory substitute for kapok for the vitally important but unobtainable kapok.

Dr. Senn told the Examiner that details of the pod-harvest will be announced throughout Ontario, and in the meantime he is suggesting to the children of the country and also of the city that they spot during the summer rounds of field and roadsides milkweed plants that with promise of pods for September picking.

Crop Disappoints.

The 1943 plantation of milkweed seed is generally a disappointment, Dr. Senn said at the Empress this afternoon.

"The best field we visited is that of Walter Bowles in Cavan Township, and there are some others looking fairly good for our original purpose of trying to get by the handiwork of man a supply of leaves for the synthetic rubber industry in this country," Dr. Senn said. "Some of the fields of last year's sowing have already been abandoned. Results on others suggest that they might as well go the same way, but I cannot speak about this matter of policy until I have reported back to Ottawa.

Nature has held back from us its secret of producing milkweed, and there is nothing much at present that we can do about it. It is obvious that the establishment of cultivated fields of milkweed takes longer than we expected.

"I think it may be said that we will harvest some of the fields, but we cannot get from them the quantity of leaves we had estimated. To the farmers who have co-operated with us I would like to say we appreciate their help, and also the great deal of supervisory work done by Mr. Paterson of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. I think most farmers were eager to have a real crop of milkweed for us this year, not only for the cash return but also because they wanted to help in this patriotic experiment."

Dr. Senn's information in regard to the floss harvesting will be published later. He left late this afternoon for Ottawa, accompanied by Dr Harrison and Dr. Robinson.

Young Campers Provide Circus

A circus at which the girls of the Y.W.C.A. Camp Inglestane were guests of the boys at Camp Kawartha on Clear Lake was a highlight of the second week in the outdoors at the Y's Men's Boys' camp at the end of last week. The camp site took on the appearance of a tented city with blankets serving as canvass to build tents of many shapes and colors; and there were many prominent circus characters including midgets, giants, sword swallowers, comic photographers, guessing contests, weight scales, fortune tellers, Swami the Great, the Great Frog act and snake charmers.

The girls on their arrival were given a royal welcome by the circus brass band under the direction of Norman Dallin. Bill Lech was in charge of a special waterfront program which produced keen competition between the boy and girl war canoe teams; while in a councillors' canoe race, the boys and girls broke even with one win apiece. Following swimming races for the boys and girls, Stan McBride and Bill Lech, two of Canada's finest swimmers, put on an excellent exhibition of speed swimming.

There was also a cafeteria supper and sports program, and a big campfire brought to a close a very enjoyable day in camp. The boys of Camp Kawartha are to be guests at Camp Inglestane later in the month.

With The Tourists

By DON McGIBBON

"As far as rationing is concerned, I think you people in Canada are much better off than we in the States," says H. G. Anderson, from Warren, Ohio, in Peterborough this morning prior to going to Pigeon Lake where he will vacation.

"And another thing I'd like to let people know," he said, "is that we tourists think Peterborough has better stores and articles for sale than any other city of its size, either Canadian or American."

He said that in his part of the States much electrical equipment, including lamps, and practically all galvanized merchandise, are not available, but that he had seen both in noticeable evidence in Peterborough. As an in-a-word description of the Canadian system of liquor rationing, Mr. Anderson offered "tough."

In a party with Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Lawrence, of Meadeville, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smallenberger and son, also of Meadeville, they have been spending summers here for more than 10 years.

"All the old resorts we've been accustomed to staying at are all filled this year," said Mr. Anderson, "and we're trying out a new place today. It's called Calvert Camp and they say it's very good," he said.

"Generally, your system of food rationing appears to be much more simplied than our in the States," said B. H. Briggs, of Elma, N.Y.

"I know that we haven't had any difficulties with ration problems here, and off the record, I'd say Canadians get off much lighter than their neighbors south of the border," he said.

Mr. Briggs also said he was extremely pleased with the efficiency and courtesy of all officials he has come into contact with in Peterborough and Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Smith, Williams Lake, Pontiac, Mich., are in Peterborough this week, the guests of Capt. W. Jones, well-known member of the Peterborough fire department, and Mrs. Jones.

Mr. Smith explained the American point rationing system, and said he didn't think there was much difference in the Canadian and American systems of rationing food. He pointed out that American buyers, when purchasing food, received tokens as change from a point coupon, while in Canada the entire value of a coupon is surrendered on any purchase.

"We are more severely rationed than Canadians," he said, "and my wife and I have to save our entire ration point value for a week in order to buy enough meat for a single meal."

He said if he bought cheese he couldn't buy butter and vice versa. Gas rationing is much the same in America as in Canada, he said, telling how an American driver always gets an "A" card for personal driving and then an "occupational card" for driving to work or for use in connection with business. Shoes, of which Americans are allowed one pair per six months, are also a difficult point in the American ration problem. Mr. Smith said that factories and plants are helping out by allowing workers an extra pair of shoes for working purposes.

Meat not being on the rationed list, is a good reason for Canadians to rejoice, he said. Although only roast-beef and steaks are rationed in the States, it was next to impossible to get meat anyway.

Mr. Smith's son, Flight Engineer Jack Smith, in the U.S. Army Air Corps, was born in Peterborough.

H. Moseley, Waterford, N.Y., thinks that stores in Peterborough seem to be able to sport more articles now scarce in the States, at attractive prices, than most other places he's visited.

"Yes, the Canadian cost-of-living does seem to be way down," he said, "and there isn't much to complain about your rationing system either."

"It's wonderful to think that two countries can be so close, speaking the same language, eating the same type of foods, and reading the same magazines," Mr. Moseley said.

"Of course, there's one thing very different over here, and that is you can't stop at any restaurant and order a cocktail, or a highball, but naturally that's a matter of personal choice."

Mr. Moseley has been visiting this district for more than 18 years, and when you consider all the places in the United States he might visit it resembles something of a huge way of saying this country is what tourists want.

The fishing and the weather has been excellent during his stay here, "which it always is," as Mr. Moseley puts it.

He is staying at his brother's cottage near Pigeon Lake.

Alderman Lands In Court Begins Campaign To Remove "Traffic Trap" Near Cathedral

The maze of stop signs at Reid and Hunter streets through which Alderman Glover landed in police court with subsequent protest and expostulation that the locality is a traffic trap, is to be examined by City Engineer Parsons and Chief Thompson for their opinion as to what changes should be made for the safest direction of motorists.

This action was taken by the council Monday night on a Glover motion, seconded by Alderman Ovens. If memory serves aright, it was ex-Alderman Gordon who recommended that Hunter street on the west side of St. Peter's Cathedral be made a stop street for traffic going up and down Reid street.

It seems that Mr. Gordon argued in council that reckless driving which he had observed "roller-coasting" over the Reid street knoll at the Cathedral was potentially dangerous to the large number of people frequently crossing Reid street to the Cathedral, and he also said that some action should be taken to check the speed of cars zooming past St. Peter's school.

At that time the council fell in with Mr. Gordon's apprehensions. and Reid street traffic was halted at Hunter street. Now, Alderman Glover regards it as a traffic trap and City Engineer Parsons indicated last night that he fully concurred in that estimate.

Civic Employees Working Year Given Holidays

All employees of the city who have been at least a year on the municipal payroll will receive a week's vacation with pay by a resolution of Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Glover at Monday night's council meeting. It was unanimously adopted, and comes into effect immediately.

While the council was heartily in favor of extending this recognition of service to the entire civic staff, one of the members remarked that it was not going to help City Engineer Parsons, who is struggling along with minimum labor, and finds it impossible to get additional help for the work that should be done.

Approval of construction of four stretches of concrete sidewalk was received Monday night from the Ontario Municipal Board. One of them is at Wolfe and Stewart streets, fronting the new C.G.E. plastics building, and should get early attention, but assuming new work is almost outside the range of the department's program this season.

Calcium chloride or oil treatment of boundary streets was authorized by a Dutton motion. This will include Albertus avenue on the west side of the city, which Alderman Bradburn has been urging upon official notice with such phrases of exigency as "terrible condition."

This motion presumably expects that the township will contribute to the cost of dust-laying on boundary streets, and it was expected that some satisfactory bargain could be made.

Returning Men

"Isn't there something this community can do to show to the men of the three services who are coming back to civil life that we all appreciate what they have done for us," asked Alderman Sands, and after some discussion the little problem of obtaining advance information was turned over to the Sands legal and reception committee for their deliberation.

"I can remember that the first thing I did when I became a member of the council years ago was to meet some soldier at the station," Mayor Hamilton recalled. He said he agreed heartily with Alderman Sands, and related one recent experience in which telegraphic word was received here that a soldier was on his way home to Peterborough. Arrangements were made to meet him, but he did not arrive as announced, "and I haven't heard anything more about him," His Worship said. "I think the Rehabilitation and Co-ordinating committees have been considering this question," Mayor Hamilton said, and to that Alderman Sands commented: "Can't this council do something ourselves?"

The federal government has provided the facility of telegraphing, free of charge, to their relatives, immediately on arrival in Canada, informing them when they expected to reach home, City Clerk Outram stated.

The reception committee will immediately undertake to enquire into circumstances of dispersal of men of all services after their arrival at district or other headquarters.

Transport Driver Is Fined $10 And Costs

After a hearing that had to be carried on into an afternoon session of the police court, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., registered a conviction Monday in a charge against John T. McGowan, transport driver, of careless driving on Highway 28.

His Worship found on the evidence that McGowan had been careless in not keeping his heavy vehicle on its right side of the road.

The charge arose out of a collission between the transport driven by McGowen and an automobile driven by J. A. Moore, a farmer living on Highway 28.

William Addyman, McGowan's employer, conducted the defence and addressed the court at considerable length. The prosecution was looked after by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Magistrate Langley fined McGowan $10, with costs of $9.50.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Pte. Bruce J. Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cunninghom, 169 Albertus street, is serving overseas with the R.C.A.M.C. Before enlisting he was employed at Genelco and he formerly lived at Fraserville, where he has a sister, Mrs. Leigh Hewitt.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE—Pte. Fred A. De Laire has been severely wounded in France, according to word received by his wife, living in Lindsay. His wounds were described as a compound fracture of the left humourus and right chest.

Pte. F. DeLaire Badly Wounded

To the growing list of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders from Peterborough wounded in action in the invasion of France, is added the name of Pte. Fred A. De Laire, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. De Laire, 467 Elm street.

Word was received Monday by the 24-year-old soldier's wife, formerly Gertrude Crowley, now living in Lindsay, that Pte. De Laire was wounded by bomb fragments in the chest and left arm, and is also suffering from a compound fracture of the left humourus and right chest.

The date he was wounded was not given, but in a letter to his mother written July 5, Pte. De Laire told of being well, in the best of health, and also of meeting his brother Leo in the front lines in France.

Pte. De Laire enlisted in the S.D. and G. Highlanders when that unit recruited in 1940, and went overseas in the summer of the following year. Previous to his enlistment, he was employed by the Bonner-Worth Company. A brother, Sapper Leo De Laire is with the Engineers, and is serving with a bridging platoon somewhere in France.

The youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. De Laire is a veteran of the Sicily and Italy invasions, and has been wounded twice while fighting in that theatre of war. He is Pte. Sylvester De Laire, 22, and was one of the first Canadian soldiers to land in Sicily. During that fight, his ankle was severely wounded, and he was returned to a hospital for treatment. Later, he recovered enough to rejoin the Canadians in Italy. Once, a bomb landed 4 feet from the young saldier, but failed to explode. He is now in a hospital in England, after being wounded in the thigh in Italy.

Harvey School Makes $20 For War Victims

There is something both fascinating and of interest in telling of the achievements of young children, particularly in a field of usefulness which has as its object the constructive act of doing a really good turn for other people who through no fault of their own have come to be in dire circumstances.

Scohool section No. 7 Harvey is a group of only twelve children taught by Mrs. Margaret B. Hall of Buckhorn, but they are made of the stuff that makes real men and women.

Last November this group of children sent in a contribution of $30.00 to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, the experience of which acted as an inspiration to do further good deeds on behalf of the same objects, so they set to work at selling tickets for a Pyrex set, and then served a lunch which is responsible for another gift of $20.00 in to-days receipts for the fund.

When one considers that during the last school year these twelve children made a total of $50.00 for this one fund alone, besides doing other work on behalf of the war effort, it can be readily seen this works out at over $4.00 per capita, tribute to their fidelity to a good cause, which reflects much credit on both themselves, and the leadership of their teacher.

Iin the days that lie ahead, these young folk on reaching a more mature age, will be able to look forand reflect with a great deal of pleasure at their taking advantage of the opportunity that was theirs in the days of stress through which the Empire is now passing, and will feel that in spite of the handicap that youth enforced in their not being able to take a more active part, they still did their part to the best of their ability.

Lakefield Personal Gift

A nice gift of $5.00 from Mrs. Mary Spence at Lakefield should really have been included in yesterday's list of personal gifts, but it was not until after the day's article for this column was written, that the secretary became aware that this had been credited to the account of the fund through a bank manager of the Royal Bank in Lakefield, who represents the fund in that district.

This happens to be a repeat gift from the same donor, prompted undoubtedly through the greater need that prevails at the moment, for it has become practically a daily recurrance now for more than a month past to either read or hear of robot or flying attacks being hurled at the people in the south eastern portion of Britain with the consequent statement that they caused some damage and casualties.

AB. Ray McGee Wounded At Sea

Two shrapnel wounds in the leg and one in the arm are souvenirs from a naval engagement received by AB Ray McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley McGee, McCannon avenue, according to a letter received today. The wounds are not serious however and he hopes to be out of the hospital within another week.

A.B. McGee is one of several Peterborough boys, among them are Bob Honour, Tel Chum Gillespie and L/S W. J. Roode, on the QU'Appelle. He writes that his group of destroyers was credited with sinking three enemy minesweeprs and a possible submarine. One of the officer told the QU'Appelle crew that their ship had gotten two of the minesweepers.

"When I was first brought ashore they put me in a Royal Navy Hospital, but now I am at the former Lady Astor estate, which has been turned over to Canadians, Bill Conlin, who lives near Jack Mason, Bolivar street, is in the X-ray department here.

Other boys suffered minor wounds and they are all hoping to get back to their ship shortly, AB McGee said. Just now they have temporary Royal Navy reliefs subbing for them. Before enlisting, the 19-year-old sailor was employed at the C. G. E.

4th Battery Prepares For Camp Near Picton

Arrangements for the Summer Camp of the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery at Point Petre near Picton between July 30 and August 13 are now practically complete, and the unit has been undergoing intensive training in order to reach a high peak of efficiency and ensure that all members of the Battery will get the greatest amount of good out of the two-week's stay in its summer camp.

This will be the first summer camp which the 4th Battery, newly organized last year, has yet held. The Point Petre camp is already in operation, and training along with the Peterborough reserves will be the 8th (R) Regiment of Hamilton and the 2nd (R) Medical Regiment from Montreal.

A three-ton lorry has been added to equipment and will be used to pull the 3.8" guns about on manoeuvres, and also for schemes and Sunday exercises here in the fall. It will take an advance party to camp a day ahead of the Battery.

GENERATION OF SINATRAS

Time was when the proper locale for seranading was under some fair damsel's window, but with the coming of modern times, it seems the swoon-croon kids flock to Confederation Square to make with vocal efforts. Passing by the Square on Murray street any of these fine summer evenings, one can see and hear that it has become a city-wide proving-ground for up-and-coming Sinatras. However much the ditties may charm the younger set, we know of two irate ladies living on Murray street, who threaten to drench the would-be crooners with water—cold water—if a peaceful silence doesn't soon overtake the husky ballads.

"They were singing 'I Couldn't Sleep a Wink Last Night' the other evening," sighed one of the ladies, "but they haven't got anything on me. With that singing, I don't sleep a wink any night."

Mining News

Wasa Lake Mines has clicked again with a wide ore intersection in hole No. 106, which is reported ti have yielded 33.9 feet of core averaging $5. 8 per ton, at $38.50 an ounce for gold. This is the most easterly hole drilled in the current program and another hole is to go down another 100 feet to the east, in the direction of the Wingait property.

Last week it was reported that hole No. 105, the most westerly hole, gave better than $6 across a width of 22 feet. This hole and the one reported above give the ore zone an indicated length of 900 feet. Results from the drilling are continuing to bear out the first impression that a large tonnage operation was being outlined.

Aubelle Listed To-day.

Aubelle Mines, Ltd., shares of which were called for trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange at the opening to-day, is the first company in the rapidly expanding Mud Lake area to be listed here. The property adjoins Belleterre mine of McIntyre Porcupine. The Aubelle claims are now being drilled and lie on the line of strike of the main Belleterre ore zone.

In a report to directors of Kimberley Yellowknife Gold Mines, W. L. McDonald, consulting engineer, states that the claims, which comprise 459 acres, cover an area of the Yellowknife sediments. All the sediments are much folded and contorted and are cut by at least two north-south trending major faults. Several local sheared zones were also noted in the area.

A large mass of intrusive granite occurs well to the east of the Kimberley property from which numerous pegmatite dykes extend for a mile or more out into the sediments. One pegmatite dyke extends for more than a mile in a south-west direction across the area covered by the Vic claims, now known as Kimberley Yellowknife Gold Mines.

Several quartz veins were noted, with the geology being similar to the Ptarmigan Mine to the west.

Further weakness was displayed in the early Toronto session today, especially by the mining groups, and trading slowed down to 394,000 shares for the first three hours.

Giant Yellowknife and Frobisher declined 35 to 45 cents and losses of 10 to 20 cents appeared for Aunor, Malartic Gold Fields, Macassa, Bear Exploration and Conwest. Hollinger and Kerr-Addison lost small fractions.

In the base metal list nickel was lower by nearly a point to 33⅛ and Noranda lost ¼. Labrador weakened a few cents. Small gains were held by Smelters and Steep Rock.

Naval Officer Tells Of Global Strategy

The global strategy of the present war and the plans that had been made by Germany and Japan for the conquering of this continent were discussed in an informative and enlightening speech before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday by Lieut.-Commander Carr, the officer commanding H.M.C.S. York, Toronto.

Lieutenant-Commander Carr, who was introduced by Rotarian Ward Smith, also told his hearers some interesting facts about the development of the Canadian Navy and of the part played by Canada's ships in the battle of the Atlantic, pointing out that this country had started the war with a handful of ships and had built up a formidable organization.

Rotarian C. S. Cummer expressed the thanks of the Rotarian Club to the speaker.

President Gordon S. Matthews was in the chair and there was a large attendance, including a number of guests.

Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 18 — (CP Cable) — Five Canadians—members of a Canadian parachute battalion — were among 60 officers and men of the British 6th Airborne Division decorated at a front-line investiture yesterday by Gen. Montgomery, commander of all invasion ground forces.

They were Capt. Peter Griffin, Erindale, Ont.; Capt. John Hanson, Westmount, Que., who were decorated with the ribbon of the Military Cross; Sgt. G. H. Morgan, Montreal, Cpl. William Noval of Toronto, and L. Cpl. Russell Geddes, of Sudbury and Parry Sound, Ont., who were awarded the Military Medal.

The ceremony took place while nearby artillery thundered at German positions and near its conclusion an enemy plane approached. The lone snooper was driven off by a heavy anti-aircraft barrage.

Lieut. Engineer Gerald Duffus Is Invalided Home From India

Invalided home from India, where he saw service both with the Indian Army and the Indian Navy, his home coming delayed in England by the travel ban that stayed in effect until after the start of the invasion, Lieut. Engineer Gerald Duffus, R.I.N.V.R., reached Peterborough last week. He had been overseas for nearly three years.

Lieut. Duffus, who contracted dysentery while in the tropics, was in a hospital in southern England on D-Day and was particularly impressed by the enormous air activity that climaxed the many months of preparation and the actual beginning of the second front. He stayed there long enough to have a glimpse of the first appearance of Hitler's secret weapon, the robot or buzz bomb, saw some of them falling and some shot down. Their main effect upon the emotions of the British people, he said, was one of frank irritation.

The son of Senator and Mrs. J. J. Duffus, 397 Reid street, he is now on indefinite convalescent leave and must await orders from the India Office in London to be informed of his future status.

It was a desire to join the Fleet Air Arm that took Lieut. Duffus overseas to begin with. He had already approached Canadian authorities and been told he would have to go to England to do this, as at the time the Canadian Navy had no Air Arm, though one was eventually established six months ago. He left Canada in September, 1941, traveling aboard a passenger liner as a day seaman.

Call for Men

Finding he was past the age limit for enlistment in the Fleet Air Arm, he got a job with the Canadian Mechanization Department, a civilian liason branch that acted as advisors on technical matters to the Army, where he worked for two months. When a call was sent out for men to volunteer for the Indian Army in the capacity of ordnance mechanical engineers, Lieut. Duffus enlisted for this service and sailed, with the rank of Captain in the Indian Army, in March, 1942.

This was the time when the Japs, having captured Singapore, were advancing through the Dutch East Indies, threatening Australia, and by way of Burma and the Indian Ocean, threatening India itself. "We listened to the news of the bad times in the East all the way out," Lieut. Duffus said, "and you may be sure it didn't add any to our confidence."

The convoy in which he travelled, the officer revealed, with the largest to leave England for the East up to that time, and contained something like 100,000 men, Army, Navy and Air Force personnel. It also carried landing boats, though, with the secrecy that prevailed, "We naturally didn't know what these were going to be used for till after we had rounded the Cape of Good Hope. We stopped at Capetown for six days, where the people treated us marvellously and practically gave us the freedom of the city, and there the convoy was broken up into three sections, one going to the Middle East, one to India and the third — to attack Madagascar. That was what the landing boats were for and it was the first example of the staging on a large scale of combined operations."

Lieut. Duffus landed at Bombay after a trip of seven weeks, and was sent up to the Sind Desert, 150 miles northwest of Karachi, most northerly port on the west coast of India. Here there was a big uprising of a Muslim tribe called the Hurs, who, 20,000 strong, were engaged in pillaging activities and in breaking down the transportation and communications systems established by the British. Five infantry regiments of Indian soldiers commanded by Indian and English officers were in the area to quell the uprising and at the same time training to meet the then very distinct possibility of an eventual invasion of India by the Japs, the Peterborough soldier said.

An Elusive Foe

"Though the uprising was not inspired by the Japs, the Huns were taking advantage of the serious situation confronting the British Government in India and they had the tacit support of the Congress Party," Lieut. Duffus, who went with mobile vehicle shops to repair and maintain the Army's transport and equipment in the desert, he told the Examiner. "As an enemy they were a very elusive foe, and it was six months before the rebellion was completely quelled and it was safe to go around without carrying arms both day and night."

After a year in the Indian Army, Lieut. Duffus transferred to the Indian Navy and got into Combined Operations, a rapidly growing field in the general military scheme of things in the Far East which brought into interplay elements of the British and Indian Armies, the Royal Navy and the Royal Indian Navy. He trained on operations all along the west coast and was engaged in this work when ordered out of the tropics on account of his health. Stopping over in England to change ships for the last lap of his long voyage home, he was caught there by the travel ban which went into effect on April 27 and remained there for the next two months.

Won Skiing Title

Though kept pretty busy by work that involved long hours of duty and a good deal of study—he learned Hindustani well enough to pass a test in it in his first nine months in the country—Lieut. Duffus did find time to see a little of vast, teeming India, and his principal recollections centre around a couple of skiing trips he took to Kashmir in the Himalayan highlands only 50 miles from the Tibet border. Here, at Christmas time in 1943, he won the All India championship in the slalom race, and participated in a meet that drew skiers of many different nationalities from far and wide and included, besides Indian competitors, Canadian and American airmen and refugees from Singapore and other places conquered by the Japs.

The mill and its connecting sheds were destroyed.

IMAGINATION PAYS

BOTH THE making and the defeating of contracts can depend often on the use of imagination by the declarer or his opponents. There are times when the canny player can tell just how the situation will be mis-read by the other side if he makes a particular lead or play. That may be his only chance to make or beat the contract.

West listened carefully to that bidding at one table of a duplicate tournament, and counted South's hand accurately. He reckoned South would not have jumped into that No Trump game at once if he had three spades, but would have forced with 2-No Trumps to give North a chance to rebid spades if they were of five cards, and then would have supported spades. Furthermore, that bid would have been very unsound with only a spade singleton. Hence he counted South for two spades.

Next he reckoned the hearts as only four in length, because otherwise 2-No Trumps would have been better to see if North wanted to support hearts secondarily with only three if the suit was five cards long. This made it pretty sure South had four cards in one minor and three in the other. Counting North for either four or five spades, and East therefore either five or four, he also saw that South would consider West the holder of the long spades if he led the suit.

So West opened the spade K. Sure enough, South now placed him for also the Q. He let the K win and then, when the 4 followed, took the "marked" finesse of the J. But East won this. The dummy now was dead. Leading from his own hand constantly later, South lost, all told, two tricks in each major and one in diamonds, so was down one. At every other table in the tournament a different lead was made, and South scored his game, in some cases with an extra trick.

What simple principle of play must be observed to make 4-Spades for South on this deal after West leads the diamond K, A and 7?

Old Landmark Being Removed

BANCROFT, July 18 — (ENS) — Bancroft last week has taken a huge step forward towards modernizing itself in that the old land mark on Hastings street originally known as Walker's Blacksmith Shop, and purchased recently by Wilfred Maxwell, is being removed from the Main street. Warren Mintz has taken the contract of moving the large building and it is slowly moving back inch by inch on rollers towards the York River where it will be permanently situated for storage purposes. Whether or not Bancroft can do without its old place of business and trucks and cars replace the horse-drawn vehicles remains to be seen, but insofar as Mr. Maxwell is concerned it will greatly improve his frontage at his garage premises.

Marian Inches Is Matron Of Nursing Unit In France

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE CAEN FRONT, July 18—(CP Cable)—Less than seven miles from the front line, Canadian Nursing Sisters of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps are working under canvas in Canadian Casualty Clearing Stations, caring for Canadian wounded from this Caen sector.

In one C.C.S. up here near the front are stationed eight nurses who are the first Canadian Sisters to land in France during this war. Their unit came ashore July 13, was set up in an open field at 1 a.m. next day and began to receive casualties shortly afterwards.

For the last three days this C.C.S. has been working hard handling mortar and shellfire casualties and soldiers wounded in skirmishes and patrols along the Orne river.

The matron of this C.C.S. is Marian Inches of Peterborough, Ont. The Sisters are Patricia Collins, Toronto; Pauline McNee, Govan, Sask.; Mary McIsaac, Halifax; Dorothy Knight, London, Ont.; Mary Bray, Montreal; Laura Bowen, Deseronto, Ont., and Joan O'Toole, Louisburg, N.S.

The whole C.C.S. is under canvas and the Sisters tend the wounded in big marquees. They share a mess with medical officers. Here in this forward position slit trenches are a necessity and engineers are digging deep ones for the Canadian girls.

Wear Battledress

The Sisters wear the battledress of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, Britain's Women's Army, and if working in the wards wear battledress trousers with leather anklets, khaki shirts and ties. There are no natty blue uniforms and white starched veils here. But these nurses look just as neat in their khaki as they did in their blue uniforms in England. They have created trim turbans for their heads out of khaki handkerchiefs.

In addition to these eight Sisters, others too are working in other clearing stations situated just as far forward. But this unit was the first to get established in France and begun to take casualties.

The first Canadian Red Cross girls to come to France landed with these Sisters. They are Marjorie Harvey, Windsor, Ont.; Jean Ellis, Victoria, B.C. and Constance Harrison Saint John, N.B.

The Sisters in the first C.C.S. to be set up are working harder than ever before and have been on duty sometimes 16 hours a day on shifts.

Doctors working in this C.C.S. include Major John Paterson, Kingston, Ont., chief of medicine.

Others are Capts. Karl Kraft, Hamilton, Ont. C. A. M. Derby, Ottawa; Hudson Campbell, Kingston, Ont.

French Paper Remains Serene In Midst Of Conflict

By MARSHALL YARROW
Reuter War Correspodent

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, July 18—(CP-Reuter)—War may change the face of a nation, but the style and form of a newspaper is apparently indestructible.

I studied with interest—and difficulty—the newest copy of "Renaissance due Bessin," the first free newspaper in liberated France. One would think it would be shrieking its story of war on its readers' doorsteps. But no, like any other newspaper in Newcastle or Melbourne, it tells the story of the war and then goes on to give its priceless quota of local news—who has had a baby, who has died and who is divorcing whom.

The first column is devoted to war summaries. It is significant that news from liberated France is headed simply "France." The rest is under a separate caption, "Occupied France." Then there are sections for Russia, Italy and the Pacific.

The rest is just like any other small town newspaper. There is an account of the funeral of an aged electrician who died "suddenly and tragically," also the obsequies of a 12-year-old boy with the editor extending his deepest sympathy to the bereaved families.

There are two bankruptcy advertisements and a couple of columns of notices from the mayor telling the people what they can do and what they cannot do. These are getting so numerous that they are now numbered "avis 35," "avis 36" and so on.

Then there is half a column entitled "divorce actions." Two men are divorcing their wives because of infidelity.

Plenty of Ads

The classified advertising columns are apparently veritable gold mines. Everybody has apparently lost something or someone and "lost" notices are inserted with that supreme faith that everyone seems to have in the power of the press all over the world. The greatest losses seem to be small herds of cattle which have vanished mysteriously and the owner is willing to pay a reward for their recovery.

One bereaved lady bemoans the loss of her white cat. I don't know where the cat is, but I have a faint idea where quite a number of the cattle went. I shudder to think that perhaps the cat and the cattle went to the same place.

There are still no crossword puzzles, no racing news or comics, but they will doubtless come. Illustrations, somewhat old but surprisingly well printed, of de Gaulle in Bayeux appear on the front page.

Since there is no electricity in the place of publication, the production of this little paper twice a week is a triumph.

A column of letters to the editors would make it complete, especially if they complained of the usual trifles such as being kept awake at night by the noise the visitors are making.

I am watching eagerly for the first announcement of a marriage between an English Tommy and a local girl. There has been none yet. Evidently our soldiers are giving their first attentions to the Germans.

WE ARE MAKING THE MOST OF WHAT WE HAVE!

There are upwards of 180,000 more Bell telephones in service today than when the war began.

NOW WE ARE "SCRAPING THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL"

In spite of the most careful use of available supplies, we have had to use up most of the 'margins' built into telephone plant. We are working facilities at maximum capacity.

Telephone sets, switching equipment for central offices, and other parts of telephone plant cannot be obtained for civilian use because telephone material is still going to war.

We regret that to the many applicants for residence telephones who are still waiting, as well as those who want telephones and have not even applied, we must say: "Sorry, but we must rigidly conserve remaining supplies of telephones and materials. We can install telephones for only the most essential service."

So long as the needs of war have first claim, we shall have to keep on doing the best we can with the equipment obtainable.

Meanwhile, we say "Thank You" for your cordial understanding of our position.

Japan Ousts Navy Minister

NEW YORK, July 18 — (AP) — Admiral Shigetaro Shimada has been "relieved of his post" as Japanese navy minister, and succeeded by Admiral Naokuni Nomura, Tokyo radio announced to-day.

Tokyo said the post of navy minister was changed as part of preparations "in view of the present grave war situation" to unite "all efforts to certain victory." Another broadcast said Shimada had resigned.

The broadcasts made no mention of the post of navy chief of staff, which Shimada held in addition to being navy minister.

Investiture of Nomura as new navy minister was "held this afternoon in the presence of His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor," said a Tokyo broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission. It gave no details.

Nomura, a relatively obscure figure in the Japanese naval hierarchy, had been a vice admiral for six years before his elevation to full admiral. He was appointed a member of the Supreme War Council in August last year, and a commander of the Kure naval base the following October.

5 Tons Of Salvage

MILLBROOK, July 18—(ENS)—The recent salvage collection in the village and township organized by T. A. Campbell and H. A. Kerr resulted in five tons being shipped for war purposes. The boys from the Continuation school took hold of the collection, Colonel Bounsell, of the local Armouries staff, kindly giving the use of trucks for the work. Paper, rags and rubber made up the savage, and householders responded readily to the request that all must be securely tied in assorted bundles, and left outside so the boys could make the pick-up readily.

Russell Chase Named Instructor

HAVELOCK, July 18 — (ENS) — Pilot Officer Russell Chase of the American Air Force, stationed in England and nephew of Mrs. Douglas Young of Havelock, is now being retained as an instructor after completing thirty successful bombing missions over Germany, and has been decorated four times. This news came in a letter to Mrs. Young from her brother, L-Cpl. Hely R. Chase, No. 3 Section Canadian Construction Co., Royal Canadian Engineers, who is the father of Pilot Officer Chase.

L-Cpl. Chase is stationed in England and told of the havoc wrought by the German robot bombs (doodlebugs) in south east England, especially in the town of Bromley and district which is situated in the direct path of the bombs, where four houses were completely demolished and twenty-four more partially wrecked.

L-Cpl. Chase went overseas nearly three years ago and while his home is now in the U.S.A. he is a former resident of this district, his boyhood home being the Chase homestead on the shore of Belmont Lake, and is well known to tourists of Ontario and the U.S.A.

2,000 Planes Hit R.R. Yards

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 19—(AP).—Nearly 2,000 American heavy bombers and fighters attacked a large array of railroad yards and airfields today in southern Germany. More than 1,200 heavy bombers carried out the raids which followed widespread R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. night activity. A number of the targets were in the Munich area, where the Nazis previously reported a double attack from Britain and Italy. Munich, hub of five trunk railways, one leading through the Brenner Pass to the melting German front in Italy, is believed to be one of the German sites for the manufacture of flying bombs, hurled in strength against southern England today.

Objectives included the great bearings plant at Schweinfurt, a frequent American target earlier this year. Another was a chemical plant on the outskirts of Munich, a plant making oxygen and hydrogen used for the robot bombs.

Berlin Bombed.

Broadcast reports of the two-ply attack on the fourth largest German city followed closely upon a night in which the R.A.F. struck heavily at seven objectives, including Berlin, Cologne, the Ruhr and France, and Canadian planes also were active.

At least 266 of the enemy's dwindling force of planes were destroyed yesterday on the basis of official Allied accounts—at the cost of around 100 craft. The Russians said 128 planes were destroyed in battles above the eastern front, Mediterranean air forces claimed 66 and those based in Britain and France added 72 on the basis of incomplete reports. Actions over Normandy yesterday were the most extensive since invasion day — 7,350 flights. Another 2,100 sorties were flown from Italy.

Planes struck out from Britain this morning as the Germans tossed one of the heaviest robot bomb attacks across the Channel.

Halifaxes and Lancasters from the Canadian bomber group joined the R.A.F. in attacking a synthetic oil plant at Wesseling in the Ruhr Valley, one Canadian aircraft is missing.

Following up yesterday's record-breaking daylight offensive in support of General Montgomery's Caen drive, the R. A. F. night bombers

Hitler's Generals Disagree Costing Great Toll Of Life

MOSCOW, July 19—(AP).—The Russian press published today a statement by Gen. Edmund Hofmeister, captured commander of the 41st German Tank Corps, declaring a disagreement among Hitler's generals over strategy on the eastern front was costing a great toll of lives and prisoners. The captured general's statement, as published in Soviet newspapers, criticized Hitler's insistence on holding ground and refusing to retreat unless bludgeoned from positions.

"Field Marshal Busch (commander of the central front between the Pripet Marshes and Baltic States, the area of the most spectacular Russian advances of 300 miles or more) told me Hitler forbade any retreat," Gen. Hofmeister's published statement said. "Hitler ordered every inch of occupied country defended. Although I considered the order wrong, I had to obey.

"I want to say the defeat in White Russia is an example of the talentless command of Hitler. When Marshals Brauchitsch, List and Von Runstedt and others tried to point out errors, they were discharged."

The captive general said Germany had no reserves to hold such a large territory as Hitler is now ordering the army to defend.

The Soviet press further quoted the statement as saying young Nazi generals such as Marshal Erwin Rommel, a field commander in France, and the late Col.-Gen. Eduard Deitl, commander in north Finland until his death recently in

Molten Lava Engulfs Towns

MEXICO CITY, July 19—(AP)—Millions of tons of molten lava pouring along a 25-mile front from Paricutin, Mexico's new-born volcano have engulfed two towns and are threatening to wipe out three others.

Paricutin, the town from which the volcano takes its name, and Parangaricutiro, already are buried.

The lava is moving 200 yards a day toward Zacan, San Francisco, Pariban and Zirosto, which have been partly evacuated. Residents also are leaving other towns farther ahead.

Highways leading from the doomed region are crammed with caravans of Tarascan Indians swarming to higher ground with such belongings as they could hastily scrape together.

Earth-shaking explosions are heard at more or less regular intervals from the elevated centre of the sea of lava. At each explosion a higher wave of melted stone pushes out from the volcano, born in February, 1943.

Railway Monopoly Feared

Transport Men Want Railways Watched

OTTAWA, July 19 (CP)—Unless government limitations are imposed there is a danger that railways will create a complete monopoly of land transportation through establishing highway services, the Canadian Automotive Transport Association said today in a brief presented to the Commons Reconstruction Committee.

The brief said the entry of railways, directly or through subsidiaries, into the field of highway transportation should, in the public interest, be limited to the extent that they will only be permitted to operate highway services as part of a combination of through rail-highway traffic.

"The motor transport industry is unique in that it allows thousands of individuals to operate their own businesses on a sound basis," said the brief.

"This opportunity to re-establish many present members of the armed services will be minimized if the railways are permitted to control or become large highway operators."

Federal legislation to control railways' expansion in highway traffic should be passed.

Other recommendations were:

That regulation of inter-urban motor freight carriers be returned to provincial authorities at the earliest possible moment, without further Federal interference after the war;

That surplus automotive equipment and supplies for sale after the war should be sold by the government through regular trade channels, at fair prices;

That the three-cent Federal gasoline tax be removed, with the assurance such "discriminatory taxes" will not be imposed in the post-war period.

Chinese Crack Hengyang Ring

CHUNGKING, July 19—(AP)—Counter-attacking Chinese have cracked the Japanese ring around the Canton-Hankow railway city of Hengyang, and have reached points from two to 3½ miles from the city, where they can hear the gunfire of relief forces, the High Command announced tonight.

At Leiyang on the railway, 34 miles to the south of the besieged junction, Japanese troops were said to be retreating northward.

A Chinese government spokesman, meanwhile, said the Japanese were bringing in strong reinforcements

American planes were active over Hengyang in support of the ground forces.

A communique of Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said that 15 heavily loaded Japanese supply junks on the Siang River were destroyed by American planes.

Error In Timing

London, July 19 (CP)

THE Germans didn't know it at the time, but they were guilty of a bad error in timing Monday night when they sent planes over the Allied lines in Normandy to drop leaflets reading: "Americans, British, Canadians—your are trapped..." At dawn the next day General Montgomery launched an offensive which cracked the Germans' Orne River line.

5th Army Enters Livorno In Pincer Move

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 19.—(AP).—The 5th Army captured Livorno today, executing a wide pincers movement which forced the Germans from this third largest seaport in Italy a few hours after Polish troops of the British 8th Army had seized Ancona, important port on the Adriatic.

Livorno (Leghorn) lies only a few miles from Pisa, western anchor of the next German defence line.

No effort to defend the city street by street was made by the German troops, who previously had resorted to every military device in their efforts to dodge and delay the American advance.

Grave of Sunken Ships

The harbor of Livorno, the busiest between Rome and Genoa, is the grave of many sunken ships, mostly victims of the Allied air forces. To the north, astride the Arno River, Pisa is clearly visible.

The Allies scored another stinging victory on the east coast in the Polish capture of Ancona.

More than 2,000 prisoners and large quantities of war material were taken by the Polish troops, who today were pursuing the retreating enemy relentlessly northward.

The fall of Ancona came after a 75-mile advance against stubborn resistance offered by two German divisions which finally were forced to retire when the Poles smashed through their lines west of the city.

New Gains Made

In the central sector of the front, British troops made new gains west of Arezzo, sweeping across the Arno River on a front of six miles. An Allied communique said the British seized the town of Monte Varchi, 15 miles west of Arezzo.

British And Canadian Troops Advance To Depth Of 5 Miles

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 19 (AP)—British and Canadian forces bursting into the battle-churned open plain southeast of Caen have smashed the first German counter attack mounted by picked Nazi tank divisions, it was disclosed tonight, and have driven five miles southeast of that bastion town on the road to Paris.

Field Marshal Rommel was throwing in his reserve of his best forces, and a battle of rising fury for high stakes raged over flat terrain.

Headquarters gave no new details on this mammoth engagement, but other British forces struck forward along the centre, extending the blazing front to 20 miles.

16 Tanks Wrecked

Americans wiped out pocketed Germans north of fallen St. Lo. The doughboys made a 2½-mile advance, wrecked 16 Nazi tanks staging a futile counter-attack and reached the east bank of the Vire river all along this secaor. The towns of La Capelle and Grand Hamel were captured.

The British advance toward the centre captured Hottot-Les-Bagues, long a thorn in the Allied line, 2½ miles southwest of Tilly-Sur-Seulles. They widened a wedge around Noyers on the Caen Villers Bocage road, and beat back enemy counter-blow at Maltot, between the Orne and Oron rivers.

The British advances came on the fourth anniversary of Hitler's "appeal to reason" speech when the Fuehrer declared "if this struggle continues it can end only in the complete destruction of one of the two adversaries. Churchill may believe it will be Germany. I know it will be Britain."

From nine to 13 German divisions were being hammered by the British 2nd army.

General Montgomery told a press conference that the Allies had captured 60,000 Germans and buried 8,000 in Normandy and added:

"It's a reasonable conjecture that

156,000 Nazis Written Off In Normandy Campaign

GEN. MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, July 19—(AP).—General Montgomery estimated today that 156,000 Germans have been "written off"—killed, wounded or captured—in the six-weeks-old campaign in Normandy and declared Allied troops would "have no difficulty in defeating the Germans in France."

"Our object is to write off German personnel and equipment," the Allied ground commander told a press conference. "Bleed the German military machine to death and the time will come when the enemy can't go on."

Referring to operations east of the Orne Montgomery said: "Yesterday was an extremely good day. There is no doubt that we have gained tactical surprise....

"We have very strong armored and mobile forces away to the south and southeast of Caen and due east of Caen.

"In winning this, we have undoubtedly written off a great deal of enemy stuff.

"Our casualties in personnel and equipment have been extremely light—in fact almost negligible—so far."

Allied troops have captured 60,000 Germans of the total estimated casualties, Montgomery said and have buried 8,000 of the Nazi dead.

Gen. Montgomery was in his most cheerful mood since D-day as he recounted the success of the opening of the new offensive by Lt.-Gen. Sir Miles Christopher Dempsey, Commander of the British 2nd Army.

After noting that "we have very strong mobile forces operating southeast and east of Caen," Gen. Montgomery added:

"So now we have a nice little area east of the Orne and we have written off a big lot of Germans."

While reporting his losses in the violent new surge were so small as to be almost negligible, he cautioned: "There is a lot still to be done—no doubt of that."

Gen. Montgomery said the British Army had been sent to Normandy "equipped in a way no army was ever equipped before."

"The War Office has never sent abroad an Army so magnificently equipped as this British Army here—never, and we want to stop this tendency to decry their tools.

"There is nothing wrong with their tools. They are magnificent."

The General's pet dogs —"Hitler" a sad-eyed little Cocker Spaniel, and "Rommel," a wirehaired Terrier romped about on the grass as he spoke before a corps of nearly 200 correspondents.

A camouflaged net covered Gen. Montgomery's mobile headquarters.

It is likely that many French civilians in the battle path were injured or killed, particularly in Faubourg de Vaucelles. A statement in the House of Commons was that 2,000 had been killed and 1,300 were sent to hospital by earlier fighting at Caen.

Three Great Teams

Gen. Montgomery's Headquarters In France, July 19 (AP)

REFERRING to the Allied Armies fighting on the Eastern, Italy and Normandy fronts as "three great teams," Gen. Montgomery said during a press conference today:

"I must regret I have not had contact with the Russian team. It must be a great team—a really terrific affair, quite first class."

Economic Life Threatened By Socialism

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP). — Hon. R. B. Hanson, Progressive Conservative member for York-Sunbury, said to-day in the Commons that if Socialism should ever dominate the economic life of Canada the country would not have any private industry.

Speaking during resumed examination of budget resolutions, Mr. Hanson said Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) had indicated his party favored triple taxation of companies.

"Let us expose this hollow sham once and for all," said Mr. Hanson during examination of a resolution which would provide that dividends paid by a wholly-owned subsidiary non-resident company to a Canadian parent company be exempt from taxes when received by such parent company. This would apply in cases where the taxes paid by the subsidiary in the foreign country were equal to Canadian taxation rates.

Douglas Abbott, Parliamentary Assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley, said the resolution was aimed at preventing dividends from being taxed three times. Under existing regulations the dividends were taxed when in the hands of the subsidiary, when paid to the parent company and when paid to the shareholders.

Be Unable to Operate.

Mr. Hanson said Mr. Knowles had favored such triple taxation measures and this presumably was the view of the C.C.F. Party.

"You can't have your cake and eat it too," he said. "You can't have two or three levies made from companies and expect those companies to operate and expand."

Under the Socialism of the C.C.F. private enterprise would be unable to operate. There would be regimentation of farmers, of small merchants and dealers.

"That is what I want members of this House and the people of this country to understand," said Mr. Hanson.

Mr. Knowles said the position of the C.C.F. Party was well known.

"As long as we have the capitalistic system we must take from industry the wealth which the people helped to create and which reaches industry first."

U.S. Battleships Pound Guam

PEARL HARBOR, July 19.—(AP).—Battleships ,using spotter planes, are blowing up Japanese defences on Guam at short range, while Southwest Pacific bombers send to the ocean bottom the men and supplies needed by other hard-pressed enemy garrisons.

This outline of late developments—piled on those which already have caused Japan to reshuffle top army and navy posts—was sketched today in reports of Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur.

Nimitz said that battleships, battering Guam Sunday for the second straight day, moved in closer to pick their targets, and that enemy anti-aircraft guns firing on the spotter planes were silenced by off-shore destroyers. Cruisers also joined in the attack.

McArthur announced new aerial blows against Japanese shipping in the Southwest Pacific, making the totals listed in 19 July communiques.

Twenty-five ships definitely sunk—ranging up to a 4,000-ton freighter—four ships probably sunk, 21 ships damaged and more than 150 supply barges destroyed or damaged.

Flagship Lost

MOSCOW, July 19—(AP)—The Red Air Force announced today the sinking of the flagship of the Finnish fleet, the 3,900-ton coastal defence ship Vainamoinen, with four direct hits in water near Kitka Island. The 305-foot ship was commissioned in 1930. She mounted four 10-inch guns.

Six Russian Armies Crack Hitler's Eastern Front Bug River Crossing Made

Significant Objectives Are Just Ahead As Great Soviet Offensive Gets Under Way On 550-Mile Front

By EDDY GILMORE—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, July 19 — (AP). — Six Russian armies poured through huge holes today in Hitler's eastern front — from Marshal Ivan S. Konev's new 125-mile-wide break-through on the south of Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's drive into the Soviet Latvian republic on the north, now 20 miles inside the border.

Significant objectives were just ahead from one end to the other of the battle-front, which was extended to 550 miles in length by the new offensive set off by Konev's 1st Ukraine Army Sunday between Lwow and Kowel.

Konev's tanks and infantry, which made three-day gains of 31 miles, already were less than 10 miles from the Polish border—as delineated by the Germans and Russians in 1939—northeast of Lwow and were across the Bug River at Selets Belski, south of Sokal.

(By London estimates Konev was within five miles of the frontier—from which Germany attacked Russia—through capture of Skomorokhi, 45 miles north of Lwow.)

Closing In On Lwow.

Konev's forces were closing in upon Lwow itself, one column from only 22 miles away—at captured Kaminonka, on the north northeast. The daily communique also announced the fall of Busk, 25 miles to the northeast, and Bortkov, 27 miles on the east.

(Berlin radio commentators frankly admitted the German situation was serious. A Transocean Agency correspondent said Konev's new offensive was "aimed at no less than pocketing the whole of the German army in the south.")

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's troops, now roughly 110 miles due east of Warsaw, are driving toward the western gateway city of Brest Litovsk from a point only 12 miles to the northeast.

(Available maps in London, however, indicated advance elements of Rokossovsky's army were within nine miles of the city, and a Moscow dispatch to London this morning declared they were crashing into its outer defence.)

Heavy Fighting

North of Grodno where the Soviets have a bridgehead across the Nieman river, bloody fighting was reported increasing but there was a promise of a climax shortly. The Russians are closest to East Prussia here.

Northeast of outflanked Daugavpils, Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's forces drove deeply into Latvia in a big break-through, moving rapidly towards Riga.

Red Star said the Germans threw in four tank divisions against Konv's push upon Lwow, but that swarms of dive-bombers broke up their attacks, never allowing the enemy divisions to strike as a unit.

Konev's infantry was supported by one of the greatest air forces ever hurled against the Germans in the east. Col.-Gen. Stepan A. Krasovsky is commanding air operations.

Russians Crack Brest Litovsk In New Drive

LONDON, July 19.—(CP).—Moscow dispatches said to-day that Russian forces were crashing the outer defences of the great fortress city of Brest-Litovsk on the river Bug and that other Red troops had crossed the Curzon line into Poland proper 45 miles to the north.

The fresh Russian offensive, sixth major stroke in the summer campaign, already had carried to the 1939 German-Polish demarcation line from which Hitler launched his attack on the Soviet Union in 1941. Moscow announced that troops of the 1st Ukrainian army group had seized Skomorokhi, on the east bank of the river Bug five miles north of Sokal. This section of the Bug was part of the 1939 boundary.

The Russian drive was declared to be sweeping upon Lwow, pre-war Polish rail centre of 317,000 like a tidal wave. Moscow at midnight reported Red army forces 22 miles northeast and 27 miles east of the city.

In the Brest Litovsk area, a Moscow cable said the Russians were advancing beyond Haknoka after crossing the Curzon line. Other Red troops were reported nine miles from Brest Litovsk.

Hun Bomb Attack Heaviest Of War

LONDON, July 19—(CP)—London and Southern England were targets of the greatest 24-hour robot bomb attack last night and today since the German weapon first was loosed June 15.

The number of flying bombs, launched from the Calais coast of France, increased noticeably with the start of the British-Canadian offensive below Caen and it was apparents that the German command had decided to strike the civilian population of England in a gamble to pull away some of the 7,350 planes that pounded the German war machine in the Reich and France yesterday.

The Germans tried a new technique by launching bombs in salvos, like artillery barrages, but failed to divert Allied air power from striking full force at the heart of Germany and the Normandy battlefields, instead of the bomb launching platforms near the Channel.

Casualties and damage by the robots mounted during the night.

Patriots Raid Fuel Supplies

Gasoline, Oil And Coal Dumps Are Destroyed

PORT BOU, Spain, July 19. — (AP).—French patriot organizations have turned their energies against the Germans' dwindling fuel supplies throughout France, destroying gasoline, oil and coal already stored or en route to dumps, and sabotaging mines and production plants, border reports said to-day.

"This is only the beginning," declared a former Vichy official who crossed this frontier to safety after the Nazis identified him as being in league with the Patriots. "We plan to continue until the only motive power the Germans have is in their own feet."

Within the last fortnight, according to dispatches from Vichy, at least 20 storage tanks for liquid fuel have gone up in flames in the Rhone Valley and Southern France. The reports here said they were fired by patriot saboteurs despite German sentries established around all such storage centres.

Coal dumps along railroad lines have been fired frequently—an operation that one fugitive described as "not easy."

In the great northern coal fields Patriot miners have burned stores of wooden beams used for shoring the mine shafts and have broken the elevators and wrecked pumping machinery, allowing mines to be flooded.

Armed with sub-machine guns, a band of Patriots entered the Neoux mines near Bethune July 3, wrecked the machinery and warned the owners that if the mines continued working for the Germans they would be raided again.

The Germans promptly assigned a detachment of troops to the mines, but last Friday Patriots attacked in force, routed the Nazis, destroyed three shafts with dynamite, wrecked the company's offices and the adjacent railway lines, and withdrew only as German reinforcements approached.

Big Irrigation Projects For Prairies

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 19.—(CP).—Agriculture Minister Gardiner last night gave the Commons a glimpse of possible prairie irrigation developments in the future which may cost $111,000,000.

The Minister gave his survey of the position after John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport), an advocate of widespread irrigation programs, had said Mr. Gardiner was too modest in asking $2,000,000 for prairie farm rehabilitation act programs in the present fiscal year. Mr. MacNicol said $20,000,000 should be asked if it were considered necessary.

The Toronto member said that water projects for the benefit of the Saskatchewan cities of Regina and Moose Jaw should be undertaken.

Build Storage Dams.

Mr. Gardiner said that, he had advocated major increases in P.F.R.A. expenditures for the construction of storage dams and other purposes, but reductions in the vote had come as a result of the war.

Studies had been conducted on the development of irrigation projects in the Milk river and Hanna districts of Alberta with examinations also made in connection with a project near Medicine Hat, also in Alberta.

These projects should be considered after the war. They should involve an expenditure of at least $111,000,000, with the suggested Regina-Moose Jaw developments likely to cost from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 in addition.

Discussion of the irrigation projects cropped up during examination of the civil estimates of the Agriculture Department.

Earlier, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the government still intends to bring down new housing legislation this session.

Transport Minister Michaud tabled the report of the commission which investigated the capsizing of the motor launch Olga off Port Stanley, Ont., last June 4, with loss of 17 lives. The commission laid the cause of the accident to the "gross negligence and incompetency of Edward R. (Ted) Vining, who was in charge of the vessel."

Mr. Gardiner said he hoped farmers would hold beef cattle until they were well finished before marketing them and thus ease the problem of handling at processing plants. He said there was a market for all beef, but the problem was in handling. Farmers could help by distributing their marketings over a period.

He expressed belief that Canada would be able to fill a contract to supply 75,000,000 dozen eggs to the United Kingdom in the present year. Last year, shipments totalled about 36,000,000 dozen.

Lt.-Col. J. G. Robertson, Canadian Livestock Commissioner in the United Kingdom, was returning to Canada for a "complete review" of what may be required by the British market after the war.

The Minister said plans were well advanced for establishment of a Wool Research Laboratory at Lethbridge, Alta., to investigate values of wool fibre in relation to the breeding of sheep.

At another stage of the discussion, he said the shortage of manpower in the Department of Agriculture made it impossible at this stage to undertake a check of cattle herds of Canada to determine the extent of Bang's disease.

Several rural members, led by W. A. Fraser (L—Northumberland) urged immediate action to combat the disease more effectively because of the losses it caused to farmers and the danger of it causing undulant fever in human beings who drink unpasteurized milk..

In answering Grote Stirling (PC—Yale), Mr. Gardiner said eventual elimination of the apple industry in the Okanagan valley of British Columbia was threatened unless "effective, economic control" of the Codling moth was soon developed.

The Moth also was causing serious damage in Ontairo, Quebec and Nova Scotia. New spraying methods and materials were being experimented with in attempts to control the pest.

hammered two key railroad centres in eastern France, two synthetic oil plants in the Ruhr and flying-bomb installations along the French coast.

At the same time R.A.F. Mosquitos, loaded with 4,000-pound block-busters, gave Berlin its 10th night drubbing since the invasion.

Other formations of British night raiders bombed Cologne and coastal command fighter-bombers shot up a German convoy off Helgoland, blowing up one ship, firing two others and damaging four more.

72 Germans Shot Down

At least 72 German planes were shot down over France and Germany yesterday and last night. Allied losses totalled about the same figure, of which two-thirds were bombers.

Support of the immediate battlefront was continued overnight by R.A.F. Mosquitoes and Mitchell mediums which attacked German movements over the Seine and Orne rivers and highways from Amiens to Rouen. R.C.A.F. Typhoons helped provide support for Canadian ground forces.

Heavy bombers pressed the most intensive drive yet against the German army's major transport junctions.

Halifax evening attacks on the Vaires railway yards at the eastern edge of Paris were quickly followed up by two forces of heavies which hit the yards at Bevigny, 100 miles due east of the capital, and Aulnoye, 20 miles this side of the Belgian border. Eight R.A.F. bombers and two fighters were lost.

The long range campaign to knock out the German army's oil supply was continued by two more Lancaster-Halifax heavy forces which bombed plants at Wesseling and Scholven-Buer, near the Reich's western border. Both had been hit before.

The great raid followed close upon assaults by up to 1,000 R.A.F. heavy British bombers and an added number of Mosquitos on Berlin, Cologne, the Ruhr, rail targets near Paris, railyards 100 miles east of Paris at Revigny and other objectives.

In a successful attack on a German convoy off Helgoland, seven Nazi ships were hit. The robot bomb coast in Northern France was bombed anew and bridges over the Seine and Eure Rivers were hit along with batteries, mortars, strongpoints, troop bivouacs, airfields, supply dumps and transport supporting the Normandy front. Planes from Italy before dawn smashed a rail bridge in the north, swept the Bologna and Udine areas and attacked in Yugoslavia.

Other Targets

Other daylight targets of the American armada in Southern Germany were:

A Messerschmitt fighter parts factory at Kempten, southwest of Augsburg and 35 miles northeast of Switzerland.

Railroad yards at Coblenz, Saarbrucken and Strasbourg on the French border.

German air bases at Lechfeld, Leipheim and Laupheim, all near Augsburg.

Planes from Britain alone were estimated to have dropped upwards of 15,000 tons of bombs on France and Germany in 30 hours starting Tuesday around dawn. Of this total, more than 6,000 tons were dropped on Germany, aside from the carpets of bombs laid before advancing British and American infantry in Normandy.

The air offensive was at a new high record pace—13 attacks on nine German cities in a dozen hours.

Germans Hold Captive Italians In Monastery

WITH THE 8TH ARMY AT GUBBIO, Italy, July 19 — (AP) — German troops beseiged in the Monastery of Saint Ubaldo are threatening to take to their deaths with them 232 Italian civilians including 70 children held as hostages for the past four days.

In the meantime, the Germans have reinforced their garrison in the Monastery, which they have converted into a mountain stronghold. The 8th Army has refrained from shelling the building.

Allies Destroy 66 Hun Fighters

ROME, July 19.— (AP).—Allied bombers and fighters gave German airmen one of their worst beatings in recent weeks by shooting down at least 66 enemy fighters over southern German yesterday while carrying out smashing raids on an aircraft factory at Friedrichshafen and an aifield at Memmingen, 40 miles to the northeast.

As a result of the victory, the total score of enemy aircraft knocked down by Allied Mediterranean-based planes in the last three days was boosted to 114.

Allied air losses in all operations yesterday, which included sweeps over northern Italy and Yugoslavia, were given officially as 19 planes.

we have wiped off 156,000 Germans."

St Lo Road Cut.

On the western portion of the Normandy front American units mopped up and occupied strategic St. Lo, cutting off a force of Germans in a salient 2½ miles deep north of the town. They also cut the St Lo-Periers road between the Taute and Vire Rivers south of the village of Amigny, which is in American hands.

Headquarters announced that Montgomery's mopping-up troops had cleared half of Faubourg de Vaucelles of Germans, and said the main battle line had passed on south-east into the plans beyond where Rommel as throwing in tank forces in a frantic effort to stem the Allied tide of armor and explosives.

Montgomery made no statement concerning specific gains, contenting himself with the announcement that his troops had breached the Germans' Orne defences. This is on the side of the front toward Paris, 120 miles to the east.

Heavy fighting continued in the Noyers area, five miles north-east of Villers-Bocage on the British right flank.

The Americans captured Rampan, 2½ miles north-west of St. Lo on the Vire River.

Mighty Sky Blow.

Swarms of Allied planes, striking the heaviest air blows ever dealt on a concentrated battle area, dumped between 7,000 and 9,000 tons on German positions yesterday, in more than 7,350 sorties. Incomplete reports said the Allies accounted for at least 72 German planes over France and Germany.

The mighty blow from the sky blew a corridor in the enemy Orne defences, allowing British-Canadian infantry and armor to pour through.

The Germans showed little power to cope with the combined land-air thrust, although they retaliated savagely with one of their heaviest robot-bomb attacks upon Southern England to date.

Despite the fact that information on the progress of the battle was scanty at Headquarters, it was possible from field reports and announcement of air activity to piece together this picture:

The offensive—more than 40 days in preparation—was the heaviest in weight of ground troops and armor that the Allies yet have unleashed in France.

It was a straight power punch, with nothing fancy about it. "High strategy" was ruled out by the confined area of operation.

More than 2200 Allied planes were called in for strategic support in the initital explosive wallop at the enemy directly across the river from Caen.

Avoiding pitfalls of the bombardment of Cassino when heavy bomberes so cratered the path of the advance that Allied troops were blocked, heavy air bombardment forces this time confined heavy bombs to selected strong points. Thousands of small anti-personnel bombs were sprayed in the "corridor" several miles wide along which the Allies were to advance.

Thousands of British and Canadian guns laid down a curtain of fire ahead of the advancing tanks. From the sea, the British cruisers Maritius and Enterprise and the Monitor Roberts added their salvoes.

The curtain of explosives left the Nazi defenders dazed. Many of the prisoners were confused, and shaken so severely they were unable to work the bolts on their rifles.

Tanks poured through the corridor" and raced for the plains beyond while British infantry followed behind to clean up Faubourg De Vaucelles and dozens of villages in house-to-house fighting.

Germans Confused

Montgomery's headquarters declined to give any information of the progress of the attack because it believes that Rommel's command is so confused it does not know

Wallace To Face Keen Opposition

CHICAGO, July 19 — (CP). — Delegates to the Democratic National Convention went into session here today with little doubt about their choice of a Presidential candidate but in a quandary who to nominate for Vice-President.

There seems little question that President Roosevelt will be selected tomorrow as the democratic candidate in a campaign which, if he wins next November's elections, will return him to the White House for a fourth four-year term.

Perhaps more than at any previous National convention, choice of a vice-presidential candidate holds the spotlight. Some think that President Roosevelt, once the war is won and post-war plans are well-launched, might retire from the Presidency, letting the vice-president complete the four-year term.

Apart from that there is the question of the President's health. One commentator wrote today: "Only a heartbeat separates the vice-president from the presidency."

The only vice-presidential candidate who has delegates pledged to support him as vice-president Henry A. Wallace, but there are many who oppose him and a large list of elegible for the place as Mr. Roosevelt's running-mate.

Coldwell Has Ushers Remove Candidate

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 19. — (CP).—J. C. Landeryou, Social Credit nominee for Lethbridge in the Alberta elections Aug. 8, was carried bodily from a C.C.F. public meeting last night after refusing to apologize to M. J. Coldwell for a remark he made during the meeting.

The incident occurred when Mr. Coldwell, chief speaker, said that Norman Jacques, Social Credit M.P. for Wetaskiwin, had declared in Parliament recently that the finance of Canada was controlled by "Jews."

"If you are saying that the Social Credit party is against Jews or attacking them, you are a liar," Mr. Landeryou, a member of the audience, declared.

Mr. Coldwell gave the speaker five seconds to apologize or be removed, but Mr. Landeryou did not reply. Four ushers then pounced on Mr. Landeryou, punching him and drawing blood from one ear, then carrying him outside.

Considerable Antagonism.

The captive said there was considerable antagonism between older and younger commanders, but that the veterans were keeping silent and carrying out orders because Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the High Command, had announced that any criticism would be punished by death.

Hofmeister asserted that Hitler, to affirm his strategy, recently called a conference of generals and admirals and that he attended.

"His (Hitler's) face was swollen, his voice was low and he got mixed up in his speech," the statement said.

The prisoner said Hitler rambled and stumbled over his words throughout his speech to his commanders and asserted, toward the close, that Germany would win the war, of course.

"But nobody explained just how," Hofmeister's statement said.

Press War Correspondent Doug How said "heavy fighting" in the centre of the 8th Army line had brought British troops to Cancelli, six miles northwest of Arezzo.

He said Antria, two miles beyond the fallen road centre, also had been reached.

The drive on Monte Varchi was made in twin thrusts, How reported. One move along Highway 69 and the other through hill country. Both were launched from fallen Levante, 25 miles from Florence.

How said Canadian armor supporting this British ground drive found heavy going in demolition-damaged Terrain.

On the western end of the Italian front, American troops of the Allied 5th Army battled their way nearer Livorno (Leghorn), winning positions on the slopes of Monte Della Poggia—three miles from the centre of the port—after fierce fighting.

350 Believed Dead In Explosion

PORT CHICAGO, Calif., July 19. — (AP). — Reconstruction of the United States Navy's Port Chicago ammunition depot began today as the death toll in the country's worst war-time explosion approximated 350.

All available construction workers were urged to report immediately to the devastated area where the explosions of two ammunition ships late Monday night shattered the munitions base and the town of 1,500.

The cause remained undetermined. Navy and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were on hand for an investigation, but the devastation left little to investigate.

Official sources gave this account of the known death toll: 200 to 260 navy men; nine naval officers; 70 Maritime Commission seamen; 36 members of Navy Armed Guard crews; five Coast Guardsmen; three civilian railroad workers.

Additional deaths were quite possible. An exact count of the dead was difficult because the explosions were so terrific they killed without leaving a trace of identification. Only four bodies had been recovered last night.

Most of the navy enlisted men were killed while loading the ammunition ships. Many seamen and members of the crews died about the ships. The barracks, a mile away, was shattered.

Twisted hulls of the two freighters, the new 10,000-ton Quinault Victory and a Liberty ship E. A. Bryan, protruded today from the channel offshore from the torn dock area.

Monetary loss will run into many millions of dollars. The ships alone were valued at $4,300,000.

Allied Nations Are Prepared For Possibility Nazi Workers Might Overthrow Government

LONDON, July 19 — (CP-Reuter). — Prime Minister Churchill said in the House of Commons on Tuesday the Allies are prepared for the possibility that German workers might overthrow the present Nazi government to establish a Communist regime.

Rhys Davies (Labor) asked Mr. Churchill: "May we take it that the British Government will not do with a Communist Germany what he (Mr. Churchill) and his Government did when Bolshevists emerged in Russia at the end of the last war?"

"I would not like to go into this matter, but I am quite sure that German criminals have no right to escape merely by embracing the Communist faith," Mr. Churchill replied.

Mr. Davies then asked if the British and Allied Governments would welcome the emergence of a Communist regime in Germany.

Mr. Churchill declined an answer by saying it was not at all helpful or useful to put a number of complicated and hypothetical questions on these matters.

Artillery Barrage Terrific Wounded Highlander Writes

The artillery barrages laid down by the Allies in their advance in France is so terrific that it is hard to believe anyone undergoing it could come out alive, writes Pte. Morley Dingman to his wife, R.R. 3, Peterborough. He was slightly wounded while serving with the North Nova Scotia Highlanders as a despatch rider and is now in hospital. His letter was dated July 12.

"Now I know I'm the luckiest guy in the world. I'm writing this from a hospital in England. Good old blighty again and it sure does look good after France. I'm hardly what you would call wounded, just a shrapnel wound in one finger and a slighter one on top of my head. I wasn't going to bother with it but the M.O. thought differently, so here I am.

"We flew over from France in a Douglas Dakota and it was quite an experience. It's hard to realize how quiet it is here after all the noise at the front. One of those artillery barrages that we send over is really something. It goes over our heads while we're in the slit trenches, just before we attack, and you can't believe anyone could live through it, at the receiving end. But there's plenty of them left when we move up. Most of the prisoners are just kids 14 to 18 years old and fanatical Nazis, too.

"You've likely read about the big push in the newspapers. Things were very tough just beoerf I left, that's why I feel so fortunate. I was on my motorcycle when one of Jerry's shells landed nearby, but the bike came out a lot worse than I did. You should see my clothes. I'll need a whole new issue before I leave the hospital.

"Life in a slit trench was pretty bad at times. When we are lucky we find some straw for the bottom and some old boards to make a roof. This is covered with dirt and camouflage, with just a little hole a one end for a door. Then there are always a mosquitoes, beetles and worms to keep a fellow company at night. But the boys sure are winning the war. Pretty soon I expect to be travelling a lot farther west and home again, for good, this time."

Federal Member Knows Cheese

OTTAWA, July 19—(CP)—G. J. Tustin (P.C.—Prince Edward-Lennox) last night told the Commons how his knowledge of Canadian chese brought a clarification of the facts in an English restaurant.

A visitor in London, Mr. Tustin, an Ontario farmer, saw "Canadian cheese" on the menu and ordered it.

The order was delivered and Mr. Tustin was surprised. It was not Canadian cheese. He called the waiter, who said it was Canadian cheese. Mr. Tustin called the head waiter who said it was Canadian cheese.

His jaw thrust out and his eye stern, Mr. Tustin demanded the manager.

The manager came, started to say it was Canadian cheese and then paused.

"Why do you say this is Canadian cheese?" demanded Mr. Tustin.

The manager finally admitted it was New Zealand cheese. The trouble was he couldn't get Canadian cheese when he wanted it and had substituted.

Mr. Tustin said that in the future peace years Canada should see there was sufficient cheese always on hand in Britain.

To Shareholders
NORSEMAN MINES
LIMITED
This Progress Report Is Published for the Information of Unregistered Shareholders
PROGRESS REPORT No. 6
To:
SHAREHOLDERS,
NORSEMAN MINES LIMITED:
We have been besieged by enquiries from Old Shareholders of NORSEMAN MINES LIMITED as to why Norseman does not develop its properties in the Yellowknife Area owing to the recent prominence attained by that Field. The demands have, in fact, become so insistent and the logic of these demands being so apparent, we are literally forced to double our development work activities and carry on operations in two Camps simultaneously, viz.: YELLOWKNIFE and BOURLAMAQUE.
Your Directors would, as a matter of fact, have started operations in the Yellowknife some time ago but for the reason that we are convinced we have a Mine in Bourlamaque Township and that it only requires a comparatively small amount of additional work to prove that fact. Fortunately, however, we have sufficient finances to conduct operations in both Camps and a crew is being sent to the Yellowknife Property by the first plane available to start work there.
For the benefit of New Shareholders who are not familiar with the fact that we have long held these promising Yellowknife Properties, we would advise that they adjoin or are in close proximity to such developments as holdings of Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company and Argonaut Yellowknife Mines Limited. Other active developments such as the Continental Mines and Coleman Interests practically surround the Norseman Groups, and two, at least, of these enterprises are now moving diamond drills to their properties.
The Argonaut Yellowknife appears close to production with a small mill and power plant installed; shaft down to a depth of 40 feet; main vein exposed for over three-quarters of a mile and having a width of from 6 to 22 feet; channel sample assays which have returned over $21.00 in Gold per ton over a width of 22 feet; 16 consecutive bulk samples from shaft averaging $13.99 in Gold per ton with free Gold eliminated; and accommodation for a crew of 25 men.
With all this expansion of Norseman's operations, do not forget, however, that our first and greatest mine-making hopes are centred in Bourlamaque Township, where diamond drilling is being carried on as a 24-hour-a-day operation. It is true that we have at times been held up by serious fires in the area, by boulders and overburden, which are the heritage of all operations in that Field.
There are many mining difficulties to contend with in Bourlamaque developments before ore bodies can be properly outlined and explored, but these difficulties are being faced and overcome as rapidly as humanly possible and we ask for just a little patience on the part of Shareholders for we are convinced that we will make a Mine in this Field. As a matter of fact, if these difficulties did not exist and if Gold ore was easily obtainable, it is probable that you could only participate in Norseman at dollars rather than cents per share.
In the matter of Norseman's Bourlamaque prospects, we have, as previously reported, 63 separate assays showing Gold from diamond drill cores as well as excellent mineralization. For more recent information, we would refer to a Report dated July 11th, 1944, published by Financial Counsel, whose Staff Mining Reporter recently visited that section of the country. In reporting on Lavalie Mines Limited, which adjoins Norseman on the North, he states, in part:
"Encouraging Gold values are also reported in a third strong break to the South near the Norseman line. . ."
It will be a matter of great encouragement to all Shareholders to know that the Norseman property covers an extension of the strong break above mentioned and the same break is evidently one which is indicated on the property of Aumaque Mines Limited adjoining Norseman on the West.
We here quote a wire just received from Geologist Paul D'Aragon: "Norseman Mine covers the Western Extension of the third strong break reported on Lavalie by Financial Counsel."
Norseman will naturally take steps as quickly as possible to drill the Norseman property adjacent to the Lavalie "find," but we must also pursue our plans to investigate by diamond drilling many other promising geological formations adjacent to Aumaque and East Sullivan.
A further report covering developments in both the Bourlamaque and Yellowknife Camps will go forward to Shareholders shortly. In the meantime, we would repeat that we have ample funds to continue operations in both Fields, and Shareholders have the prospect of participating in two separate mining operations in two of the greatest Mining Camps in Canada and for only one investment.
Yours faithfully,
F. A. WALPOLE
President.

Greater Unity Possible Arthur Marcotte Tells Senate

OTTAWA, July 19.—(CP).—Senator Arthur Marcotte (PC-Saskachewan) said in the senate on Tuesday the history of England and France — once stern enemies and now strong allies—offers a basis on which Canadians can reach greater unity. He spoke on a motion calling for action by the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference on the preparation of a uniform textbook of Canadian history which would be acceptable to all provinces.

The Senate gave first reading to a number of government bills, including provision for a health and welfare department and for the setting up of an air transport board to control civil aviation.

Senator Marcotte spoke in support of a motion by Senator L. A. David calling for action by the proposed Dominon-provincial conference on the preparation of a uniform textbook of Canadian history which would be acceptable to all provinces.

He said that, while the subject was one which should be discussed on an academic basis, it had become the basis of heated arguments.

Senator Marcotte made no direct reference to an address June 21 in the same debate by Senator T. D. Bouchard (L., Quebec), when Senator Bouchard said the Order of Jacques Cartier was fostering a movement for the establishment of an independent French state in Canada.

No Furor Foreseen

Senator Marcotte said, however, that in introducing the motion Senator David "did not expect the sensational furor the discussion has created outside this chamber."

(Senator Bouchard in his speech said nearly every revolution had started under the influence of secret societies and the Jacques Cartier Order had been founded in 1928 as a secret society with the blessing of Catholic and French clergy. Senator Bouchard later was dismissed by Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission.)

"Politics, and politics of a very base and degrading nature have become mixed with this question of history teaching," said Senator Marcotte. "So much so that it is difficult today to discuss this resolution in a manner that will not start bitter controversies. The present election in the province of Quebec is another reason for the care we have to take not to pass more fuel to the present burning fires."

He said Lord Tweedsmuir, shortly before his death, had told him he was working on a Canadian history which would be acceptable to both English and French-Canadians. Senator Marcotte said he believed the preparation of such a book was possible if the authors stuck to the truth.

Wonders Why Rifts Exist

"When I read history and I see the two mother countries of our Canada —England and France—fighting all over the world against each other for centuries while discovering, pioneering, developing new worlds to bring them civilization and Christianity, and then becoming united in a joint effort to save the world to that same civilization, to that same Christianity, and this for the second time in a quarter of a century, I am wondering why here the sons and descendants of those two great people cannot be more united," he said.

This year's Saint Jean Baptiste Day parade in Montreal had a counterpart in Normandy, where Canadian soldiers rode in jeeps and tanks.

"Is this not enough to counteract certain elucubrations, certain movements by some irresponsible youths, movements which, if they are to be feared perhaps, are certainly to be deplored," he said.

Rotarians Hear Of Navy Courses

CAMBPBELLFORD, July 19.—(ENS). — Lieut.-Commander Don H. Craighead of H.M.C.S. Kings, at Halifax, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club which met at Rotarian P. C. Denyes' cottage on the Trent River above Healey Falls. He spoke of the H.M.C.S. Peterborough, which has been equipped by the city. He was personally acquainted with the captain, who had voiced his deep appreciation of the appointments of the ship provided by the citizens of Peterborough, and he mentioned the homey comforts of table silver, radios, and laid emphasis on the utility of the washing machines in the ship.

The speaker said that officers were specially trained from the ranks as well as from university men. They were given courses in navigation, signalling, and seamanship and the personnel was drawn from men who lived far inland as well as from the coastal area. The anti - submarine and gunnery courses were taken at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, which is a self-contained navy town. He briefly mentioned the wonders performed in convoy duty and in salvaging operations and in conclusion praised the work of the Rotarians in providing swimming instruction to the children.

Comander Craighead was born at Burnbrae and graduated from the Campbellford High School and Queen's University and prior to his enlistment was a teacher at Norwood High School.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Dr. O. C. Watson, and the thanks of the club were conveyed by Rotarian A. J. Meyers. Rotarian Harry Fowlds moved a hearty vote of thanks to Past President Denyes for the use of his cottage and to Mrs. Wood for furnishing the repast so efficiently under difficult circumstances.

Premier King Expected To Seek Ontario Seat

OTTAWA, July 19—Prime Minister King, who has represented Prince Albert riding since 1926, one year after he was defeated by the late T. Herbert Lennox in North York, may return to Ontario for this coming election, it is widely rumored in Ottawa.

Behind the reports, as heard by his own supporters, is the suggestion that a weakening in his riding organization and an upsurge of C.C.F. strength which made that party's candidate an easy victor in the Saskatchewan elections, when added together, bring a conclusion that Mr. King would have extreme difficulty in getting re-elected in Prince Albert.

Party members, with cold realism, admit that it would be a blow to Liberal prestige if Mr. King switched ridings before an election. But the same cold realism tells them it would be a distinct party blow if Mr. King were not returned to lead it in Parliament.

Something Must be Done About Certain People

CANDY UNWRAPPERS
Just at the crucial point of a movie —they start to tear the paper off a candy bar—and the love scene sounds like a forest fire. Such nervous people should do something about it!

FINGER DRUMMERS
Those disturbers of the peace. They can't listen to anybody talk without drumming out a tattoo on the chair arm with their nervous fingers. Maybe they're people who drink tea or coffee when they shouldn't. Maybe caffein is affecting their nerves.

FOOT TAPPERS
The least little delay—perhaps unavoidable delay—starts them tapping out their irritation. Often they grumble at an innocent salesclerk or street-car conductor or stenographer. Can tea or coffee be to blame? Would Postum help?

HAPPY POSTUM DRINKERS
People should find out what causes nervousness or sleeplessness. Very often it's as simple a thing as tea or coffee. Tea and coffee make many people nervous, even though others can drink them without ill effect.

If tea or coffee affects you—switch to POSTUM. It is caffein-free, stimulant-free. It can't set your nerves on edge.

Postum has a robust, hearty flavor all its own. Economical—costs less than a cent a cup. Convenient—Instant Postum is made right in the cup just by adding boiling water or hot milk. Your grocer has Postum.

Doves Of Peace

There is plenty of evidence that the Nazis are sick of the war which they began and want to end it as soon as possible. They want to end it on the best possible terms for themselves; that goes without saying. Therefore they have adopted typically Nazi methods for setting a peace move in train: they began by devilling the south of England, and particularly London, with robot bombs, and then they held out the hope that this form of wanton destruction and needless torture might stop if the British wanted deliverance from the nuisance badly enough to make peace. Consider this paraphrase of an article by Goebbels which the German DNB agency broadcast recently to the United Nations:

"He said that all nations, for the time after the war, are longing for quiet and relaxation, national progress, far-reaching social reform, economic prosperity and undisturbed happiness. All this, however, must be achieved not at the expense of happiness of other people, but must be secured out of their strength. The Germans, in fact, have never wished for anything else but what the people throughout the world, belligerents and non-belligerents alike, are expecting from peace today in the fifth year of war".

That is a very broad hint that peace may be made any time—on Nazi terms.

• • •

The Germans might even ask for an armistice on their own volition if the Casablanca terms of Unconditional Surrender had not been so thoroughly dinned into their ears. Unconditional Surrender is the harshest of all terms upon which peace can be obtained. The country which surrenders unconditionally is utterly at the disposal of its conquerors; it has no rights, no pride, no future, save at the pleasure and discretion of its enemies. The Germans, reflecting uncomfortably on their conduct during the days when the war went well for them, and some of their cruelties since then, know that the fate which would come to them if they surrendered unconditionally would not have a single easy feature about it. They are doing what they can now to wean the United Nations away from their Casablanca stand, hoping to get off as cheaply as possible themselves.

• • •

But although the German intention is unmistakeable, it is not free from confusion. This is from Hitler's latest adjuration to his people:

"This gigantic struggle for the fate of the German nation is deciding the future of many generations to come.... The guiding star of all our actions is the one unchangeable principle that we will never capitulate.... Victory will reward us for everything".

No, Germany may not think that she will capitulate, but she would dearly love to patch up a peace now so that she will not have to fight for her national existence. Germany, which has threatened the national existence of most of Europe, has not within the last century suffered any serious threat of this kind herself. She was humiliated in 1918, but she did not suffer any physical violence. There was no fighting in German streets; no German civilians were forced to hide in the fields while their homes were demolished by gunfire; Germany's program of rebuilding was confined to the economic field. She did not have to pick up broken stones, and build new houses in the ruins of familiar streets. Now the fear of Unconditional Surrender is being used to spur the weary Germans on to greater efforts of war-making.

• • •

Over the weekend news came from the Vatican City that the Japanese Ambassador had told the Pope that his country had no desire to fight 'a long and inconclusive war' and was ready to accept any peace which recognized Japan's right to national life and economy'—meaning, doubtless, her right to keep everything which she has taken. Why should the Japs be intersted in peace at a time when they still have plenty of men and materials to continue the war? Could it be that Germany and Japan are agreed that this war has not been a success, and that it should be called off as soon as possible?

• • •

The twistings and squirmings of enemy propagandists are entertaining to watch, but we must take great care not to be confused by them. There is always a temptation to make peace as quickly as possible in order to be rid of the inconveniences of war, but the United Nations pledged themselves to accept no terms but Unconditional Surrender and we fully expect that they will stick to that. But the Nazis would still enjoy a measure of victory if, after they had surrendered unconditionally, popular sentiment among the United Nations demanded that they be given less than the most severe settlement. When they fall, we must be sure that they do not fall on cushions which they have providently placed for themselves.

The Underground Comes Above Ground

No future history of this war will be complete without a chapter on the underground and guerilla forces which have done so much to keep alive the fighting spirit in subjected peoples. When the United Nations were unable to give any help there were brave men and women in every occupied country who kept their national spirit alive, and endured unbelievable hardship in order to continue the fight against the tyrants. Now, at last, it is possible for some parts of the underground to come above ground, and fight the enemy face to face.

The French patriot forces—the Maquis—are now fighting behind the German lines in France, harrying the enemy and keeping forces busy which would otherwise be free to join the fighting in Normandy. It is estimated that there are 175 thousand Maquis, and the effectiveness of their fighting is proved by the fact that the Nazis have declared angrily that these fighters are outside the law, and will be treated as guerillas if they are caught.

General Charles de Gaulle has ordered all officers and non-commissioned officers of the former French Army to join the French forces of the interior and to be ready to act upon further orders. On Saturday last General Eisenhower declared that the French partisan forces were to be looked upon as part of the Allied Armies. General Joseph Pierre Koenig has been appointed commander of these forces.

General Koenig's name will be familiar to those who recall the engagement at Bir Hacheim in 1942. It was an important position in North Africa, held by Free French troops under Koenig. When Rommel attacked it on May 26 it was expected that the small French garrison would have to surrender at once to his vastly greater forces; but Koenig held on for 15 days and then fought his way out with the greatest bravery, when the British Middle East Command ordered an evacuation. Koenig, who is an Alsatian, has been a professional soldier all his life and is held in high esteem as a daring and resourceful officer. Fighting under him the Maquis will be a formidable force, and as they work behind the German lines they will probably confine themselves to harrying and distracting action, rather than pitched battles.

Once again a French army is fighting on the soil of France. It is made up of men from eight French groups of resistance, six political parties and two trade unions, but in the cause of liberation it has found unity.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The only really comfortable garb for this weather is a coat of tan.

Two soldiers in a commando unit in the South Pacific are named Gilbert and Sullivan. Probably they have hopes of eventually producing The Mikado.

Children are to receive bonuses; the aged are to have bigger pensions. And the money is going to be supplied by those of us who are in the Sahara of Life—the years between 20 and 60.

An actor is quoted as saying that he wonders how Shakespeare would be regarded if he lived in Stratford today. Probably he would have no trouble in establishing a claim to the title of Oldest Inhabitant.

Once again a joint committee of the Commons and Senate is trying to put the city of Ottawa on its feet. Don't be hard on Ottawa, boys: it has only one garbage collection a week and no place to get rid of the stuff when it's collected.

The manufacture of ink has been discontinued in Germany in order to save bottles and shipping space. And as the battle front and the home front are rapidly being combined there is no longer much need to write letters to the boys.

The Book Banned In Boston

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

A GREAT deal of extremely valuable publicity has been given to Lillian Smith's novel, "Strange Fruit," by the circumstance that it is banned in the city of Boston. It is banned too from the public libraries of the city of Toronto, which also fancies itself as a sniffer-out of obsecenities and heresies, but Toronto has not yet achieved Boston's eminence in this respect. When a book is banned in Boston there are great numbers of people who rush to buy it, saying, 'This must be hot stuff'; and there are also those who say, 'A book which arouses the hatred of the puritans of Boston is quite likely to be of unusual literary merit, for puritans notoriously hate whatever is first-class, preferring safe mediocrities', and they too hasten to buy it. The latter group would not be disappointed in "Strange Fruit". It deserves the hackneyed critical adjective 'distinguished'. It has been banned, I presume, because it uses on page 192 a word which is well-known to every English-speaking person over the age of ten. How the word could have been avoided, I do not know; a negro who is making an immoral proposal to a girl of his own colour does not employ the Latinized expressions of Havelock Ellis. Artistically the word is right where it is written; and what is artistically right is unlikely to corrupt anybody who has the tiniest crumb of artistic sensibility. People who lack that crumb are ipso facto corrupt anyway.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE scene of "Strange Fruit" is laid in Georgia, and its plot is concerned with the relations between the white people and the negroes in a small town in that state. Never having been to Georgia, and never having seen more than one negro at a time (except in minstrel shows), I do not propose to express any opinion about the accuracy of what Lillian Smith has written; I can only say that it has the ring of truth about it, and that if Georgia wants to deny it there will be great difficulty in rooting the impression which this book gives out of the mind of this continent. From what we see in the newspapers we all know that the lot of the negro in the South is unenviable, that lynchings are not unknown, and that a negro who insists too firmly on his rights under the Constitution gets the reputation of being 'uppity' and is likely to suffer for it. The rights and wrongs of the situation are enormously complex. But the situation exists, and creates some strange tangles. One of these is described in "Strange Fruit".

◆ ◆ ◆

NONNIE ANDERSON belongs to the best coloured family in Maxwell. Her mother and father were respectable and God-fearing folk who worked hard to send Nonnie and her sister Bess to a negro college. Returning to Maxwell these "educated nigrahs' had to find jobs, so Bess became a cook and Nonnie became nursemaid to a defective child. The contrasts between these two women who are energetic, cultivated and ready to take all that life can give, and the debilitated, hag-ridden, virtually illiterate citizens of white Maxwell is insisted upon by the author. The tragedy of the story lies in Nonnie's love affair with Tracy Deen. Tracy was the son of the local doctor, and his mother was a woman who had built up a formidable reputation for religion and noble womanhood; so striking was this reputation that it almost blinded her family to the fact that she was a narrow tyrant and a bloodsucker. Tracy was her disappointment, because Tracy sinned with black women, but she bore her cross bravely, if not uncomplainingly. But there came a time when his mother decided to 'save' Tracy, so she put a visiting evangelist to work on him, and Brother Dunwoodie did a first-rate job. He persuaded Tracy to throw Nonnie over, and to marry Dorothy Pusey, his mother's choice.

◆ ◆ ◆

ACCORDING to the conventions of Maxwell, Tracy had to go to Dorothy "with his hands clean", which meant that he must have no unresolved relationship with a woman in Coloured Town. So he gave his mother's house-boy Henry a hundred dollars to marry Nonnie, and he offered Nonnie two hundred dollars to salve her feelings. This was where Tracy made his mistake; he thought that an educated and sensitive negro girl would have different feelings about such a matter from those which he would have expected in a white girl of the same type. Tracy was no psychologist, and not much of a man. He could not understand why Nonnie appeared to regard him with horror, as though he had done a cruel and inexplicable act. He explained to her that his love for her had been sinful, however sweet it may have seemed at the time, but she did not understand him. And she resolutely insisted on bearing the child which was his. This Tracy did not understand. Nor did Maxwell understand when Tracy was found murdered in some bushes. Such a fine young man, and just brought into the church by Brother Dunwoodie!

◆ ◆ ◆

WHEN a white man is murdered in the South it is apparently conventional to lynch or burn a negro. The negro may not be the murderer; indeed, the murderer may not have been a negro, but the lynching is regarded as a salutary measure anyway. And so a negro was burned to death for the murder of Tracy Deen, although Nonnie's brother Ed, who did the deed, escaped without suspicion. . . . In synopsis, the story of "Strange Fruit" may sound melodramatic and overstrained. It is not so as it is told by Lillian Smith. She has a remarkable gift of economy, and she tells her story in 314 pages, but it is full of suggestion, and allusion, and hints which will keep the reader's mind busy for some days after he has finished the book. To Canadian readers one of the most interesting aspects fo this novel will be its introduction of the modern, educated painfully race-conscious negro. We are used to the slaves who fill the pages of every Southern story from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to "Gone With The Wind", and we know the improbable grotesques of Octavus Roy Cohen. But the negro as a contemporary and a man of ideas is something new to most of us. It is well for us to make his acquaintance and "Strange Fruit" gives a useful introduction.

MOVIES OF A CRIME

The Axis regimes in Europe frequently used the motion picture to tout the glories of their military triumphs. Last week the British radio reported that the Fascists had used movies for yet another purpose. Benito Mussolini, the report said, had had a film made of the execution of his son-in-law, Count Ciano, and other members of the Fascist grand council sentenced to death for "their betrayal of fascism."—New York Times.

FIRST CLAIM

The Fourth Term ?

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

MEASURED by the record of practical politics, the career of Franklin Delano Roosevelt moves now into its fourth presidential election and perhaps its fourth presidential term. Measured by the record of world history, it enters a final and supreme phase for which everything up to now has been preparation.

As his work since 1932 has been part of the woof and web of our time, so his fortunes in this election for better or worse will deeply involve the fortunes of the whole human family.

Now that he has decided to seek a fourth term, twice the service borne by any predecessor, it is possible to trace the development of his visible policy and his inner mind in the twelve fateful years of his presidency.

Without an understanding of his steady growth and change it is impossible to understand the history of our time or the future prospects of our civilization.

FOUR distinct phases can now be distinguished in Mr. Roosevelt's career, each producing grave consequences for the world at large. He entered the presidency in the darkest hours since the Civil War. It is clear now that he was not equipped by education or past thinking to understand the true nature of the depression. Therefore he turned to other minds and out of their conflicting counsel he improvised the living paradox called the New Deal. Essentially it was autarchial, an attempt to lift the United States out of the world depression alone. To forward this futile experiment he did not hesitate to destroy the London Economic Conference which was seeking a world-wide solution for a world problem. In this first phase he was an economic isolationist not by instinct but by bad expert advice.

This economic isolationism had its political side. In a second phase, Mr. Roosevelt seemed to abandon the internationalism of his youth, finally rejected the League of Nations altogether, and agreed to the Neutrality Act. But he was shaping his policies to suit the people's mood and inwardly he never changed his mind. In 1937, his true opinions emerged when his sense of history compelled him to propose a quarantine of aggressor nations. His own people rejected his proposal and he was driven into silence as the world storm gathered.

BY the first days of the war the third phase was opened. More clearly than any of his contemporaries the President saw what the war meant; that his own country could not survive the breakdown of the democratic Atlantic world. In this greatest national crisis the President suddenly emerged in the stature of Lincoln and of Washington. History will show that his leadership in this period not only held together a divided nation and made it whole, but assured the salvation of Britain and ultimately of the world. It was a task much more difficult than making war, a task of infinite delicacy and patience. In it Mr. Roosevelt showed a genius of invention, of compromise, of timing, in such master-strokes as the destroyer deal, the Lend-Lease formula, the Atlantic Charter. With his hands tied by his country's neutrality and his own sincere desire to keep it neutral if he could, Mr. Roosevelt yet managed to wage war through his friends against a common enemy.

Compared with the strain of this subtle balance, the role of commander-in-chief when war came was relatively simple. How great a commander-in-chief he has been, how peerless a war leader, the world knows.

BUT the fourth phase of this extraordinary record is not so well understood yet, for it is only beginning to appear. Just as he turned from political isolation to collective security, Mr. Roosevelt is becoming now the leader of all those forces which seek a world society, which know that the modern world of its organic nature must be united in freedom or in slavery. He is the sponsor of a new League of Nations, he is the chief architect of plans for the relief of the ruined nations, of a world nutrition programme, of currency stabilization, of tariff reduction, of maximum international trade. While the great internal reforms of the New Deal remain an enduring monument, he has left behind its original fallacy of self-containment, and his economic policies have kept abreast of his political internationalism.

It is in this phase and at the beginning of his greatest work that the American people will judge him in the autumn election. The people's opinion of him, his political assets and liabilities, and the issues of the campaign are not yet clear. But it is clear that in determining the future of Mr. Roosevelt the American people will be voting by proxy for the whole democratic world. This man does not belong to the American people alone. Like the other great statesmen of his nation, like Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Wilson, whose heir he is, Mr. Roosevelt belongs to humanity, which will remember him so long as history is written.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FEED THE BIRDS

Sir,—Just a little request—and it isn't going to cost any money or much energy on the part of any person—"Feed the birds."

We haven't had much rain to speak of for some weeks, and the worms don't come to the surface for the birds to get, and they are eating the raspberries and other fruits off the bushes. And fruit is a scarce thing these summers. So it would help if everyone would throw out the scraps of meat, bread and stale cake, and if they have a few raisins in them all the better. I am sure you will be amply repaid for so doing by their singing for you at five o'clock in the morning—and if you don't believe it be up and see; and seeing is believing.

Thanks for space in your paper, I remain,
HOUSEWIFE.

IN HOSPITABLE PETERBOROUGH

Sir,—I had occasion to be in your city on Thursday of this last week. It was noon when I arrived, so was lucky to find a place to leave my car at the north side of Eaton's store, while my wife and I did some shopping. We had several stores to go to, before we got what we wanted, and also had our lunch; it took us two hours. When we got back to the car to return home we found a ticket on the car informing us that we had committed some sort of a crime by leaving our car on the street, and ordering us to report at the police station and pay a fine of one dollar, which is fifty cents per hour for the use of the street. I wasn't interfering with anyone, and if my car wasn't parked there somebody else would have been. Must a person keep moving his car from one place to another so as not to be too long in one place?

What is the matter; do they want the streets for their own people? Is that the reason they punish an outsider who dares to use them? It certainly is not the way to encourage people from other places to spend their money in Peterborough. I was so mad to think I had been the victim of banditry, for it is nothing else than a holdup, that I felt like returning all the things we had bought and get our money back. I don't know how you feel about it, Mr. Editor; would you feel like shopping in a city that charges fifty cents per hour for the use of its streets while you shop there? I tried to explain to the receiver of the fine, but you might as well have talked to a brick wall for all the interest they took. So, Mr. Editor, that's my complaint.

My name is E. C. SILVESTER, a brother of the late David Silvester, Provincial Constable, who lived in your city for ten years.

Glider-Borne Troops

THE greatest thrill was the arrival of a vast sweep of glider-borne troops towed by transport planes, in the late afternoon and evening of the first day of the assault (on the Normandy beaches). It was a wholly unexpected and soul-stirring sight, and I cannot tell you what a tremendous impression it made. Even hard-boiled veterans on deck could hardly speak, as the great roaring wave went over. It was so long from end to end that the first transports were returning without gliders on one side of the ship while on the other the gliders were still going by. It was a scene out of the future and certainly the greatest sight of my whole life. First there was a distant mutter which rose quickly to thunder. Then they were above us in perfect formation, the twinkling spiderweb filament visibly connecting transport with glider. I could not see them land and don't know what were the casualties among them on the fields where they heroically crash-dived. But there is no question that this is one of the great developments of the war.—Richard Lee Strout, on a cruiser, writing for the New Republic.

THE OLD SCHOOL CAP

Parents and school authorities are becoming increasingly concerned at the acute shortage of children's caps and hats.

Many schools are asking scholars who are leaving to pass on their old caps, to be used by other boys and girls.

Some famous shops which formerly sold hundreds of school caps each term have been given less than a score to meet the whole of the Summer demand.

Felt and Panama hats are unobtainable but some schools have succeeded in obtaining odd stocks of straw "boaters," although these had long been discarded as part of the school uniform.—London Evening Standard.

HE GAVE HIS LIFE

An Indian officer who flung himself on a mine that was about to explode in order to save the lives of six comrades is the first Indian to win the George Cross.

Subedar Subramanian, of the Madras Sappers and Miners, was in charge of a mine clearing company which had been ordered to search for a missing Jamadar who was believed to have walked into a minefield near Migani, Italy. Subramanian was operating the mine detector when a small explosion occurred. Realizing that someone had trodden on an anti-personnel mine, and that within four seconds the canister would be blown into the air and explode, he rushed without the slightest hesitation towards the mine and flung himself on the top of it, at the same time trying to knock his comrade aside. The force of the explosion was largely neutralized by the subedar's body and six lives were saved as a result. The subedar was killed.

Subedar Subramanian has now been awarded the George Cross posthumously for "conspicuous gallantry in performing hazardous work in a very brave manner." He had already won the Indian Distinguished Service Medal in North Africa in 1943.—Indian Information Office.

A Bible Message

THUS saith the Lord to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue the nations before him; and I will loose the loins of kings, to open before him the two leaved gates; and the gates shall not be shut; I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight: I will break in pieces the gates of brass, and cut in sunder the bars of iron; and I will give thee the treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I, the Lord, which call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel.

For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me.

I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me: that they may know from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me. I am the Lord, and there is none else.

I form the light, and create darkness: I make peace, and create evil: I the Lord do all these things. (Isa. 45: 1-7.)

"Well, what are ratio and proportion?"
"I can only answer one question at a time, sir," replied Jenkins with cold dignity.

Tank Epitomizes Fury, Humdrum Of Modern Battle

BY DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, July 19 — (CP) — The "Commando" sat under a great, sprawling tree, every inch of her the battlehorse. She had seen things, done things, the "Commando," in the year since they sent her snorting into her first actions in the dust of Sicily. Months ago she had done her 1,000th Italian mile and now she was better than halfway to another 1,000.

Sicily, the pursuit through the south, the Moro Valley and then that five-day brawl in the few miles between the Rapido River and Pignataro, the German's Gustav Line. The "Commando" knew them all, had pitched and bucked and killed in them all until she had that sane, sure, oaken look that comes to a great battleship that has known frequent trial and recurrent success.

The shock of an exploding mine beneath her solid belly, the feel of the fitter's tools about her treaded feet, the changing crews, the changing squadrons, the clear, unflustered voice of the colonel over the intercommunication system that gave guidance and leadership to the five harried men within her. The colonel was gone now, gone back to England to have an operation on the leg he'd put in a leather brace all through the doings in the Gustav Line.

She has known men, the "Commando." She had known most of them that were shooting one another here in Italy, the durable, happly little Gurkha who chattered to her crew in Indian-Italian and got answered in Canadian-Italian; the stolid, tireless Tommy from England, Scotland, Ireland or Wales, the reckless impatient Canadian; the unpredictable German who fought like a fool one time and gave up with a grin the next.

A Lesser Moment

And she had known the lesser moments. This was one under the tree with her sergeant and troopers sprawled on the ground beside her, talking and smoking and yarning.

Tomorrow or the next day or the day after they would take the "Commando" back into action and she would tractor across the Italian farmlands and recoil with her guns and do all the old familiar things. But tonight she sat beneath a tree because her crew had run her too long (three hours) without a break and the heat had burned the rubber off one of her bogey wheels and immobilized her.

They were moving up from one harbor area to another near the front, but now she waited for the fitters to mend her so she could go on.

The guns beat the distant sky and one of her troopers, E. L. Henderson, Carleton Place, Ont., said "won't be long now." Then he turned and asked "how far are we from the front?"

Another one, A. L. Williams, Olds, Alta., cursed, "those damn guns. I hate every one of them."

It was nine o'clock, BBC news time and Tpr. C. J. Heath, Montreal climbed inside the "Commando's" turret and snapped on her wireless set. Everything was clear until nine sharp, then the Germans jammed the air and Heath climbed down and cursed them.

The "Commando" listed to them talk. Words like that of the trooper who chuckled about the miles he was going to run "if there's any of those 75s or 88s blattin' around up there" and the wistful voice that told about the sergeant who had lost some fingers this day and would probably "get his ticket home."

They didn't want to go into action again. They'd been in action a year and that was long enough. But come the morrow and these three and Sgt. J. Orson of Prince George, B.C., and Tpr. L. F. McLean, Conrich, Alta., would fight her in the same hard, true way she had always been fought.

Britain Withdraws Monetary Objections

BRETTON WOODS, N.H., July 19 — AP). — Great Gritain Tuesday withdrew its objections to the United States as initial headquarters of two projected post-war financial institutions.

It insisted, however, at the United Nations monetary conference that a final decision be delayed until "the location of other international bodies which will be established" has been determined.

With Washington favored strongly within the American delegation, it appeared the two proposed institutions—a monetary fund to stabilize world trade and currencies and an international bank — would be located there along with the newly established interim commission on food and agriculture and the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

Earlier, the Peruvian delegation had called for immediate consideration of "the whole economic ground" of post-war international co-operation.

Appeal Dismissed

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP). — The National War Labor Board in a decision announced yesterday dismissed an appeal by the Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. and its employees' council against an Ontario War Labor Board ruling affecting payment for holidays.

Germans Warned

London, July 19 (CP)

A BRITISH Army spokesman, in a BBC broadcast directed to the German armed forces, warned today that punishment would be meted out without mercy to any German soldier known to have committed an atrocity.

This warning came shortly after the German radio had defiantly rejected General Eisenhower's demand that French Forces of the Interior be treated as regular soldiers under his command.

The British Army spokesman referred specifically to the reported German killing of civilians in the French village of Oradour-Sur-Glane and 50 Allied airmen, including six Canadians, after a mass escape from Stalagluft III last spring.

Churchill Says Action In Yugoslavia Justified

LONDON, July 19—(CP-Reuter) —Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons on Tuesday the Allies had made no mistake in their decision to dissociate themselves from Gen. Draja Mihailovic.

"I follow with the closest attention as far as is humanly possible what is taking place in Yugoslavia and I am certainly inclined to consider the decision we made some time ago to dissociate ourselves from General Mihailovic was in every way justified," Mr. Churchill said in reply to a question about the withdrawal of British liaison officers attached to General Mihailovic's mission.

Germans Say British Used "Novel Tactics"

LONDON, July 19 (AP) — The German radio said Tuesday that British troops used "novel tactics" in a night attack in the sector of Hill 112—Crucifix Hill—in Normandy.

"The British went into the attack in the reflected light of numerous searchlights which were beamed towards the low hanging clouds.

"Under this diffused artificial lighting the British launched flame-throwers, tanks and infantry against the German positions," the report said.

The Germans still claim Hill 112 is being held by them, although its capture by the British forces has been announced.

TORONTO, July 19 (CP)—High Schools throughout Ontario will open on the legal date of Sept. 5, it was stated today by the Ontario Department of Education.

Recall Halifax Disaster In Last War

HALIFAX, July 19—(CP)—The disastrous ammunition ship blast Monday at Port Chicago, Calif., recalled the Halifax explosion of 1917, which left 1,600 dead, thousands injured and damage of $25,000,000.

Three thousand tons of explosive in the holds of the French munitions freighter Mont Blanc detonated in the explosion of December 6, 1917, levelling the north end of this port. The explosion came after a collision with the Belgian relief ship Imo in the harbor's narrows.

The concussion smashed three thousand buildings in the city and rattled windows eighty miles away. Twelve hundred bodies were located. Four hundred persons are still listed as "missing."

Apart from the Halifax explosion, Canada was free from similar major ship explosion disasters in the First Great War and so far has escaped major damage from like mishaps in the present war.

However, 30 lives were lost in August, 1943, in an Allied freighter collision in an eastern Canadian port.

A pre-war ship explosion—when the British tanker Cymboline exploded and caught fire while undergoing repairs in Montreal—caused 28 deaths.

Marines Whip Westclox 2nds In Girls' Game

Outboard Marines, behind some clever pitching by Maxine Monson, defeated Westclox Seconds 14-4 in a Ladies' Softball League game on Tuesday evening at Ashburnham Bowl. The Marine crew, showing great improvement in all departments, began rolling in their runs in the first inning, a five-run affair highlighted by Miss Monson batting a sizzling home run. With the Marines going on to score twice in the second and once in the third, they piled up an eight-run lead at the end of the first three innings. The fourth frame brought neither team a counter, with the Baby Bens popping three flies in a row, and Marines being ousted along the same route. The Marines back in the fifth, turned in three counters, and continued the battle in the sixth by chalking up two more.

In the last half of the sixth, Westclox pushed over their 4 runs, beginning with Dorothy Johnson making first on a single into centre. The following batter singled. Joy Nice doubled to deep left, scoring two. Another double by Verla Ferguson brought Joy Nice home. With none out the Baby Bens continued the heavy hitting, with Dorothy Starr hit hard to left field, and Verla Ferguson was out trying to score on the play. The next batter scored one, totalling the Westclox count for the evening.

Alice McIvor and Florence Robinson divided the pitching chore for Westclox, allowing 19 hits, 13 of which came in the first three innings, and Alice McIvor fanned six during her five innings of play, walking none.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Anton Karl of the National League Philadelphia Phillies was ready to go back to the engineering profession last season when, after nine games, he claimed a woeful earned run average of seven and opposition batters had averaged a fat .333 against him. This year it's a different story, and the 30-year-old engineering graduate of Manotan College has hurled six runless innings in his last three appearances. Coach Merv Shea credits the impressive improvement to constant practice, while Manager Freddie Fitzsimmons sings the praises of Karl's knuckle-ball.

Cpl. Melio Bettina bounced back into contention for the duration heavyweight title last night by pounding out a unanimous 10-round decision over Curtis (Hatchet Man) Sheppard, Pittsburgh heavy, at Forbes Field. Matchmaker Jake Mintz said after the bout that he planned to match Bettina with Joe Baksi, No. 4 heavyweight, within six weeks.

Volo Song, world champion trotting stallion, whose career was terminated by a broken leg last Sunday, was destroyed yesterday on the farm of his owner, E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill. It was hoped the great stallion, winner of the 1943 Hambletonian, could be saved for breeding, but a specialist's report showed a multiple break which necessitated its destruction. Volo Song was purchased by Baker last fall for $30,000.

Cubs Are Victors Over St. Peter's

At Memorial Park last night in the third game of the Catholic Loop, the East City Cubs took a 16-8 win over the fast-stepping St. Peter's squad. The game went nine innings, being played in an hour and fifteen minutes. The game was highlighted by the smooth clicking infield of the East City nine together with sparkling catches in the outfield by both teams. Ray Fitzgerald was the outstanding fielder of the game, pulling in a couple of circuit-labelled flies.

For the winners the big guns with the willow were Bill Sullivan, with 3 for 5, one being a home-run, George Sullivan and Jack Hickey each with two hits for five trips.

For the losers, Rev. F. Marrocco led at bat with a homer and two bingles for five trips followed by J. Conlin with a homer and a safety for five trips.

Jack O'Dette pitched effective ball for the winners while Father Marrocco perfomed steadily for the losers. The league has a number of promising youths who will be the future city legauers.

Teams:

St. Peter's—Rev. F. Marrocco, p; J. Russel, 2b; K. Ferren, 1b; J. Conlin, 3b; C. Conroy, ss; J. McDonald, rf; L. Corkery, c; R. McCarney, cf; J. Russel, rf.

Dies Aboard Train

KITCHENER, July 19—(CP)—Samuel E. Faust, 66, of nearby Mitchell, Ont., died last night on a Canadian National Railways train en route to Winnipeg. Coroner Dr. L. V. Lang said death was caused by a heart attack.

Jack Washburn Starts Brawl At Match

Peterborough wrestling fans, after last night, are wondering how Gentleman Jack Washburn ever happened to get that title. The reason for their failure to understand the "gentleman" part of the cognomen is the fact that Washburn, acting as manager for Palermo John Katan in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling card at the Brock Street Arena, made an uncalled for attack on Whipper Watson after the final bell and precipitated the wildest brawl of the season.

The assault on Watson was made as the Whip was climbing through the ropes at the end of the bout. Washburn, who had gone into the ring to complain that the British Empire champion had been using a stranglehold hit Watson from behind, knocking him down the steps and the Whip had to be half-carried to the dressing-room. Angry fans surrounded the ring and when Washburn and Katan climbed down to leave the arena the crowd swarmed in and in a split second fists were flying in all directions.

The police on duty and other wrestlers on the bill, including Earl McCready, Joe Christie and Joe Maich, helped to fight off the infuriated mob and Katan and his unpopular manager eventually battled their way through and reached the haven of the dresing-room. It was a wild mixup while it lasted.

As for the bout itself it was a gruelling struggle that wound up in a draw, with each of the battlers getting a fall. However the bell saved Katan. Watson had him tight in his famous commando hold and the Panther was as limp as a rag and ready for the fall when the hour ended.

Katan Takes First

Katan, who carried a lot of the fight, took the first fall after 16 minutes tough going, with a series of rolling head-locks and Watson evened it up in 14 minutes with an unconscious commando hold. Then they fought out the remaining time without another fall, although Watson all but had it as the bell rang.

Washburn, a well-known wrestling star in his own right, has taken over the management of Katan because his protege K.O. Koch has been called home by a death in the family. Gentleman Jack accompanied his man to the ring and sat on the top of the steps and coached him as the battle progressed.

It was a hard battle all the way with no quarter asked or given. Katan using his headlock and, as always, depending upon the odd punch to help him along, had the Whipper in distress several times and Watson in turn gave the Panther some bad moments. There was little to choose between the two of them in the first round. Katan eventually got an opening and pinned a series of rolling chin-locks on the Whipper that bounced him around like a corvette in a storm on the Atlantic and made it easy to pin his shoulders for the fall.

Commando Does It

Whipper came back strong after the rest. He seized upon a chance to apply the whip and slammed Katan to the mat with plenty of power behind the hold. Then he aplied an arm stretch that had the Panther looking anxiously over to Washburn for directions as to what to do about that and apparently Gentleman Jack couldn't think of anything particular to do for the hold remained on. Katan finally got away from that one but Watson sailed into him with a series of punches to the head and a vicious drop-kick to soften him up and then slapped on the commando and that was curtains for Katan so far as that round was concerned.

After the fall, while the crowd were cheering Watson, Washburn jumped into the ring and complained that the hold used by the Whip was a strangle whereupon the Whip promptly felled him with a right to the jaw and the crowd cheered gleefully.

In the third round Watson had an edge over most of the distance and he looked to have the bout won

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

By far the best gafes—from the spectators' point of view—were the G. Coleman, Jr., vs. Fred Dearborn game and the J. Fitzpatrick and F. Kerr game. One was played on the west green and the other over on the east green, not that it makes any difference, but it just shows that you never know where you are going to see an interesting game. The first game was close all the way through and finished all square at 16. The second game was the smallest scoring game for our schedule, this season—a total of 23 points for 18 ends. The score was tied coming home and Mr. Kerr got one near the kitty and there it stayed. Fitz just played a little short with both bowls.

We have been informed that it will be men's rinks for our Friday night tournament.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The battle for fourth place and a playoff berth in the City Softball League is not over yet. U.E.W. beat St. Peter's last night 7 to 4 and temporarily took over fourth spot, but the Saints have a chance to tie it all up again tonight if they can beat Soldiers at Riverside Park in the final game of the regular schedule. If the Soldiers win the battle will be over and U.E.W. will enter the playoffs and St. Peter's will be through for the season. In the meanwhile the playoff schedule is sort of hanging fire, awaiting the result of tonight's game. In any event the Soldier-Plaza game advertised for tomorrow night as the first battle of the playoffs will be played as announced. If the Soldiers should happen to beat St. Peter's tonight, the first game in the other bracket of the playoff semi-finals between Switchgear and U.E.W. will be played Friday. On the other hand, should St. Peter's win tonight and thus create a tie with U.E.W. the Union team and the Saints will meet Friday night to break the deadlock. Tonight's Soldier-St. Peter's game, therefore, is one of the most important of the season and should be full of excitement. The Military Training Centre team has not been beaten in six starts and they will not want to stop the winning streak, while on the other hand the Saints face elimination and they will be desperate.

* * * * * *

As already intimated, the City League playoffs get under way tomorrow night when Plazas who finished second in the regular schedule and Soldiers who are the holders of third place will meet in the first game of a best-of-three semi-final series to see which club will meet the winner of the other bracket in the final for the loop title. It should be a thrilling opening to a fine series. The old rivalry between the two squads always produces exciting battles, and it will be of course intensified in a playoff struggle. Soldiers have not been beaten in their last six starts, so that they start the playoffs riding the crest of a winning wave, which they hope will have momentum enough to carry them through into the finals. They will depend upon big Earl Revoir, who has pitched five winning games in a row for them to hold the Plazas under control tomorrow night. The second-placers will be in good shape for the test and they hope to get off on the right foot with a win in the opening series tomorrow night. Plazas will have Dave Wilson, Terry Woods and Frank Stokoe all ready to throw into the ball game, and there has been no announcement as to who will pitch the opener. It may be Woods, who is leaving on a holiday trip to the Maritimes on Friday night. The Soldier-Plaza series should pack in the customers. There is always something doing when those two clubs meet.

* * * * * *

Westclox senior team will be in action at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight for the first time in nearly three weeks when they clash with the Johnson Motor team in what should be an interesting battle all the way. The Big Bens have not been playing any softball for some time, and it remains to be seen whether the layoff has interfered with their playing strength. If it has the Big Bens may be in for a surprise for the Outboard Marine girls have been showing fine form in recent games and may give the leaders a real argument in tonight's contest. Joyce Withers is expected to do the heaving for the Westclockers, with Izobel Bullock behind the bat, while Helen Mark may get the call for the Outboards. Incidentally, the latter team is having a busy week. Tonight's game will be their second of the week and they are billed to play again Thursday and Friday nights. After that the Outboards will have a week's holiday. Westclox have a big battle coming up on Saturday evening when they will clash with Aircraft in a game that may decide first place in the loop race.

* * * * * *

Peterborough softball fans in general and the Westclox girls in particular will be interested in learning that although the Stratford Kroehlers have lost their star battery, Hazel Baynton and Jean Aiken, and also their hard-hitting shortstop, Betty Appel, they still have most of last year's regulars left. Says Chick Appel in his Beacon-Herald sport column: "Followers of girls' softball who have been craving for more of those fine games staged here in former seasons, will have the opportunity of witnessing the fair sex in action for the first time tonight when the London Cardinals meet Stratford Kroehlers, at Kroehler Field, starting at 9:00 o'clock. The scheduled Perth County League men's game will get under way at 7:00 o'clock, instead of the original time of 8:30, in order to allow for the girls' game. The men's game will find Sebringville pitted against Kroehlers. Several members of Kroehlers' provincial women's champions of last year will be missing this evening, including Hazel Baynton, Jean Aiken and Betty Appel, but they are expected to have Greta Harmer, Eileen Heinbuck, Helen Doubrough, Ruby Huras, Alice Hartung, Evelyn Hutchison, Eleanor Smith, Dorothy, Marie and Ollie Heinbuck, Doris Harloff and several others available for the game tonight."

* * * * * *

Harry Eisen of the London Free Press has been looking at girls' softball and saying things about it, such as the following taken from his sport column: "Once we saw the Brooklyn Dodgers play what was alleged to be baseball. All of which does not mean anything since there are many thousands who, at one time or another, saw the Dodgers pull the same antice we did. But Saturday afternoon, watching a couple of girls' softball teams perform, we were several times reminded of the daffiness boys . . . The femmes played well in some spots. But in other spots—blind spots as it were—they outbonered anything ever flashed by the Bums . . . Sprightly gals would watch an easy pop fly drop between them in the neatest 'you take it' . . . 'no, you take it' act we've seen since the Gaston-Alphonse duet . . . On two occasions girls batted out of turn. And only a lenient scorer kept the errors down under the dozen mark. The umpires didn't help matters either, both being, to this observer, not only short on eyesight, but short on rule knowledge as well . . . Anyway, things could have been worse, one of the girls could have run, on a hit, toward third base instead of first . . . So there."

* * * * * *

Both St. Louis clubs won ball games yesterday to improve their respective positions. In the National loop the Cards stepped into Brooklyn and with Max Lanier pitching four-hit ball had no trouble in knocking off the Bums 5 to 0. Meanwhile the Brownies, playing at home, gave their nearest opponents, the New York Yanks, an artistic trimming, shutting out the McCarthy clan 8 to 0 behind smart pitching by Bob Muncrief. Two American League pitchers won their 14th victories of the season. Tex. Hughson of the Boston Red Sox garnered his the hard way, having to pitch eleven innings against the Chicago White Sox before Boston finally won 4 to 2. Hughson allowed only four hits. Hal Newhouser, on the other hand, only had to throw a couple of innings to pick up No. 14. He went in as a relief hurler and got credit for the win when the Tigers finally clipped the Senators 6 to 5 in the eleventh. Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants gathered in his twelfth win with a three-hit effort against the Pittsburg Pirates with Phil Weintraub hammering a home run with the bases full as the big blow in the Giants' 5 to 2 victory.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chile Con Carne: The 5-minute mile is just around the corner. ...Arne Andersson, the sensational Swedish sprinter, reduced the world record last night, covering a mile in 4.01, 6, three seconds faster than the mark set by Gunder Haegg two years ago...City League teams would not make so many errors if they would stop throwing the ball around....All season runs have been scoring on wild throws made in many cases when the play was completed and nothing to be gained by firing...Gordie Brydson is the new Ontario Open golf champion....Phil Farley, who won the Kawartha Lakes amateur title here last season, and Bill Wisnock, of Burlington club, who was tops in the same division at Kawartha last week, tied for the best score among the simon-pures, finishing with 149. ...John Katan, who wrestled Whipper Watson here last night, has a son in the R.C.N.V.R., qualifying for a commission....Left-handed Ray Harding had to play third base for U.E.W. last night and that's a tough spot for a southpaw....Incidentally the Victory Aircraft team which played here last Saturday featured a left-handed shortstop and a left-handed catcher and most of them seemed to be thinking left-handedly, too.

Hemsley Washed Up In 1942 Majors, In Good Trim

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

Successful baseball saga of "Rollicking" Ralston Burdett Hemsley, catcher for the New York Yankees, is a two-part story.

The first phase of the milk-drinking (since 1939) former "bad boy" of the majors begins with his pro debut in 1925 as an outfielder for Frederick in the Blue Ridge league.

The second, and most important one at the moment, began July 18, 1942, in a Cincinnati hotel room when Hemsley, out of a job and preparing to return to his Missouri farm, was called to the telephone.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yanks was at the other end of the line. McCarthy needed a catcher, even if he was a guy with a .113 batting average (which is what Hemsley had accumulated with the Reds that year) and Marse Joe asked our hero if he could hop the next plane to New York.

Stars in Double-Header

Hemsley, naturally, did just that. With Bill Dickey on the injured list and Buddy Rosar in Buffalo taking a police department examination, McCarthy did not have a catcher for the Sunday double-header.

Hemsley hit the big town in time, caught the double-header, starred at bat and finished out the season with a .296 batting average.

"Rollicking Rollie" not only had himself a job but also received a world series cut and a new lease on life.

Last season, Bill Dickey was catching his last season and having a good one, too. So, Hemsley decided to stay on his farm. He participated in only 62 games. Once again he got that world series cut.

Before the present campaign Hemsley decided to stay on his farm. He changed his mind, however, and hustled on to New York.

Needless to say, Hemsley has come back completely.

He has been a big aid to Yank pitchers, this year, handling them with the finesse he gained through 1,500 games in the majors. In addition, he has played a bang-up game, and was awarded by selection on the American League All-Star team.

While a member of the St. Louis Browns in the years 1933-37, Hemsley earned his "bad boy" menicker.

He frequently imbibed too freely of the stuff that dreams are made of and frequently had tiffs with the forces that back the straight and narrow.

He saw the error of his ways, as the saying goes, and going all out for improvement, has been a teetotaler since 1939.

In Rebellion

Cleveland claimed Hemsley on waivers from the Browns in 19[illegible] and the "rollicking one" became the regular Tribe catcher for the next three years. He was Bob Feller's regular receiver.

When the Indians hit the front pages with their Oscar Vitt rebellion in 1940 Hemsley was a conspicuous figure. In fact, Hemsley was one of the men who applied for the Cleveland managerial job. The Indians sold him to Cincinnati.

Hemsley originally broke into the major league picture with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1929.

U.E.W. Take Fourth Spot Defeating St. Peter's 7-4

U.E.W. took over fourth spot in the City Softball League race last night and sent St. Peter's down into the cellar by outscoring the Saints 7 to 4 in an all-important game. As a result St. Peter's have to defeat the Soldiers tonight to get a tie with the Union. A win for the Military Training Centre will send U.E.W. into the playoffs.

Last night's game was a pitching battle between Haddy Eakins, Lindsay fire-baller doing the gunning for the winners and Bill Moorhead on the hilltop for the Saints and both came up with a nice effort. Eakins allowed the losers only seven hits and was in trouble in only one inning, the fourth, when he momentarily lost control and St. Peter's scored four times. Eakins shot them down steadily after that one bad frame.

Moorhead also pitched very effectively, yielding only six hits, and allowing but one in the last five innings. Both pitchers suffered through costly errors. Mike Conroy, St. Peter's left-fielder had the feature fielding play in the seventh inning when he came in fast and made a diving catch to rob Doughty of a hit and then turned the play into a double-killing by a quick toss to Courneya, doubling Griffin off that base.

Joe Caccavella had four hits for the losers. None of the winners got more than one blow and the most potent rap was Girard's homer to right field.

Union's Good Start

U.E.W. got away flying. Platt drew a pass, Quigley bounced a hit through Stewart and Murduff singled off Al Courneya's shins to fill the bases. Moorhead walked Griffin, forcing in Platt. Doughty rolled to Courneya, forcing Quigley at the plate and Girard rolled to Caccaella who tossed Murduff out at home. The inning should have ended when Jackson raised an easy fly to Levine in centre but the fielder dropped the ball, allowing Griffin and Doughty to score and then threw wildly to third sending Girard in. Harding flied to Courneya.

The winners added two more in the fourth. Girard opened with a well-hit homer to right centre and then the Union team went on to push another run over, Harding who had got on on a safe bunt, crossing the plate.

Eakins had his only bad inning in the Saints' half of the inning. He walked Pearson to start with but Courneya forced the Saints catcher at second, Eakins to Platt. Stewart popped to Jackson. Caccavella got an infield hit. Moorhead got a pass, filling the bases and Levine also walked, forcing in Courneya. Jack Condon doubled to centre scoring Caccavella and Moorhead and when the throw got away from Harding Levine also counted. Hollingsworth walked but Conroy popped to Jackson.

There was no more scoring until the seventh when the Union team got the last run of the game. Quigley walked and after Murduff had flied to Stewart, Griffin tripled to right, the ball hopping high as Hollingsworth went to field it. Quigley scored on the hit. Conroy made a circus catch of Doughty's fly to left and doubled Griffin off third. The teams:

TORONTO, July 19 — (CP). — There is a hue and cry on the West Coast over the enforced withdrawal of the Army team from the Inter-City Lacrosse League, and it is darkly hinted there is more to the situation than meets the eye.

The soldiers had been allowed to play in the league all along by quiet agreement among the officials, but just last week Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, officer commanding Pacific Command, ordered the team to withdraw from its loop.

Carl (Vancouver News Herald) Robertson suggests the action may have been taken because someone objected to home defence troops frittering away their time playing lacrosse instead of volunteering for overseas service. Some mysterious customer is said to have telephoned Gen. Pearkes, telling him he was a lacrosse commissioner and that there was much criticism of the situation.

Robertson said further that the non-active service lacrosse players —only four members are general service—were paraded and asked if they would care to go active. Their answer is not known, Robertson added, but the team was disbanded shortly thereafter.

Arched backs:

Archers in Northern Ontario are having a verbal battle with some opponents who object to them using bows and arrows for hunting, because of the danger of maiming but not killing the animals they shoot at. The bowman quite naturally are provoked about this, and counter by pointing out there are many more riflemen in action, so they will maim far more animals than the archers. Anyway, as Jim Coleman remarked in the Toronto Globe and Mail, the animals are much safer with an inexperienced archer because he won't get his arrow anywhere near the target.

Incidentally:

Montreal baseball patrons were pleasantly astonished the other day when Tom Warren delivered a unique valedictory over the public address system after he had been taken from the Royals by the parent Brooklyn Dodgers He even threw in a phrase or two of French for the Habitant members of the gallery.... Vancouver's fastball sister act, the Callaghan sisters, will be re-united in Minneapolis. Helen already is a member of the Millerettes in the All-American glamor loop, and Sister Margie is headed for the beer town to join the team.

Yankee Hoodoo Over Browns Gone In 8-0 Win

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

The Yankee hoodoo that is supposed to haunt St. Louis Browns vanished in thin air today as Luke Sewell's leaders took charge of the American League pennant race with a three-game working margin.

Opening a long home stand and a vital four-game series, the Brownies blasted Em Roser and Johnny Johnson for an 8-0 edge while Bob Muncrief worked his shutout charm for the third time, the second against the Yanks.

Although Vern Stephens, the R.B.I. king of the loop, was out of the lineup, the pennant-starved Browns uncorked a home run punch from Milt Byrnes, Gene Moore and Chet Laabs in a 12-hit total for their fourth triumph over New York in 11 starts.

Boston maintained its mastery over Chicago, notching an 11th straight at the White Sox's expense on a 4-2 edge in 11 innings. Gordy Maltzberger, leading pitcher in the league, had a six-game relief win streak snapped as Tex Hughson picked up Win No. 14.

Jimmy Outlaw's single scored Joe Hoover from second base with the big run as Detroit took a 6-5 nod over Washington in an 11-frame twilight contest. Hal Newhouser gained his 14th triumph in relief at Al Carrasquel's expense.

Al Smith stopped a ninth-inning Philadelphia rally one run short to pitch Cleveland to a 4-3 margin over the A's Don Black. First-sacker Bill McGhee did his best with four hits for a losing cause.

St. Louis' more secure first-place tenant, the Cardinals of the National League, had little trouble in silencing Brooklyn, 5-0, before a crowd of 19,349 paid.

Max Lanier turned back the Dodgers with four hits. Two were off the bat of Dixie Walker who boosted himself into a tie for the batting lead with Stan Musial at .354.

Phil Weintraub was the slugger man of the evening, clouting a grand slam homer to account for four runs of New York's 5-2 margin over Pittsburgh.

Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati and Chicago were not scheduled.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 19 — (AP) — At Capt. D. Topping's farewell tea party for the Brooklyn Tigers Monday, Publicity Director John McDonald told this one: . . . During one of Rickey's early staff meetings the air was thick with optimism and B. R. finally arose, spread his arms and announced: "I see pennants, pennants, pennants, more pennants that anyone has won in the history of baseball." . . . and isn't this a fine time to bring that up? . . . The Tigers, with 73 men ("I didn't say players," explains Coach Pete Cawthorn) already signed, feel considerable sympathy for the Boston Yanks and Cleveland Rams, who are having plenty of trouble rounding up athletes.

Observation Post

A Philadelphia golfer, Joe Zarhardt, shot 67 to win a tournament the other day and then went to a hospital for observation of a swelling on his neck . . . probably he wanted to learn why it wasn't on his head.

Garrison Finish

When he learned that an Army tug named after his horse, Seabiscuit, will be launched in August, some two months after the "War Admiral," Charles Howard wrote: "This is the first time Seabiscuit has come in behind War Admiral. However, the chances are that the tug named after the Old Champion will run away from the others."

Swedish Runner Sets Mile Mark

STOCKHOLM, July 19.—(AP). — Arne Andersson, the flying Swedish school teacher, ran a world-record mile of 4:01.6 yesterday, an indication that the four-minute mile is just around the corner.

In clipping a full second off the world standard of 4:02.6 that he set last July 1, Andersson beat his more famous countryman, Gunder Haeff, by two metres. Haegg wa stimed in 4:02, his fastest speed for the distance.

It was the fourth world record that the Swedish runners have broken within the last month. On June 25 Haegg set a new standard of 8:46.4 for the two mile and July 7 ran 1,500 metres in the arecord time of 3:43. A few days later Andersson, who used to be known as Haegg's shadow—he always ran second to Gunder—hung up a mark of 2:56.6 for the three-quarter mile.

Andersson's 4:01.6 mile was the latest development in the running of the event that has become a monopoly for him and Haegg. They have shattered the mark four times in the last two years, cutting nearly five seconds off the 4:06.4 turned in by Sidney Wooderson of England in 1937.

Orioles Blank Jersey City

By The Associated Press

Stan West of the Baltimore Orioles earned himself a niche in the International League Hall of Fame when he pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Jersey City Giants last night, 5-0.

West was the first league pitcher to turn the trick this year, and his win marked the third time the Orioles have scored over the Giants in their present series. He issued five passes on balls, but was aided by three double plays and faced only 29 men. The Birds have now pulled themselves up to within one game of the league-leading Montreal Royals.

Frank Hiller pitched the rampaging Newark Bears to thier 16th win in their last 18 games when he shut out Syracuse, 5-0. While Frank scatttered six Chief hits, the Bears waded into Bob Katz and Dick Coffman for 13 hits. Lew Flick contributed four for five to the Bear offensive.

Toronto Maple Leafs shaded Buffalo, 3-2, in their last game at home before departing on a three-week road trip. With the score locked at 2-2, Tony Castano accounted for the winning run in the sixth when he tripled and scored on catcher Herb Crompton's long fly. Luther Knerr went all the way for his seventh win.

Rochester and Montreal were idle.

Ukranians Appeal For ULFTA Properties

TORONTO, July 19 — (CP) — John Boychuk, national secretary of the Ukrainian Labor-Farmer Temple Association to-day announced that a delegation will interview Prime Minister Mackenzie King in Ottawa with regard to returning U.L.F.T.A. properties taken by the Government.

Mr. Boychuk said the Secretary of State has failed to implement the findings of an advisory committee which recommended return of the properties. The Government's present offer to give U.L.F.T.A. members 14 cents on each dollar for the property is unfair, he added.

LONDON, July 19 (CP) — Flying bombs fell sporadically on southern England today and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced in the House of Commons that the War Cabinet had ruled out a secret session on the Robot attacks. House members were assured that monthly totals of bombing casualties would be published, but the Ministry of Home Security said figures for Robot and regular bombs would not be separated because this would tell the enemy too much."

One of the many vital parts of a bomber which are subject to great stress in action, being checked by X-ray for possible flaws.

CHEMISTRY SERVES CANADA

IN many plants producing aircraft, ships and other heavy war equipment the extraordinary powers of the X-ray are being employed for precise inspection of metal parts. The same X-ray which revolutionized medical practice is now serving on the production line.

Modern machines of war are largely constructed from metal parts that have been cast (shaped from molten metal) and welded together. These parts and their welded joints must be sound and strong.

The X-ray makes possible the most careful examination of the internal structure of steel, aluminum and other widely used metals. The penetrating scrutiny of X-ray reveals any hidden flaws. With such advanced methods, faulty material can be detected and discarded early in production. X-ray inspection makes sure that only sound, reliable weapons and machines are delivered to our fighting men.

Through its Plastics Division, C-I-L brings to Canada the benefit of great research in this important field—research carried on for many years by DuPont scientists. Fast, reliable DuPont Safety X-ray films for industrial, as well as medical and dental use are available through leading X-ray Film distributors from coast to coast.

X-ray films for industry—and, of course, for medicine — provide another example of a product of Industrial Chemistry which serves Canada in war and peace.

W. R. Breyfogle Chose Peterboro As Home For De Laval Company

In the death of William R. Breyfogle, vice-president and treasurer of the De Laval Company Limited, at his home, 593 Weller street, Tuesday at noon, Peterborough lost one of its most prominent citizens of the last quarter of a century, whose judgment and influence secured for this community one of its major industries.

More than thirty years ago when executives of the De Laval Company were casting about for a city or town possessing the natural advantages and the signs of enterprise and municipal soundness which they sought for the manufacturing plant they intended to build somewhere in this province, the decision of locality and site finally devolved to Mr. Breyfogle.

That recollection out of a past of three decades ago rekindles a lively sense of gratefulness and acknowledgment toward the memory of a man who came to Peterborough a stranger back in 1912 bearing a gift of substance and opportunity rarely equalled by an other citizen in the long development of this community. The following year the plant was in operation and since then under the general management of Mr. Breyfogle it has expanded in production and payroll until today it occupies a high place among the industries of Ontario, an accomplishment which seems to have become the fulfilment of the expectations of that receding time when Peterborough gratefully welcomed the announcement of its new dairy equipment industry.

And the years of Mr. Breyfogle's management, especially in those years of his prime and of his abounding energy, brought increase in output and employment, and in actual estate and high standing among the industries of this province,—his final bequest to the city of his choice and of his home for so many years.

Mr. Breyfogle had been in declining health since the first of the year, and prior to that had been gradually relaxing in direction of affairs. Friends were somewhat prepared for the news of yesterday by recent intimations from his home.

Born in Ohio

Seventy-two years ago, W. R. Breyfogle was born in Belle Centre, Ohio, son of the late Joshua Breyfogle and Mary Dixon. As a young man his studies at Denison University were interrupted by service in the Spanish-American war. He had been associated with the De Laval Company for forty-six years in Philadelphia, Toronto, Montreal and Peterborough.

Joining the De Laval organization in Philadelphia in 1899, Mr. Breyfogle was shortly afterward sent to Toronto as assistant manager of the company's office in that city. Several years later he was transferred to the Canadian head office in Montreal, and eventually directed the amalgamation of the company's interests in this country, the Canadian Dairy Supply Company of Cowansville, Quebec, and the De Laval Separator Company.

De Laval was the first cream separator company in this country, and during his first years in Canada presumably Mr. Breyfogle visited the chief dairy sections of Ontario and Quebec. The question of the company's future manufacturing and sale of its products in this country arose some time after its several eastern properties were combined in one plant, and it was then that Mr. Breyfogle's attention was first attracted to Peterborough. It used to be told by the late S. R. Armstrong, then city clerk and industrial commissioner, that Peterborough's location impressed Mr. Breyfogle as being almost the geographical centre of Canada, about equidistant from the coasts and provided with ample and convenient railway cannections. Perhaps his enquiries and observations gave emphasis to that actual fact.

With two other executives of the parent company, a wide tour was made of Ontario cities, with special consideration to Peterborough, Owen Sound, Cobourg and Oshawa. Mr. Breyfogle's preference was strongly for this city on the Otonabee, and his associates finally told him they were leaving the choice to himself. Shortly after this announcement was made locally in 1912, construction of the present plant was begun at once, and the office staff moved here from Montreal in March of 1913, followed by the beginning of manufacturing operations.

De Laval machines have been distributed to all parts of Canada from the Peterborough plant, and its export business likewise has been directed to nearly all parts of the world, notably to Great Britain, France and Belgium, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and South America.

General manager of the Canadian company, the De Laval Company Limited, from 1901, Mr. Breyfogle was in later years appointed vice-president and treasurer, and still held those positions until his death.

The Peterborough factory has been described by one of his close associates as a monument to his business ability, his integrity and farsightedness. Its staff of employees has varied from 150 up to its present 600.

More than eighty of the staff have been with the company continuously for at least twenty-five years, and some of them up to thirty years, a long association with Mr. Breyfogle, a duration of relationship which seems to be significant of shop spirit, and a testimony to his personality as employer and general manager of a large industry.

Beyond his immediate interest in the success of the De Laval Company Limited, Mr. Breyfogle became one of the promoters of the Peterborough Health Association in the first years of its foundation. He used to contribute an active hand in the organizing of the motor shows years ago when the automoblie was still a comparative novelty, and such displays used to provide funds for the health programs of that time.

Mr. Breyfogle was one of the highest ranking Masons in this city. He was a member of the Westmount Lodge, A.F. and A.M., in Montreal. Coming to Peterborough he assisted in the establishment of Royal Arthur Lodge, of which he was a Past Master, and was the inspiration and leader in bringing the Scottish Rite to Peterborough. From this achievement he attained the position of first Master of the Lodge of Perfection. The climax of his career in Masonry, and recognition of the great part he had played in its extension, especially in this area, was the award of merit of the 33rd degree in Scottish Rite.

Tribute From Minister

"Murray Street Baptist church suffers a severe loss in the passing of one of its great souls, Mr. W. R. Breyfogle," said Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe in a statement to the Examiner today. "He was prominent in its life ever since he came to Peterborough, some thirty years ago. The Board of Trustees counted him as one of its strong members, he having acted as its chairman for a number of years. He was member of the finance committee over a long period, and at one time was chairman of the music committee.

Mr. Breyfogle was a staunch and stalwart Christian and churchman. His life was a truly exemplary one. The Christian graces walked in him. Murray Street church has been enriched by the quality of the character of this magnanimous man who gave himself with unstinting devotion and loyalty to the promulgation of all that was good, noble and edifying. Men look upon his like but seldom.

Mr. Breyfogle was the chairman of the pulpit committee of Murray Street church when it called me to be its minister over seventeen years

Will Try Youth In Open Court Judge Decides

COBOURG, July 19.—(ENS). — On an application of Crown Attorney Harry Deyman in Judge J. C. M. German's chambers this morning, it was ruled that Charles Francis Davey, 15-year-old youth charged with the murder of 4-year-old Norman Lamb, whose body was found on his father's farm at Fraserville Sunday afternoon, be tried before judge and jury in an ordinary criminal court.

In granting the application, Judge German said that he was guided in making his ruling by the consideration that it was in the best interests both of the boy and the public that he be so tried. Davey will appear in magistrate's court a week from today.

The accused, whose father, James Stewart Davey, is a construction employee in Hamilton, was born September 21, 1928. J. Brown, superintendent of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, of which Davey is a ward, appeared before Judge German and said that the boy had a good record at the institution.

Suspend Sentence In Assault Case

Magistrate E. A. Gee suspended sentence in police court this morning in a charge against David M. Forbes of having assaulted Charles W. Holland, after registering a conviction against the accused.

Forbes, who acted as his own lawyer, was required to pay the costs, amounting to $14.80.

The charge arose out of a mix-up at the corner of Water and Hunter streets on July 3, following an incident in a restaurant.

Holland in the witness-box told of his declining to accept a cigarette in the restaurant from Forbes' wife. Three-quarters of an hour later Holland said that he was talking on Hunter street to Mrs. E. Brown and her son William, a sailor in the Canadian Navy. Forbes, the witness said, came along and said, "You are the fellow I am looking for." Then the accused waited at the corner of Water and Hunter streets, and when Holland approached him, the complainant swore, Forbes grabbed him by the wrist, pulled him around the corner and struck him a number of times in the face, knocking off his glasses and knocking him down. Holland said that he was struck on the jaw and under both eyes and was bleeding after the attack.

Dr. Herb. Young said that when he examined Holland he noticed that his nose was swollen and there was a contusion over one eye and a slight cut in the inside of the mouth.

Mrs. Brown corroborated Holland's evidence as to Forbes' remark when he came along and her sailor son stated that he had gone up to the corner and had seen Forbes punching Holland in the face at least five times.

The Defence Evidence.

For the defence Peter Gosselin said that he was waiting in his car at the corner for the traffic lights to change and had seen Holland rush at Forbes and kick at him, and all that he had seen Forbes do was to hold the other man off with his extended left arm. Gosselin said that he only saw the affair for half a minute, but that Holland was not down at all while he was watching.

Forbes told the court that Holland had made a disparaging remark in the restaurant concerning the accused and his wife. Afterward when he saw Holland on the street he wanted an apology. However, Holland, he said, rushed at him and kicked him several times in the leg.

"Then I took off his glasses and punched him a couple of times," said Forbes, who told the court that he formerly had been a professional wrestler. "I may have lost my temper," he said.

Magistrate Gee said that Forbes had used more force than was necessary even in self-defence and imposed a conviction.

Lifeguard Saves 8-Year-Old Boy

Quick action on the part of Ruth Choate, lifeguard at Inverlea bathing beach, Tuesday averted a drowning when a young bather got into difficulties in deep water.

Eight year old Wayne Brown, Wellington street, got through the ropes and struck a spot where the water is ten feet deep. He started to go down and would undoubtedly have been drowned had not the lifeguard noticed his plight. She dashed down the beach, plunged into the water, swam swiftly to where the boy was bobbing up and down and getting him under one arm swam back to shore with him.

The little fellow had taken in a quantity of water but Mrs. Choate soon had him back to normal.

Constable Reg. McMillan, who saw the rescue, said that the lifeguard made a fine job of saving the young boy. "She really knows her stuff" was the compliment paid by the officer to the lifeguard.

Fire Chief Advises Chimney Cleaning

Fire Chief George Gimblett has called the attention of citizens to the necessity of getting chimneys cleaned out and of getting it done early in preparation for the advent of colder weather. "All a householder has to do is get in touch with this department, and we will send the official chimney-sweep out on the job," Chief Gimblett said.

He made it clear that it was in the best interests of citizens to pay attention to this matter now and not put it off until some later date when cool weather was already setting in. "If people forget about their chimneys until the fall, they'll find things so jammed up they'll just have to wait their turn," the Chief said. "They should see about it now before we get to the time when chimney fires are starting up."

Pte. Walter J. Cox Wounded In Battle

An S.D. & G. Highlander, many of whose relatives are serving with the forces, Pte. Walter John Cox, the son of Mrs. Eva Cox, 259 McDonnel Street, and the late Thomas C. Cox, has been wounded in action. The date and nature of the soldier's wounds are not yet known.

Pte. Cox is another of the many Peterborough men who enlisted with the Highlanders in July, 1940, and went overseas a year later. Before joining up he was employed at the Bonnerworth. His brother, Thomas G. Cox, is with the R.C.A. overseas; a brother-in-law, Russell Broadbent, R.C.A.F., is stationed at St. Catharines; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas G. Cox, C.W.A.C., is attached to a medical corps unit in Aldershot, N.S.

Community Club Repeats Aid For War Victims

When a community club steps out from its own immediate environs to do something in the interests of people thousands of miles away, it is perhaps joining in the call that has been reverberating far and wide, for a greater brotherhood between all the far-flung corners of the globe, which has been spoken of as being one of the prerequisites to a better world peace than has previously existed.

Operating in the name of one community as the Fraserville Community Service Club is, they naturally infer that their work is centred in and around one place. But this particular club has for the most part operated principally for the benefit of others living at a distance, among which may be included the boys who are now on active service from their own district. This has on a number of occasions also branched out to render assistance to the bomb victims in Britain, through the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund.

It is some time since they recessed from their gatherings held for the purpose of raising funds in order to spend the longer hours at the all-important tasks attendant on farm work to proverbially make hay while the sun shines. So the gift of $15.00 from this club through Mrs. McClenaghan, their president, was all the more unexpected at this time, and must have been prompted by a desire to take a hand in alleviating the increased distress so recently caused by the robot or flying bomb attacks.

The ramifications of the Coffee Club seemingly knows no bounds, except that of prudence, when it comes to raising a little here and there to do some good either towards the war effort or for people in trouble. Usually one or more of them has something up his sleeve, and like the fellow from Missouri, they have to be shown, and are willing to try anything that has some semblance of reason for once at least.

In this manner one item of 35c is listed to-day with a request to call it a close shave, but from all accounts, which were none too specific, it looked like someone needed a haircut, and this method was used to politely tell him so.

Then the item of $2.40 as proceeds of a draw came through one of the habitues bringing a package of sample matches to one of the morning gatherings, and the winner who did his bit in the last great struggle, and now has sons taking the same stand for their country, was pretty well convinced his win was a matter of prestige only, since he had to divvy up a good portion of them with the rest who were present.

Two Bullets Hit Pte. Fred De Laire

Pte. Fred A. De Laire, wounded in action July 8 while fighting with the Glengarrians, has written home to his mother, Mrs. W. De Laire, 467 Elm street, from a Canadian hospital in England, saying that despite the injuries he received, "I am coming along O.K." The letter, posted July 10, arrived in the city yesterday.

"I got hit on July 8 about 8 a.m.," the young soldier wrote his mother. "The first time it was in the chest and about the size of a 50c piece, but the bullet did not go right in. The next one got me in the left arm and broke it just above the elbow. I picked myself up as I was still conscious at the time and thus saved my own life.

"I am back in England now, I landed here July 10 by boat. I'm resting quietly in a Canadian hospital and I have a Canadian nurse."

Pte. De Laire also said that a chum of his fighting at his side had been hit too, and that the last time he saw this friend he was being given a blood transfusion. He added that he himself expected to be out of action for about three months.

Dept. Of Pensions May Utilize Staff House

A city hall rumor that the Department of Pensions and Health is interested in the vacant staff house on Monaghan Road, constructed by Wartime Housing Limited for war workers in Peterborough factories, was confirmed in part from Ottawa this afternoon by Canadian Press.

The council has been suggesting that the staff house with its accommodation for five hundred men might be used by the Department for convalescent men of the three services. At the meeting on Monday night a letter was received from Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., to the effect that he had conveyed the council's resolution to the Department, supporting the proposal which had been sent to the Minister, Hon. Ian Mackenzie.

Canadian Press informed the Examiner that the Department was negotiating for the staff house "but a deal has not been completed, and statement is not yet available." It was intimated that announcement might be available by the end of the week.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE — Pte. John Waldron, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Waldron, 100 Stewart street, was wounded in France July 4. He was formerly employed at the C.G.E.

Delay Decision On Drunk Charge

At the request of W. J. Arthur Fair, who said that he wanted to look up some authorities, Magistrate E. A. Gee reserved judgment in a charge of having been drunk in charge of a car against Donald Lloyd until Monday, after the evidence in the case had been heard this morning.

Constable Leo Murphy, first witness for the Crown, testified that he and Constable McMillan had gone to the corner of Simcoe and Water streets on the Sunday morning in question and found Lloyd slumped down over the wheel of a car that had run up on the curb. Officer Murphy stated that they had difficulty awakening the accused and that he was intoxicated.

Constable McMillan declared that he thought Lloyd was dead when they first saw him in the car. He stated that they had a lot of trouble arousing the accused and that when he reached the police station he had to be carried inside.

Witness said that Lloyd was intoxicated and that he had a strong smell of liquor from his breath.

Acting-Sergt. John Naples, who saw the accused in the police station when he was brought in agreed with the other two witnesses that Lloyd was drunk at that time.

No Evidence.

The defence did not call any evidence and Mr. Fair said that there were certain cases he wished to look up. He argued that the police had failed to show that Lloyd had any control of the car in which he was found. He might have been a trespasser in somebody else's automobile.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who prosecuted, called the court's attention to a number of cases dealing with similar circumstances.

Magistrate Gee reserved judgment on Monday to give Mr. Fair a chance to look up his authorities.

Arrest Assassin

NEW YORK, July 19. — (AP). — The Paris radio announced today the arrest of assassins of Philippe Henriot, Vichy propaganda minister, slain June 28. The broadcast gave no details.

TWO ENLIST

Two recruits have been accepted for service with the Canadian Women's Army Corps in recent days, it was announced by Recruiting headquarters in the Kresge Building. They are Edna Clarke, 224 Aylmer street, and Margaret Ethel Lehman, 650 Downie street.

FIRE ALARMS

A plugged chimney at the home of Roberts Fairs, 332 Burnham street, brought a call to the fire department this morning at 8:15. At noon Tuesday $10 damage was caused at 199 Simcoe street, the residence of Mrs. L. Irwin, when sparks from the chimney lit on the roof. The fire was quickly extinguished.

HOME ON FURLOUGH—Gnr. Robert J. Falls, R.C.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Falls of South Monaghan, is home on furlough. For the past year he has been serving at an overseas post.

Peterboro Farms Growing Bumper Crops

Harvest time has reached its peak in the Peterborough district, and from all accounts barns are soon going to be filled with a crop that will rank close to the most abundant agricultural returns in recent years.

Haying is finished, except where mishap or dilatoriness has trailed this job behind the pace and accomplishment of all the neighbors.

The grasses have made a heavy yield this season, and some farmers will likely be cutting their second crop of alfalfa by next week.

About half the fall wheat has been cut and is in stock. Some farmers started their binders into hay fields last week, but along the county and district fronts action did not become general until Monday, and two days and evenings of a clacking, metalic symphony throughout the countryside has accompanied the output of wheat in the stock on the way to the threshers.

Ripening Fast

"Oats are ripening fast," G. A. Gillespie remarked to the Examiner this morning," and that crop is looking good. In fact the entire harvest is turning out fine, and there should be a lot of grain and fodder in farm storage when this big job is over."

Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, confirmed the Gillespie estimate, and all the other reports coming in from the neighboring townships.

"The spring grain crop will show quite a heavy yield," Mr. Patterson said, "and everything appears to be going quite satisfactorily in spite of difficulties. Even the pea crop is tremendous; in fact it is so heavy that I understand it has been overwhelming them down at Canada Packers."

In the meantime, the truck garden vegetables are coming to market; fields of potatoes are well on the way to maturity; the corn crop after a rather disappointing beginning is gathering size and promise, and roots generally are staying up with the agricultural procession.

Farmers are almost too busy to talk crops, and only the odd one is noticed about the city these days. They are bound to their acres these long days, and can't afford time, unless of necessity, to leave the job, especially while the weather continued so favorable.

Report Some Rust

Durham county, reporting through the provincial Department, mentions some rust, but, in general," the grain crops are very promising". Second growth in high meadows in Northumberland is in excellent shape to keep up the milk flow, and the apple crop promises an increase of 25 per cent. over last year.

Prince Edward also reports "rust in the spring grain", and also this comment—"There simply isn't any one to hire, with canning factories paying children 30 cents an hour, and men accordingly higher. The farmer has little chance to compete."

York county pastures "have been getting rather bare" but most of the livestock is in excellent condition."

L.-Sgt. J. M. Hobbins Normandy Casualty

A second cousin of the two Hobbins boys of Peterborough, Michael and John, sons of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake street, who were reported last week killed in action in France, Lance-Sergeant Joseph Martin Hobbins was wounded in action in Normandy July 10, as officially reported to his wife who lives on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway in the vicinity of the Western avenue turn a short distance west of the city.

The official information from the Minister of National Defense was dated from Ottawa Saturday, July 15.

Lance-Sergeant Hobbins is a son of Joseph P. Hobbins, Water street north, and will be twenty-five years old in August. He enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders on July 11, 1941, six months after he was discharged from another Canadian unit with which he had enlisted early in the war.

One brother, Patrick, is in the Merchant Marine, and two brothers-in-law, Fred Brand and Terence Lowe of Peterborough, are with the 8th Army in Italy.

NAPOLEONIC INVENTION

France developed the use of the mechanical semaphore in Napoleon's time.

CASUALTY IN FRANCE — L.-Cpl. Ernest A. G. Bell, whose wife, formerly May McConnachie Lauchlan, lives at 420 Park street, was killed in France July 8 while serving with the S.D. and G. Highlanders. When he first went overseas he was attached to the Commandos. Before enlisting he farmed and for a short time worked at the A. Wander Ltd. L.-Cpl. Bell is the son of Mrs. E. Bell and the late Mr. Bell of R.R. 7, Peterborough.

Cpl. S. J. Reid Dies Of Wounds

Cpl. S. J. Reid, 344 Armstrong Drive, previously reported wounded in action in France July 8, has now been officially reported died of wounds, according to word received by his wife.

The son of Mrs. J. Reid, Aylmer street, the young soldier was well known in Peterborough, and attended Peterborough Collegiate, and St. John's Anglican church.

He enlisted in the Prince of Wales Rangers when that unit went acttive in 1942. He took training in Niagara-on-the-Lake, and Prince George, B.C., before going overseas in May, 1943. Later, he transferred to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

He was employed at Canadian General Electric Company before enlisting.

Pte. John Waldron Casualty In France

Mr. and Mrs. J. Waldron, 100 Stewart street, have been notified that their son, Pte. John Waldron, was wounded in France July 4. No further details were given.

Pte. Waldron was posted as a reinforcement to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and went to France in the early part of June. His father is a veteran of the South African war.

A graduate of the Collegiate, the 21 year old soldier worked in the steel wodk department at the C.G.E. before joining the army.

REPORTED MISSING — Flt.-Sgt. Stanley Frederick Gay, son of Pte. Fred Gay and Mrs. Gay of Campbellford, has been reported missing after 12 operational flights over enemy territory. Before enlisting in February, 1943, he worked for John Gay and his cheery disposition won him the name "Happy Gay."

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

SHORT VISITS MAKE FRIENDS

Month's Stay the Limit, Couple of Weeks Is Better To Avoid Wearing Out Welcome.

DEAR MISS DIX—Is there any way of getting rid of a guest who is outstaying her welcome? Mine came for a two month's visit and I have done my best to make it pleasant for her, but she has already stayed five months and is planning for two months more and I am on the verge of nervous prostration.

I like her, but five months of even my own mother would be too much. why, oh why don't guests make their visits like angels, few and short and long between?

MARY S.

Open Season Needed

ANSWER—I wish I could help you, but inasmuch as nothing short of dynamite will dislodge a permanent guest from your best room and the law does not permit you to use such drastic measures, there is nothing that you can do about it except to grin and bear it. Personally, I have always thought that there should be an open season in which we should be allowed to do what we feel like doing to people who come and camp down upon us and stay, and stay, and stay, until they wear our nerves to tatters, and we feel that the only thing on earth we want to see is their backs. And bad cess to them!

All of us have had experience with these pests who think that an invitation to spend a week-end gives them carte blanche to sponge on you for months and months. In vain do you hand them hints that should be like Archimedes' lever and move a mountain. It doesn't faze them. It is no good saying that your mother is in poor health and you think you should go to see her. Futile to tell them that another guest is coming and you have no other room. It doesn't even do any good to go to bed and call in the doctor. They just simply will not move on.

So there is nothing you can do but to possess your soul in patience. But your plight is a warning to all visitors not to stay too long. Keep moving. There is nothing truer than the old saying that short visits make long friends. A month is the utmost limit of time one should stay in anyone's house. And it is better to make it a couple of weeks.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl just graduated from high school and as I look forward to the future I wonder if there is any disgrace in being an old maid. Naturally I would like to marry, have a home of my own, a husband and children, but I want a career more than I do them. And I feel that I could devote more time and give better service to the profession which I have chosen if I remain single. What would you advise me to do?

A PREDETERMINED OLD MAID.

Many Famous Women Were Spinsters

ANSWER—How can you ask such a foolish question as whether it is a disgrace to be an old maid? You know little of history and less of modern times if you are not aware that many of the most famous and honored women the world has ever had have been old maids. Susan B. Anthony, Florence Nightingale, Emma Willard, dozens of famous actresses and writers and doctors and business women whom I could name, have all been spinsters. And in these days, whether a woman married or not calls for no more comment than whether a man does. It is a matter of her own choice.

But if you are ambitious and want to follow a career, I strongly advise you not to marry, both for your own sake and the man's. No woman can serve two masters. Kipling's dictum "he travels the fastest who travels alone" applies especially to women.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to be married to a young man who is very desirable in many ways, but he has one trait that worries me. He says his own happiness is the most important thing in the world to him and must come before mine. That I must do just as he says and give in to him after we are married. He is very stubborn and dictatorial about any matters on which we disagree. He never considers me. What chance of happiness will I have in such a marriage?

ALICE.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANSWER—None at all. You would be nothing but an unconsidered slave. Don't marry him.

Three-Cornered Fights General In Next Election

TORONTO, July 19.—Three and four-cornered fights for House of Commons seats will be popular in Ontario during the federal election campaign, according to provincial party headquarters of the three main political groups. The Progressive Conservatives, Liberals and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation high commands intend to nominate candidates for every one of the 82 federal seats, while the Labor Progressives are aiming at a minimum of 25 candidates for the province.

Strangely enough, the Liberal party is far behind the others when it comes to pre-election preparedness—at least so far as completed nominations are concerned. According to provincial headquarters, only one candidate, Bruce McNiven in Victoria, has already been nominated. "By Sept. 1 we expect to be fully prepared, however," officials said yesterday. "It's pretty hard to get nomination meetings together in hot weather when no election date has been set."

Can Get Ready Soon

C.C.F. national publicity headquarters probably will be transferred to Toronto following the national council meeting on Aug. 8, and a national publicity director will be appointed then, it is understood. The naitonal convention scheduled for Montreal at the end of this month has been called off, temporarily, but the organization "is prepared to go into battle within 30 days."

The party plans not only to contest every seat, but already has 28 candidates nominated. By Sept. 1 the complete slate will be ready, officials said. Already in the running are Dave Lewis, national secretary, in Hamilton; Prof. George Grube, president of the Ontario party; F. Andrew Brewin, first vice-president, and numerous other party prominents, including Ford Brand, F.O. W. Temple, Major Archie Woods, Dr. H. R. Potter in Welland, Walter Mann in Ottawa East, Omar Chartrand, secretary of the Quebec section, in Prescott. J. W. Noseworthy, present member, who defeated Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in a bitter battle in York South and helped give the party tremendous stimulus, hasn't held his nomination meeting yet.

18 Labor Progressives

Eighteen Labor Progressive candidates have already been named, with more meetings scheduled next week for Hamilton, Kitchener, Timmins, Brantford and Kingston. Contesting Toronto ridings will be Leslie Morris, Norman Freed, Tim Buck, national leader, who will run in Spadina; Stewart Smith in Trinity and Ald. Charles Sims in Davenport.

Nineteen Progressive Conservative standard-bearers have already been nominated, and other meetings are scheduled for Nipissing, July 19; Welland, July 21; Cochrane, July 26; Temiskaming, Aug. 16, and Lambton West, Aug. 17. Shortly after, meetings will be held in Huron Perth, Lambton-Kent, Simcoe North and East, the two Algoma ridings.

"All others are under control," headquarters reported, "and it is just a matter of setting the dates. We expect to have every candidate for the 82 seats nominated before Sept. 15."

Nurse's Devotion Brings Honor

LONDON, July 19—(CP).—A funeral salute usually given on the death of a great African chief was accorded an English nurse, Edith Shelley of Lincolnshire, in Tanganyika recently.

The story of Edith Shelley reads like a novel of heroic self-sacrifice. Since 1923 she devoted her life to missionary nursing among the lepers of Africa.

At first her medical interests were general, but in 1930 when she herself contracted leprosy and the disease was arrested she resolved to devote her life and slight fortune to the curing of others with the same disease. From that time, chiefly by bicycle, carrying her belongings in a kit bag on her back, she travelled the jungle, until a few weeks before a malignant growth caused her death.

Students Learn To Manage Home In $17,000 House

BY ENID NEMY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, July 19 — (CP) — It's not hard to enjoy housework when it's done in an exquisitely furnished $17,000 Georgian home, as up to date as a shiny new nickel.

Every co-ed studying Home Economics at the University of Manitoba lives in this homemaker's dream for a month of her four-year course and to the majority, it's the most thrilling part of their studies.

The University Home Management House is a dignified red brick structure, with a neat white wood trim. It is built on the strictly symmetrical lines of the late 17th and early 18th centuries and is situated on the scenic grounds of the University in suburban Fort Garry.

The 11 rooms and three baths, all furnished with a practical but stylish eye, take a lot of looking after but there's no shortage of household help.

Each month 10 girls in third year Home Economics move into the house—and for that month it is home. They take turns as cook, laundress, child director maid, dishwasher, and manager, but still find time to attend regular classes and study two hours daily.

Pride of The House

One of the most important features is the baby. Each year the house gets a baby from the children's society and at the end of the term it is adopted by a family. During its year in the home the infant is cared for by 70 beautiful co-eds, who lavish more attention on it than they do on the current heart-throb.

Frances Ingersol, a petite and lovely brunette, came all the way from Calgary to "learn how to keep house" and she's enjoyed every moment of it. Sine Culver from Vancouver, Marnie Baird from Lethbridge and Joanne MacPherson of Regina also are a long way from home but "it's a wonderful experience." Others like Eileen Goldberg of Winnipeg find that living away from home for a month is not only fun but educational. "It teaches you to get along with people," said Eileen.

Florence McLaughlin, director, says that living with other girls is especially good for those who have never been away from their families. "They have to learn to give and take and that's a wonderful thing."

Approved Canning Methods

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section,
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

"A" is an apple pie; "B" in the alphabet of foods might stand for beans or blueberries. Both are once again adding freshness and variety to summer meals.

If they are beans from your own garden they will taste extra good for you can pick them young. Salt helps preserve the colour during cooking, so salt the water before adding the beans and be sure to cook them covered. Those who are addicted to dill pickles will like the flavour that a sprinkling of chopped dill, cooked with the beans, imparts.

To bring out the delicate natural flavour of blueberries always add a little lemon juice when they are cooked and try a dusting of cinnamon in your next blueberry pie. For winter pies and desserts, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture agree that the best method of canning blueberries is the solid pack sugarless method given below.

Solid Pack Sugarless Canned Blueberries

Wash fruit and crush part of it in the bottom of the preserving kettle; add remaining fruit and heat slowly until the juice starts to flow. If necessary add a little water to prevent scorching. Pack solidly into hot sealers, crushing the fruit down slightly with a small bottle so that it is covered with juice. Fill to within ¼ inch of the top and screw and spring top sealers and to within ½ inch of vacuum type sealers. Adjust tops, partially sealing screw, and spring top sealers.

Process:

Boiling Water Bath

Pints ....15 minutes
Quarts ....20 minutes

Thermostatically Controlled Oven 275°F

(Not recommended if using vacuum type sealers with metal lids).

Pints ....25 minutes
Quarts ....30 minutes

Remove sealers from the processor and immediately tighten tops of screw and spring top sealers. Cool away from draughts in an upright position (do not invert). Test screw and spring top sealers for leaks by tilting and revolving carefully in the hands. Test vacuum type sealers with metal lids by striking lightly with a metal spoon. There should be a clear ringing note, not dull. Store sealers in a cool, dry, dark place.

Note: This method is recommended also for other berries, cherries and juicy plums.

Blueberry Sauce

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 1-3 cups water
- Pinch of salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 cups blueberries
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Melt butter in a saucepan, blend in flour. Gradually add water; add salt and sugar and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add blueberries and continue cooking 5 minutes. Add lemon juice. Serve hot on plain or sponge cakes, or chill and serve over ice cream, blanc mange, custard, etc. Six servings (2½ cups).

In certain parts of the States beans are always cooked with salt pork. It does give a delicious flavour—so does bacon dripping.

Panned Beans

- 1½ quarts fresh green, or wax beans
- 3 tablespoons of bacon fat
- Salt to season
- 3 tablespoons water

Wash and string beans, cut into half inch pieces. Melt fat in a heavy pan, add beans and salt, cook covered for 5 minutes on low heat. Add water, cover pan, and cook slowly until tender, about 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Six servings.

Here's way of using green beans that is really different. Good for picnics and lunch boxes.

Nippy Vegetable Sandwich

- 1½ cups green beans, cut in half inch pieces and cooked (1 cup cooked)
- 2½ tablespoons chopped pickle or relish or
- 1 tablespoon French dressing
- 3 tablespoons grated cheese
- ½ teaspoon minced onion
- 12 slices buttered bread

Mash beans. Add pickle or dressing, cheese and onion. Let stand one hour to blend flavours. Spread between slices of lightly buttered bread. Yield 1 cup filling.

Styles Featuring New Cap Sleeves

Cap sleeves, which were formerly only seen on the occasional black afternoon dress, or a pattern dress, have come into their own this season, and are making up for lost time by appearing in all materials, in styles for all occasions. This fashion switch was really the natural thing to do, since cap sleeves are just right for the pencil-slim skirts and draped styles of this season.

As well as being smart, cool, and material-saving, these sleeves are flattering to women who have a little excess flesh on their upper arms, since they give the effect of brevity which is featured this summer, but also give the illusion of slimness. Cottons, of course, lead the fashion parade, and designers were not long in whipping up smart little numbers in seersucker, chambray, prints—anything in cotton—with cap sleeves, to meet the new demand.

Nor is this sleeve confined to morning and afternoon wear. Dainty and demure as can be, many of the season's long-skirted cotton dinner dresses are featuring square necklines and cap sleeves, almost off the shoulders—defintely intriguing. Another item to note about sleeves are the newest slash-sleeve styles, in dresses as well as jackets and sports coats.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Our attention today is going to be given to some very tasty pudding recipes made with fresh fruit, any fruit that is in season. Our first recipe is simply grand, as well as very nourishing. Read it carefully, then try it, and I am sure you will agree that it is very good.

Apple Meringue Pudding

Toasted bread, hot milk, 1 dozen apples suga., nutmeg, 2 eggs.

Cover the bottom and sides of a baking dish with toasted bread, wet with hot milk. Core the apples and cook them whole. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg. Beat the yolks of the eggs together with a little sugar and pour over the apples. Put the apples in the baking pan over the bread, then cover with the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a slow over (300 degrees to 350 degrees F) for a few minutes. This is a delicious dish.

Lemon Sponge

1 cup sugar, 3 eggs (yolks), 1 cup hot milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon flour, juice and rind of one lemon, 1 tablespoon butter. Mix sugar with salt and flour. Add the hot milk and egg yolks. Beat thoroughly. Add rind and juice of lemon. Add melted shortening. Cool. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into pastry lined pie tin. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F) until firm. Increase heat last few minutes to brown.

Rhubarb and Strawberry Pudding

4 cups rhubarb, 3 cups sugar, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup crushed strawberries. Make a biscuit dough as follows: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons shortening, ¾ cup milk. Cut the rhubarb in inch pieces. Cook until tender. Add sugar, salt and slightly beaten egg. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Drop the biscuit dough by spoonful on top of the rhubarb. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F). Serve hot, topped with whipped cream if desired.

Banana Desert

3 bananas, 3 teaspoons cocoa, 3 teaspoons granulated sugar. Mix cocoa with sugar. Roll bananas in this mixture. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator and serve with whipped cream.

Rice Supreme

2 cups cold cooked rice, 2 cups whipped cream, 1 cup pineapple cut fine. Mix pineapple and rice with sherbert glasses. Garnish with cherries and strawberries.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed by Our Readers.

Dear Mary Moore: I had intended doing so much canning this year but the price of fruit on our market was prohibitive for my income. But I did find a combination for a preserve or jam that we liked, so I did 10 pints of it—red currant and gooseberry preserve. I didn't use as much sugar as the recipe called for, so I think we can use it for desserts. It certainly will be nice for steamed puddings.

Gooseberry and Red Currant Preserve (D. Pelham)

Remove tops and tails from 3 pounds ripe gooseberries—preferably red; put them into kettle with 1 lb. steamed and washed red currants and 3½ lbs. sugar. Let stand overnight. Put over low heat and gradually bring to boiling point, stirring, but carefully, to prevent sticking during first 15 minutes. Boil about 30 minutes. Remove from heat, skim off scum, and pour into sterile jars, or jam glasses. Either seal, or cover with double coating of paraffin—one while hot, the other when cold.

I made a good Rhubarb Marmalade too:

Rhubarb Marmalade.

Two lbs. rhubarb, preferably red and small, 4 oranges, 1 lemon. Shred or grind orange rinds and lemon rind, and add them to the juice of the oranges and lemon. Boil rhubarb with 2 lbs. sugar, and when soft add rinds and juice and boil 10 minutes (if rinds are very thick they should be added to first mix). Pour into hot sterile jam jars and seal with double coat of paraffin.—D.P.

This came at a good time and I am sure many jam jars that would otherwise have gone empty will be filled with the gooseberry mix.

Mining News

God's Lake Gold Mines has more than $1,000,000 in quick assets, it was reported at the annual meeting in Winnipeg. Officers and directors were re-elected.

Kerr Addison Gold Mines has declared a dividend of 5 cents per share, payable Aug. 29 to shareholders of record Aug. 1.

Aunor Gold Mines will pay a dividend of 5 cents per share on Sept. 1 to shareholders of record Aug. 4.

Production at Madsen Red Lake Gold Mines for the second quarter of this year totalled $412,401 from 35,425 tons of ore for an average of $11.64 per ton.

To Go Deeper.

Senator Rouyn, Ltd., is well on its way in carrying out an extensive exploration program designed to investigate the block of ground lying 1,000 feet below the limit of the present underground workings.

Present shaft bottom is 1,430 feet with the lowest level at 1,375 feet and President Redmond Quain advises that preparations are about completed to deepen the shaft to 2,000 feet. Below this depth, access to the ore will have to be by means of an internal shaft, either vertical or inclined. Type of shaft below 2,000 feet will depend upon the results from the huge diamond-drilling program new being mapped.

Resume Drilling.

Diamond drilling at Hugh Malartic Mines, interrupted by the bush fires which swept through Northwestern Quebec, was resumed this week. Five holes had previously been spotted by C. O. Stee, consulting engineer, and these will be drilled as scheduled. The holes will cross-section a diorite dyke. Encouraging values were obtained from the drilling of similar diorite dykes on the neighboring Citralam Malartic and Norbenite Malartic properties.

Geological mapping of the property of Grand Lake Mines in the Mud Lake area has revealed that the property is underlain with considerably more of the greenstone rocks than was at first expected. This is said to be particularly so in the southwest portion of the property, where a 12-foot quartz vein has been opened and which is now being trenched for sampling.

Arranges For Drilling

President J. H. Rooney of Argonaut Yellowknife Mines reports that arrangements have been made for 3,000 feet of drilling to further explore the company's property at Gordon Lake in the Yellowknife district. A small mill and power plant was installed at the property during previous work and it has been recommended that surface ore be sorted and milled as work progresses. Sixteen consecutive bulk samples from the surface showings, each sample of about 50 pounds, averages $13.99 per ton.

Coventry Locates In Yellowknife.

Six claims have been located for Coventry Yellowknife Prospecting Syndicate on the main break of the Yellowknife area at the northern end near the Johnson Lake section. The recorder at Yellowknife is swamped with applications for recording of claims and is reported to have a backlog of some 1,000 claims for recording.

Trading moved quietly and prices were a bit lower to-day on Toronto exchange. Metals were higher. Volume totalled 336,000 shares.

Although the golds showed a small index loss there were scattered recoveries. O'Brien was carried up to 3.60 in actitve trading for a gain of 35 and gains of 5 to 10 were boarded by Wright-Hargreaves, Buffalo-Ankerite, Cochenour Willans, Pioneer, Bear Exploration, Negus, Lake Dufault, East Malartic and Madsen. Lower prices were showing for Lake Shore Frobisher, Malartic Gold Fields, Aunor, Central Patricia and some others.

Steep Rock, Waite-Amulet and Pend Oreille ruled higher and Labrador was lower. Home and Calrary-Edmonton were moderately weak spots.

Some interlisted industrial leaders, including C.P.R., Ford A, Brazilian and British American Oil advanced small fractions. Eastern Steel dropped ½, Alumnum weakened 1 and Canadian Celanese dropped 2.

Allied Forces Drive Japs Back 30 Miles

KANDY, Ceylon, July 19.—(CP).—Allied troops, battling to clear the last Japanese invaders from the Indian frontier region, have driven the enemy back 30 miles from Imphal in the Palel sector, a communique from Southeast Asia command headquarters announced today.

Farther north, in the region south of the fallen Japanese advance base of Ukhrul, demoralization is spreading rapidly among remnants of the enemy's 15th and 31st divisions under continued Allied pressure.

In Northern Burma, meanwhile Allied troops pressed about 200 yards deeper into besieged Myitkyina from the north, and advanced another 100 yards to the southeast along the Irrawaddy River.

ago. I shall miss him and his fine counsel greatly, but I count it a joy to have known him and to have been among those who shared the riches of his mind and heart."

One of Best Citizens

"Mr. Breyfogle was one of our best citizens," Mayor James Hamilton said. "He always maintained a deep interest in Peterborough and its progress. He wanted to see the city develop industrially and was prepared at all times to assist in interesting new industries to locate here and to inform industrial managers of Peterborough's story.

"He was a good citizen too in that he was not a critic but was a builder," continued the Mayor. "As a citizen he noticed things about the city that required improvement and he would communicate quietly with the proper city official making suggestions in his usual kind way. He was always ready to go out of his way to help Peterborough and its citizens. I know that he was himself, in his personality and fine qualities, identified and stamped with all that is best in our city."

The funeral will be held from the late residence, 593 Weller street, on Friday at 2 p.m., with services conducted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Soldiers' Vote In Quebec Is Ruled Out

MONTREAL, July 19 — (CP) — No provision has been made by the Province of Quebec for voting by members of the armed forces in the election August 8, because "there is no practical method by which votes can be effectively recorded," Provincial Treasurer Mathewson said last night in a broadcast campaign address. "Now that the battle is on" the impossibility of taking a vote in Normandy and Italy was "so obvious as to be self evident."

He said that if Quebec were to adopt the method in Saskatchewan when members of the Armed Forces voted for three candidates, the province would be on the "road to fascism and a corporate state." Proxy voting would result in undesirable competition.

Andre Laurendeau, Quebec Bloc Populaire leader, said in a radio speech from Quebec that his party never would become "messengers of hatred." If anyone entered the Bloc to see "bitterness, hatred, anger and envy triumph, I state at once that they knocked at the wrong door." The Bloc seeks to destroy the influence of old parties, trusts and imperialism so that a better society may be built "where the family will be treated with justice."

The Liberal Administration did nothing since 1939, he said, and Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale Leader, brings "nothing" into the election campaign.

Survival of the Race

Mr. Duplessis told a Shawinigan Falls meeting that defeat of the Godbout Liberal government was essential for the survival of the French-Canadian race and Quebec province. He said the Union Nationale Party would provide the only government that could give back to Quebec the rights and privileges ceded to the Federal government by the Godbout administration.

"The population of the province has paid dearly in blood, money and tears for having elected Premier Adelard Godbout's Liberal government in 1939," he said.

At Victoriaville, Que., Premier Godbout said "we all still would be barbarians if our Jewish Saviour, Jesus Christ" had held the Nationalist views of the Bloc Populaire. It would be easy to preach hatred and discord "but we do not want that sort of thing in Quebec."

It was his government's desire to be "master at home" but working peacefully with its neighbors for the greatness of "our common country," he said, while the aim of the Bloc Populaire was to wall-up French-Canadians within Quebec's boundaries.

Omer Cote, Union Nationale candidate in Montreal St. James, criticized 'open door" immigration.

"We are opposed to the open door for immigration in this country," he told his first campaign meeting, "not only because we are anti-Semitic, but because we are anti-English, anti-Italian, anti-Polish, in fact, anti-any-race of which members might be brought here in large numbers to overrun this province and take the jobs that rightfully belong to French-Canadians."

Immigrants in large numbers would invade the province if the Godbout government were left in power, he added.

R.C.A.F. Umbrella Supports Canadians

LONDON, July 19.—(CP).—Canadian troops fighting in the Caen area today had the support of an R.C.A.F. umbrella as Typhoon fighter bombers blasted German gun and mortar positions and troop concentrations.

This, however, was just a part of the R.C.A.F. participation in the air war. Canadian bombers during the night helped blast the Ruhr synthetic oil plant at Wesseling and the R.C.A.F. Nighthawk Mosquito squadron shot down two German planes near Caen without loss.

Wing Comdr. W. A. G. McLeish, D.F.C., of Hamilton, Ont., led the Ghost squadron on the Wesseling raid, while the Moose, Lion, Bison, Thunderbird and Goose squadrons also participated. One aircraft is missing from the raid.

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

JULY 19, 1940.—Hitler in the Reichstag, addressed "one more appeal to reason in England" asserting that "a world empire will be destroyed" if Britain continued to fight; Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Brooke named commander-in-chief of Britain's home forces; Australian cruiser Sydney sank Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni in Mediterranean.

Jack Washburn

when he got another chance to apply the commando but the bell rang before he could cash in. Then came the Washburn attack and the brawl.

Dunlop Beaten

The crowd was hoping that Earl McCready would get a chance to use his celebrated rocking chair-cradle hold on Al Bunny Dunlop and the Moose did—and how, using that spectacular grip to take the semi-final after 17 minutes. Up to that time the Toronto strongman had been making quite a fight of it in his own back--alley style, with a lot of hair-pulling and other unorthodox stuff. At one time he pulled McCready's hair so hard and so often that the usually placid Moose got fed up with that kind of stuff and he gave the Dunlop hair a series of yanks that must have hurt and when Referee Maxwell tried to interfere his locks got a pulling, too. Dunlop did a lot of punching and kneeing but McCready was too tough a customer for the bad man from Toronto. The Moose surprised Dunlop, finally, by coming off the ropes with a flying scissors that almost did the trick. Bunny eventually fought out of that one but McCready followed it with his rocking-chair hold and that was the finale for Dunlop.

Two fast-moving grapplers, the popular Joe Maich and Joe Christie went 30 minutes to a draw in the opening bout and the crowd saw a lot of action. Both boys have speed and a repertoire of holds and they travelled on high all through the half hour with the result that their smart moves drew plenty of applause. The draw verdict was fair to both of them.

Bert Maxwell did the refereeing chore while the dual duties of announcing and timing was taken care of by Fred Scates.

Hitler Fears New Invasion

LONDON, July 19 — (CP) — Uneasy over the prospect of new Allied landings, Hitler has created a new Anti-invasion commander in Belgium and Northern France, and at the same time taken civilian control in this region out of the hands of the military and placed it under the Gestapo.

A dual shakeup, announced in a broadcast by DNB, German Agency, placed Joseph Grohe, 42-year-old high officer of Hitler's Elite Guards as gaulieter of the entire region, and gave the military command to infantry Gen. Grase.

The new setup ousted Col.-Gen. Alexander von Falkenhausen, a friend of Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, who had been commender of Belgium and Holland since May 20, 1940, and subsequently of Northern France.

Hitler himself issued the decree, DNB said and stated that the change took place today at Brussels.

Nazi radio broadcasts acknowledged that Gen. Montgomery had carried his attack with British and Canadian troops east of the Orne River, and one commentator asserted the war would be decided in less than three months.

"The war now is in its decisive phase," said Commentator Jean Paquis on the Nazi-controlled Paris radio. "In less than three months we shall know if the Allies have won or lost. On the east front it is now purely a question of life or death."

Tthe German-controlled Vichy radio said the Allies, with great artillery and mighty air support, had carried the fighting east of the Orne, and a German High Command spokesman Lt.-Gen. Dittmar, declared that "the moment has come when our last ounce of strength must be marshalled, as the enemy's superiority weighs heavily on German soldiers."

Expect Premier

North, represented by R. M. Warren; and Grey North, represented by the seriously ailing W. P. Telford. Mr. Telford has not been able to attend this session.

When the rumor first started, Ottawa East, in which Mr. King lives at Laurier House, was given a first place as a possible seat. Members suggested that Mr. King holds a genuine civic interest in the capital. By representing a capital riding there would be eliminated immediately the problem of maintaining a personal contact with his constituents — a problem which is said to have aggravated his popularity in Prince Albert.

Even in 1940, Mr. King's strength in Prince Albert was not impressive. He is one of the many minority members of the Government, having won 8,310 votes as compared with 7,534 National Government, 1,993 C.C.F. and 243 Communist.

It is stated that the strong proportion of French-Canadian votes in Ottawa East would not be a serious bar to the Prime Minister's election chances, although it is also stated, from a policy standpoint, there would be pressure to retain this Ontario riding as a seat represented by a French-Canadian member.

Mr. Pinard was also elected on a minority vote, 12,373, although his chief opponent, with 10,526, ran as an Independent Liberal. The National Government candidate won 6,149 votes.

Mr. Warren won on a majority vote and, while Mr. Telford is a minority member, Liberals believe that the Progressive Conservative chances in North Grey have been lessened in the coming election.

Defeated Twice

Prime Minister King has been defeated twice in his long Parliamentary career, and, it is pointed out, a switch in ridings would not be accompanied by the separation pangs which might be suffered by men with less political experience.

As Labor Minister in the Laurier Government,. he was defeated in Waterloo North, his home riding in a close contest by W. O. Weichel. After he was named party leader in the 1919 convention he was elected member for Prince, P.E.I., in a by-election. In 1921 Mr. King transferred to York North and four years later suffered from Mr. Lennox what was admittedly, for him, the most galling setback of his career.

More Bomb Casualties

LONDON, July 19. — (CP).—A number of persons were feared killed as flying bombs zoomed over southern England to-day. One landed in a garage and wrecked a home. It was the second time within a few days that a bomb struck this same district.

Italian Liner Sunk

ROME, July 19.—(CP-Reuter). — The 5,000-ton former Italian passenger liner Italia, converted into a cargo ship by the Germans, has been sunk by rocket-firing Hurricanes in the Northern Adriatic, a headquarters announcement said today.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DON'T BE TOO HASTY

SCOTCHMEN have for generations given the world a series of good lessons in the merit of thriftiness. It is a quality which pays at the bridge table in many ways, especially in usually taking a trick with the lowest card which is sufficient to do it. Hasty playing of such a card, however, can prove just as costly as extravagance in some situations. There are times when it is imperative to use a higher card so as to be thrifty regarding a lower one, which is badly needed to furnish an entry to the opposite holding.

West took his diamond K and A and led the 7, which brought the 8 and the Q from North and East, and the spade 3 ruffing the trick for South. Now South began to study the situation and realised to his chagrin that he had upset the entire applecart with his play to the third trick. He had no immediate entry to the dummy, and so had to lose two more tricks, one in clubs and one in hearts.

The contract could have been assured by trumping the third trick with a higher spade, so as to preserve the invaluable 3, the only trump lower than those in the dummy. If he had done this, he could have got over there with a spade lead and used the diamond J to discard his club Q. Correct play from the fourth trick on would have been the spade A, luckily dropping the K, then another high trump, the spade 3 to the 9, the diamond J for discard of the club Q, and thereafter let the chips fall where they may.

But, even with the cards located so that he could luckily drop the singleton spade K, he managed to get his contract beaten through one careless slip.

Midland Unit In Camp At Connaught

By S.-SGT. TOMMY TURNER
Army Public Relations M.D. 3.

CONNAUGHT RESERVE ARMY CAMP, July 19—The second largest battalion under canvas here among the unbrigaded group of Reserve Army units in Military District No. 3 the 2nd (R.) Battalion, Midland Regiment, of Millbrook, draws its members from four Ontario counties.

Under the command of Lt.-Col. A. H. Bounsall, E.D., the battalion, which perpetuates the name of a famed unit which won glory in 1885 during the Northwest Rebellion, has companies in Bowmanville, Lindsay, Cobourg, Campbellford, Port Hope and Fenelon Falls.

Showing high efficiency in their training, members of the unit are endeavoring to capture a trophy being donated by Lt.-Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., camp commandant, for the winners of a tabloid sports meet, which includes training games.

Tanned and fit after a week under canvas, the battalion personnel took part Sunday in an open air church service, during which all the bands in camp were massed. During the recent visit to the camp of Defence Minister Ralston, Bandmaster E. C. Dolman, Peterborough, was in charge of a composite band which rendered selections at a mess dinner. Regimental buglers sounded "Retreat" as the Defence Minister and army officers saluted.

Intensive training has been undergone during the past week, and members of the 2nd Midlands have received instruction by members of the district instructional cadre on grenades, bayonet fighting, gas, map reading, fieldcraft, security, light machine gun and rifle.

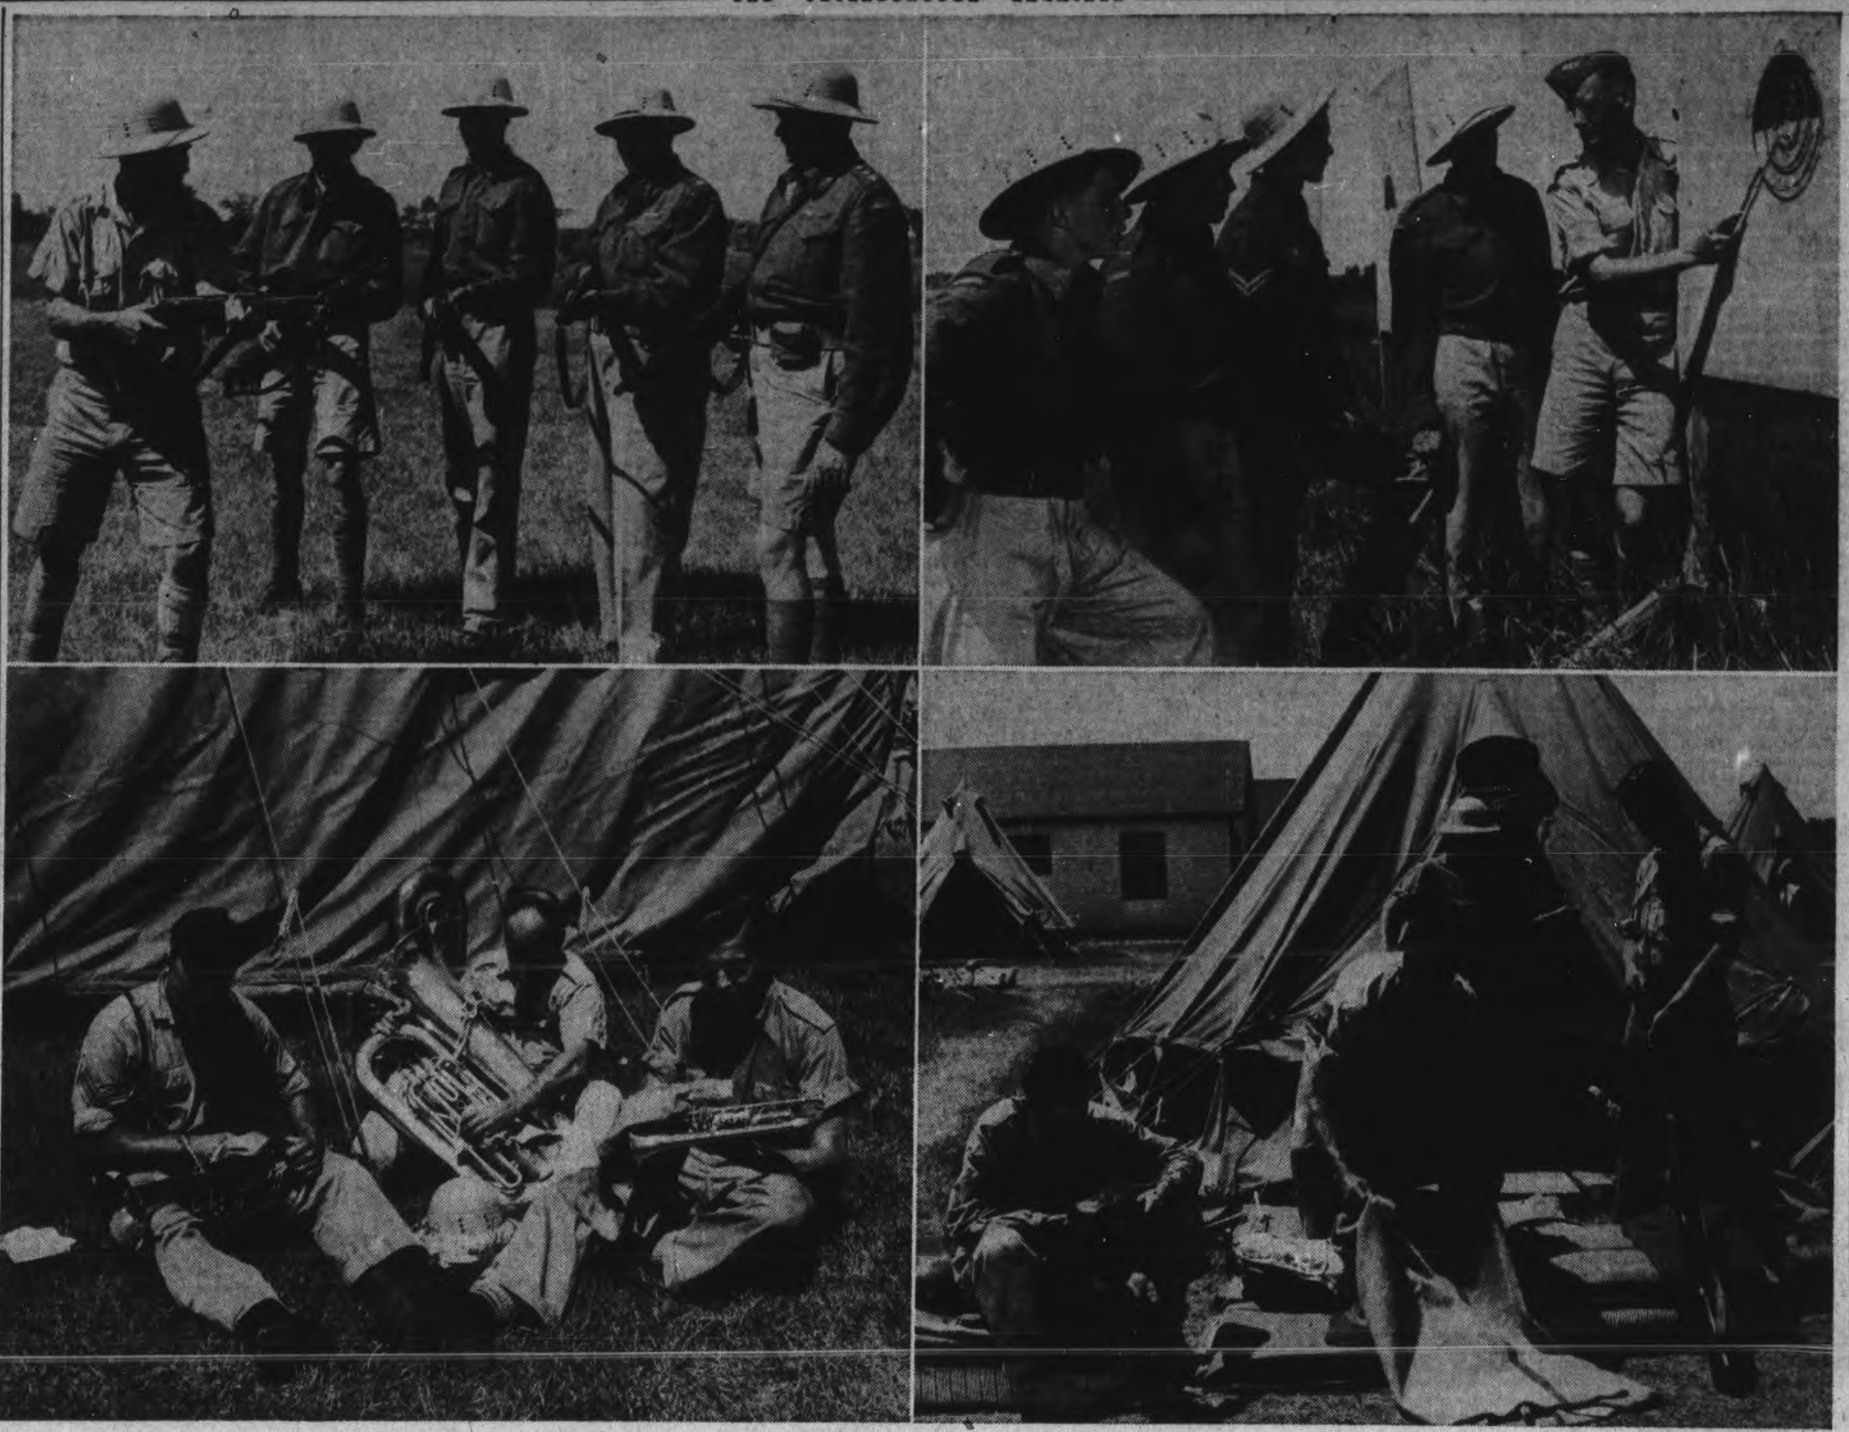
A healthy respect for the respirator by all ranks was brought about when they were put through the gas chamber first wearing their respirators and then without them. A sniff of the real thing made them realize more fully the necessity of taking extreme care of respirators, which are complete protection against all choking, nose and tear gases.

All ranks have spent considerable time on the ranges firing the rifle and Bren machine gun, while officers and non-commissioned officers of the battalion have also had pistol practice.

Officers commanding the unit companies under canvas are Headquarters Company, Bowmanville, Capt. L. W. Dippell, M.M. and Bar; Support Company, Lindsay, Lieut. C. R. Sutherland; "A" Company, Cobourg, Major C. O. Fowler; "B" Company, Campbellford, Major N. A. MacColl; "C" Company, Port Hope, Major W. E. Bonneville, and "D" Company, Fenelon Falls, Capt. A. C. Morris. About two months prior to cap Lieut. Sutherland, a Continuation school teacher, organized an ack ack platoon in Little Brittain, which is now under canvas with the other members of the regiment.

Pte. K. Tanner, a student of Lindsay Collegiate Institute, is a unit transport driver while at the camp, and S/Sgt. E. R. Hawke, of Campbellford, who is attached to the unit headquarters at Millbrook, is in charge of the orderly room of the unit here.

"Excellent health" was the way Capt. W. W. Wade, of Cobourg, unit medical officer, expressed the physical condition of the men of the regiment under canvas. Lt.-Col. Bounsall remarked that the Midlands were taking the training extrmely well from competition instructors.



MIDLANDS AT CONNAUGHT—The 2nd (R.) Battalion, Midland Regiment, is in camp at Connaught Ranges and is the second largest unit in the camp. General Tojo Is Relieved Of Army Post

NEW YORK, July 19 — (AP).—Tokyo announced yesterday that Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo had been relieved as Chief of the Army General Staff in the second sweeping shakeup of Japan's High Command in two days in the face of what Tojo himself called "an unprecedentedly great national crisis."

The navy, chief suffered in recent heavy defeats in the Pacific, underwent a similar shakeup Monday when a relatively obscure admiral replaced the Navy Minister.

The shakeup was announced in a series of broadcasts recorded by The Associated Press and United States Government monitors. Other broadcasts told the Japanese people for the first time that Saipan had been lost with all its garrison and most of its Japanese civilian population, stressing the gravity of the crisis.

The announcements made no mention of Tojo's status as Premier and War Minister; presumably he retains these posts. But the following changes in the highest levels of army command were made public:

Tojo was succeeded as staff chief by 62-year-old Gen. Yoshi Jiro Umezu, hitherto commander-in-chief of Japan's army in Manchuria and "Ambassador to Manchukuo"—real ruler of that puppet State.

In the Manchurian posts Umezu was succeeded bp Gen. Otozo Yamada, hitherto inspector of military education.

Completing a round robin, Field-Marshal Gen. Sugiyama was named to succeed Yamada. Sugiyama had been chief of staff until shaken out in a command upheaval last February 21, when Tojo added that post to his list.

The broadcasts said these army shifts, coupled with the navy's, were made "to establish firmly the structure for guidance of the war and in view of the unprecedentedly grave war situation.

"The iron-tight structure for the commanding offices for both the army and navy have been realized," declared the official news agency Domei.

There was no indication in yesterdays broadcasts that Tojo had lost any considerable portion of his great power. He announced the disaster of Saipan and summoned the nation to greater efforts.

His successor, Umezu, also is a powerful Japanese militarist, associated closely with Asiatic expansion adventures.

Surprise Rescue

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 19—(CP)—An isolated American airborne unit which found itself bolstered by a great mass of tanks on D-day, had an excited radio operator to thank. He sent a message reporting enemy strength at 150 tanks, instead of the actual 150 men. The High Command immediately rushed a big block of armor into the area.

Ottawa Man Detained After Laundress Hurt

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP) — Police today held Thomas Latour, Ottawa for questioning after Miss Ada LaLonde, 44-year-old laundress at an Ottawa hospital, was found wounded last night in a field adjoining a cemetery on the outskirts of Ottawa.

Miss LaLonde, whose condition is considered serious, had a deep abdominal wound which hospital authorities said appeared to have been caused by a razor.

Water Supply Cut

KITCHENER, July 19 — (CP) — Kitchener water consumers were asked to cut consumption to essential requirements today when a 12-inch main leading from the big Shoemaker avenue plant burst in the swamp area near the source. The city's supply was reduced by 1,000,000 gallons a day as a result of the break.

Allied Peace Terms Are Prepared

LONDON, July 19 — (CP-Reuter) — Foreign Secretary Eden assured the House of Commons Tuesday that the Allies are ready with their peace terms.

Replying to criticisms that the war might end without the Allies having their armistice or peace terms prepared, Mr. Eden said: "Victory cannot come too quick, and it comes we shall be ready with these proposals."

He added it would be unwise for these proposals to be made public at this moment.

Mr. Eden agreed that it was possible to win the war but lose the peace. But it seemed to him that one member who criticized insistence on unconditional surrender and objected to the threat to cut off east Prussia from Germany, had got the whole problem wrong.

"You have read German psychology and German people completely wrongly," Mr. Eden said to the member who had declared that if the Allies were not careful they would force upon Germany another Hitler.

"Do you really believe that Hitler was something imposed from Germany?" Mr. Eden asked.

"I think we should win the war and lose the peace if we didn't take every military and political precaution in our power to see that Hitler—who is a sympton of a certain mentality— or his successors never have a like opportunity," he said.

He said that of German prisoners captured since the landing in northern France 77 per cent. had admitted having read British pamphlets and that 40 per cent. had Allied leaflets in their possession when captured.

DON'T TRAVEL
UNLESS YOU HAVE TO!

You and your baggage clutter up a lot of space that our troops should have. They may be on their last leave. They may not have been home for a year and want to get there fast. If you take up the room they should have they either have to stand or, perhaps, not go at all.

So, give the Armed Forces a break. They're doing everything for us—let's do something for them and don't travel unless we have to.

Leipzig's Plane Factories Oil Plants Are Bombed

LONDON, July 20—(CP).—In great, co-ordinated attacks on Germany for the third straight day, 2,000 British-based American planes bombed a profusion of oil and airplane plants around Leipzig and another fleet from Italy pummeled airdromes in the Munich and Friedrichshafen areas today. More than 1,200 heavy bombers and up to 750 fighters were over central Germany. An armada of like strength levelled objectives around Munich and from Saarbrucken on the French frontier to Schweinfurt in southeast Germany yesterday.

In the attack from Italy four-engine planes bombed the Mayback shop, which makes tank engines, the Zeppelin works and the Lowenthal airdrome, all in the immediate outskirts of Friedrichshafen.

Other heavyweights, with fighter escort, hit Memmingen airdrome 70 miles southwest of Munich. A small formation also bombed Badworishofen, 45 miles southwest of Munich.

Only a few enemy aircraft broke through the fighter escort to attack the heavies, Rome dispatches said.

R.A.F. heavy bombers streamed across the Channel in daylight against the robot bomb platform of northern France after bombing caves housing the missiles at Thiverny, 30 miles northeast of Paris, at dusk.

American Havoc light bombers jabbed against air opposition nearly to the Belgian border, hitting rail yards at Chaulnes, 20 miles east of Amiens, where much German activity had been noted. Waves of Marauder medium bombers were reported over the battles in Normandy.

Bad weather restricted night operations over France, but two German planes were shot down. British Mosquito bombers, in their 11th straight night incursion into Germany, bombed the north sea port of Bremen.

The German radio reported Britain-based American formations all over central and southwestern Germany, while other groups from the south were said to be sweeping up over the Tyrol into Bavaria.

A low ceiling hung over Normandy all day yesterday and chief operations in support of Allied ground forces were medium bomber attacks on bridges and fuel dumps 50 miles or more behind the enemy lines.

Twenty-seven locomotives and approximately 200 railroad cars were damaged in far-flung attacks.

Canada Short 500,000 Workers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 20—(CP)—Although seven out of every 10 Canadian adults are employed at present there is a tremendous labor shortage in this country, Labor Minister Mitchell said in a speech here yesterday to local service clubs. He declared there were openings for nearly 500,000 workers in Canada today.

Speaking of efforts of National Selective Service to combat the problem he added: "I hope that when this war is over all restrictions upon where a man shall work, and for whom he shall work, will be removed."

The minister spoke of the Allied advances overseas and also paid warm tribute to the great advance of the Russian armies. "I am one of those who hope that the Russians get to Berlin first," he said, because the British, Canadians and Americans "look on war very much as they look on a football game—three cheers for the winners and three cheers for the losers."

110 Superfortresses To Be Built In July

HOUSTON, Tex., July 20.—(AP).—Representative Albert Thomas (Dem., Texas), asserted yesterday in an address that the U.S. will build 110 giant Superfortresses during July.

"We have 85 carriers now," Thomas said, "and there have been 34 carriers leased to our Allies."

Thomas stated that he recently "saw the 45,000-ton aircraft carriers under construction" in an east coast port.

Robot Bases Well Hidden

Nazis Launch Bombs From Well Inside France

LONDON, July 20.—(CP).— Belief the Germans now are launching thier flying bombs from bases well inside France which thus far have largely escaped Allied air assaults was expressed here to-day as the robots continued to rain upon London and southern Engand.

It was noted that many of the robots seemed to be coming from a more eastery direction than heretofore, suggesting the employment of bases other than those in the Pas De Calais area which have been bombed repeatedly by Allied planes.

While last night's assaults upon Britain were heavy, they were somewhat less violent than those of yesterday and the preceding night, when the robot barrage reached a record peak of intensity. Before darkness R.A.F. fighters and anti-aircraft fire brought down many of the buzz-bombs.

Casualties as well as damage were reported, but their number was not disclosed.

Minister of Health Henry U. Willink told the House of Commons more than 170,000 women and children had been evacuated from London since July 2.

Prime Minister Churchill commented that the figure would "disappoint the enemy, who expected more."

East Prussia Defenders Weakening

Germans Show Signs Of Breaking West Of The Niemen

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, July 20 (AP) — The German army showed signs of breaking in the hotly contested battleground west of the Niemen river before East Prussia today as seven fronts flamed in battle.

(The German radio said Russian troops had reached Augustow, at the base of the Suwalki triangle which was annexed to East Prussia out of Polish territory in 1939. The town is eight miles from the pre-1939 frontier of East Prussia).

The string of German-held cities of Lwow, Brest Litovsk, Bialystok, Kaunas and Daugavpils was tottering, with the Russians fighting to the outskirts of Lwow in Southern Poland and possibly in the suburbs of Brest Litovsk in Northern Poland.

Smash Bug River Line

In the south the Russians for the first time had smashed through the Bug river defence which from 1939 to 1941 formed the dividing line between Russia and German-held Poland.

In the newest of their power-packed offensives near the Latvian Republic's northeast corner, Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3rd Baltic Army crossed the Velikaya river south of Ostrov and made swift progress toward Middle Latvia, the frontier only nine miles away.

The Soviet Air Force was out in a strength never before equalled, giving sure cover for masses of tanks, cavalry and infantry which swarmed upon the Germans from the western Bug River to the bogs of the north.

The scope of the 600-mile front made it difficult to set apart the most significant developments, but the offensive in the south where the main forces may by-pass Lwow, and the wedge between Bialystok and Brest Litovsk to the north made it appear that the march to Warsaw has begun.

Marshal Ivan Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army, after capturing Sokal, 46 miles north of Lwow, and bridging the Bug appeared to be spearing toward the big Polish cities of Chelm and Lublin, milestones on the way to Warsaw. Sokal is 185 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's wedge between Bialystok and Brest Litovsk to the north was pust 110 miles from Warsaw.

The closest Red Army units were about 24 miles northeast of Bialystok and were driving hard down the main highway from captured Krynki. They had only the narrow Sokolka River to cross.

By comparison, the opening of Maslennikov's smash toward Latvia, even though it shoved the Nazis back 26 miles on a 45-mile front in two days and helped amass a total of nearly 1,500 hamlets and towns captured by Russian forces,

Japs Yielding Indian Footholds

KANDY, Ceylon, July 20 — (CP) — Allied troops pursuing the Japanese down the Tiddim Road in southeastern India have reached a point south of Moirang, the last important village on the Imphal Plain before the road enters the hill country, a southeast Asia Command headquarters comunique said today.

More progress was made in the prolonged, bitter seige of Myitkyina, last remaining major Japanese base in North Burma. Fighter bombers, working closely with Allied infantry inside the city of 8,000 destroyed several positions.

The communique said the Japanese retreating down the Tiddim road toward relative sanctuary in the Monsoon-soaked Chin Hills were slowing the British advance with demolitions, blown up bridges and cratered roads.

EIGHT MILES FROM BORDER

LONDON — (CP—Reuter) — The German Transocean Agency quoted a Berlin military spokesman as saying that between Grodno and the East Prussian frontier "the bitter fighting has reached Augostovo eight miles from the East Prussian frontier."

Father And 7 Serve

Windsor, July 20.—(CP).

PTE. Emmanual Barron, 50, of Windsor, can boast of his family record—he has 20 children, 17 of them still living. Seven of them are in the armed services. Two of his son, twins, Albert and George, are in France with the Canadian corps, while another set of twins have just returned to Canada from overseas duties.

Allied Progress Impeded By Heavy Rains

ROME, July 20 (CP)—Torrential rains were impeding Allied progress all along the Italian battle-front today, Allied headquarters announced, but advances were made on both the British 8th Army and Alled 5th Army fronts.

In the approximate centre of the line the 8th Army overran Radda, 12 miles norfth of Siena, and another advance carried to Castiglion, six miles northwest of Arezzo and north of the Upper Arno river.

Stiff fighting was reported for Montevarchi, on the river 15 miles northwest of Arezzo, where Canadian armor has been assisting a British two-pronged drive.

American troops, reaching the south banks of the Lower Arno river on a 25-mile front in hot pursuit of the Germans fleeing to their Gothic line defences beyond the river, have captured Colle Salvetti, seven miles northeast of Allied-held Livorno.

The latest town to fall in this area of decreasing Nazi resistance is about 10 miles southeast of Pisa, on a highway leading directly to that important enemy anchor position.

Sniping Parties Out

German opposition was confined largely to sniping parties armed with automatic weapons as United States forces seized the last high ground held by the Germans south of the Arno river, and laid down artillery fire which left the enemy with no alternative but retreat.

At the other end of the front Polish and Italian units pushed on from the west coast port of Ancona and cut the coastal road at Torrette a Mare, nearly three miles west of the city. Another column, with armor, sped along the inland route in the Adriatic sector and established a bridgehead over the Esino river, 10 miles west of Ancona and

Canadian Troops Have Captured Hill 67 South Of Vaucelles

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE CAEN FRONT, France, July 20—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops have captured Hill 67 three miles south of Vaucelles after taking the town of Fluery on the east bank of the Orne River.

Infantry carried out the attack on this dominating hill with tanks supporting them and a heavy Canadian artillery barrage preceding the assault.

Earlier, other Canadian infantry cleaned up Cormelles, a mile southeast of Vaucelles, and Canadians also occupied the village of Ifs between Fleury and Cormelles.

While the Canadians slug their way forward on the right flank of this salient, British troops are fighting in the outskirts of Troarn and have cleaned up the Cagny area on the Vaucelles-Vimont road. There also is fighting in the Bourgebus area.

A British staff officer at 2nd Army headquarters said the big achievement of the curent battle was the capture of the Caen-Vaucelles area.

Aided By British

It was Canadian troops which carried out the assault here but could not have done so successfully without the victory of the British infantry and armor in their push through the corridor east and south of the city.

French-speaking Canadian troops (possibly Le Regiment de la Chaudiere, Lake Megantic, Que.) fought their way into Fleury between 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday and another regiment with tanks moved up the slopes of Hill 67.

The Germans counter-attacked this column as it advanced and there was a stiff fight before the Canadians finally captured the top of the hill and consolidated about 10 p.m.

New Jap Premier Replaces Tojo

NEW YORK, July 20 — (AP).— The Tokyo radio announced to-day that Gen. Kuniaki Koisi, Governor-General of Korea, and Admiral Mitsumada Yonai, former Japanese Premier, had been chosen by Emperor Hirohito to form a new Japanese Cabinet.

The broadcast, directed to Japanese areas and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said:

"The order to form the succeeding Cabinet was issued to Gen. Kunaiki Kioso and Admiral Mitsumada on the afternoon of July 20."

Five minutes after sending this dispatch, the Domei News Agency transmitted another message to the Japanese areas saying that important news was "expected to come in late to-night"— presumably an announcement concerning the formation of the new Cabinet.

The resignation of Tojo, who sent the Japanese against Pearl Harbor less than two months after he assumed the post of Premier in October, 1941, was announced in a series of broadcast dispatches by Domei, official Japanese agency.

A statement by the Japanese Board of Information said: "We anticipate with great anxiety the appearance of a new, strong Cabinet at this time."

Kido, a former Minister of Public Welfare and of Education, is one of the senior statesmen of Japan. He held the post of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal when Prince Fumimaro Konoye's third Japanese Government collapsed in the face of a grave impasse on national policy toward the United States and Russia in October, 1941.

Domei said that a meeting of former Premiers had been called "to deliberate on the personnel of the new Cabinet," but did not indicate a decision was reached by the session.

"Home Affairs Minister Kido, upon receiving questions from his Imperial Majesty, conscious of the huge responsibility placed upon him, and so that his reply to the Emperor would be flawless, called a meeting of the ex-Premiers at the Imperial Palace on the evening of July 18," Domei said.

Listed as those who attended were Baron Reijiroo Watatsuki, Admiral Keiyuke Okada, Koki Hirota, Fumimaro Konoye, Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, Gen. Nobuyuki Abe, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai and the President of the Privy Council, Yoshimachi Hari.

"Based upon the opinion of these men, the prudent deliberation ended regarding the leader for the succeeding Cabinet," Domei said vaguely.

Elaborating on its first announcement of the Cabinet resignations, Domei said: "The reason, to put it straightforwardly, is that the individuality of the Tojo Cabinet was unable to keep up with the intensty of the burning war spirit of the people."

Referring to the "present grave situation," the wireless despatch directed to Japanese-occupied areas, stated "the Government finally has decided to renovate its personnel
